THE PRESIDENT said he would like to submit himself to an election in order to establish a precedent for future Presidents of this country. At a caucus with members of the Batasang Bayan held at Malacañang, the President said: "No body is more conscious of the immensity and the awesome nature of the power of the President under Martial Law than I am." He added however: "I don't care whether it is an election or not, but we must submit the political leadership to the judgment of the people periodically. It is my hope that we will be able to arrive at some kind of a scheme or mechanism by which I can submit myself to the people."

RELATIONSHIP between the Philippines and Australia, the President said, should be viewed over the long haul and their policies extend "beyond this particular period of distress." He spoke before members of the Philippine-Australia Joint Business Cooperation Committee who called on him at Malacañang at the end of their three-day meeting here, their third joint meeting in as many years. He explained that although trade between the two nations have recently suffered from some restrictions, private businessmen have ample leeway to expand trade and other relations between them. He said the efforts of businessmen of both nations to work together "within the limits and constraints of policy" of their governments speak well of their two peoples.

President's Month in Review: November, 1977

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

November 1—

THE PRESIDENT directed that arrests, searches and seizures should be made only under established rules and procedures, including the serving of a proper warrant issued by competent military or civil courts. However, the so-called citizen's arrest may be effected even in the absence of a warrant under the circumstances provided for in Section 6, Rule 113 of the Rules of Court. The President has issued Letter of Instructions No. 612 to this effect.

November 2—

INTERNATIONAL Labor Organization (ILO) "has the will and the strength to survive" despite the United States' decision to withdraw. Labor Secretary Blas F. Ople, who was president of the International Labor conference in 1975, made this assessment following President Carter's formal announcement of US' decision to pull out of the ILO.

November 3—

THE PRESIDENT called on the private sector to extend beyond the sphere of consultation the relationship it had developed and is developing with the Association of Southeast Asian Nations machinery and governments. He underscored this fact in his speech at the third conference of the ASEAN Chambers of Commerce and Industries at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC). He added saying the private sectors in the ASEAN should continue their dialogues with their respective governments for their full participation in the implementation and fulfillment of the ASEAN projects and programs.

PHILIPPINE National Bank and the Central Bank were ordered by the President to release immediately the crop loan requirements of the sugar industry to enable the country to fill its sugar quota under its international commitments. He issued the order upon being presented with the text of the agreement adopted by the Sugar Conference of the United Nations in Geneva last month. The presentation was made by Chairman Roberto S. Benedicto of the Philippine Sugar Commission who headed the delegation which represented the country in the conference.

COMMISSION on Elections announced that 15-year-olds will also vote in the December 17 referendum, but their votes will be counted separately from the votes of the 18-year-olds and above, as done in past refenda. Comelec Chairman Leonardo B. Perez cited Section 3 of Presidential Decree No. 1229 issued last October 30 calling a referendum asking the people to vote on whether or not the President, should continue in office even after the organization of the interim Batasang Pambansa, possibly in April or May next year.

November 4—

THE PRESIDENT has ordered a price support for soybeans, mongo and sorghum to increase production of these agricultural crops and help farmers meet the high cost of producing them. In Presidential Decree No. 1212, the President also placed under the sole authority of the National Grains Authority (NGA) the importation of soybeans, mongo, sorghum and other feedgrains or their substitutes.

November 5—

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda Romualdez Marcos reported upon her return that improved relations between the Philippines and the United States can be expected. She gave a brief summary of her mission to US which she described as “one of the most challenging assignments outside the country.” She left the country on September 26 on a mission for the President.

THE GOVERNMENT will set up pesticide-safe zones around lakes and rivers all over the country to protect marine and fish life from contamination by harmful chemicals. Administrator Miguel Zosa of the Fertilizer and Pesticide Authority (FPA) who is also officer-in-charge of the Department of Agriculture said the program will be implemented nationwide by the start of the main crop season next year.

November 6—

NATIONAL Grains Authority (NGA) Administrator Jess Tanchanco warned middlemen against “interfering in the sale of farmers’ produce to the agency to take advantage of the government’s grain price support. The warning came in the wake of reports that several grain traders, other than farmers or grain producers, “are selling or offering to sell palay, corn, and other grains to the NGA.”

ABOUT 511,000 high school graduates and graduating students will troop to 1,300 examination centers to take the fifth national college entrance examination (NCEE). Even troubled areas in Mindanao, which have 132 test sites and about 62,000 examinees, are expected to be able to hold the test today.

November 7—

THE PRESIDENT declared the country as “not yet ready to shift to the parliamentary system of government.” He said the present set-up should continue. He cited this position to back his appeal for a “yes” vote in the December 17 referendum. The President, inspired by the enthusiastic crowd that packed the Folk Arts Theater, also explained the issues involved in next month’s referendum.

Members of the barangay community brigades in Metro Manila were granted by the President certain privileges, and vested them with the power of being agents of persons in authority. This was in recognition of their role in various community activities. The community brigades include the barangay ladies, auxiliary, the disaster, traffic auxiliary and the “tanod barangay” brigades. At the same time, the President ordered: 1) Exemption of the government officials and employees who are serving as barangay officials from the 15-day rural service requirement. 2) Deputized barangay captains in Metro Manila to help implement the uniform building code and as agents of the National Pollution Control Commission (NPCC).

METRO Manila Governor Imelda Romualdez Marcos paid tribute to the metropolitan citizenry for what she said was their total commitment to help solve the city’s problems. She said the conditions were the results of centuries of neglect and indifference. She thanked the barangays, the youth, the businessmen, and all sectors of the community for the “spirit of participation which has not only stopped the process of decay and death in the city but has, more importantly, transfigured metropolitan life.”

THE PRESIDENT received Gen. Vladimir Alexander Shatalov, chief cosmonaut in charge of Soviet space agency and member of the Supreme Soviet, who paid a courtesy call at Malacañang. With Gen. November 10—

THE PRESIDENT pledged, the complete support and assistance of the national government to further scientific and technological research. He gave this assurance of support and assistance during the fifth anniversary celebration of the Philippine Council for Agricultural and Resources Research at the Maharlika Hall of Malacañang.

THE PRESIDENT said the question of whether Or not curfew should be reimposed will not be put before the electorate in the December 17 referendum. The statement was made in response to a query from Chairman Leonardo Perez of the Commission on Elections.

QUESTION of whether or not to reimpose curfew shall be decided on the basis of public welfare and not on popular demand, the President said. In a conference with provincial governors and city mayors at Malacañang, the President said that the question will be decided after the December 17 referendum in order to give interested parties all the opportunity to campaign on the issues involved in the referendum.

THE PRESIDENT received a letter from US President Jimmy Carter in which the latter agreed that the talks on the use of the military bases by the Americans be resumed by those who had a hand on the negotiations. The American President’s letter was delivered to the President by the new American ambassador David Newsom during a one-hour conference with the President at Malacañang. Earlier in the morning, Ambassador Newsom presented his credentials to the President as the new US ambassador replacing Ambassador William H. Sullivan who was reassigned to Iran.

THE PRESIDENT ordered the freezing of action on all contracts pending at the Department of Public Highways until after he has created a Special Bidding Committee which will, henceforth, pass upon these contracts. The President’s order came in the wake of reports of irregularities in the awarding of some contracts to private contractors.

November 13—

LABOR Secretary Blas F. Ople has announced that the Department of Labor’s regional office No. 4-A is now operational. The new office which cover 11 provinces and eight cities in Southern Tagalog, is headed by lawyer Dioscora C. Arellano as regional director with Danilo P. Cruz as assistant director.

November 17—

THE PRESIDENT has paved the way for the acquisition of private lands within the limits of the proposed 20,312-hectare Lungsod Silangan town-site in the northern part of Rizal. He issued Letter of Instructions No. 625, directing, among others: 1) The Solicitor General to immediately start condemning proceedings for the acquisition of said lands, in accordance with Public Land Act and the new constitution; 2) The secretary of natural resources and the director of lands to take over the management, administration and disposition of the acquired lands, and to immediately do a boundary and parcellary survey of all lands within the newly established townsite and institute the necessary court proceedings for the compulsory settlement and adjudication of private claims therein; 3) The chairman of the Human Settlement Commission to prepare a total framework plan for the new townsite, as well as detailed development plans by phases according to priorities that it may deem fit, and 4) The budget commissioner to release such funds as may be necessary for the condemnation, of the privately owned lands, for the cadastral survey and land use inventory, as well as for the development planning of the new townsite.

November 18—

THE PRESIDENT approved the sale of 15,000 metric tons of Philippine rice to Indonesia, marking the first time ever in the New Society that the country will export the commodity. The rice export, worth P31.5 million in domestic price equivalent, was approved by the President in the spirit of ASEAN cooperation and in view of the current surplus of rice in the country.

THE PRESIDENT emphasized the need to train the young for future leadership in order to insure the continuity of government programs, particularly of the radical reforms under the New Society. Speaking before the first 67 graduates of the Future Leaders Program at the Hall of Unity and Brotherhood of Malacañang, the President singled out the graduates as “the vanguard, the cutting edge and spearhead of the new group of leaders who will show the way for others to follow.” In order to better prepare them for the task of future leadership, he instructed the Civil Service Commission and the heads of departments and agencies concerned to “expose them to the different government programs, and to make provision for the further career development of young people.”

UPON recommendation of the Commission on Elections (Comelec), the President set November 27 as an additional day for the general registration of the qualified voters to enable those who have not register to register in the voting centers. The nationwide listing of voters was held last October 29-30 and November 4-5, as specified under Presidential Decree No. 1187, which seeks to establish a new voting registry.

THE PRESIDENT called upon the critics of his administration to express their views freely and to help clarify the issues involved in the December 17 referendum. In a speech at the annual reunion of the kauyagan nen Polaris, Inc. (Pangasinan Civic Confederation) held at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC), the President directed the media to give equal time and space to those in opposition to any of the policies of the administration.

THE PRESIDENT said that the measure of a great newspaper or magazine is the decree of service it provides its readers and the larger society, the causes it promotes and the tendencies it corrects or rectifies. In brief remarks at ceremonies commemorating the 5th anniversary of Focus magazine held at its new offices and plant in Port Area, the President said in its chosen task of educating public opinion, the press can pursue that mission in innumerable ways. And the test of its worth is always the degree of public good and welfare that its work may advance or deter, he said.

November 20—

TRADE Secretary Troadio T. Quiazon Jr. said garments and television components would be given more promotional emphasis since these are notably lower in price and are of better quality than those exported to Switzerland by other countries. He told a visiting Swiss delegation, headed by Klaus Jacobi, delegate of the Federal Council for Trade Agreements and governor of the Asian Development Bank (ADB) that the Philippines would also seek an increase in its exports of raw coffee, semi-conductor devices and nickel to Switzerland.

November 21—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady and Metro Manila Governor, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, received Dr. and Mrs. Billy Graham who made a courtesy call. The President later also received Markus G. Kaiser, executive of the Swiss Banking firm of Rhan Bodmer and Co., who also came to pay his respects.

SPECIAL committee to take charge of all arrangements for the nationwide commemoration of the 81st death anniversary of Dr. Jose P. Rizal on December 30 has been created by the President. Created through Administrative Order No. 423, the committee is composed of Education Undersecretary Narciso Albarracin and Presidential Assistant Ronaldo B. Zamora, as chairman and vice chairman, respectively.

THE PRESIDENT battled for increased trade between Japan and the countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). "The Philippines and almost all, if not all, of the ASEAN countries believe in trade much more than in aid from Japan," the President told a 59 man delegation of the young members of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party of Japan conducting a study tour of ASEAN countries, who called at Malacañang. Later, the President also received the Bank of Tokyo officials, who also made a courtesy call before leaving after inaugurating their off-shore banking unit in Makati, Metro Manila.

THE PRESIDENT welcomed the interest shown by Switzerland in expanding trade relations not only with the Philippines but with all of Southeast Asia, in sending the Swiss-ASEAN Goodwill Mission to the region. He also expressed elation in receiving a delegation in which the private sector is strongly represented. The Swiss goodwill mission is touring Southeast Asia in an effort to find ways and means of strengthening and deepening relations with ASEAN countries.

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Governor, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, stressed that the government's task of giving man a better quality of life, total renewal and a New Society that is compassionate is "but a redemption of both his body and spirit." She was guest speaker at the opening ceremonies of the Billy Graham Crusade '77 at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC). She said that the Filipino people are trying to liberate themselves from the "disabling ingredients", traumas, violence and obscenities of the past in order to "emerge renewed and become truly human." Citing the small successes that the government had achieved, she said that as cities here have become more orderly and intellectual needs are being attended to "we can never have enough of divine leadership and its spiritual fullness." Expressing gratitude at the Crusade's presence in the Philippines, she said that this consciousness of Christ will move us to a eucharist of total renewal.

THE PRESIDENT moved to insure Filipino control of the construction industry by issuing Letter of Instructions No. 630. The LOI provides that bidding awards or negotiation of primarily civil work contracts shall be limited to Filipino individuals, corporations, partnership, or association, 75 per cent of the capital of which is owned by Filipinos. To guarantee compliance, every contracting government entity, is required to see to it that no contractor should enter into an agreement, tie-up, or joint venture arrangement with a foreigner to thwart the provisions of the Anti-Dummy Law. However, the President said LOI should not go against present and future commitments on bidding of contracts financed partly or wholly by funds from international lending institutions.

THE PRESIDENT accused former President Diosdado Macapagal of personally aggravating the communist rebellion in Central Luzon and of spawning the bitter secessionist fighting in the South. He issued the strongly worded statement in reply to an indictment of the Martial Law government by his predecessor whom he defeated in a bid for reelection in 1965. Opposition leaders headed by Macapagal, have finally broken their imposed silence and have, resumed criticizing the President and his Martial Law regime.

EIGHT measures to help ease the financial problems of the nation's hospitals were implemented by the President. He announced the move in a keynote address at the opening of the 28th annual national convention of the Philippine Hospital Association (PHA).

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda Romualdez Marcos pledged to clean up the "non-physical debris" in the metropolis generated by "spiritual and mental pollution" and indicated the media for its "continuing role" in debasing human values. Addressing the Rotary Club of Manila at the Philippine Plaza's Grand Ballroom, the First Lady said, "we must proceed against spiritual and mental pollution, or the pollution of values."

November 25—

THE PRESIDENT stressed the role of religion as a "tremendous force for reform and change in society and in the world." He was speaking at the national prayer breakfast held at the Philippine Plaza Hotel. The visiting American

Evangelist, Billy Graham, also addressed the meeting. The President said he shares the view of religious leaders like Graham “of the need for men and nations to share with one another, and of the need of the poorer nations to share in the boons of progress in our time.”

THE PRESIDENT put the question of Martial Law as one of the three main issues the people will decide in the coming December 17 referendum and in case of a “no” vote he pledged: “I will lift Martial Law immediately.” Speaking before the 20th general assembly of the Veterans Federation of the Philippines at Camp Aguinaldo, the President listed the other two issues as follows: 1) The question of his continuance as President which is the subject of the question in the coming referendum; and 2) The national development program drawn up by the present political leadership.

THE PRESIDENT attended a special mass on the occasion of the 20th anniversary of the National Children’s Medical Center at Banawe, Quezon City. In his short remarks after the mass, he said the medical center will also enjoy the incentives he had ordered for all hospitals during his opening remarks at the 28th annual national convention of the Philippine Hospital Association (PHA).

THE PRESIDENT expressed deep concern over the growing protectionism in world trade, saying that any trade restrictions “tend to result in more tensions in the world.” He made this observation in his talk with Francis Blanchard, director general of the International Labor Organization (ILO) who called on the President immediately after his arrival here for a ten-day official visit. Blanchard briefed the President on the activities of the ILO, especially the steps it has taken since the withdrawal from the organization of the United States last November 1.

November 28—

THE PRESIDENT imposed a “Mine Wastes and Tailings Fee” on all mining firms operating in the country. Under Presidential Decree No. 1251, the fee will accrue to a reserve fund to pay for damages caused by the mining firms’ pollution on lands, agricultural crops and forest products, marine and aquatic resources, and infrastructure, due to their operations. The fee, the amount is to be, determined by the secretary of natural resources upon the recommendation of the director of mines, will in turn be used to revegetate and rehabilitate silted farm lands and other areas devoted to agriculture, aquaculture and fishing, and to reconstruct infrastructure.

OFFICE of the President banned any government official and employee from accepting private employment in any capacity without prior authority from it. The ban, contained in Memorandum Circular No. 1025, was issued by Presidential Assistant Juan C. Tuvera by order of the President. It takes effect immediately. In this connection, Secretary Tuvera directed all government officials and employees now employed in any private agency, on a part-time basis or otherwise, to submit to the Office of the President their names, private employment, and the hours devoted to it.

ANCIENT Order of Sikatuna, with rank of datu, was conferred by the President on Ambassador Jamiluddin Hasan of Pakistan, who has been called home for reassignment. The award was conferred in recognition of the outgoing Pakistani envoy’s services in the field of international relations as the worthy spokesman of his government and people.

THE PRESIDENT received the members of Chaplain Service of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, who pledged continued and unstinted support to the President’s leadership, particularly in cleaning up the moral and spiritual pollution and in holding the referendum on December 17. The President told the group that he had deliberately gone out of his way to bring into focus the spiritual and moral problems of the New Society because the ways of justice do not seem sufficient to clean up the ranks, not only in the civil government but of ordinary citizen groups, as well as in the military.

THE PRESIDENT increased the Philippine contribution to the International Labor Organization (ILO) by 25 per cent of its present contribution. He announced the increase at the opening of the 17th session of the Asian Advisory Committee of the ILO at the Philippine International Convention Center, in response to an appeal made by Francis Blanehard, ILO director general.

THE PRESIDENT approved a proposal that a bilateral trade agreement be entered into between the Philippines and Chile with the view to stepping up trade relations between the two countries. He gave his approval during the call at Malacañang of an official trade mission from Chile headed by Minister of Economy Pablo Baraona.

November 30—

THE PRESIDENT said that the reason for the coming December 17 referendum is that “circumstances prevailing in the country today require the counsel and guidance of the people.” In an address read for him by Information Secretary Francisco S. Tatad at the fifth anniversary celebration of the Kilusang Mabuhay ang Pilipino (KMP) at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC), the President thus urged the people “to study the issues well, to think along and hard upon the subtler questions posed and implied by the referendum”, before rendering their decisions.

President's Month in Review: December, 1977

President's Week in Review: January 1-7, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 1—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Family were joined by guests at the traditional mass held in Malacañang to welcome the New Year. Among the guests were members of the diplomatic corps.

DOMESTIC trade contributed P14 million or 23 per cent of the Philippines gross national Product (GNP). In terms of growth, local commerce rose by 5.4 percent. Domestic trade's contribution to net domestic product (NDP) averaged 22.4 percent compared to the 31 percent share of agriculture and the 27.7 percent participation of the industrial sector. Trade Secretary Troadio T. Quiazon Jr. cited highlights of domestic trade performance for 1977 and foresaw a moderate growth for the ensuing year.

PUBLIC Works Secretary Alfredo L. Juinio directed all offices and agencies under the Department of Public Works, Transportation and Communications to ship all their import cargoes through Philippine air and sea carriers whenever possible pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 894, as amended. Under PD Nos. 806, 894 and 917, all government agencies as well as private parties that are beneficiaries of loans, credits or guarantees from the government and its institutions are required to give preference to Philippine flag carriers in the transport of their cargoes.

TENANTS working in rubber, pineapple, banana, coconut and sugar plantations will soon become part owners of the land they till. Agrarian Reform Secretary Conrado T. Estrella said fieldmen of the Department of Agrarian Reform (DAR) were conducting a survey to determine the tenanted crop plantations which will be converted to corporations with tenants as co-owners. Secretary Estrella said only tenanted crop plantations of 25 hectares and above will be included in the survey. Plantations being worked by hired laborers, and not by tenants, will not be included, he added.

January 3—

“UNDERBOARD” doctors and nurses will now have to render four months of rural health service, instead of six, although their allowance has been raised from P250 to P300. The changes were approved by the President on recommendation of Health Secretary Clemente Gatmaitan.

January 4—

COCONUT products are still the Philippines' strongest export commodity, turning in record export earnings of $765.3 million in 1977, or an increase of 38 percent over 1976, according to a report of the United Coconut Association of the Philippines. Coconut products contributed more than one-fourth of the country's total exports last year.

January 5—

THE PRESIDENT corrected certain misimpressions about the Philippine-style martial law in his talks with a visiting American congressional delegation headed by Rep. Lester L. Wolff (Dem., NY). The Wolff group, including nine congressmen, the deputy assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs, and a special assistant to President Jimmy Carter, were in the country in the course of a fact-finding mission in the region.

THE PRESIDENT vowed to pursue with greater vigor the development of economic and trade relations with all Socialist countries. He made these remarks when he received at Malacañang the letters of credence of Ambassador Valerian Vladimirovich Mikhailov as the first ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (USSR).

A BUDGET of P852.3-million, which puts emphasis on planned metropolitan growth, was approved for Metro Manila this year. The First Lady and Metro Manila Governor, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, signed the budget message in the presence of the town and city mayors of Metro Manila at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang. The budget emphasizes proper land use and resource management; improvement of institutional facilities for health, education, and social welfare, reduction or elimination of blighted areas; improvement of local administrative machinery; and more efficient fiscal administration.

THE PRESIDENT created a three-man committee to review, evaluate and recommend, for his final consideration, awards of contracts involving P20 million and above, whether awarded through public bidding or negotiation. Subject to the contract review, which covers subsequent changes in contracts involving a net increase in cost of 25 percent and above, are all contracts for civil works, consultancy services, or supply of equipment, machinery and supplies entered into by national government agencies and instrumentalities, including government owned and controlled corporations and local governments. Under Letter of Instructions No. 646, the committee is to be composed of the director general of the NEDA or his representative, as chairman, with a representative from involved agencies with at least the rank of an assistant secretary or assistant general manager, and a representative from the Office of the President, as members.

THE GOVERNMENT relaxed its policy toward PX vendors by ordering the inter-agency committee implementing the phase-out of the PX trade not to confiscate commodities already tax-paid. The order, relayed personally by the President to Brig. Gen. Romeo G. Gatan, First PC zone commander, put a new lease of life on an estimated P120 million worth of PX stocks which have been inventoried and taxed.

THE PRESIDENT expanded the territorial jurisdiction of the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System to make it more responsive to the water supply and sewerage requirements of Metropolitan Manila. The President issued Presidential Decree No. 1260 which gave the MWSS jurisdiction, supervision and control over all waterworks and sewerage systems in Lungsod Silangan (new city), Muntinlupa "and other areas that may come within the development path of the expanding metropolitan Manila area."

METRO Manila Commission increased and prescribed uniform rates of real property tax in the four metropolitan cities and 1 municipalities beginning January 1 this year. Except in the city of Manila, where the increase was very minimal or none at all, tax rates in the three other cities were raised to the level applied in Manila. The 13 municipalities have their own uniform rates which are about one-half percent lower than those of the four cities. Taxes on residential and agricultural lands in the municipalities, however, remain unchanged. The new rates took effect with Ordinance No. 77-04.

THE PRESIDENT approved a proposal to consolidate the government's borrowing program to finance development projects and/or refinance foreign obligations. The proposal, which was submitted by Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros and Finance Secretary Cesar Virata, is designed to secure financing at the lowest possible cost at the same time consolidate under one loan the foreign obligations from commercial sources of both new and existing government projects.

THE PRESIDENT signed a decree creating the National Home Mortgage Financing Corporation to develop and provide for a secondary market for home mortgage granted by public and private home financing institutions. In signing the decree at a joint meeting of the Cabinet and the National Economic and Development Authority at Malacañang, the President said that further measures were necessary to optimize the effective use of funds and resources committed by the government to the housing program.

THE PRESIDENT extended the Balikbayan Program for another year from March 1, 1978 to February 28, 1979 with the same incentives and benefits that have been part of the program since it started in July 1973. He signed the (still unnumbered) letter of instructions extending the program at the awarding ceremonies for 11 outstanding overseas Filipinos and the Presentation of “balik-scientists” at the Maharlika Hall, Malacañang.

HE expressed hopes that more Filipinos overseas would return home and help build a new nation with the “greatness that was once ours.” He also thanked the “balik-scientists” for having abandoned their more lucrative jobs abroad to serve their countrymen in this of “renewal and change.”

THE PRESIDENT declared January 9 a special public holiday in Dagupan city to give folk an opportunity to commemorate the historic landing of the American forces led by Gen. Douglas McArthur on Bonuan, Blue Beach, Lingayen, Pangasinan, January 9, 1945.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 1—

KILUSANG Bagong Lipanan, a coalition movement aimed at uniting the country during the period of transition was launched during a marathon bi-partisan caucus at Malacañang's Heroes Hall.

Proposed by former Speaker Jose B. Laurel Jr., the movement will serve as a political umbrella for various groups such as the Nationalista Party, Liberal Party, civic organizations and other groups which will field candidates in the Interim Batasang Pambansa (IBP) election

The President, who presided over the meeting, also formed a study committee headed by Local Governments Secretary Jose Roño to select the NP candidates for the 13 regions who will run under Kilusang Bagong Lipunan in the coming elections.

THE PRESIDENT rejected the "ten-point demand" of the Liberal Party on particularly the ruling out of block voting, the resignation of public officials who will run for the IBP, and the banning and suspension of the distribution of public funds. He also noted that the remaining six demands were already assured by existing laws.

GOVERNOR Imelda Romualdez Marcos has formed a task force in which government and private sectors will participate in the systematic implementation of essential public service and infrastructure projects in Metropolitan Manila. The scope of the task force's responsibility will cover the governor's ongoing seven-point community-based action program, as well as urgent infrastructure requirements in the region.

GOVERNMENT-sponsored selling missions abroad generated an estimated foreign sales of $236 million last year. Trade Secretary Troadio T. Quizon Jr. said this was due to: 1) Direct Philippine participation in selected international trade fairs and expositions; 2) Sale of products in trade houses abroad; 3) Sending trade missions abroad servicing incoming missions; and 4) Sales negotiated and concluded from trade leads supplied by commercial attaches abroad.

February 2—

THE PRESIDENT granted additional concessions to the opposition Liberal Party to enable it to participate actively in the April 2 election of the members of the Interim Batasang Pambansa. He announced this in a detailed reply to the 10-point demand of the Liberal Party. The more significant of the concessions given by the President was his order freezing all disbursements and expenditures for community and barangay roads.

GOVERNOR Imelda Romualdez Marcos instructed Brig. Gen. Prospero Olivas, commanding officer of both the PC-Metrocom and the Metropolitan Police force, to stop the midnight drag-racing being done in city streets by youths from mostly affluent families.

At the same time, she instructed Presidential Assistant Ronaldo Zamora and Atty. Januario Soller, legal officers of the Metropolitan Manila Commission group, to draft an ordinance prohibiting drag-racing and similarly dangerous or counter-productive activities with appropriate penalties for violations.

February 3—

THE PRESIDENT conferred with the general military council in a move to implement his directive calling for the confinement in barracks of soldiers not deputized by the Commission on Elections for the April 2 elections for the Interim Batasang Pambansa (IBP). Presiding over the meeting held at Fort Bonifacio, the President reiterated his strict order that the military should not participate, either directly or indirectly, in partisan political activities in the coming elections.

FILIPINOS and Americans recalled the liberation of Manila 35 years ago and expressed the wish that never again should the miseries of war be inflicted on the whole of mankind. Mayor Ramon Bagatsing and U.S. Ambassador David D. Newsom led the Filipino and American communities in the observance of the historical occasion that featured wreath-laying rites at the Rizal Monument and a program at the University of Sto. Tomas which was used as an interment camp by the Japanese occupation forces in World War II.

THE PRESIDENT said that the move towards normalization will continue with or without the participation of the Liberal Party. He said this in a speech at the inauguration of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan headquarters at the Doña Crisanta building on Roxas Blvd. The President said the Liberal Party leaders had not supported anything essential that he has done for the country, remarking that “the consistency of opposition without principle is therefore obvious.”

GOVERNOR Imelda Romualdez Marcos approved the design for public school buildings to be constructed in Metropolitan Manila henceforth. The approved schoolhouse design is a two-story structure with provisions for at least ten rooms (eight classrooms, an office, and utility areas). This basic structure can be expanded as the need arises without impairing the design.

February 5—

THE PRESIDENT ordered Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile to expedite action on cases pending before the military courts. He directed Enrile to look into the status of the cases pending before the 22 military commissions, including the case of former Senator Benigno Aquino Jr., in line with the government’s move toward normalization.

THE PRESIDENT warned, candidates in the April 2 Interim Batasang Pambansa elections that the government will prosecute violators of the Election Code to prevent a return to old poll irregularities. He issued the warning in a speech at the opening of the Southern Tagalog Region Athletic Association meet in Puerto Princesa, Palawan

THE NATIONAL Census and Statistics Office (NCSO) reported a 10 39 percent increase in consumer prices for the whole Philippines during 1977. This is significantly higher than the 8 percent increase reported by the Central Bank for the same year. NCSO said that the consumer price index (CFI) for all income households in the Philippines reached 209.3 index points as of December 1977.

THE PRESIDENT has formed seven-man committee to study the feasibility of setting up a system of resolving family and barangay disputes without resorting to the court. In forming the committee, he noted the urgent need to reduce the mounting backlog in court dockets throughout the country. This move was effected through Presidential Decree No. 1293 on recommendation of Chief Justice Fred Ruiz Castro.

KTLUSANG Bagong Lipunan opened the door for the inclusion of Liberal Party stalwarts and independents in the movement’s regional tickets. At a marathon meeting of KBL leaders at Malacañang, the President authorized regional consultations to determine who among the candidates of Liberal Party independents will be included in the KBL regional tickets.

THE COMMISSION on Elections ruled that the 45-day campaign period for the April 2 election of the Interim Batasang Pambansa (IBP) will start on February 15, even if the proposal to move the deadline for the filing of certificates of candidacy from February 14, to February 20 is approved.

February 7—

THE PRESIDENT announced the postponement of the Interim Bata sang Pambansa (IBP) elections from April 2 to April. 7. He also announced that the deadline for the filing of candidacy has been moved from February 15 to 17. The presidential announcement came shortly after he signed into law the Election Code of 1978 to set into motion the first national elections in more than five years.

GOVERNOR Imelda Romualdez Marcos pledged her full support for Batasan candidates chosen by the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan in the primaries being held in the metropolitan area. Informed that her name consistently led the list of nominees, Mrs. Marcos said she did not have time for politics, much of her time being taken up by her activities as Metro Manila Governor and as the First Lady.

CENTRAL Bank told private companies intending to get foreign loans to secure them at 1.5 percent spread over the prevailing Euro-dollar rates for credits guaranted by domestic financial institutions and at 1.25 percent for credits guaranteed by government financial institutions. This new requirement lowered the interest rates on foreign borrowings from the previous 2.0 percent and 1.5 percent spreads over the London interbank offered rate for these two types of credits, respectively.

MOTHER Teresa, the Living Saint of Calcutta made a courtesy call on the President and the First Lady at Malacañang.

THE PRESIDENT ordered Solicitor General Estelito P. Mendoza to hasten divestment proceedings against American nationals still holding lands in the Philippines in violation of the new Constitution which limits land ownership to Filipinos.

The President's directive, contained in Letter of Instructions No. 645, included the investigation of corporations owned or controlled by American citizens who have acquired landholdings during the effectivity of the Laurel-Langley Agreement.

THE PRESIDENT urged the Philippine Navy to pursue its plans to acquire the capability to deter intrusions and other acts inimical to national security.

Speaking during the 39th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Navy at Fort San Felipe in Cavite City, the President said "the development of our national maritime capability cannot be overstated."

THE PRESIDENT intimated that he would rather have the First Lady stay as Metro Manila governor than run in the interim Batasang Pambansa elections.

He expressed this view in an interview with newsmen after speaking at the 39th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Navy in Fort San Felipe, Cavite City.

February 11—

THE PRESIDENT has extended the Reunion for Peace (RFP) program for another two years, ending December 31, 1979. This was jointly announced by Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile and Tourism Secretary Jose D. Aspiras, chairman and executive vice-chairman, respectively, of the RFP coordinating committee.

NATIONAL Housing Authority (NHA) set aside P49 million to finance housing projects to be undertaken jointly with local governments.

Already, four local government will initiate this year their housing projects with financial assistance from the NHA, according to NHA General Manager Gaudencio V. Tobias. Under the program, the housing project will be modelled after the Bagong Nayon total community, a project of the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez, Marcos.

AGRICULTURE. Secretary Arturo R. Tanco Jr. said schools and individual teachers may now participate in livestock distribution, in line with the government's animal dispersal program now in full gear.

February 13—

THE PRESIDENT approved the sale of an initial 10,000 metric tons of rice to Indonesia, to enable it to meet shortages caused by drought. He approved this in keeping with the spirit of ASEAN cooperation contained in the agreement signed by the ASEAN heads of state during their summit meeting in Bali in early 1976.

February 14—

NATIONAL Security Council (NSC) denied the request of 14 security detainees, including former Senator Benigno Aquino Jr., for temporary release to enable them to campaign in the April 7 interim Batasang Pambansa elections.

In a closed-door meeting at Malacañang, the council, presided over by the President, also denied two Communist factions the right to register as political parties, groupings or movements in the coming elections.

The council made the decision upon recommendation by the military, the defense department, and the intelligence community.

GOVERNOR Imelda Romualdez Marcos asked Metro Manila's public educators to help improve the educational system in the metropolis. Apprised of the need for more school buildings, she said the Metro Manila budget this year provides for the construction of at least one public school building in each of the four cities and 13 towns. At a luncheon meeting at the Maharlika Hall of Malacañang, the First Lady showed them scale models of the school buildings designed by Architect George Ramos.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 15—

THE PRESIDENT postponed the filing of certificates of candidacy for sectoral representatives to the interim Batasang Pambansa from February 17 to March 7. The move is contained in Presidential Decree No. 1301 which amended PD 1296, also known as the 1978 Election Code. Under the original provisions of the Election Code, the deadline for the filing of certificates of candidacy for sectoral representatives coincides with the deadline for regional representatives.

February 16—

THE PRESIDENT proclaimed 142 candidates of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan in the April 7 Interim Batasang Pambansa elections. The KBL candidates, with the exception of 21 coming from Metropolitan Manila and one from Region V (Catanduanes), were proclaimed during a three-hour non-partisan caucus of political leaders at Malacañang.

THE PRESIDENT has approved the creation of the office of special trade representative in the Department of Trade to give the Philippines permanent representation in various international trade organizations and negotiations. He named Ambassador Wilfrido Vega who was accredited to Bonn as the country's first special trade representative (STR). With his appointment, Vega becomes the third ranking official of the trade department next to Trade Undersecretary Vicente Valdepeñas.

February 17—

THE PRESIDENT proclaimed the 21-man slate for Metro Manila of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan for the Interim Batasang Pambansa elections. The proclamation capped whole-day primaries held in Metro Manila's four cities and 13 towns that selected the KBL ticket. More than 11,800 delegates from Metro Manila's 1,673 barangay participated in the primaries that also led to the drafting of Gov. Imelda Romualdez Marcos to head the KBL slate on the basis of a popular clamor among barangays, particularly those in disadvantaged areas.

THERE is going to be a major shift in Japanese capital assistance to the Philippines from economic to social-oriented projects and programs designed to contribute directly to the improvement of the living conditions of the people. This was jointly announced by Ambassador Toshio Urabe former Japanese envoy to the Philippines and Foreign Undersecretary Jose D. Ingles in a press conference at the Central Bank's executive lounge.

DEPARTMENT of Education and Culture said fee increases approved by the department apply to the whole school year even if the increase was approved only during the second semester. Higher Education Director Antonio Dumlao made the statement in reaction to complaints of parents on the practice of some schools collecting fee increases retroactive to the first semester although the increase was approved during the second half of the year.

THE PRESIDENT said that the most important challenge before military and police forces today is to insure the chance to normalize and maintain the momentum of reforms in the New Society. He said this in the course of his speech during the commencement exercises of the Philippine Military Academy (PMA) at Fort del Pilar in Baguio City.

THE PRESIDENT challenged the opposition to present an alternative program of government instead of resorting to Old Society tactics of mudslinging. He issued the challenge during an interview with newsmen after speaking at the commencement exercises of the Philippine Military Academy at Fort del Pilar.

DEPARTMENT of Education and Culture will distribute five million more textbooks to 125 school divisions throughout the country before the start of the next school year. Education Secretary Juan L. Manuel said the books are part of the 60 million textbooks to be produced and distributed by the department under its five-year textbook development program designed to solve the textbook shortage in public elementary and secondary schools.

THE PRESIDENT lashed out at politicians who he said, had fomented near anarchy and rebellion that forced him to declare Martial Law and are now campaigning for the support of the people in the April 7 elections. Speaking at the opening of the Region 2 athletic meet at the Arranz Sport Complex in Tuguegarao, Cagayan, the President appealed to the people to repudiate these politicians in the elections for the Interim Batasang Pambansa.

CERTAIN legal questions will first have to be resolved before action could be taken on the request of former Senator Benigno Aquino Jr. for temporary freedom during the campaign period of the Interim Batasang Pambansa election. The President issued this statement in an interview with newsmen at the Loakan airport in Baguio City before his departure for Tuguegarao, Cagayan. The request of Aquino for reconsideration of an earlier decision by the National Security Council (NSC) had been referred to the executive committee of the NSC in view of its national security implications.

COMMISSION on elections formed five supervisory panels to enforce the 1978 Election Code and to protect the credibility of the poll body. The panels will decide questions that may arise in their jurisdiction in connection with the April 7 IBP elections their decisions are immediately executor, unless reversed by the Comelec en banc.

February 20—

THE FIRST Couple led welcomers at the Manila International Airport during the arrival ceremonies for Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan who together with his wife, Virat, arrived in the country for a four-day state visit.

LATER in the evening, the President conferred the Ancient Order of Sikatuna rank of Rajah, on Prime Minister Kriangsak and the Gabriela Silang Award on Madame Virat Chomanan at ceremonies held at Malacañang

February 21—

PRIME Minister Kriangsak Chomanan of Thailand said that foreign powers should not intervene in the internal affairs of countries in Southeast Asia so as to allow them to live in peace and prosperity. The visiting Thai Prime Minister made this statement at a press conference on board the RPS Ang Pangulo after his talks with the President.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, said that there is a good chance for a clean sweep for the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan candidates in Metro Manila because of the performance of the members of the ticket. Mrs. Marcos issued the statement in an interview by newsmen during a break in the trip to Corregidor with Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan on board the RPS Ang Pangulo.

THE PHILIPPINES and China are scheduled to sign a contract for the latter to sell $80-million worth of crude oil to the Philippines. Trade Secretary Troadio T. Quiazon Jr. said the agreement is part of the new schedule increasing the volume of trade between the two countries. The oil purchase, he said, is the biggest single oil buy the Philippines has made from China, which has extended a special rate to the Philippine government.

THE PRESIDENT said that he and Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan are agreed that peace and stability in Southeast Asia depends mainly on the resolution of the conflict in Indochina. He stressed that "there can be no peace in the region if the Indo-Chinese states of Cambodia, Vietnam, Laos are in a state of conflict." The visiting Thai

PRODUCTION of oil, the President said, in commercial quantity in the country will begin in the latter part of next year. This assessment was made by the President following a report of successful drilling in the West Nido well off Palawan by Cities Service of Oklahoma. With the latest discovery of oil in the Palawan area, he said, efforts will be made to start production in the first quarter of next year instead of the original target of late next year.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, stressed the importance of the mass roots of government, saying that only the people will provide "the reason and moving force" for national growth. For development to succeed, Mrs Marcos said, it must spring from the people whom it will eventually serve. She was guest speaker during the opening of the international symposium on integrated surveys in resource management.

THE PHILIPPINES and Thailand deplored the protectionist policies of some developed countries creating barriers to the entry of Philippine and Thai products into their markets. Their "serious concern" over the "increasing protectionist tendencies" of developed countries was expressed in a joint statement issued by the President and Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan. Prime Minister Kriangsak left the country for Kuala Lumpur and Singapore to continue his swing through the member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

FIRST LADY, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, said that the authorities are looking into the possibility that the rash of fires in Metropolitan Manila could have been caused by subversives. In an interview with newsmen shortly after inaugurating the multi-million peso warehouse of the National Grains Authority (NGA) in Loakan, Baguio City, Mrs. Marcos said that "we are looking into this possibility very carefully".

THE GOVERNMENT will construct 10,000 classrooms at a cost of P200 million for primary and elementary grades throughout the country this year, Public Works Secretary Alfredo Juinio said. He said construction of classrooms is part of the government's five-year school building program.

PRESIDENT said the forthcoming elections for the Interim Batasang Pambansa could provide rich harvest of new and young leaders. This would be in line with the administration's program of training a new generation of leaders "who will take over the powers of government from "my generation that had fought the last war." The President expressed this during an exchange of views on the national and international situation with Prince Wittgenstein, deputy board chairman of Metallgesellschaft Ag of Frankfurt, West, Germany, who called on him at Malacañang.

THE PRESIDENT ordered the development and implementation of a sound risk and insurance management program to protect national government properties at minimum cost against accidental loss due to natural hazards. Issuing Letter of Instructions No. 673, he directed Budget Commissioner Jaime C. Laya in cooperation with national Treasurer Gregorio G. Mendoza and Gen. Manager Roman Cruz of the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS) to conduct a study of every national government office to make this possible.

OATH of office was administered by the President to former Rep. Pedro "Oloy" Roa as mayor of Cagayan de Oro City in a ceremony held at Malacañang. He succeeded former Mayor Concordio Diel who had filed his certificate of candidacy for the Interim Batasang Pambansa under the banner of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan. (KBL)

THE PRESIDENT received Shamoem Qurashi, chief adviser to Gulf Shipping Group of the Middle East and Europe, who called at Malacañang to pay his respects following his arrival here to look into further investment prospects in this country. Qurashi was accompanied by Jose de Venecia president of the Land Oil Group and the Petroleum Association of the Philippines and former Secretary Alejandro Melchor, governor of the Asian Development Bank.

February 25—

THE PRESIDENT directed Energy Secretary Geronimo Z. Velasco to terminate seven on-going contracts and further review 16 other contracts of the National Power Corporation (NPC). The contracts to be terminated include services, materials, and equipment amounting to P29 million which were pinpointed in line with the President's instructions given to the Cabinet last December 22, 1977, requiring contracts to be in accord with accepted norms and standards underlying the institution of the reform program under the New Society.

February 26—

THE PRESIDENT announced that the executive committee of the National Security Council (NSC) has rejected former Senator Benigno Aquino's bid for temporary release on security and legal grounds. He said the decision will be final as, he said "it is my decision not to intervene in the decision of the executive committee of the National Security Council." The President spoke, before a delegation of barangay chairmen from the third and fourth districts of Manila at the Maharlika Hall of Malacañang.

THE PRESIDENT proposed a plan for what he called "contractive dialogue" between the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) and the Lakas ng Bayan (Laban) on issues of April 7 elections. He said he formulated the plan in his desire "to elevate the quality of this campaign and give our people sober discussions to reflect upon." Ambassador J. V. Cruz, spokesman for the KBL said that Napoleon Rama, Laban secretary-general and candidate, expressed agreement in principle, but Rama added he could not give a definite reply until he had consulted the officers of his group.

KILUSANG Bagong Lipunan vowed to protect the interest of labor in all forms of lawmaking once the Interim Batasang Pambansa is elected and convened. The commitment was occasioned by the selection and proclamation of Roberto Oca, Jr., a labor leader, to fill the Metro Manila KBL slot vacated by his father's death. The President made the proclamation in his capacity as KBL chairman upon receipt of a resolution from the officers and members of the Trade Union Congress of the Philippines (TUCP) who endorsed Oca Jr.'s candidacy.

ALIENS living in the Philippines are subject to the requirements of BIR Form 17.01B, the Bureau of Internal Revenue said. They should submit also the BTR payments they have made in 1977 at P1,800 and above, the BIR said. This requirement also concerns payments made by aliens for building and houses in the Philippines for residence or for official business.

President's Month in Review: March, 1978

President's Month in Review: April, 1978

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

April 1—

THE PRESIDENT challenged the opposition to present an alternative system to replace the New Society which it wants to be changed. He issued the challenge in the course of his speech during the commencement exercises of the Philippine College of Commerce (PCC) at the Philippine International Convention Center. While admitting that there is no perfect society, he said the crisis government has done a lot not only to improve the lot of the common man but also the economy of the country. He also announced, in the course of his speech, the elevation of the PCC into a university.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, told the residents of Pandacan and Sta. Ana that she and the President have spared no effort in the electoral campaign to make sure that the people realize and understand what is at stake in the April 7 elections. "Performance is our best answer to an irresponsible opposition that is interested only in undoing what we have done, what we have started," she said.

THE GOVERNMENT Service Insurance System (GSIS) announced two new benefits for government workers provided for under Presidential Decree No. 1146 which has been ordered implemented immediately by the President. The two new benefits are the survivors pension for dependents of deceased government personnel and sickness income for a GSIS member who suffers a non-work connected sickness or injury resulting in temporary total disability.

THE PRESIDENT enacted several measures designed to improve living conditions of subdivision homeowners and correct subdivision malpractices. The measures were taken by the President during his political sorties in various Metro Manila subdivisions. He was accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, and the entire Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) ticket. The President increased from nine to 11 the number of barangays in Las Piñas and from six to 16 of that in Parañaque. He also authorized the release of P2 million for the repair of East Drive Road in Marikina and created a Barangay in Marikina Heights and Concepcion II subdivisions.

THE PRESIDENT empowered a five-man panel created last March 16 to negotiate to increase to $23.5 million the government loan from the Asian Development Bank (ADB) for the construction of the Allah River Irrigation Project in South Cotabato and Sultan Kudarat in Mindanao. The ADB has agreed to increase the original loan of $14.5 million for the project, Malacañang said. Designated to sign the loan agreement was Finance Secretary Cesar Virata.

ACCREDITED trading firms were granted another incentive by the President which can help penetrate the export markets of the country's non-traditional export products, particularly small-and-medium-scale industries. The move, contained in Presidential Decree No. 1319, was made to accelerate and assist the organization and development of large-scale and integrated trading companies.

April 3—

THE PRESIDENT extended social security, medicare and workmen's compensation benefits to all public utility drivers, including bus and jeepney drivers, throughout the country. He acted immediately on a clamor by drivers belonging to the Pasang Masda for the extension to them of the same benefits being enjoyed by other sectors of society.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, in a related development, noted the fact that many drivers were squatters. "She assured them that under the policy of the President that no Filipino should be a squatter in his own land, they, too, would be given houses and lots under the government housing program.

THE PRESIDENT reduced the interest rates on-pump irrigation-loans of the Farm Systems Development Corp. to farmer's associations from eight per cent to only six per cent per annum. At the same time, he extended the loan maturity period from 10 to a maximum of 15 years. He said this would boost the farmers' income through reduced irrigation costs.

April 4—

THE PRESIDENT pledged that the elections for the interim Batasang Pambansa (IBP) will be "clean, free and honest." The pledge was made during a rally held by thousands of "Metro Aides" at the Folk Arts Theater at the same time, the President, in his capacity as governor of Metro Manila, authorized the increase of the daily wages of the Metro Manila aides from P10 and P11 to P15 a day.

THE PRESIDENT outlined what he said are the five basic issues in the April 7 elections. Speaking at the nationwide "Pulong-pulong Pambansa" in Malacañang, he also underscored the need, for a stable government to eradicate old society practices which, he said, had fragmented the country in the past. He also mentioned specific cases of intervention by the United States and Japanese corporations in the country's domestic affairs. The primary issue that the people will have to consider when they go to the polls, the President said, is whether, the Filipinos have the maturity and wisdom to bring about a radical transformation that the New Society aims to accomplish without resorting to violence.

THE PRESIDENT directed the National Housing Authority (NHA) to rush the updating of the survey of landed estates in Metro Manila for the sale of lots to actual bona fide occupants. He gave the order in-the presence of former Rep. Francisco Reyes of Tondo and other political leaders from Manila who called on him at Malacañang. Affected by the President's order are barrio Menu, Maria Guizon, Manotoc, Sunog-Apog, Dimayuga, Tambunting, Rita Legarda, Albeits, Agus Deo, Prieto, Teresa, Monserrat, Prieto Roces, Sumulong, Llor, Tuazon, Fabie, Zamora, Samahan ng Bayan Roque, Samahan ng Magkakapitbahay ng Obisis, Sarmiento, Fermin, Mont Tenant's Association estates and other estates in the region.

April 6—

ROMAN Cruz Jr., general manager of the Government Service Insurance System, (GSIS), was directed by the President to release P16 million on to the armed forces for the construction of about 300 additional housing units for families of military personnel inside military camps. He issued the directive after receiving a letter-appeal from Gen. Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff, requesting the release of the amount which the AFP is applying for as a loan from the GSIS.

April 7—

THE PRESIDENT issued a stern warning against what he said subversive elements which created public disorder on the eve of the interim Batasang Pambansa elections. In a brief interview after voting in Batac, Ilocos Norte, he warned these subversives to desist from "their plan to wreck the Republic." He assured the people, however, that the government has adequate forces to meet any threat from those creating disorder in the country. He voted in Voting Center No. 2 in Lacub, at the Don Mariano Marcos Memorial School. The First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, who heads the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) ticket in Metro Manila, voted at Precinct No. 643-2 at V. Mapa High School in San Miguel, Manila.

THE PRESIDENT said that he has ordered a crackdown on subversive activities to prevent a repetition of the violent demonstration that marred the eve of the elections. In an interview with newsmen in Malacañang, he said that the government will stop subversive movements whether they are under the umbrella of a political party or any organization, including some of the alleged religious groups. "It is the resolve and intension of the government forgo after them," he said.

April 9—

THE PRESIDENT provided the manner for substitution of a winning candidate who dies, fails to qualify, or is incapacitated before his proclamation or assumption of office. The manner of substitution is contained in Presidential Decree No. 1348, which amends the 1978 Election Code. The decree takes effect immediately.

April 10—

THE PRESIDENT convened a joint meeting of the Cabinet and the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) to reassess the economic and political conditions in the country. The first to be held after the April 7 interim Batasang Pambansa elections, the meeting was held at the State Dining Room of Malacañang. The President and his advisers also discussed the disturbances created by certain groups before the elections and the government's development programs which the President promised to pursue after the polls.

April 11—

RESUMING her duties as Metro Manila Governor after winning, a seat in the interim Batasang Pambansa, the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, urged the formation of cooperatives among drivers to help them own the vehicles they drive. It was one of three-significant steps she planned to take for the benefit of Metro Manilans after meeting with Metro Manila Commission officers at Malacañang. She said these measures were an offshoot of her past rallies at the grassroots level where she was able to observe at first hand, the Metro Manila situation.

THE PRESIDENT said he would see to it that the interim Batasang Pambansa would consider the lifting of Martial Law. He also said the local elections proposed to be held in November may be postponed until next year for the sake of national unity. Meeting with 56 foreign correspondents at Malacañang, he said the convening of the interim assembly would eliminate legal obstacles to the return of political normalcy. With the interim Batasang Pambansa in session, the President explained that his legislative powers under the commander-in-chief clause of the Constitution would have to give way to the normal lawmaking functions of the legislative body.

AMBASSADOR Ke Hua of the Peoples Republic of China (PROC) called on the First Couple to reiterate the invitation of Vice Premier Li Hsiennien to visit, Peking at their convenience. The Chinese ambassador and Mrs. Ke Hua visited Malacañang to bid them goodbye.

THE PRESIDENT has proclaimed May 25 to 31 and every last week thereafter "Export Consciousness Week" to evoke public awareness of the government's export drive. He issued Proclamation No. 1725 enjoining all government and private offices, organizations, and individuals, to give the week proper observance.

CENTRAL Bank Governor Gregorio Licaros said the CB will continue its policy of dispersing financial institutions to the country's rural areas. This policy, he said, is in line with the government's emphasis on the regionalization of growth and the linkage of all sectors in the economy.

April 16—

THE PRESIDENT signed Proclamation No. 1728 authorizing the Foundation for the Rehabilitation and Prevention of Blindness to conduct a nationwide educational, membership and fund campaign from February 15, 1978 to January 15, 1979. He noted that most blind persons live in a hopeless existence and are unable to contribute their share to the national effort for development. The project is one of the numerous civic undertakings of the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, honorary chairman of the foundation.

April 17—

COMMISSION on Elections (Comelec) proclaimed the 21 Metro Manila (Region 4) winning candidates, ending 10 days of official canvass slowed down by protests of alleged election discrepancies. Proclaimed after the opposition Lakas nng Bayan (Laban) virtually conceded defeat, were all the official Kilusan ng Bagong Lipunan (KBL) bets, headed by Gov. Imelda Romualdez Marcos. The President joined the winners in the proclamation ceremonies at the Comelec offices on Aduana st.

GOVERNOR Imelda Romualdez Marcos authorized the granting of a P50 housing allowance; to all policemen, firemen and civilian employees of the Metropolitan Police Force (MPF) starting this month. She made the announcement in the course of her speech during the fourth anniversary celebration of the MPF and the inauguration of the new Metrocom and Police headquarters at Camp Datum in Sikatuna Village in Quezon City. She also ordered the release of P1.5 million for the expansion of the Metro Manila police hospital to increase its capacity to 50 beds. She also took the occasion to announce that the President had promoted Police Col. James Barbers and Police Col. Tomas Karingal, superintendents of the Western and Northern police districts, respectively, to brigadier generals.

DEPARTMENT of Education and Culture (DEC) exempted five more categories of teachers from taking the first professional board examination for teachers. Education Secretary Juan L. Manuel said these teachers have efficiently performed their work and spent the best years of their lives in the teaching service. He said those exempted are: holders of elementary teacher's certificate; graduates of the two-year trade technical curricula of schools of arts and trades with at least 21 units of professional subjects in elementary education; holders of associate certificates in agricultural education who have taken at least 18 units in education; and graduates of junior normal course.

THE PRESIDENT warned students against being manipulated into blind activism which may lead them from their main reason from being in school, which is to study. He issued this warning in his speech at the opening of the 11th annual convention of the Philippine Association of State Universities and Colleges (PASUC) at the Philippine International Convention Center. In his speech, he also called for a new thrust in the educational program geared towards the upgrading of higher education and more emphasis on technological, vocation and agricultural education.

THE PRESIDENT has expanded the application of the withholding tax system in a new presidential decree. Under the present system, when one engaged in trade or business or in the practice of a profession pays salary to his employees or makes other payments that are deductible from his gross income for tax purposes, it is enough that he proves that such payment has been made. Under the new law, Presidential Decree No. 1351, that is not enough. It is necessary to make the expenses qualified deductions, that the payor withhold the tax prescribed by law to be withheld from the amount of payment he makes, whether they be in the form of salaries or otherwise; and secondly, he must remit these taxes withheld to the BIR.

THE GOVERNMENT will make a national integrated manpower program that will insure the availability of medical services to the people in the rural and depressed areas in the country, the President said. Speaking at the 71st annual convention of the Philippine Medical Association (PMA) at the Philippine International Convention Center, he said that the program will be undertaken with the cooperation of the medical profession.

THE PRESIDENT proposed the setting up of an international forum to resolve fears about satellite surveying and to maximize its benefits. Addressing an international gathering of scientists on “remote sensing of environment” by orbiting satellites, the President said such a forum could put into more extensive use of satellite data on the world’s natural resources.

PROJECTED increase in the water rate in Olongapo City was frozen by the President even as he ordered the holding of public hearings on the controversial rates. Reacting to a report that the Local Water Utilities Administration (LWUA) had rejected a request of the Office of the President to rollback the water rates in Olongapo, the President ordered: 1) General Manager Carlos Leano Jr. of LWUA to hold public hearings on the petition of Olongapo residents against new water rates and to suspend the increase in water, rates pending such hearings; 2) The PC commander of Olongapo to enforce this order; and 3) Leano to submit a written explanation concerning the actuation of the Olongapo City Waterworks System (OCWS) on the matter, and to submit a report of compliance to the President.

BUDGET Commissioner Jaime C. Laya said that critical evaluation of present needs and cost reduction are essential in individual as well as in national budgeting. April 22—

THE PRESIDENT, gave, the go signal for the Philippine National Oil Co. (PNOC) to negotiate a $21.1 million loan from the United States for the acquisition of geothermal drilling rigs. Energy Secretary Geronimo Velasco will soon leave for the US to discuss the terms of the proposed loans with the Export Import Bank of the United States and Case Manhattan Bank. The acquisition of the drilling rigs is in line with the acceleration of the exploration and development of geothermal resources as an alternative source of energy.

April 23—

THE PRESIDENT has approved the exportation of an additional 50,000 metric tons of rice to Malaysia valued at $16 million or $18 million. The sale is, the second contract signed with Malaysia, and brings its total purchases from the Philippines to 60,000. The first was contracted, in February for 10,000 tons of rice worth $3.05 million or P22.6 million.

NATIONAL Electrification Administration (NEA) was authorized by the President to obtain a $60 million loan from the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD) for the country’s rural electrification program. The loan is the biggest loan for rural electrification to be granted by the World Bank. It is also the first WB loan involving rural cooperatives.

THE PRESIDENT signed a decree subjecting, revenues from chartered flights on passengers and freights originating from the Philippines to taxation at the rate of. 2.5 per cent of gross Philippine billings. He said the new law will place on equal footing both regular airlines and chartered airlines and promote healthy competition.

April 24—

THE GOVERNMENT imposed anew tax structure for car sales transactions by increasing the taxable, base to P35,000 with an initial assessment of 10 per cent. The new tax measure is apparently designed to keep car prices down while at the same time increasing government revenues from the auto industry. Internal Revenue Commissioner Efren L. Plana said the revised car sales tax-system is one of three tax decrees signed by the President to make the tax system “more progressive and responsive in rationalizing and harmonizing fiscal incentives granted under several existing laws.” The revised car sales tax reduced the rate which under the old system may go as high as 35 per cent. The same measure (Presidential Decree No. 1357) provided for a 15 per cent profit margin for dealers.

April 25—

THE PRESIDENT has signed a decree exempting from specific tax oil products sold to international carriers, the Bureau of Internal Revenue said. This exemption, as provided for in Presidential Decree No. 1359, however, can be availed of only if the country of the carrier also exempts from tax petroleum products sold to Philippine carriers.

THE GOVERNMENT, the President said, is rushing the completion of various hydro-electric and multi-purpose projects to increase the country’s energy sources. He went to the North to inspect progress of the work of some projects worth P13.8 billion. The three projects include the Magat Multi-Purpose project in San Mateo, Isabela (P1.032 billion); the Chico River No. 4 Hydroelectric Project in Lubuagan, Kalinga (P1.5 billion) ; and the Abulug River Hydroelectric project in Kabuyao, Apayao (P8.2 billion). The President also visited an impounding dam at Pagudpud, Ilocos Norte.

April 26—

THE PRESIDENT visited the Currimaos cable station to inspect the progress of the submarine cable system linking the Philippines and Singapore. He was informed that the cable was being tested and would be fully operational by July. The laying of the cable linking the two ASEAN neighbors was one of the agreements reached between the President and Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew in Baguio City last year. Completion of the cable system would be a step toward fulfillment of a plan to link all the five ASEAN countries by cable and other means of communication.

April 27—

FOURTEEN sectoral candidates were proclaimed winners by the Commission on Elections (Comelec) to complete the 200-member interim Batasang Pambansa. The Comelec, sitting en banc, made the proclamation upon receipt of the official results of the sectoral elections from its three boards of canvassers which supervised the electoral process for the three sectors—youth, industrial labor and agricultural labor.

April 18—

THE PRESIDENT acted to solve the social and economic problems of the residents of Ilocos Norte by mobilizing all government agencies concerned to extend to them every possible support and assistance. He issued a series of directives designed to enable the residents to earn decent income and raise their standard of living after a four-hour inspection tour of the area around Lake Paoay in Ilocos Norte. His action was prompted by the reported inaction of some Cabinet men on the problems of the residents of the province who complained to him.

THE PRESIDENT said he does not plan to re-impose the ban on international travel or impose travel restrictions anew. At the same time, the President, who is in Paoay, Ilocos Norte, ordered the cancellation of all trips abroad of Cabinet members and senior officials of the national government, except those to be made in fulfillment of “urgent international commitments.” He clarified that government policy on the travel ban to squelch persistent rumors that he would shortly re-impose a travel ban.

April 30—

SOLICITOR General Estelito Mendoza said the labor restructuring initiated under the new Labor Code is not in violation of the constitutional provisions guaranteeing freedom of association, the right to collective bargaining; and due process of law. He said restructuring of the country's labor: movement along the one-union one-industry line is a government policy designed to restore order and eliminate the evils on the labor front which should serve as an effective instrument for national development.

President's Week in Review: May 1-31, 1978

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

May 1—

THE PRESIDENT expressed support to the proposal of organized labor to increase the minimum wage due to the increasing prices of commodities. Speaking at the Labor Day celebration at the Folk Arts Theater, he said that the petition to increase the minimum wage "is no problem." However, he pointed out, this proposal, will have to be decided by the tripartite congress made up of labor management and government which will be convened by the Department of Labor.

THE PRESIDENT formed a Cabinet organizing committee to draft the proposed rules for the interim Batasang Pambansa which is expected to convene in June. The Committee was constituted during the Cabinet meeting at Malacañang. Named members of the committee were Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos, Solicitor General Estelito Mendoza, Local Government Secretary Jose Roño, Natural Resources Secretary Jose Leido, Tourism Secretary Jose Aspiras, and Presidential Assistant Jacobo Clave. Chairman of the committee is Secretary Roño.

THE PRESIDENT and US Vice President Walter Mondale expressed their desire to settle as soon as possible vital issues confronting their countries to provide Philippine-American relations with a solid foundation. Both stressed the urgency of solving bilateral problems on security and economic matters in separate speeches shortly after the arrival of American vice president for a three-day, official visit.

THE PRESIDENT said the Philippines is faced with the challenge of maintaining its own defense capabilities and that it can no longer presume that any nation, no matter how powerful, will willingly share the burden of its own defense "expected in accordance with the explicit and expressed provisions of formal agreements." In a speech delivered at the 43rd foundation day of the Philippine Air Force, the President said that it is a challenge that must be met as far as the nation's resources will permit.

THE PRESIDENT has approved a suggestion that the inaugural session of the interim Batasang Pambansa be held on June 12 to coincide with the Independence Day celebration. This was revealed by Local Government Secretary Jose Roño on the eve of his convening a six-man committee formed by the President to draft the rules governing the IBP.

May 3—

THE PRESIDENT said that human rights is not linked to the military bases and trade treaty negotiations between the Philippines and the United States. In a press conference in Malacañang, the President said that human rights has never been made a bargaining point, in the current negotiations regarding the treaties. He also told newsmen that he and US Vice President Walter Mondale had laid the basis for the early resolution of conflicts confronting their countries, particularly the military bases and trade issues.

May 4—

THE PHILIPPINES and the United States governments agreed on four basic principles which will be reflected in the amendments to the military bases agreement that would allow continued use of the military bases in the country by the American. This agreement was contained in a joint statement issued by the President and US Vice President Walter Mondale shortly before the latter's departure for Bangkok, Thailand. Negotiations on the amendments, they agreed, will be "on terms fully consistent with Philippine sovereignty."

DEPARTMENT of Education and Culture (DEC) will put emphasis anew on the teaching of reading, writing and arithmetic in public elementary schools starting this coming school year. Education Secretary Juan L. Manuel said the return to the basics was prompted by the deterioration of the pupils' basic skills like reading, reading comprehension, arithmetic and writing.

LABOR cases already resolved by the labor secretary will now be immediately enforced under a new decree issued by the President during the Labor Day celebration. Under the new procedure laid down by Presidential Decree No. 1367, decisions of the labor secretary may no longer be appealed to the Office of the President. This shortens the appeals route of labor cases. The President, however, may assume jurisdiction over any labor case which in his opinion affects the national interest.

BUDGET Commission issued the guidelines on the use of savings in the maintenance and operating expenses of government agencies. The guidelines make available to agencies 110 per cent of their savings to augment their budget for equipment, construction and other non-recruiting expenses. The use of savings was directed by the President through Letter of Instruction No. 635 to serve as incentives for agencies to save and economize in their operations.

THE PRESIDENT said he plans to reorganize the Armed Forces of the Philippines and retire 44 generals. He made the announcement during his speech at the 56th annual homecoming and national convention of the University of the Philippines Vanguard Inc. in Diliman, Quezon City. He said he intends to increase the present four PC zones to 10 regional commands to make the Armed Forces of the Philippines more responsive to present realities.

DEFENSE Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile said that there will be no elections of local officials until the elections for members of the regular National Assembly will be held. The defense chief, who topped the elections for the interim Batasang Pambansa in Region II (Northeastern Philippines), said it is the thinking of the national leadership that elections for officials on the local level would be too expensive at this point and would develop ill will which would lead to divisions among the people.

THE PRESIDENT will stop after May 15 issuing decrees, letters of instructions and general orders—a legislative function which he exercise under his Martial Law powers. This move was learned from Malacañang sources, who said that the President was preparing to pass on his legislative work to the Interim Batasang Pambansa. The sources said that the Present had directed all departments of the government to submit to him all urgent measures not later than May 15 so that they could be acted upon by him. All legislative matters that will not be acted upon by the President by May 15 will have to wait until the IBP convenes either on June 11 or June 12, the sources said.

THE PRESIDENT started his inspection tour of on-going rural development projects and the road damaged by the recent typhoon "Atang" in the depressed areas in Leyte. Accompanied by the First Lady, he checked on the progress of the construction of the 241-kilometer highway from Allen in Northern Samar to the San Juanico bridge at the southern end of the island.

THE PRESIDENT called for increased trade among the five members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) to counter the growing threat of protectionism from industrialized countries. In a speech read for him by Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo at the opening of the ASEAN Trade Fair at the Philippine Center for International Trade and Exhibitions (Philcite), the President said the escalation of the rich-country protectionism could curtail market access for ASEAN'S exports and its capability of sustained growth.

THE PRESIDENT announced that the proposed copper smelter plant to be put up in San Juan, Batangas will be put up, instead in Palompon and Isabela towns in Leyte. He made the announcement after he and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, visited the geothermal power plant in barangay Tonungan, Ormoc City.

May 9—

ORGANIZING committee of the interim Batasang Pambansa has recommended that the Prime Minister under the evolving parliamentary government be also required to answer question of IBP members during the “question hour.” The scheme is part of the proposed ground rules for the IBP which the organizing committee has adopted. The rules will be submitted to the IBP for approval. Under an amendment to the Constitution, the President will automatically be the Prime Minister when the parliamentary form of government is adopted. The proposed IBP rules require that any minister or Cabinet member under the parliamentary setup may appear for public questioning in the IBP during the same question hour.

May 10—

THE PRESIDENT said the developing nations of the Pacific basin still fall back on trade and investment measures as a result of the unabated and regrettable tide of trade protectionism used as an instrument of policy by developed nations of the world. In a speech read for him by Foreign Affairs Secretary Carlos P. Romulo at the closing of the 11th meeting of the Pacific Basin Economic Council at the Philippine International Convention Center, the President urged the nations of the region to conduct a “judicious reflection on these points and consideration of ways to affect structural adjustments or redirect resources to more productive and dynamic sectors.”

May 11—

THE PRESIDENT announced there will be a pre-inaugural caucus of the interim Batasang Pambansa to be held on May 17, possibly at the Maharlika Hall of Malacañang. In an address at Freedom Park in Iloilo City, he also reiterated an earlier statement that he would stop exercising his legislative powers to allow the IBP to perform this function. However, he added, should the IBP fail to live up to expectations, he would exercise anew his power to legislate through issuance of decrees.

ASIAN Development Bank (ADB) approved a $23.5-million (P173.20 million) loan for the Allah River Irrigation Project in southern Mindanao. The project will serve 82,000 people in 30 villages of South Cotabato and Sultan Kudarat provinces.

THE PRESIDENT has ordered establishment of a sugar bank to meet the financing needs of sugar planters on Negros island and other parts of the country. Establishment of the bank to be capitalized at P400 million was ordered by the President in the course of his speech at a big rally at the Bacolod City plaza. He also directed Chairman Roberto Benedicto of the Philippine Sugar Commission (PSC) to handle the organization of the bank so it could start operation as soon as possible.

THE PHILIPPINES has accepted the nomination of Ambassador Richard William Murphy as the new US envoy to the country, the foreign office announced. Prior to his assignment to Manila, he was the US envoy to Syria.

THE PRESIDENT has rescheduled the pre-inaugural caucus of the interim Batasang Panibansa to June 1 to give more time to the assembly’s organizing committee to review its draft rules. This was announced by Local Government Secretary Jose A. Roño, committee chairman, who said the rescheduling will also enable the temporary Batasan secretariat to notify all assemblymen elect of the pre-session meet.

May 13—

DEPARTMENT of Education and Culture (DEC) will require public and private schools to offer population education as an elective starting this coming school year. Education Secretary Juan L. Manuel said the move is designed to enrich the students' background in population education to help them develop rational attitude and responsible behavior towards population situations.

May 14—

THE PRESIDENT approved the regionalization of the Philippine Constabulary (PC) and the Integrated National Police (INP) into 13 regional commands and ordered the gradual phase out of the existing four PC zones to make the PC and the INP more responsive to public safety, particularly in crime prevention. Maj. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief and INP director-general, said the 13 regional commands will each be headed by a regional commander, who have yet to be named by the President.

May 15—

THE PRESIDENT' said crime prevention and criminal justice could only be based on socio-economic realities in each region or country. He warned that anticrime measures on a universal basis were bound to fail. Hence, each nation must formulate its own approach, basing it on its experiences and needs, he told delegates at the opening of the United Nations Regional Preparatory Meeting on Crime Prevention and Treatment of Offenders for Asia and the Pacific. Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo read the speech for the President before the 150 delegates from 38 countries at the Philippine International Convention Center.

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady, resuming their inspection tour of outlying communities in Palawan, visited a newly discovered tribe of cave dwellers called Tao't bato (stone people) living by themselves in a mile-wide crater of an extinct volcano in Ransang. Although they hardly knew who their visitors were, the tribesmen welcomed the First Couple with smiling faces, kissing their hands in accordance with traditional Filipino custom.

May 16—

FIVE Cabinet members were directed by the President to go to Albay and find ways of giving semi-permanent employment to people who have evacuated their homes as a result of the eruption of Mayon Volcano. In his directive, the President said that he does not want to continue the usual practice of the government just doling out assistance in the form of food and shelter to those who have been forced to leave their homes. Directed to attend to the needs of the people displaced by the eruption are Industry Secretary Vicente Paterno, Agriculture Secretary Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., Labor Secretary Blas F. Ople, Information Secretary Francisco S. Tatad and Silvia Montes, the officer-in-charge of the Department of Social Services and Development.

THE PRESIDENT said he will review the grant and continuation of forest and timber concessions in Palawan to preserve and conserve the natural resources of the province. He said he went to Palawan to inspect the implementation of social, economic and political reform programs on the western side of the country.

THE PRESIDENT ordered a shift in emphasis in highways construction from national highways to rural roads, particularly farm-to-market roads. He also ordered the purchase of $53 million worth of heavy equipment for the construction of rural roads and that more loans be obtained for rural roads which is only 25 percent of the present highways construction. He spoke before officials of the Department of Public Highways and members of the District and City Engineers' League of the Philippines who called on him at Malacañang at the end of their convention in Legaspi City.

THE PRESIDENT paved the way for the granting of automatic citizenship to some 23,000 aliens who applied for naturalization since 1975. The Chief Executive announced this during his talk before leading businessmen from the five member nations of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) who are holding a three-day conference here. The President said the new law would grant automatic citizenship to the remainder of some 38,838 aliens who applied for naturalization under a presidential decree naturalizing all qualified persons under the law.

THE PRESIDENT has postponed to July 1, 1978, the effectivity of the new Presidential Decrees 1357 and 1358 revising the sales tax rates and the method for computing the sales tax due. The move was taken to give the affected businessmen sufficient time to familiarized themselves with the provisions of the new sales tax laws, including those that govern the sale of automobiles, and to enable manufacturers to prepare the inventories of their raw materials, parts and accessories before the beginning of the next quarter on July 1, 1978. Excepted from the postponement order are importations which, since April 21, 1978 when the new sales laws were signed by the President, have been subjected to the sales tax prescribed under the new laws.

SOLICITOR General Estelito Mendoza was directed by the President to move for reconsideration of a lower court decision upholding the validity of an 1894 title to 176,000 hectares of land in Bulacan, Quezon, Rizal, Quezon City and Caloocan. The decision, rendered by Judge Agustin C. Bagasao of the Bulacan Court of First Instance, also decreed certain persons as true heirs of the late Don Mariano San Pedro de Esteban, owner of the questioned title. Solicitor Mendoza raised the matter to the President because of what he considered to be the doubtful legal and factual basis of the decision.

THE PRESIDENT appointed Justice Vicente Santiago Jr. of the Court of Appeals and Judge Domingo Pabalate, executive judge of the Manila city court to the Commission on Elections (Comelec). He announced the appointments when he was interviewed by newsmen at the Laoag International Airport terminal upon his arrival. The new Comelec members take over from Commissioners Casimiro Madarang and Venancio Yaneza whose five-year term ended May 17.

THE PRESIDENT categorically said that he has no plans at present to revamp his Cabinet. But it was learned during an interview at Laoag International Airport that a new department, that of human settlements, may be created and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, be appointed to head it. The new department, which will have Metro Manila under its jurisdiction, is now the subject of a study by team of experts including Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos, UP President Onofre D. Corpuz and Jose Conrado Benitez, chairman of the Technical Resources Commission.

THE PRESIDENT expressed sympathy and condolence to the Australian government on the death of former Prime Minister Sir Robert Gordon Menzies whose loss, the President said, "the government and Filipino people share with deep sorrow." The President sent the message to Australian Governor General Sir Zelman Cown who was informed that Ambassador Rafael A. Gonzales, director general of protocol in the Department of Foreign Affairs, will represent the President in the State funeral.

THE PRESIDENT disclosed that the United States has voluntarily offered to limit the area for its military bases to only a few thousand hectares. This breakthrough in the bases renegotiations was bared by the President in an interview with Malacañang newsmen in barrio Pasil, Paoay, Ilocos Norte. "They are limiting themselves voluntarily," he said, adding that the US has further agreed to "a common use of various facilities" in the US bases.

THE PRESIDENT has declared the entire Ransang Valley in Palawan, home of the Tao't bato tribesmen and site of the latest neolithic archaeological finds in the Philippines as a preserve which no one may enter without official permission of the national museum. The preserve extends from the highest point of the mountain to the mouth of the Ransang river, north to south.

May 20—

THE PRESIDENT said that the Philippine government is ready to meet with duly authorized representatives of the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF) for a new round of peace talks. Interviewed by newsmen at the Manila International Airport, he said he was gratified by the initiative of President Suharto of Indonesia and Prime Minister Hussein Onn of Malaysia to bring about another meeting between the Philippine government and the MNLF representatives. The Suharto-Onn initiative was forged at their recent annual summit meeting in Labuan Malaysia.

May 21—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, welcomed their royal majesties, the King and Queen of Nepal. The royal visitors, King Birendra Bir Bikram Shah Dev and Queen Aishwarya Rajya Laxmi Devi Shah arrived from Tokyo for a three-day unofficial visit.

May 22—

THE PRESIDENT took King Birendra Bir Bikram Shah Dev of Nepal on a flying visit to the International Rice Research Institute, UP College of Agriculture and the National Arts Center of the Philippines in Los Baños, Laguna. At the IRRI and the UP Los Baños, the visiting Nepalese King was shown newly developed, fast-growing, high-yielding and disease-resistant varieties of rice, corn, coconut and outstanding tropical fruits for propagation to farmers.

May 23—

THE PRESIDENT announced the general organizational structure of the Interim Batasang Pambansa (IBP) which will constitute the transitional government that will pave the way for the formal establishment of the parliamentary system in the country. He made the announcement in a talk with newsmen after the departure of the King and Queen of Nepal at the Manila International Airport (MIA) after a three-day visit. The President said the IBP will be headed by a prime minister who will be assisted by one speaker, one party whip or the vice chairman of the steering committee and composed of “no more than 30 committees” which will be chaired by cabinetmen.

May 24—

THE PRESIDENT issued a series of directives and instructions, including additional funding for the National Grains Authority (NGA), to bolster the rice and corn industry. Speaking at the annual convention of the Confederation of Rice and Corn Associations of the Philippines at the Philippine International Convention Center, he also asked the private sector to help the government and participate in rice exportation. He authorized the increase of the procurement credit line of the NGA from P800 million to P1 billion, which will be made available by the Land Bank and the Central Bank.

THE PRESIDENT authorized the release of P5,000 for each of the 40,000 barangays all over the country to enable them to pursue priority projects. It was pointed out that the amount had been earmarked even before the elections but that they had been held in abeyance because of the insistence of the opposition that public works expenditures be suspended during the campaign for the Interim Batasang Pambansa. The release of the funds to each of the barangays, the President said, will enable them to start the projects.

THE PRESIDENT signed a decree to bring about a more effective implementation of export promotion strategies and provide a mechanism to compete with other countries. The new decree amended PD 941 which created the Philippine Export Council. The signing of the decree was witnessed by the officers of the Confederation of Philippine Exporters (COPE) who called on the President at Malacañang.

THE PRESIDENT ordered an audit of the books of enterprises which received about P1 billion from the Coconut Consumer Stabilization Fund (CCSF) and the prosecution of persons responsible for the irregularities in the use of fund. He also created an inter-agency committee to investigate reports that about P100 million in revenues have been lost due to misdeclaration of copra and other coconut products exports. He issued the directives in a meeting with officials of the Philippine Coconut Authority (PCA), planters and millers at Malacañang.

WORLD-famous monkey-eating eagle will now henceforth be called Philippine eagle. The President, in a proclamation, gave the eagle found only in the Philippines the new name. The eagle feeds on lemurs, birds and rats and only occasionally, monkeys. The Philippine eagle, found mostly in Mt. Apo in Davao and Cotabato provinces, is almost extinct. There are only 40 pairs now in Mt. Apo.

RICE stocks are now bankable and profitable lending instruments, Agriculture Secretary Arturo R. Tanco Jr. said. This was proven, he said, by the continued trust shown by rural bankers in extending loans to farmers on no-collateral bases. He spoke at the 25th annual convention of the Rural Bankers Association of the Philippines at the Philippine International Convention Center.

May 26—

THE PRESIDENT has reiterated that no local elections are being scheduled in the immediate future. However, he did not entirely rule out the possibility that the Interim Batasang Pambansa (IBP) would take up the matter after it convenes its inaugural session on June 12. The IBP is scheduled to take up the national budget first. After disposing of the budget, it will tackle other matters, including possibly the holding of local elections. The President in an impromptu speech announced these possibilities at a dinner for the 17 Metro Manila mayors given by the winning Kilusan ng Bagong Lipunan (KBL) candidates for Metro Manila at the Meralco complex on Ortigas Avenue. The First Lady and Metro Manila Governor Imelda Romualdez Marcos, who led the winning KBL slate in Manila, accompanied the President.

THE PRESIDENT ordered the Department of Education and Culture (DEC) to hold a public hearing on proposals to increase tuition fees. The DEC and the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) were directed to invite the views of as many parents, teachers and students as possible. They were asked to submit their recommendations to the President after the hearing.

THE PRESIDENT said he was gladdened by the interest shown by Australia in strengthening its links with the Philippines and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). He also expressed gratification over Australia's concern for the progress and stability of Southeast Asia to Ambassador Richard Arthur Woolcott as the latter presented his letters of credence as ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of Australia. He replaced Daniel Gerard Nutter.

THE PRESIDENT directed the Central Bank (CB) and other government agencies to dig deeper into the causes of non-payment of farmers loans, including reports that some elements are spreading false information among farmers that the loan should be considered as government doles. He also urged farmers who had received loans under the Masagana 99 rice program and other food production schemes to settle their loans to keep the rural banks from bankruptcy. He pointed out that of the country's 875 rural banks, 200 are in financial distress because of their inability to pay their arrearages with the Central Bank. The President, speaking at the closing rites of the 25th Annual Convention of Rural Banks of the Philippines at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC), said the farmers are not given enough motivation to settle their obligation.

THE FIRST Lady Imelda Romualdez Marcos, is in what she calls a "window shopping" spree for human settlement manager in preparation for the election for the creation of a ministry on human settlements. Speaking at the 38th anniversary of the Girl Scout of the Philippines (GSP) on Padre Faura, she said “I am just dying to get my hands on the job because no one has really harnessed our human resource in all levels for the good of the city.”

May 28—

HEAD of Sweden’s state-owned shipping industry has offered local shipowners cheap or “very soft loans” in the acquisition of ocean-going vessels. In a call at Malacañang, Ingvar Trogen, general manager of Uddevalla Shipyard and chairman of the Sweden Shipbuilders Association formally presented his offer to the President. After the call, the President ordered Industry Secretary Vicente Paterno, concurrently chairman of the Board of Investment, to study Trogen’s offer.

THE PRESIDENT signed a decree increasing the minimum daily wage by P1 starting July 1. Under the new decree, which will affect about one-third of the six million salaried workers, the new minimum wage will be raised from P10 to P11 a day for workers in Metro Manila, P9 to P10 for non-agricultural workers outside Metro Manila, P8 to P9 for plantation agriculture, and P7 to P8 for non-plantation agriculture. He signed the decree in the presence of delegates to the just concluded National Tripartite Conference on Employment and Labor Relations held at the Development Academy of the Philippines in Tagaytay.

METRO Manila Governor Imelda Romualdez Marcos disclosed plans to trim down government expenditures and check corruption in the government service. She talked of this plan in an impromptu meeting with members-elect of the Interim Batasang Pambansa (IBP) for Metro Manila and some members of the Cabinet on board a Philippine National Railway coach. Mrs. Marcos, the Cabinet members and the successful Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) candidates went on a whistle-stop-tour from Alabang to Caloocan City to thank the people for supporting the KBL ticket in the last elections and to assure the people that the KBL will make good its commitments in the elections.

THE PRESIDENT has proclaimed 1978 as President Manuel L. Quezon national centennial year. He issued Executive Order No. 502, also creating a 19-man executive committee to prepare nationwide commemorative rites to honor on August 19 the late President Quezon. The President paid tribute to the ideals of the first President of the Philippine Commonwealth as he directed the committee to spearhead fitting ceremonies “to impress on our people the invaluable contributions of this great leader to the political emancipation of our nation and enhancement of our national growth.”

THE PRESIDENT announced a move to convert the various departments of the government into ministries in line with the shift from purely presidential to parliamentary form of government. The shift will be effective on June 12 when the Interim Batasang Pambansa is convened. Under the new setup, the President will both be President with powers provided for in the 1935 Constitution and Prime Minister with powers provided founder the 1973 Constitution. The caucus held aboard the RPS*Ang Pangulo* which was berthed at Pier 15, was attended by members of the Cabinet and representatives elected to the IBP.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, disclosed she plans to initiate a system of maternity hospitals and child centers around the country “to give every newborn Filipino a proper and beautiful introduction into the World.” In ceremonies marking the ninth anniversary of the Makati Medical Center, she said that for her purpose, she was seeking the assistance of the center’s director, Dr. Constantino Manahan, who is one of the country’s top obstetricians. She also launched a unique medical exchange program between the center and the barangay health centers (BHCs) of Makati, which could lead eventually to a metro-wide effort. In addition, she formally inaugurated the center’s school of nursing named the Remedios Trinidad Romualdez Memorial School in honor of her late mother, as well as the center’s latest acquisition—a computed topography scanner, which updates the X-ray to produce a clearer and more accurate picture of the internal body.

THE PRESIDENT predicted “even greater benefits to government workers and retirees” during the 41st anniversary of the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS). He anchored his prediction on the “continuous growth” of the GSIS in whose expanded benefit programs “I must take great pride.” He foretold a bright future for government workers in his message to GSIS officials and employees, some, 477 of whom were honored during simple rites at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC).

President's Month in Review: June, 1978

President's Week in Review: July 3-9, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 3—

THE PRESIDENT directed provincial governors to require their respective mayors to list down the priority needs of their localities for submission to the national government with a view to updating the human settlements profile of all 1,700 towns and cities in the country. In a conference with city and municipal mayors of Ilocos Norte, he stressed the need for reviewing the human settlements organization of each province and region in order to update the economic, social and political profile of the nation. He said he could start with his home province of Ilocos Norte. He arrived in Paoay, Ilocos Norte where, he checked; various public works installations being get up in the, region, such as flood control, water conservation and the pilot mini-integrated development projects there designed to upgrade living conditions in depressed localities.

THE PRESIDENT has increased the membership of the Court of Appeals from 36 to 45, the third in a series of moves affecting the country's judicial system. Judiciary sources said the membership increase of the CA, which is an off-shoot of the increase in the number of: divisions from 12 to 15 as prescribed in a presidential decree signed last June 11, is primarily directed at easing the court's mounting backlog of cases.

July 4—

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, discussed urban development and preparations for the 1980 Olympics with Moscow Mayor Vladimir Promyslov. She is currently in the Soviet Union as a guest of honor of the Ministry of Culture and to attend the finals of the Tchaikovsky musical competition. The meetings were held with Promyslov in her capacity as governor of Metropolitan Manila. Tass said Mrs. Marcos asked in detail about development of the Soviet capital, plans for housing and industrial construction and the work of public transport. She also expressed interest in pre-school education of children.

July 5—

THE PRIME MINISTER ruled that any bill, disapproved by any of the interim Batasang-Pambansa committees and referred to for study shall be automatically turned down for assembly discussion. He made the ruling in his capacity as head of the powerful steering council in reply to a question of Assemblyman Arturo M. Tolentino. The ruling ended the confusion on what to do if committees studying parliamentary bills were to make opposing recommendations.

THE PRESIDENT ordered Director Jolly, Bugarin of the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) to conduct an inquiry into the so-called "Buendia" case. The inquiry will be conducted like a public hearing where any interested person may testify. The President's directive was issued to allow any and all interested parties, particularly witnesses, to come forward and offer the testimony on the killing. Newspaper reports had said that Apolinario E. Buendia, 17, a second year civil engineering student of the University of the Philippines, was fatally shot and his father and mother were seriously wounded supposedly by a bodyguard of an Armed Force's colonel's son after a volleyball game in Makati last June 26.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, looked into the Soviet system of caring for pre-school children as a model that could be adapted to the Philippines on a modest scale. She spent her morning meeting with Vladimir Promyslov, who, as chairman of the Moscow City Soviety (council) of Working People's Deputies, is in effect the mayor of Moscow. In the afternoon and evening, she attended piano and violin concerts in the current Tschaikovsky music competitions. Meeting for the second time since June 1976, the two metropolitan executives compared notes on common problems that have arisen in their respective cities.

THE PRESIDENT received World Chess Champion Anatoly Karpov and challenger Viktor Korchnoi, who came to pay their respects. Earlier, he also received retired U.S. Admiral John S. McCain Jr., who was accompanied by his wife and son John III during his call.

July 6—

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, met for almost two hours with Premier Alexei Kosygin of the Soviet Union to discuss the further development of Philippine-Soviet relations in the light of the current international situation. The meeting took place in Kosygin's office at the Senate building, the seat of the Soviet government, inside the Kremlin, after a day spent by Mrs. Marcos visiting two of Moscow's six main Olympic sites, and Star City, home of the Soviet cosmonauts.

July 7—

THE PRESIDENT authorized a 65-centavo increase per bag in the retail price of cement starting July 1. The new retail price is P15.35 per bag from P14.70 per bag ceiling set by the Price Stabilization Council (PSC). The 65-centavo increase per bag represents the 5 per cent sales tax required by Presidential Decree No. 1358. The Philippine Cement Corp. explained the 65-centavo increase does not represent a price hike as far as the cement manufacturers are concerned since its (increase) is a tax that is going to be paid directly to the government.

MINISTRY of Local Government directed all governors, mayors, bureaus and other units under it to include in their development plans the human Settlements programs adopted by the national government.

PHILIPPINE economy, during the first half of 1978, performed better than expected "because of the improvement in the demand for some of its export commodities and the implementation of non-inflationary measures designed to boost domestic growth." In a report to the President, Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros said, the economy posted an overall surplus of $83 million in its foreign exchange transactions. This, "together with other positive factors, helped the value of the peso appreciate vis-a-vis the US dollar," he added.

THE PRESIDENT has approved the release of an additional P5-million from the Ministry of Public Highways to finance the completion of the beautification project in Baguio City started by the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos. With P5-million released, P12.5 million has already been released for the facelifting of this mountain tourist city.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, ends a nine-day visit to the Soviet Union, after signing for the Philippines a cultural agreement with the Soviet Union and attending the prize winners' concert of the Sixth Tchaikovsky International Music Competition at which she was the guest of honor. The signing took place at the Soviet foreign ministry with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko signing for the Soviet side in the presence of his senior officials and Soviet Minister of Culture Piotr Demichev and his senior officials. The two countries have agreed "to develop ties, cooperation in the fields of culture, higher or post graduate education and sport," for an initial two-year period.

ENERGY Minister Geronimo Velasco said the local oil industry has enough supply of gasoline in its inventories to cover for any shortfall brought about by the reported Caltex refinery problem. He issued this statement to assure gasoline buyers of the availability of the commodity. He added that Petrophil, Mobil, Shell and Getty have adequate supply to meet market requirements.

July 9—

THE PRESIDENT welcomed the conclusion of a P111-million ($15-million) financing by six Arab banks and two US financial institutions for the Philippine-Singapore Ports Corp., a Landoil subsidiary. This is the first time that a full complement of Middle East banks financed a Philippine firm. The President received Constantin Apostolides, executive of the First Boston Corp. which together with the US Mellon Bank, brought together Qatar National Bank, Arab-Malaysian Development Bank, Wardly-Middle East, Ltd., UBAS Bank, Ltd., UBAN-Arab Japanese Finance, Ltd., and Union de Banques Arabes et Francaises-EBAF in the international syndication.

THE PRESIDENT also received Mrs. Velma Morison, major share holder and director of Morrison Knudsen, one of the world's construction giants, who discussed contraction opportunities in Saudi Arabia and the Middle East and Shameem Qurashi, president of the United Arab Emi rates, who informed the President of the increasing Philippine acceptance in the Middle East and who is currently arranging joint venture opportunities for the Philippines in West Asia.

President's Week in Review: July 10-16, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 10—

THE PRESIDENT pledged the total commitment of the government to science and technology as he announced a series of incentives for scientists and technologists to enable them to continue their vital role in food production and energy development. Speaking at the opening ceremonies of the 1978 National Science and Technology Week and the 20th anniversary of the National Science Development Board at the Maharlika Hall of Malacañang, the President stressed that it is in the areas of food and energy “where the survival of the country will depend.”

THE PRESIDENT announced that the five oil well discoveries off Palawan would account for 15 per cent of the country's yearly oil consumption by April next year. His statement was an indication that the oil development program was on schedule. He said the five oil wells would yield 40,000 barrels a day starting February, which in turn would mean a daily foreign exchange savings of $500,000. According to targets, the oil production was expected to increase to 19.3 million barrels a day by 1982, 34 million barrels by 1985 and 45.2 million barrels by 1987. He issued the statement at the opening of the 1978 National Science and Technology Week and the 20th anniversary of the National Science Development Board.

AGRICULTURE Minister Arturo R. Tanco Jr., ordered the nationwide use of IR-36 VEM rice variety which matures in only 100 day and produces about 140 cavans a hectare. Aside from high yield potential, he said, rice produced from the variety will raise the standard of Philippine rice export as the variety is reported to be resistant to shattering in the milling processes. At the same time, he directed the Seed Growers Association of the Philippines to step up multiplication of the variety for distribution to Masagana 99 farmers.

LOCAL Government Minister Jose Roño was ordered by the President to investigate the mass dismissal and replacement of barangay and Sanggunian Bayan officials in Zamboanga del Norte after a dialogue with officers of the Pambansang Katipunan ng mga Barangay (PKB) and some concerned interim Batasang Pambansa members. The sudden replacement of more than 200 municipal and provincial local officials was earlier flayed by PKB as “politically motivated.” They appealed for an investigation.

THE FIRST Lady Imelda Romualdez Marcos, paid a half-hour courtesy call on British Prime Minister James Callaghan at his No. 10 Downing st. office.

MINISTRY of Local Government ruled that new provinces, cities and towns or barangays may be created based on standards to be set up without having to pass a plebiscite as normally required under the Constitution. The ruling, which was made by Minister Jose Roño in the first meeting of the interim Batasang Pambansa committee on local government, affects many parliamentary bills which are now pending in the interim legislature. The ministry, however, said that the plebiscite requirement will be fully enforced once the Local Government Code is enacted.

THE PRESIDENT has approved the distribution of 6,000 science kits to public elementary schools this year. The kits have been found to be effective as teaching aids in science education. Their production has been farmed out among small-scale industries by the National Development Board (NSDB).

FRENCH pilot Maurice Bellonte was received by the President at Malacañang. He was accompanied by French Ambassador Leonard Touze. Earlier, the President also received Bhagirathan Davarajan, new UNDP representative in the country.

SOME P200 Million will be made available in the form of loans to rice, corn sugar and other farmers by the Philippine Planters Products Inc. (PPPI) during the current planting season. The President has directed the PPPI to undertake the massive financing program to enable farmers to buy fertilizers and pesticides on time. The financing plan will fill a gap in credit facilities brought about by repeated delays in the processing of farmers' crop loans.

July 13—

THE GOVERNMENT has finally decided to implement the controversial early warning device (EWD) requirement for every motor vehicle, which it has placed in the freezer for quite a time. The President has ordered the Land Transportation Commission (LTC) to now require owners of either private or public utility vehicles to acquire a set of EWDs for each of their vehicles. The LTC was directed not to register vehicles without their owners first presenting their EWD sets.

DEVELOPMENT drilling and construction of production facilities in the NIDO oilfield off southwestern Palawan will start this October, the Ministry of Energy announced. The development drilling will be a three-well program, two in the West Nido reservoir and one in the South Nido reservoir. The development work will be preparatory to the production of commercial oil in the country starting in February, the ministry said.

July 14—

A NEW super miracle rice, considered superior to all other existing rice varieties, has been developed at the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI) in Los Baños, Laguna. It is called IR42, and exceptionally high-yielding, disease and insect-resistant, drought-tolerant variety that performs well even with minimal fertilization. This variety is a sister to the well known IR36 line which was recently ordered by Agriculture Minister Arturo R. Tanco Jr. to be used nationwide in the Masagana 99 program.

July 15—

THE PRESIDENT served notice that he would resume his decree making under the Constitution if the interim Batasang Pambansa fails in its assigned tasks. In an interview at the Baguio Golf and Country Club, he sought to correct the impression that he no longer has the power to issue decrees with the organization of the Batasan. He stressed that "I will issue decrees if necessary for the welfare of the country."

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, met in New York City with 12 Filipino medical specialists whom she has asked to travel in the United States, Europe and Asia to observe the latest medical technology. The doctors left the Philippines shortly after Mrs. Marcos went to Moscow on a recent nine-day official visit to the Soviet Union. They converged to report to the First Lady halfway through their mission, having visited a number of US hospitals specializing in blood, lung, kidney, brain and children's diseases. She hopes to set up five new specialized medical centers as part of the health program of the Ministry of Human Settlements.

THE PRESIDENT challenged "the real leaders" of the secessionist movement in the South to come to the country and discuss with government representatives the peaceful settlement of the Mindanao problem. Visibly impatient over the impasse in the final settlement of the trouble, he stressed that the problem is a domestic affair and that the meeting between government and secessionist representatives should be "a face-to-face meeting without any foreign intervenors." He pointed out in his talks with newsmen at the Baguio Golf and Country Club that the break in the talks in the South is caused by the split in the ranks of the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF), a group supposedly spearheading the secessionist movement.

THE PRESIDENT has ordered an investigation of the release in Cebu City of 29 men suspected of being members of an arson syndicate. He disclosed this action as he told newsmen that there are indications that some recent fires in Metro Manila and in the South were perpetrated by subversives.

President's Week in Review: July 17-23, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 17—

THE PRESIDENT directed defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, who is also chairman of the Philippine Coconut Authority, to call a meeting of coconut producers and consumers groups to resolve the controversy over the recent price increases of coconut-based products. In an interview after playing a round of golf at the Baguio Golf and Country Club, he said he wants the meeting to be held as soon as possible so that "we can work out some kind of an understanding or compromise." The President was apparently reacting to the plan of a consumers' group (the Philippine Consumers' Foundation) to go to the Supreme Court to require the price Stabilization Council to roll back prices of laundry soap, edible oil and filled milk.

July 18—

EMPLOYEES who meet with an accident on their way to or from their workplace may now be compensated for their injuries if the place of accident is the only access road to the place. This is one of the highlights of the amended implementing rules of the Employees Compensation Law which was restructured recently by Presidential Decree No. 1368 to upgrade its benefits. Labor Minister Blas F. Ople, concurrently chairman of the Employees Compensation Commission, explained that the adoption of the so-called "ingress and egress rule" was made possible by the redefinition of the term "injury" under PD 1368.

July 19—

THE PRESIDENT required members of the interim Batasang Pambansa who cannot understand Pilipino to study the language so they can follow all assembly deliberations. The ruling came after Negros Occidental Assemblyman Teodoro Benedicto asked agricultural labor delegate Luis Taruc to speak English in interpellating Natural Resources Minister Jose Leido Jr. during the current budget discussions.

FOREIGN Deputy Minister Jose D. Ingles said that the Philippines remains a secular state as ordained in the Constitution although the government supports activities of religious groups that work for the advancement of learning among its adherents. He made his comments at the opening of the national Koran reading competition at the Folk Arts Theater. He spoke before a predominantly Muslim audience, mostly students and professionals in Metro Manila, who had gathered at the FAT to hear 18 young men and women recite verses in the Koran.

THE PRESIDENT has organized a four-man committee to oversee the clearing and eventual development of the 160-hectare Cebu north reclamation area. The newly-organized committee is composed of Maj. Gen. Fidel Ramos, Constabulary and Integrated National Police chief; retired Brig. Gen. Gaudencio Tobias, National Housing Authority chairman; Edmundo Maninang, Public Estate Authority general manager; and Cebu City Mayor Eulogio E. Borres.

July 21—

THE PRESIDENT has signed into law at least 11 new tax measures designed to generate P184 million additional government revenues in 1979. This was reported during the Batasang Pambansa session by Finance Minister Cesar Virata. Minister Virata, chairman of the Batasang committee on finance, said the 11 tax decrees signed last June 11 were among the 16 revenue measures included in the President's budget message. The 16 measures were expected to generate additional revenues of about P412 million. He said the President's action left the assembly to consider the remaining six measures expected to generate P205.6 million in additional collections.

INTERIM Batasang Pambansa approved on second reading three new tax measures on cigarettes, liquor and hotels designed to generate 1211 million in revenue next year. The assembly also approved in principle the proposed budgets for the ministries of public highways, local government and community development, public works, labor and six other government offices amounting to P4.185 billion. The action ended floor debates on the P34.3-billion national outlay for 1979 covering 21 ministries and 12 government offices.

THE PRESIDENT said that some Chinese, some of whom are abroad, have been pinpointed as the brains of an arson and extortion syndicate operating in the country. In an interview with newsmen during a break in the session of the interim Batasang Pambansa in Quezon City, the President told newsmen that participation of foreigners in the rash of fires in Metro Manila and in the South is “a matter of fact.” The report made to him by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile substantiates reports that foreigners were behind some major fires in the country, the President added.

July 22—

THE PRESIDENT has ordered the Ministry of Public Highways to continue the construction of the P13-million E. de los Santos avenue extension to Roxas blvd. in Pasay City using P. Lovina Sr. and F. Rein streets. The construction of the project was supposed to start last year but residents of said streets complained to the President who later shopped the project and directed the Human Settlements Commission to conduct a survey on the problem.

July 23—

THE GOVERNMENT has-banned the existing interlocking business interest in the insurance industry, raised the minimum paid-in capitalization of insurance firms and gave additional powers to the insurance commissioner. These, among the other new provisions, are embodied in Presidential Decree No. 1455 promulgated into law last June 11 by the President amending the Insurance Code otherwise known as PD 612.

President's Week in Review: August 1-6, 1978

President's Week in Review: August 7-13, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 7—

THE PRESIDENT was shocked and saddened by the sudden death of Pope Paul VI. He said the late Pope, one of the greatest of world leaders, infused a new meaning and vigor in the Christian faith. The late Pope, who visited the Philippines, in 1970, also lent his strength in trying to repair a world long torn by tension and strife, the President added.

MINISTRY of Education and Culture ordered the strict observance of Pilipino requirements in all college courses starting school year 1979-1980. The order came in the wake of confusion over two previous orders since the bilingual program of education was started in 1974. These orders did not specify the number of required units in Pilipino and the subjects to be taught in Pilipino, thus making some schools think that the matter was not compulsory. The ministry's Order 22 outlined a definite program where at least six units of Pilipino, are offered in all courses. The teacher education program, however, should retain the required 12 units, the order said.

THE PRESIDENT granted members of the police forces extra pay for hazardous undertakings. He also created a National Fire Safety Council to be composed of 15 top government officials, including eight cabinet members. He signed the decree on hazardous pay for policemen after delivering a speech on the occasion of the 77th anniversary of the Philippine Constabulary (PC) in Camp Diwa, Bicutan, Taguig, Metro Manila. The PC Day celebration coincided with the third anniversary of the Integrated National Police.

THE PRESIDENT ordered Trade Minister Troadio T. Quiazon to complete the hearings on the increased prices of basic commodities on learning that manufacturers of filled milk, edible oil and laundry soap have stopped production and created a shortage of these products in the market. However, in his order, the President said that only the issue specified in the Supreme Court ruling should be considered in the conference-type hearings under the auspices of the Price Stabilization Council (PSC).

THE PRESIDENT proclaimed November 27 as a day of mourning over the death of Pope Paul VI last Monday. November 27 was chosen because it was on this date that the late Pope started his visit to this country in 1970.

THE PHILIPPINES and Australian governments exchanged pledges to utilize nuclear energy only for peaceful purposes. Representatives of the two countries signed an agreement in Malacañang to avail themselves of their nuclear energy resources in pursuance of their regulations of the International Atomic Energy Agency. Presided over by the President, the signing ceremonies were attended by Energy Minister Geronimo Z. Velasco, who signed for the Philippines, and Deputy Prime Minister J. Douglas Anthony for Australia. The agreement which binds Australia to supply this country with unprocessed uranium for the use of the Bataan Nuclear Power Plant, is in line with the nuclear non-proliferation treaty concluded in 1968.

August 9—

THE PRESIDENT who met the Cabinet at Malacañang for half an hour deplored the tendency of some ministries to create new offices whenever they are confronted with certain problems. This has resulted in the increasing number of offices, duplication of functions and needless increases in operating expenditures, the President said. In a related move, he directed his ministers to study a direct purchase system in obtaining supplies for their ministries.

THE PRESIDENT said the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos will soon leave for Rome to represent him at the funeral rites for the late Pope Paul VI. The First Lady will depart from New York where she served as a member of the Philippine delegation to the US-ASEAN dialogue in Washington.

THE PRESIDENT directed the Ministry of Trade to look into the feasibility of taking over cooking oil manufacturing through a firm jointly owned by the government, coconut farmers and consumers. The President's directive was relayed to Trade Minister Troadio Quiazon shortly after the Price Stabilization Council restored prices of filled milk, cooking oil and laundry bar soap to their June 6 levels. The order was apparently issued to avert any future disruption in the production of cooking oil which is considered a basic commodity by the government.

THE PRESIDENT has ordered the Presidential Assistant for National Minorities (PANAMIN) to pull out of the Kalinga-Apayao region to give way to the Kalinga Special Development Region (KSDR), a special inter-agency body which oversees development programs and special problems affecting the ethnic tribes.

DOMESTIC enterprises intending to borrow foreign funds are now required by the Central Bank to maintain "sound" debt-equity as a precondition for getting authority to borrow from foreign commercial sources. The CB condition calls for an increase in the paid-in capitalization of the borrowing firms.

THE PHILIPPINE government has accepted the nomination of Mohamed Ismail Kahin as first Ambassador Extra-Ordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Somali Democratic Republic to the Philippines with residence in Pelting.

THE PRESIDENT declared Wednesday, August 16, as a special public holiday in Pasay City to enable its residents to observe the 31st foundation anniversary and 400th year of existence of their city.

August 11—

INTERIM Batasang Pambansa approved on third reading the national government's P34.3-billion budget for 1979. However, the general appropriations bill, authorized the expenditure of only P32.2 billion. The difference of P2.1 billion had been authorized by special public works acts and other existing decrees. The President announced he would prune the budget as approved by the Batasan by withholding fund releases. He added that he had ordered suspension of new offices in the government "that are not justified or that have not been justified before my office." The bill, which allocates P22.4 billion for current operating expenditures and P9.8 billion for capital outlays, now goes to the President to be signed into law.

EDUCATION Minister Juan L. Manuel announced a seven-point program thrust of the Youth Civic Action Program (YCAP) for school year 1978-1979. The thrusts are adoption of A Barangay for Community Development (AECD), Drug Abuse Prevention (DAP) Kabataang Barangay (KB), Tree planting Action Program (TAP), Public Understanding on Science, Technology and Environment (FUSTE), Educational Care and Reform (Educare), and Animal Care (Anicare).

THE GOVERNMENT takes another step towards socialization with an urban land reform law, approved before the Batasang Pambansa convened, governing the ownership and use of big landholdings. In Presidential Decree No. 1517, the President is authorized to proclaim parcels of urban and urbanizable land as urban land reform areas. For them, the Minister of Human Settlements would prepare development and zoning plans. This law is designed to end the traditional concept of land ownership which has given rise to social tension and violent conflicts.

NATIONAL Reinsurance Corporation of the Philippines (NRCP) has elected Roman A. Cruz, Jr., GSIS president and general manager, as board chairman. The corporation was created under Presidential Decree No. 1270 to boost the insurance and reinsurance markets in the country. Under the decree, the NRCP has been designated as the national institution that will subscribe to the capital stock of the Asian Reinsurance Corporation.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, arrived in Rome with her son Ferdinand, Jr., to represent the President and the Filipino people at the funeral of Pope Paul VI. She was about to leave New York for Manila after a month-long mission abroad for the President that took her to Moscow, London and Washington, when news of the Pope's death came. The President asked her to put off her going home so she could attend the funeral.

THE PRESIDENT ordered a probe into the alleged irregularities in the construction of the P8-million public market in General Santos City, South Cotabato. The Chief Executive created a three-man committee headed by Rosalio A. Mallonga of the Ministry of Public Works, Transportation and Communications. The two other members are Faustino Santelices and Wilfredo Santos.

GROSS payment made to professionals for fees or other remunerations such as those paid to lawyers, accountants, doctors, engineers and other professionals will be subject to 20 per cent withholding tax. Payments made to actors, actresses, singers, musicians, emcees, athletes, dancers and other professional entertainers will also be subject to the 20 per cent withholding tax. These are the salient provisions of the proposed revenue regulations announced by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The proposed regulations would implement Presidential Decree No. 1351.

August 28—

THE PRESIDENT said that as the people of a developing country, the Filipinos will never run to a developed nation for the protection of their human rights. Evidently referring to United States interference in Philippine domestic affairs he, said no developed country can arrogate unto itself the function of acting as ombudsman of the Philippines or guardian of rights of the Filipinos.” Addressing the opening session of the 58th Conference of the International Law Association at the Philippine International Convention Center, he said the Philippines is capable of performing this function well. Saying there is not one government which has not violated human rights in one way or another, the President said the proper inquiry is not whether any human right has been violated but rather whether the violation is part of the government policy. If it is not, he said, the question should be whether such a government has taken steps to redress the-violation according to law. “Foreign observers or interventionists do not seem to realize this,” he said.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, drew mixed reactions from the crowd as she urged international lawmakers to make use of laws to “liberate humankind.” In her welcome address at the 58th biennial conference of the International Law Association, she said “law should free a man and not imprison him”. She added that “law should be the living and democratizing instrument of man, for man, by man. It should be the vehicle of human liberation.”

THE PRESIDENT ordered the Local Water Utilities Administration (LWUA) to suspend its operations and to stop authorizing water rate increases. He also directed the LWUA, an agency created to improve the waterworks systems in the provinces, to stop releases of funds to water districts. He instructed the budget ministry to desist from further releasing any fund for the LWUA. The President noted that the LWUA has become oppressive by authorizing increase in water rates without the benefit of public hearings.

August 29—

THE PRESIDENT proclaimed August 30 as a special public holiday in San Juan, Metro Manila to commemorate the 82nd anniversary of the Battle of Pinaglabanan. In another proclamation, he also declared August 30 as a special public holiday in the province of Bulacan to commemorate the 128th birth anniversary of Marcelo H. del Pilar.

August 30—

ALL banks were virtually required by the Central Bank to grant bigger loans to borrowers (individual or corporate entity) engaged in home building and subdivision development projects for low and middle income families. The CB requirement is embodied in Circular No. 627 which increased the loan values of collateral pledged by the borrowers to cover for their bank loans. The CB provided, however, that these provisions of the circular shall apply in cases that the real estate used as collateral is in the name of the borrower; the subdivision or housing project or plan has the approval by proper government authorities. The circular takes effect immediately.

August 31—

MINISTRY of Human Settlements has launched a nationwide Bahay Pilipino Awards contest which will grant cash incentives to houses best reflecting tally Filipino architecture in each of the country's 13 regions The contest is in line with the program of the First Lady, Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos, to evolve and encourage genuine Filipino architecture in such a very basic need as shelter for the masses. In launching the contest, the First Lady expressed the hope that it will encourage the construction of houses making use local and indigenous materials to serve as prototypes or models for houses in connection with the government's housing program.

September 1—

FILIPINO ship-owners are now able to generate more funds from the international capital markets. This was made possible by the issuance of the President of Presidential Decree No. 1521 amending the Philippine Ship Mortgage Law. Under the new decree, domestic as well as ocean-going vessels can be the subject of a preferred mortgage and that the loan secured by a preferred mortgage can also be used for the initial operation of vessels. This means that domestic operators will also have more financing alternatives and shipowners can bolster their working capital resources.

September 2—

THE PRESIDENT conferred the Order of Sikatuna with the rank of datu on Lansar Mojsov, president, of the United Nations General Assembly. He also conferred the Presidential Merit of Awards to Wilgerforce and Antonio Rodriguez Sastre, immediate past president of the ILA.

THE PRESIDENT has ordered the cancellation of five timber licenses in Quezon and Isabela covering 65,700 hectares for violating the Forestry Reform Code, and the terms of their licenses. On instruction of the President, Natural Resources Minister Jose J. Leido Jr. cancelled the licenses of Universal Timber Corp., in Anahawan, Burdeos, Quezon; Dionisio Murillo Logging Inc. in Panukalan, Quezon; Antonio Zarraga, Logging Inc. in Burdeos, Quezon; Jose de la Rosa, a logging firm in Patnanungan, Quezon; and the Palanan Logging Enterprise in Palanan, Isabela. Operations of these timber licenses were previously suspended before their cancellation by the Ministry of Natural Resources.

KABATAANG Barangay which is pushing a nation-wide “Batarisan” out-of-school youth training and development program has adopted “Anak Bukid” a development project aimed at the rural youth, as its agricultural arm. KB Chairman Imee R. Marcos, according to the Ministry of Agriculture, has indicated approval of the “Anak Bukid” affiliation with the main “Batarisan” activity. “Anak Bukid” is the name given the 4-H Club under an integrated rural youth development plan conceived by the Bureau of Agricultural Extension to harness the rural youth for productive ends.

September 3—

THE GOVERNMENT has extended up to December 31 this year the first year of its rural service program to enable all government employees to render their required 15-day rural service work. Education Minister Juan L. Manuel disclosed this in a memorandum to public school teachers and employees of the education ministry. Minister Manuel said Chairman Jacobo C. Clave of the Civil Service Commission extended the first year of the program from September 15 this year to December 31 to accommodate the following government employees those who are still sick but who are expected to recover and well enough to go on rural service on or before December 31, 1978; those who are on official missions but who are expected to return before December 1, 1978; and those newly appointed officials who will be one year in the government service before December 1 this year.

September 4—

THE PRESIDENT issued a series of orders granting benefits to the wounded members of the armed forces, their families, and to the doctors and nurses of the AFP Medical Center. He issued the orders during his speech inaugurating the P30 million seventy-story annex building of the AFP Medical Center in Quezon City which, he said is “a gift of a grateful nation to its distinguished soldiery.” At the inauguration rite which was attended by ranking members of the diplomatic corps, the President: 1) Ordered the release of an additional P8 million for the completion of the center, including the installation of modern kitchen and laundry facilities; 2) Directed the doubling of the monthly incentive pay for army doctors from P100 to P200; 3) Ordered Gen. Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff, to provide incentive pay for army nurses; 4) Approved a petition by soldier-amputees that they be absorbed in the service and assigned tasks that will fit their capabilities; 5) Reiterated previous directives that seriously wounded soldiers who are incapable of earning a livelihood be provided with lifelong pensions, regardless of their length of services; and 6) Ordered the acceleration of the program to train future or potential retirees for civilian jobs in preparation for their retirement.

THE PRESIDENT called on computer experts in Southeast Asia to find ways and means in harnessing computer technology for regional development and modernization. In a speech read for him by Budget Minister Jaime C. Laya at the opening of the 1978 Southeast Asia Regional Computer Conference at the Philippine International Convention Center, the President said that computer technology “will take a strategic and important position in the lives of our societies and in the life of Southeast Asia” in the coming years.

THE PRESIDENT, through Proclamation No. 1782, declared September 5 a special public holiday in General Santos City to give the city residents an opportunity to attend the 10th charter anniversary celebration. He also declared, through another proclamation, September 9 a special public holiday throughout the country in commemoration of the 100th birth anniversary of former President Sergio Osmeña Sr.

September 5—

THE PRESIDENT expressed gratification over the growing commitment of New Zealand in the economic progress of the Philippines. He expressed his gratification after receiving the credentials of Ambassador Barbara Angus as New Zealand envoy to the Philippines at ceremonies held in Malacañang. Earlier, he also received the credentials of Ambassador Lloyd Kojo Onikeh Randall as non-resident envoy of Sierra Leone to the Philippines.

September 6—

THE PRESIDENT called on business firms to help train out-of-school youths during his meeting with 500 delegates to the 12-day National Youth Congress (Kongreso ng Kabataan) on Mt. Makiling, Los Baños, Laguna. He also directed the integration of the “Batarisan” program with the government’s over all manpower and skill development program to enhance its successful implementation. He also took the occasion to announce the appointment of Dr. Jose R. Vergara as president of the Technological University of the Philippines (formerly the Philippine College of Arts and Trades). The delegates, head by Miss Imee Marcos, KB foundation chairman, called on the President in Malacañang to present him resolutions passed during the congress. Also with the delegation were the two other children of the President, Bongbong and Irene.

THE PRESIDENT directed the Cabinet to reassess the flood control program for Luzon, cope with the new OPEC price increase in oil in December and prepare priority items for the Batasang Pambansa agenda. The President, who presided over the weekly meeting of the Cabinet, singled out these three problems as urgent. During the meeting, he directed Public Works Minister Alfredo Juinio to review, redesign and reprogram immediately the Luzon flood control system, giving preferential attention to the development of catch basins. For this purpose, the ground and geological surveys on the Cordillera and Sierra Madre Mountains have been ordered accelerated.

September 8—

THE PRESIDENT underscored the need for “aggressive police action” against the secessionist movement in the South to prevent the situation from deteriorating into a massive threat to the country’s stability and security. Speaking during the loyalty parade of the Armed Forces at Camp Aguinaldo in connection with his coming birthday, the President expressed concern over the deteriorating situation in Mindanao. If the terrorism is not checked outright, he warned, there will be a weakening in the civilian communities that will allow the rebel forces to grow and gather strength.

ALL agencies of the government were directed by the President to open themselves up to the public and the media in line with official policy towards political normalization. He also formed a coordinating council in the dissemination of information abroad. The council will pool existing government resources and prescribe a standard for the operation of various government agencies involved in foreign information. He directed, the Ministers of Public Information, Foreign Affairs, National Defense, Trade, Tourism, Local Government and Community Development, Education and Culture, Health, Energy, Finance, Economic Planning and other officials “to adopt a more open and responsive policy towards members of mass media—whether local or foreign—and foreign government officials and to facilitate their access to unclassified information.”

THE PRESIDENT said that he would propose to the interim Batasang Pambansa the setting up of regional legislative committees to enable the people to propose legislation and air their grievances. In an interview in Paoay, Ilocos Norte, he said that under the proposal, the committee will be empowered to hold public hearings in aid of legislation and receive complaints from the people affecting their regions. He also pointed out that the committee, details of which are contained in his new book entitled “Introduction to the Policies of Transition,” is also empowered to summon the military, Cabinet members and other government officials to shed light on their respective departments.

September 10—

THE PRESIDENT granted conditional pardon to six persons who were convicted last year for participation in an assassination plot against him in 1972. Pardoned were Eduardo Figueras, Antonio Arevalo, Manuel Crisologo, Augustus McCormick Lehman Jr., Faustino Puzon and Alexander Arevalo. At the same time, he also granted pardon and commutation of sentences to 432 prisoners. Of these, four were given absolute pardon, 335 were granted conditional pardon and 93 others were given shorter sentences. The President’s grant of pardon and commutation of sentences was given on the eve of his 61st birthday.

THE PRESIDENT said that he will propose the opening of the books of accounts of the interim Batasang Pambansa and the disclosure of assets and liabilities of assemblymen to enhance the prestige of the legislative body. In an interview at Paoay, he said that he will propose to the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan—the majority party in the Batasan—that rules to this effect be approved and be made part of the house rules and regulations.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 11—

THE PRESIDENT celebrated his 61st birthday today in his hometown together with his family, close friends and some members of the Cabinet. The First Family started the day by praying at the Aglipayan church and hearing a high Mass at the Imelda cultural hall celebrated by Julio Cardinal Rosales. With the President were the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos their children Imee, Bongbong and Irene, Doña Josefa Edralin Marcos, the President's mother.

September 12—

THE PRESIDENT said that the government will undertake urgent measures to cushion whatever economic difficulties the Philippines will face as a result of the projected oil price increase next year. In an interview with newsmen at his residence on Batac, Ilocos Norte he said that the expected oil price increase is "serious" and something should be done to prevent economic dislocation. He stressed that the Philippines will face in 1979 purely economic problems prompting the government to plan immediate and short-term measures.

THE PRESIDENT declared September 21 and 22 special public holidays all over the country to give the people full opportunity to celebrate national Thanksgiving Day on Thursday. In issuing Proclamation No. 1785 to this effect, the President once again called upon the people to reflect on the blessings of goodwill and prosperity achieved under the New Society.

September 13—

THE PRESIDENT laid down the cornerstone of the P3-million National Grains Authority warehouse in Dingras, Ilocos region. Accompanied by members of his family, the President motored to Dingras for the first stop of a townhopping trip in his former second congressional district. In his address to the townfolk, he also announced that he had ordered the immediate cementing of the San Nicolas-Dingras road. He allocated P2 million for it, on a quarterly basis. The cornerstone-laying ceremonies, held at the Saldares-Calli Elementary School which is about 48 kilometers from Batac was witnessed by NGA Administrator Jesus Tanchaco, Gov. Elizabeth Marcos Keon and around 500 town residents.

THE GOVERNMENT launched a new sugar intercropping program to use sugarlands fully and increase the income of farmers will plant mongo and peanuts in between sugar crops. The scheme is also expected to ease the tight supply of the two products. The intercropping will be financed by the Development Bank of the Philippine Sugar Commission (Philsucom) to sugar farmers participating in the program.

September 14—

THE PRESIDENT announced in Batac, Ilocos Norte that as of September 11 this year, the center of research agricultural products has been the Mariano Marcos State University (MMSU). He made the announcement on the occasion of the 21st birthday celebrations of his son Ferdinand Jr. (Bongbong), which were sponsored by the Kabataang Barangay and students of the different schools and colleges of the MMSU.

September 15—

THE PRESIDENT said the Philippines is ready to work with the People's Republic of China in promoting economic development and progress among the developing countries. In accepting the credentials of the new PRC ambassador, Chen Hsin-jen, at Malacañang, the President stressed that the two countries both belong to the Third World and their fate is inextricably linked to that of the developing countries. He pointed out that economic development and progress is the key to stability and peace in the world, and that developing countries should enjoy their share of economic progress.

September 16—

MINISTRY of Education and Culture said it will conduct seminars on a year-round basis to update the knowledge and capabilities of public school teachers and other school officials in compliance with the order of the President. MEC Minister Juan L. Manuel said the first batch of assistant superintendents of schools was set to start a month-long seminar at the Teacher's Camp in Baguio City where there are available facilities for the purpose. The President, on his 61st birth anniversary last September 11 in Batac, Ilocos Norte, ordered the establishment of a Teacher's Development Center to upgrade the standard of instruction in public schools which, he noted has gone down. He stressed that the retraining of public school teachers was necessary because of the advance of science and technology.

September 17—

THE PRESIDENT and visiting Vietnam Prime Minister Pham Van Dong opened substantial talks which would serve as basis for future relations between their countries and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations. The President got a personal filling in from the premier on Vietnam's intentions in the region and its attitude toward issues affecting their countries and the ASEAN. Vietnam's holding out its hand of friendship was deemed significant in the light of its earlier denunciations of ASEAN and its on-going quarrel with China and its Indochinese neighbors.

President's Week in Review: September 18-24, 1978

President's Week in Review: September 25 - October 1, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 25—

THE PRESIDENT endorsed a P2.2-billion highway building program for 1979 to beat the rising cost of fuel oil. For this reason, he has instructed Highways Minister Baltazar Aquino to keep all projects moving so that these could be completed before more increases in fuel prices are imposed. The total amount set aside for the highway building program includes foreign assistance, principally coming from the World Bank.

INFORMATION Minister Francisco S. Tatad assured one more the media and the public that the substitute information bill which he has co-sponsored with Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile at the Interim Batasang Pambansa "is not a measure designed to abridge freedom of the press, but rather, is a guarantee of full access to information." The assurance was made by Minister Tatad before Students and faculty members of the College of Law of the University of the Philippines in Diliman, Quezon City.

JUSTICE Minister Vicente Abad Santos issued a memorandum circular prohibiting the arrest of wanted persons at night, on holidays, and weekends, except in certain cases. He issued the memorandum to ensure adherence to the protection of rights of individual citizens which were guaranteed by the Constitution. The prohibition, he said, "is intended to avoid inconvenience on the part of an arrested person who otherwise might find it difficult to post bond for his provisional liberty, or secure the services of legal counsel, while under detention."

September 26—

THE PRESIDENT ordered the immediate release of P20 million for the development of the cattle and dairy industry, a part of a two-pronged government program to boost food production and increase protein in the Filipino diet. The other prong of the program, according to the President, will be the establishment of factories for the production of textured vegetable protein (TVP) from soya bean cake to fill the lack of animal protein in the people's diet. He was speaking during the "Binhi Awards" ceremonies sponsored by the Philippine Agricultural Journalists, Inc. at Malacañang when he announced the twin program which, he said, would be a "critical effort to change the lifestyle of the Filipino people."

THE PRESIDENT authorized the immediate shipment of 1,500 tons of rice, or 30,000 cavans, worth P8 million for the flood victims in the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. He said that the rice will be shipped aboard Philippine Navy vessels. The Mekong Delta, known as the rice bowl of Vietnam, suffered from heavy floods as a result of the over flow of the Mekong River.

THE PRESIDENT expressed hope that the recent diplomatic breakthrough achieved in Camp David, Maryland, in talks between United States President Jimmy Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli President Menachem Begin, will bring permanent peace to the Middle East. "We all hope and pray that the long quest for everlasting peace will soon come to an end," the President told Ambassador Moshe Raviv, who presented his letters of credence as the ambassador extraordinary, and plenipotentiary of Israel to the Philippines.

September 27—

THE PRESIDENT and the Cabinet launched a nationwide job creation program, with emphasis in the rural areas. The program, finalized during a joint Cabinet-National Economic and Development Authority meeting at Malacañang, is intended to absorb some 800,000 unemployed of the total work force in the country. It was agreed that the government will give the cottage industry "a big push" in the countryside to support the program. In addition to loans, skills will be distributed around the country so that all the 13 regions will benefit from the program. The job-creation program was conceived by the First lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos as part of the effort to improve the living conditions of Filipinos.

DURING the same meeting, the President also formed a special Cabinet committee which will study all proposed measures before they are considered by the Batasang Pambansa. The move is apparently intended to prevent the indiscriminate filing of proposed measures by members of the Batasan. The President said that "henceforth, no Cabinet or Parliamentary bill shall be brought before the Batasang Pambansa unless it is recommended by the committee for the Cabinet."

PRIVATE and government employees will have to pay more for their medicare contributions starting Oct.1 but benefits will also be increased. Presidential Decree No. 1519 provides for coverage of all employees in several ranges up to a maximum of P600. The base of coverage used to be only up to a maximum of P300. This will mean that practically all employees will be subject to increased contributions since the minimum wage rate has been increased to P11 a day. Under the now rates, those earning P1 to P49.99 a month will be assessed 60 centavos monthly, those who get P50 to P99.99, P1.80; P100 to P149.99, P3.10; P150 to P199.99, P4.40; P200 to P249.99, P5.60; P250 to P349.99, P7; P350 to P499.99, P10.75; and those receiving at least P500, P15.

THE PHILIPPINES cited disarmament and the quest for a new international economic order as the main problems besetting the world, and to which the United Nations must address itself. Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo, delivering the Philippine position before the General Assembly, said that the snail's pace with which disarmament talks have been proceeding leads to the suspicion that the developed countries are impeding the progress of the talks to maintain the status quo. He warned that delay in the efforts to give developing countries the opportunity to participate in the equitable sharing of world economic growth can only be done at peril to world peace.

September 29—

THE PRESIDENT indicated that Martial Law will be lifted in a year or two as he laid down the basic guidelines of the country's foreign policy. During the question-and-answer period following his speech before the University of the Philippines College of Law Alumni Association at the Philippine Plaza, the President reiterated that the lifting of Martial Law will still depend on the final solution of the dissident movement in the South. However, he told his listeners that the settlement of the nagging Mindanao problem is forthcoming.

September 30—

LOCAL government Minister Jose A. Roño said that a system of recalling elective officials whose performance is deemed below par is one of the provisions of the proposed local government code. Speaking before 208 mayors in Region 4, the last of a series of regional consultation-conferences of municipal and city mayors, Minister Roño, urged the local leaders to participate in discussions on the proposed local government code. The code is a prerequisite to the holding of local elections and the establishment of autonomous regional administrations. He has ordered the rushing of copies of the local government-code for presentation to the Batasang Pambansa by mid-October. He said he expects the deliberation and passage of the local government code to last at least a year.

October 1—

JAPANESE government has finalized the seventh yen credit loan for the Philippines amounting to 32.5 billion yen (US$170 million). Japan's decision to extend this package loan under its Overseas Economic Cooperation Fund to finance 10 local priority projects was first aired by the Ministry of International Trade and Industry Minister Toshio Komoto during his recent visit to the Philippines. The loan, which is 50 per cent larger than the previous sixth yen credit loan of US$113 million, carries a 3.25 per cent interest payable within 30 years with a 10-year grace period. The total amount of this package loan includes a project loan amounting to 30 billion yen and a commodity loan valued at 2.5 billion yen.

President's Week in Review: October 2-8, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 2—

THE PRESIDENT raised the possibility of local elections late this year, or early next year in a caucus with members of the Batasang Pambansa affiliated with the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan held at the south wing of the Batasan building. He advised the KBL, leaders to start preparing themselves from the grassroots level and strengthen their organization in view of reports that the opposition party has been mending its fences and trying to team up with other opposition groups.

October 3—

THE PRESIDENT said he was prepared to take the most draconian measures, including cancelling all timber licenses and totally banning log exports, to save the nation's forests. He issued the warning before the First Philippine Forestry congress at the Philippine Village hotels. It was the 77th anniversary of the Pambansang Paglilingkod Pangkagubatan. He also warned government personnel to start heeding the, order for them to take part in the nationwide tree-planting program.

October 4—

THE PRESIDENT, stressing the need for rural development, announced in the Cabinet meeting, he would himself take charge of the high priority cottage industry program. He also directed the-Ministry of the Budget to release P600 million to build barangay roads, irrigation projects and schools—each sector to receive P200 million. He said that roads, irrigation projects and schools were the most elementary needs in the countryside. And cottage industries, requiring a minimum of capital and equipment, would provide spending money for the rural homes.

THE PRESIDENT had ordered the creation of disaster, preparedness councils on the national, regional, provincial and community levels to strengthen the country's capability in meeting all types of disasters. He, also calling for a national disaster plan, said that the revitalized system would enhance the country's survival capability and economic stability against natural and man-made disasters. In line with this he created the National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) to oversee preparedness programs, disaster operations and rehabilitation efforts undertaken by the government and the private sectors.

THE PRESIDENT defended members of his Cabinet on the "conflict of interest" issue. Answering questions from the opposition during the Batasan question hour, he said he had earlier issued a decree setting the standard of conduct for cabinet men. However, he said, he would look into their holdings to dispel any doubt on their qualifications for their present positions.

INFORMATION Minister Francisco S. Tatad said that the Batasan committee on public information has deleted a provision on the proposed Official Information Act which would hold newsmen accountable for publishing confidential official information. Speaking at the Thursday Club of Quezon City, he said the bill will "routinize" public access to official records and enhance development of a free press. He also said the committee has dropped another provision which would have empowered the Minister of Public Information to advise media to refrain from publishing certain classified official information or be penalized for it. He said a new provision has been inserted to allow a minister to brief media from time to time on classified official information, when it is in the national interest.

October 6—

THE PRESIDENT indicated strongly he would purge dishonest and incompetent local officials next month and replace them with competent ones. He met with regional leaders of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan and took up with them the issue of organizing a single political party. This would mean the end of the present affiliation between the KBL, a catch all umbrella organization which served its purpose in the last election, and the Nacionalista party. When consolidated, the new political party could adopt the name Kilusan or Nacionalista or it could act under a new name. He asked the regional leaders for suggestions during the meeting.

October 7—

THE PRESIDENT announced he would set up a P5 million investment and development firm for enlisted personnel of the Armed Forces of the Philippines. He said this was authorized in a decree signed before June 2. He decided to announce, this only during the 18th anniversary celebration of the Enlisted Personnel Association of the Philippines. The firm to be known as the Enlisted Investment and Development Corporation, will have the government supplying 55 per cent of the authorized capital which would be eventually transferred to the members. The President said this project is an affirmation of the government's commitment to the policy of enabling men retiring from the armed forces to adjust to civilian life.

October 8—

THE PHILIPPINE government has never been more stable than it is now under the President. This was reported by Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo in a radio interview over WKIS-TV in Orlando, Florida. Minister Romulo was in Orlando as one of the invited speakers at the meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce. When asked by interviewers on how the Philippine government under Martial Law was faring, he, said, that having been continuously connected with the government, since the Commonwealth under President Quezon, he could say in all honesty that the government has never been more solid, more honest and more effective than it is now under the President. He enumerated the many achievements of the present leadership such as growing economy better educational facilities, improved health and medicare programs, extensive public works improvements, agrarian reform and social justice.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 9—

THE PRESENT hailed the visit of the mission from Perking headed by Vice Minister Shih-lin of Economic Relations with Other Countries as another step towards strengthening Philippine relations with the People's Republic of China. "I am certain your visit will go a long way towards establishing rapport and cooperation in the implementation of the Technical and Scientific Cooperation Agreement in the most constructive level between our two countries and governments," the President told the visiting Chinese minister.

MINISTRY of Justice ruled that printing and distribution of the Holy Bible is not covered by the Filipinization requirement imposed by the Constitution on the ownership and management of mass media. Acting Justice Minister Catalino Macaraig, Jr. issued the ruling in response to a query from the Board of Investments concerning an application of the United Bible Society—a non-stock, non-profit religious US corporation—to establish a branch in the Philippines which shall translate the Bible into different dialects, print and distribute the same without monetary consideration.

THE PRESIDENT conferred the Philippine Legion of Honor on six top officers of the Indonesian Army for eminently meritorious and distinguished service to the Philippines, particularly in strengthening ties between the Indonesian Army and the Philippine Army. Awarded the Philippine Legion of Honor were: 1) General Widodo, chief of staff of the Indonesian Army, (degree of commander); 2) Maj. Gen. Alex Prawiraatmadja, commandant, General Command for Development, Training and Research; 3) Maj. Gen. Himawan Soetanto, commanding the Sixth Military Command; 4) Maj. Gen. October 12—

THE GOVERNMENT announced a plan to expand overseas and inter-island shipping through a five-year program funded by $390 million in foreign loans. The President announced this boost to the maritime industry, which ranks, seventh, among the country's foreign exchange earners, in a speech at the inauguration of the Chamber of Maritime Industry at the Manila Hotel.

THE FIRST Couple receive a 40-man delegation from the City of Melilia, Spain. Headed by Melilia City Mayor Luis Cobreros Acero, the group, composed of leaders of both the government and the private sector, is in the country to attend the formal ceremonies in Cavite City uniting it with the City of Melilia. In receiving the delegation, the President called to mind the ties of affection and common endeavors between Spain and Philippines, saying that Spain's many influences and traditions "which were cherished by the Filipino people and the leadership up to this time will never fade away."

THE FIRST Lady Imelda Romualdez Marcos, told US Ambassador and Mrs. Richard Murphy, and other senior officials of the embassy and US-agencies in Manila that "the strong political system laid down by the President since 1972, anchored on democracy and free enterprise, has enabled Filipinos to sustain a concerted development program in a climate of peace and order." She began two days of scheduled briefings for the American officials on her major national projects by bringing them to the Nutrition Center and the Population Center. "We begin here: to show you how we tackle first our basic problems with human resources since everything we do is aimed towards the full development of man, our priority resources," she said.

October 13—

THE PRESIDENT expressed serious concern over the huge deficit in the Philippine-Japan trade and called on the private sector of Japan to help lessen, if not completely eliminate, the trade deficit. "We are deeply concerned about the deficit in our trade with Japan," he told a Japanese survey mission which called at Malacañang. He also expressed fear of the policy of protectionism by developed countries in the wake of projections by Western countries of a recession or failure of their economies to recover and, therefore, continue with limited economic activity. He, however, expressed confidence that Japan, having recovered-from the debilitating effects of the world crisis, can help ASEAN countries maintain the momentum of development for their mutual benefit.

October 14—

THE PRESIDENT reiterated his order that marginal farmers be exempted from the one per cent tax on gross sales, with a minimum of P100, and gave the minister of agriculture 30 days to submit for Presidential approval a definition of what a marginal farmer entitled to exemption should be. He recalled that more than two months ago on July 26 he had directed that marginal farmers be exempted from the P100 minimum gross sales tax levied under Presidential Decree No. 1358 pending definition of a marginal farmer. "But it has been reported to me by the Batasan Pambansa Committee on Agriculture that the, one per cent tax is already being enforced on all farmers even before the definition of marginal farmer has been arrived at," the President said."

October 15—

THE PRESIDENT ordered an immediate study of the effects of the increases in the cost of electricity, water and gasoline on the minimum wage. Also to be studied are the possible repercussions to the low-income group should the petition of transportation operators for higher bus fares be approved.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 16—

THE PRESIDENT created the Ministry of Transportation and Communications by splitting the Ministry of Public Works, Transportation and Communications. The Ministry of Public Works was retained to concentrate on the infrastructure program of the governments. The creation of the new ministry, in turn, is a signal that the government is intent on improving the transportation and communication facilities of the country to keep pace with the accelerated economic development efforts. The President made the announcement in the course of his speech keynoting the opening of the Second Conference of the Road Engineering Association of Asia and Australasia at the Philippine International Convention Center.

THE PRESIDENT ordered an immediate study of the effects of the increases in the cost of electricity, water and gasoline on the minimum wage. Also to be studied are the possible, repercussions to the low-income groups should the petition of transportation operators for higher fares be approved.

October 17—

THE FIRST Couple led officials in welcoming Deputy Prime Minister Ieng Sary of the Democratic Kampuchea (Cambodia), who arrived in the country for a four-day official visit. The Deputy prime minister, the first official of his country to visit the Philippines since the- Khmer Rouge took over the government, is accompanied by a 10-man delegation.

THE PRESIDENT ordered a comprehensive but quick audit of bus companies to determine whether their claim that they are losing money is valid. He said that would be the basis of whether or not to approve the proposed new fares for buses. The proposed fares were discussed during the President's meeting with the Cabinet and the National Economic and Development Authority.

DURING the same meeting with the Cabinet and the NEDA, the President also: Clarified that the government contrary to some reports, has no plans to nationalize the edible oil industry; 2) Asked the Cabinet and the NEDA to submit their nominations for the position of minister in the proposed new Cabinet office—the Ministry of Transportation; and 3) Pointed out that the government, was trying, to stimulate sustained growth in the various industrial and agricultural sectors and that the NEDA does not foresee any significant economic slowdown in the country.

FORMER Senator Lorenzo Teves was appointed by the President, governor of Negros Oriental. He succeeded, former Gov. William Villegas who had previously retired. After his path-taking at Malacañang, Gov. Teves pledged to render the kind of service, "richly deserved by the people."

KAMPUCHEAN Deputy Prime Minister Ieng Sary declared that his country's conflict with Vietnam "is not a border problem," but a case of Vietnam trying to swallow Kampuchea. He used his press conference at the Manila Hilton to present his country's side in the conflict while denouncing "the great power ambition" of his enemies, the Vietnamese. The Cambodian leader warned the nations of Southeast Asia against the ambition of the Specialist Republic of 'Vietnam and "a big expansionist power" which he later identified as the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics "to dominate Southeast Asia."

THE PRESIDENT has appointed three new provincial governors and three city mayors in what has been interpreted as the start of a nationwide revamp of local governments. The appointments were announced by Local Government Minister Jose Roño. Appointed were former Sen. Lorenzo Teves as, governor of Negros Oriental, former Tagbilaran city Mayor Rolando Butalid as Bohol governor, and Fiscal Sandiali Sambulawan as governor of Maguindanao. The new mayors are Jose Rocha Tagbilaran city, Lorenzo Masingno of Dumaguete city and Miguel Paderanga Ginoog City.

October 20—

THE PRESIDENT said the government would “maintain strict neutrality” in the tug-of-war for sympathy and moral support between Kampuchea and Vietnam. At an airport press conference after Kampuchean Deputy Prime Minister Ieng Sary took off for Jakarta, the President said that neutrality’ “is dictated by all considerations and the two parties understand it.”

THE PRESIDENT said there was no timetable for local elections, thereby dousing cold water on the ambitions of local political kingpins who are counting on elections at the end of the year. “We are now engaged in evaluating the work of local executives in Metro Manila and elsewhere,” he said. “Until we finish with that, it is a waste of time to be talking of local elections.” The President, speaking to newsmen at the airport after the departure of Kampuchean Deputy Prime Minister Ieng Sary said that if there would be local elections, they would be carried put first in Mindanao.

THE FIRST ordered Highways Minister Baltazar Aquino to dismiss, should evidence warrant, highways officials and employees linked to the P86-million irregularity now under investigation. Presidential interest on the case came after, the Commission on Audit (COA) reported similar cases involving payments to phantom projects in the Ministry of Public Highways (MPH) offices in the Visayas and in Mindanao.

October 21—

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, arrived in Rome to represent Filipino people at the investiture of Pope John Paul II. She was welcomed at Da Vinci airport by Msgr. Mario Vigarella, representing the Holy/See and Philippine Ambassador to the Vatican Francisco Delgado.

CENTRAL Bank authorized banks to grant preferential loan assistance to three areas of activities: marketing of palay, trading of corn, sorghum, soy beans and mongo, and production of nickel metal, nickel and cobalt in mixed sulphides. Loans granted by banks to firms/individuals engaged in said activities can be rediscounted (or used as collaterals for advances the banks may get from the CB.

October 22—

MINISTRY of Justice has dismissed outright some 300 pending cases involving illegal possession of blunt or pointed instruments. Minister of Justice Vicente Abad Santos directed dismissal of the pending cases in a circular to all city and provincial fiscals. The order was implemented by Col. Juan A. Sison, chief state prosecutor. Cases involve violation of Presidential Decree No. 9 which imposes a prison term of up to ten years for possession of blunt or pointed instruments.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 23—

THE PRESIDENT ordered Minister of Local Governments Jose Roño to make sure that members of the Batasang Pambansa make their statements of assets and liabilities. Also to be revealed would be the books of accounts of the legislative body. In an interview, the President recalled that on June. 12, he had asked the assemblymen to reveal their assets and liabilities. He reiterated this last month in Paoay, Ilocos Norte, during an interview with Malacañang reporters. Minister Roño would now carry out his instructions on the matter, the President said.

OCTOBER 31 and November 1 were declared by the President special holidays to enable the people to honor their dead on All Saints Day, Nov. 1. In issuing Proclamation No. 1796, the President pointed out that "remembering and paying homage to the dead on All Saints Day is one of our most cherished traditions."

THE PRESIDENT hailed the Fourth International Population conference as an opportunity for the "interchange of knowledge, and the expression of solidarity that otherwise would not be there if our nations were acting alone in combating the population challenge." He offered to the delegates the benefits of the Philippine experience in population planning. He said the Philippines hoped to learn from other countries which might have even more impressive achievements. The President, accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, who arrived minutes earlier from her visit to Rome for Pope John Paul II's investiture, gave the keynote address at the conference sponsored by the World Population Society.

THE PRESIDENT announced a timetable for five high-priority programs for the Batasang Pambansa, starting with the vital infrastructure bill which must be acted upon by the end of next month. The other vital bills: 1) Elections in the Muslim provinces of Region 9 and Region 12, which must be discussed and decided by Christmas; 2) Review of government expenditures which must be completed by January 1979; 3) The Local Government Code, which must be out of the committee room by January 1979; 4) The Corporation Code which must also be finished by January. He made the announcement in a talk with newsmen while waiting for the First Lady to arrive from Rome.

RUSSIAN Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firubin called on the President and informed him that Soviet leaders were impressed with the Philippine government's course in foreign affairs. Firubin, who is in the country on a three-day official visit, said that the state visit of the First Couple to the Soviet Union two years ago is well remembered in Moscow. He said that their meetings with Russian leaders were an important historic step towards development of friendly relations between the two nations.

October 25—

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, has invited Pope John Paul II to visit the Philippines next year for the fourth centennial of the archdiocese of Manila. The First Lady said she conveyed the invitation in the name of the President and the Filipino people during her 25-minute private audience with the new Pontiff at the Vatican.

October 26—

THE PRESIDENT told some 60 selected government executives of the need to actually stay among the masses in the barangays in order to find out their problems and work at solving them. "You are going where people really live, you are going to the barangays to find out how far the errors of the past generations have seeped down to the bottom and deprived our people, made them ignorant, weak, pessimistic, incapable, incompetent and immobilized," he said. "And once you have met this centuries old burden, bear it on your own shoulders," he admonished the executives who were participants in the 11th class of the Career Executive Service Development Program (CESDP).

October 27—

THE PRESIDENT, personally monitoring relief operations round-the-clock, directed government offices to maintain their rescue, rehabilitation and relief operations. He called for the continuing evacuation of civilians threatened by floods caused by typhoon “Kading” to be moved to high ground and to provide them with relief goods.

THE PRESIDENT gave the Chinese community two goals to achieve: help the government gain national unity and help it in regional economic cooperation with member states of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). He stressed that the naturalization of 18,398 Chinese under the government’s liberalized naturalization program was just the beginning in the process of assimilation.

October 28

THE PRESIDENT declared all of Central Luzon and Pangasinan an agricultural calamity area, and the province of Nueva Ecija a total disaster area. He ordered all government agencies concerned to set up rehabilitation headquarters there for speedy relief and rehabilitation works. The President’s action came in the wake of reports of heavy destruction of crops in Central Luzon and extensive damage to homes and infrastructure in Nueva Ecija.

DEVELOPED countries should not merely ask poor nations to limit population they should “do their share by restraining their propensity to excessive and wasteful consumption of the world’s limited resources,” the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos said. Speaking at the closing session of the International Population conference, she drew the link between population and development. “Human beings are not obstacle to development but the primary resource. In fact human beings are the basic unit of development,” she said. She said the Philippines interprets the world population plan of action and its definition of population as an inextricable part of the development process.

THE PRESIDENT directed the implementation of a total agricultural rehabilitation package for all Central Luzon after making an aerial survey with the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, of Bulacan, Pampanga, Tarlac and Nueva Ecija provinces. Flying over Central Luzon, the First Couple confirmed reports of heavy damage to crops, as well as to public and private buildings and installations.

President's Week in Review: October 30 - November 5, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 30—

THE PRESIDENT assured the private sector, the principal agent of modernization and change, continued government support but added that the government would regulate “moderately” the income and wealth resulting from modernization to give the masses a greater share in the fruits of development. He expressed this view before members of a 25-man investment mission from the United States who are here to survey investment possibilities. The group was headed by Charles Robinson, vice chairman of Blyth Eastman Dillion and Co. and accompanied by US Ambassador Richard Murphy.

October 31—

AGRICULTURE Minister Arturo Tanco, Jr., said that the country would still have a 299,000-ton rice supply this year despite heavy damage to rice crops by “Kading” and two earlier typhoons. The country will have the surplus after meeting its rice consumption needs and the one million ton reserve for at least nine months, Minister Tanco said- He made the disclosure to allay fears expressed by certain quarters that the country might experience a rice shortage as a result of the loss of 11.6 million cavans due by three successive typhoons- In a related move, the President ordered the suspension of any further rice export commitments only because, the typhoon season is not yet over, and a final assessment of the country's surplus is yet to be made.

November 1—

THE PRESIDENT has approved a Ministry of Public Highways proposal to streamline the Metro Manila's traffic situation through construction and improvement of roads, bridges and interchanges in a two-phased program. MPH Minister Baltazar Aquino said the short-term action was designed to effect immediate partial relief of traffic with funding requirements coming from the national government. The long-term action plan, on the other hand, was approved by the President for inclusion in the eighth loan from Japan through its lending arm, Overseas Economic Cooperation Fund (OECF), Minister Aquino said.

November 2—

NATIONAL Police Commission launched a long-range plan to pinpoint factors that predispose policemen to misbehavior and to devise measures to curb police abuses. Reacting to recent cases of inefficiency, corruption and other forms of malpractices on the part of officers and men of the Integrated National Police (INP), Defense Deputy Minister Jose M. Crisol, concurrent Napolcom chief, issued a general order mobilizing all seven departments of the agency behind a “program for the prevention of abuses by INP members.”

November 3—

PHILIPPINE Medical Care Commission (PMCC) asked that it be the health agency to exercise control and supervision of the hospitals in the country. Dr. Pacifico E. Marcos, PMCC chairman, said that Presidential Decree No. 1519, the Revised Philippine Medical Care Act, “explicitly makes it the objective of the medicare program to provide medical care.” He added that this objective of the program “must mean that the primary means of producing the services, which are the hospitals, should as much as possible be within the effective control of the PMCC.” Under the present setup, it is the bureau of medical services of the Ministry of Health which has control and supervision of government and private hospitals in the country.

THE PRESIDENT underscored the significance of the Jaycee movement in the effort to bring about world peace and understanding. In an advance message to the international gathering, the 33rd Jaycees World Congress, to be held at the Philippine International Convention Center, he said, "the Jaycee movement, propelled by the idealism and civic involvement of young men everywhere, continues to exert constructive influence-in the common search for a better world."

FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, told advertising executives from 15 nations of Asia and the Pacific region that the developing countries have great need of their communications expertise to promote development. Citing the advertisers for being “such masters of your profession—the creation of desire,” she suggested they would do well to “channel the desires of our people beyond mere consumer goods to permanent changes in life, which will ultimately mean an improvement in their quality of life.”

November 17—

PRESIDENT Panfilo O. Domingo of the Philippine National Bank (PNB) said the Philippine economy was “stable and solid.” This was in answer to a statement claiming that the economy of the Philippine, was just like a balloon, floating in the air and which could collapse any time if pricked by a needle. Interviewed by newsmen, he said the foreign debts of the country were wisely managed. At the same time, he said the inflationary rate that goes with transactions properly controlled.

November 18—

JUSTICE Minister Vicente Abad Santos said the government will be forced to take action against businessmen of Chinese descent who “have evidently undergone naturalization only for business advantage.” In a speech before branch managers of the Philippine National Bank (PNB) at Baguio City, he said the warning was directed specifically against naturalized Chinese “who have remained Chinese in ideology, attitude, and practice and have stubbornly refused to join the mainstream of Filipino life.”

MALACANANG has issued a letter of instruction clarifying Presidential Decree No. 20, the law on rental ceilings. The LOI declares that in two cases, an apartment owner may eject a tenant. Minister Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) outlined the two causes for ejectment before the GTV-4 program “Face the Nation” as: 1) When the renter or tenant sublets the dwelling unit; and 2) When the owner wants to live in the dwelling unit a tenant is occupying. However, the owner must be renting another dwelling unit himself and has no other place to go.

MALACANANG announced that the President has approved construction and operation of two plants of a proposed integrated petro-chemical complex. The two plants were proposed by the Ministry of Energy and the Philippine National Oil Company. The recommendation to start with the low-density polyethylene (LDPE) and polypropylene (PP) plants was made jointly by Energy Minister Geronimo Velasco and Finance Minister Cesar Virata and concurred in by Industry Minister Vicente T. Paterno. The two approved plants will be constructed on a 280-hectare area in Limay, Bataan. The area was earlier set aside for the purpose under Presidential Decree No. 949.

November 19—

THE PRESIDENT cited the distinguished record of the Upsilon Sigma Phi fraternity at its 60th anniversary at the Philippine Plaza ballroom. He said that the fraternity, an exclusive organization of scholars in the University of the Philippines, has always had men who brought distinction to it. He was accompanied by the First Lady, son Bongbong and daughter Irene, who was the fraternity sweetheart. She was chosen frat muse in an earlier get-together in Canlubang, Laguna.

FOREIGN Minister Carlos P. Romulo and Louis de Guiringaud of France signed cultural and scientific accords in Paris. "These two accords reflect the quality of cooperation between our two countries and (allow for a form of rediscovery between the cultures of both nations," Minister Romulo said. French Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud added, "We appreciate the importance your country plays in Southeast Asia and its unique role in the whole of Asia." The five-year agreements were first of their kind between France and the Philippines, and official sources said they revitalized what had been "lethargic" bilateral relations.

President's Week in Review: November 20-26, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 20—

THE PRESIDENT expressed the hope that the negotiations on military bases and economic relations between the Philippines and the United States will be terminated soon, possibly within the year. He expressed this hope during a luncheon given by him and the First Lady in honor of the visiting United States congressmen in Malacañang. Before the luncheon, he received the visiting lawmakers in his study and had an exchange of views with them on the world situation for about one hour and a half.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos announced there would be no changes in the non-coercive policy governing national population programs. She addressed the First National Population Welfare congress at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC). Speaking in behalf of the President, she said that "national development and not just a drop in the birth rate is the objective of the national population program."

November 21—

THE PRESIDENT ordered an investigation of Bukuhan Abdulhamid, the corporate auditor of the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System (MWSS) for paying an estimated P3 million in electric bills charged to the Ayala Corp. The case, which originated in 1967, came to light when a MWSS official, Col. Gerardo Quicho, stumbled into the illegal payments while looking into illegal water connections to three Ayala-owned villages.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos cited the need for closer regional efforts in the development of tourism in Asia. Speaking at the inauguration of the Asian Institute of Tourism (AIT) in Diliman, Quezon City, she said that the institute will be a base for spearheading the balanced development and professionalization of the industry in the Philippines and the rest of Asia and the Pacific area.

THE PRESIDENT ordered the arrest of persons found intimidating material witnesses in the anti-corruption cases. He ordered Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile to provide police protection of these witnesses against corrupt government officials. This would ensure their safety and protect them from threats and harassments from the unscrupulous, he said. He issued the order after receiving reports that five Rizal province residents who filed complaints against a ranking Ministry of Highways official in the province denounced the coercive tactics employed against them by the official and his bodyguard.

THE PRESIDENT has upheld the right of schools to discipline their students. In a precedent-setting decision, he directed the Ministry of Education and Culture (MEC) to dismiss an administrative case filed by Dr. and Mrs. Luis Lerma of 45 E. Rodriguez, Jr., avenue, Pasig, Metro Manila against the La Salle Greenhills High School. The Lermas had filed the case with Minister Juan Manuel with the endorsement of MEC regional officials in an effort to force La Salle to readmit their son, Jose Luis Lerma, to the second year at Greenhills.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos underscored housing and the creation of job opportunities as : the main thrust of her department to improve the people's life. She met with mayors of the Metro Manila area at the Technology Resource Center in Makati and said the initial target of building some 17,000 houses annually would generate livelihood for some 300,000 workers.

THE PRESIDENT declared that the proposal to have the interim Batasang Pambansa convene as a constituent assembly to take up amendments to the Constitution was untimely. Following his regular meeting with the Cabinet and the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA), he also ordered the transfer of the case of Arcadio Trinidad, et al., charged with illegal possession of firearms and multiple frustrated murder of Makati Mayor Nemesio Yabut, from the military tribunal to the civil court.

THE PRESIDENT released the traffic regulatory system in the metropolitan area and empowered the Metro Manila Commission to enforce all traffic ordinances and impose penalties. He issued Presidential Decree No. 1605 "Granting the Metropolitan Manila Commission Certain Powers Related to Traffic Management and Control in Metropolitan Manila, Providing Penalties and for other Purposes."

November 24—

President's Week in Review: November 27 - December 3, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 27—

THE PRESIDENT created two super groups—a special investigation team to act on corruption cases and a management audit team to streamline operations of the ministries. He said that the Ministry of the Budget would formalize the creation of the management audit group while the Ministry of Justice would formalize the organization of the special investigation group. The special investigation group, which would receive and act on charges of corruption and inefficiency involving government men, will be the forerunner of the Tanodbayan which is provided for in the Constitution.

THE PRESIDENT urged the hospital community to seek ways by which health care can be made cheaper for millions of poor people. “Medical care today, in spite of advances in medical science, has not developed to a degree that all our peoples can share its fruits and be truly rational to them,” he said in a speech read for him by Dr. Pacifico E. Marcos, chairman of the Philippine Medical Care Commission (PMCC). The President was keynote speaker at the joint 7th Regional Conference of the International Hospital Federation and the 29th Annual Convention of the Philippine Hospital Association which opened at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC).

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos called on members of the Batasang Pambansa to support fully her “humanistic” program for population development. She briefed the Batasan assemblymen headed by Speaker Querube Makalintal for three hours at the National Arts Center auditorium at Makiling, Laguna.

THE PRESIDENT ordered the Armed Forces to provide protection for state witnesses in the highways fund irregularity in Central Visayas. His directive followed reports that the suspects in the fraud who offered to turn state witnesses were threatened with bodily harm or even death.

November 28—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos said the Philippine nutrition program seeks the total development of Filipino children on the three levels of body, mind, and spirit. She spoke before the regional consultation for Asia and the Pacific on the International Year of the Child at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC). “President Marcos saw the gravity and urgency of the problem and gave the nutrition program priority despite the fact that it was an added strain on our economy, struggling in the midst of our country’s economic and energy crisis,” she said.

November 29—

THE PRESIDENT said a quiet investigation into corruption among government officials and employees is now going on in all government ministries. He said that this probe extended to the bureau and regional levels of the various ministries. He made the announcement following the arrest of an official and a businessman in connection with a P13 million fraud in the procurement of supplies in the Ministry of Education and Culture MEC. In this connection, he issued Letter of Instructions No. 774 ordering the Ministry of the Budget to withhold releases of funds for the procurement of supplies and equipment, including those of the Ministry of Defense and all military establishments to forestall further abuses in government procurement.

VISITING American congressmen were told by the President that the Philippines and America should adjust their relationships to the changing Southeast Asian situation. He added that it would be to the advantage of the US for the Philippines and other members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nation (ASEAN) to remain strong and independent. He spoke at a lunch he and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, gave in honor of the visiting lawmakers.

THE PRESIDENT ordered the release of P10 million in emergency funds to repair vital public works facilities damaged or destroyed by typhoon “Kading” and previous storms. He directed that the bulk of the outlay, P15 million, be used to restore the operational capability of the irrigation systems damaged by the typhoons. About P10 million will go to repair school buildings and another P10 million to rebuild damaged hospitals, while P5 million will go to repair public markets.

BATASANG PAMBANSA approved the P9.4-billion infrastructure bill on second reading and virtually enacted it into law. As approved, P5.8 billion was allotted for the construction of highways, railroads, ports, airports, and air navigation facilities, while P5.6 billion would be spent for irrigation, flood control, drainage facilities and water supply.

December 1—

THE PRESIDENT capped his anti-graft program by activating the Sandiganbayan, a nine-man tribunal to try criminal and civil cases involving the Anti-Graft and Corruption Practices Act and other offenses committed by public servants. Judge Manuel Pamaran, known for his “quick justice” performance in criminal cases, was appointed presiding judge of the Sandiganbayan, with Judge Bernardo Fernandez and Judge Romeo Escareal as associate judges. Together they form the firm division of the nine-man Sandiganbayan, which was created by Presidential Decree No. 1486 last June 11, under Article XIII, Section 5, of the Constitution.

THE PRESIDENT has ordered that the Ministry of Public Highways (MPH) must be consulted first before any digging permit along national roads is issued. The presidential order was issued on recommendation of the MPH Minister Baltazar Aquino as a result of various diggings on national roads, particularly in Metro Manila, and publicized verbal tussle between him and Manila Mayor Ramon Bagatsing.

ORDER of Sikatuna, rank of datu, was conferred by the President on Ambassador Aquil of Saudi Arabia for his “long and exemplary service in the field of international relations.” The Arabian envoy completed a six-year tour of duty in Manila, twice the normal length of tour of duty of a chief of mission. The President cited his meritorious effort to strengthen relations between the two countries to promote greater understanding between the Filipinos and Arabians through mutually beneficial undertakings.

THE PRESIDENT appointed former Supreme Court Justice Salvador Esguerra chairman of the Tanodbayan, patterned after Europe’s ombudsman, to receive and investigate complaints related to public office. His appointment came 24 hours after the President made Judge Manuel Pamaran the presiding judge of the Sandiganbayan, a court created to try graft cases.

THE PRESIDENT turned in his best score in years—a give under par 30 for nine holes—when he played at the Manila Golf Club course in Makati, Metro Manila. Taking a break from his official chores, the President overcame the tough Manila course with a game described as “fantastic” by an aide. Only the onset of darkness stopped the President from going through the 18-hole course. He made five birdies and four pars for the nine holes.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos moved to reconcile the various tribal groups in the North to hasten the development of the region. Six months ago, the President conferred with regional officials in Baguio City to find ways of settling tribal disputes in the Mountain province and Kalinga-Apayao. The First Lady, after meeting tribal leaders in Baguio City, urged them to unite so that the inhabitants of the region could benefit from the resulting peace and prosperity that will follow. She made the appeal at the close of the three-day Grand Caño ’78, a festival of Igorot culture, held at the Burnham Park of Baguio City.

President's Week in Review: December 4-10, 1978

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 4—

THE PRESIDENT instructed the Judge Advocate General of the Armed Forces and the Ministry of National Defense to refer to the civil courts all criminal cases still in their hands and awaiting to be filed. In Letter of Instructions No. 772 which he issued in line with the announced policy to restore normal democratic processes in the country, he said that henceforth criminal cases should no longer be filed with the military commission. Also contained in the said letter of instructions are the following specific instructions to the MND, MOJ and all other government agencies concerned: 1) No arrest, search and seizure order (ASSO) shall be issued under the emergency powers without prior clearance of the President; 2) All investigations shall be conducted in strict observance of constitutional processes, recognizing the rights of the accused, respondents and witnesses; and 3) These investigations "shall be done, quietly, without fanfare and undue publicity."

December 5—

THE PRESIDENT asked the members of the Batasang Pambansa to serve as "watchdogs" of government infrastructure spending to help stop graft and corruption in government projects. He made the plea during a four-hour caucus of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) members of the Batasan at Malacanang.

DURING the same meeting, the President announced that the elections of the Members of the legislative councils in Region 9 and 12 will be held either in May or June next year. The election will formally organize the setting up of autonomous governments in the two regions in the South in accordance with the Tripoli Agreements reached by the President and Libyan President Moammar Khadaffy in December 1976.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos risked businessmen to heighten their sense of social responsibility—in other words, they should look not only at profits but also how they can improve the quality of life of the people. She urged businessmen and the top government officials participating in the 4th national business conference to draw up workable plans of action to improve the economic conditions and distribute their benefits more equitably to Filipinos. The President, she added, has been advocating for an equitable distribution of resources and wealth, stressing his efforts for the "total development" of man.

PHILIPPINE exports for the first 10 months of the year totalled $2.25 billion, representing a 5.77 per cent increase over the $2.12 billion recorded during the same period last year, according to a preliminary report of the Central Bank. Top 10 exports contributed $1.8 billion even as the earnings of some leading commodities declined because of price fluctuations in the world market. Coconut products led the country's exports for the 10-month period with $581.35 million, a 6 per cent increase over 1977 figures.

THE PRESIDENT said that before New Year's Day, the American and Philippine governments would come out with a definite amount that America would pay as rental for the use of its military bases here. The military panels of the two governments are, exchanging notes on this matter, he said. He would not say how much the Philippines was asking, but earlier reports stated that the Philippines recently turned down an American offer of $1 billion for a five-year period during the protracted talks on a new bases agreement. Up to now, America does not pay any cash rental for its use of the bases here. However, it gives military aid to the Philippines. The President issued the announcement during an interview with newsmen at his Sta. Rita beach house in Agoo, La Union.

THE PRESIDENT, accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, arrived at Agoo, La Union to attend the inauguration of the new Agoo parish church which features an octagonal dome and a three-tiered belfry. The First Couple attended a high mass celebrated by Sebastian Cardinal Baggio, prefect of the Vatican Congregation of Bishops and head of emigration and tourism in Rome.

THE PRESIDENT signed into law one more cabinet bill and five parliamentary bills enacted by the Batasang Pambansa before it adjourned for a 30-day recess. This brought to 11 the total number of Batasan approved bills signed by the President into law from the time the assembly convened last June 12. It does not include the P9.4-billion infrastructure bill. Approved into law and now denominated as “Batas Pambansa” were the following measures: 1) Batas Pambansa Blg. 8 (formerly Cabinet Bill No. 14) defining the metric system and its units and providing for its implementation and for other purposes; 2) Batas Pambansa Blg. 6 (formerly Parliamentary Bill No. 61) reducing the penalty for illegal possession of bladed, pointed or blunt weapons, and for other purposes, amending Presidential Decree No. 9; 3) Batas Pambansa Blg. 7 (formerly Parliamentary Bill No. 18) separating the sub-province of Aurora from the province of Quezon; 4) Batas Pambansa Blg. 9 (formerly Parliamentary Bill No. 281) amending Section 13 of PD 97 and regulating the practice of the marine profession in the Philippines by prescribing a uniform “unlimited” license for all deck officers, except patrons; 5) Batas Pambansa Blg. 10 (formerly Parliamentary Bill No. 28) changing the name of the municipality of Dao, Antique to Tobias Former; and 6) Batas Pambansa Blg. 11 (formerly Parliamentary Bill No. 177) creating the municipality of San Jorge, Samar. Signed into law earlier were the 1979 General Appropriations Act and tax laws on cigarettes, liquors and hotels.

December 9—

THE PRESIDENT announced the appointment of Court of Appeals Justice Pacifico de Castro and Ameurfina Herrera to the Supreme Court, thereby bringing the strength of the 15-seat high court to 11. The President said he would keep on making new appointments at a fast clip to fill the many vacancies in both the appellate court and the Supreme Court.

THE PRESIDENT congratulated the leaders of the People’s Republic of China for having decided to modernize as well as develop and expand their trade relations with other nations of the world. The occasion was a call on the First Couple in Baguio City of PROC Ministry of Foreign Trade officials headed by Minister and Mrs. Li Chiang who are here on a weeklong visit to find out, they said, what they can learn from the Philippines that will help their country in its efforts at modernization.

THE PRESIDENT ordered the reshuffle of all the 13 public highways regional directors in the country to prevent their fraternizing with private contractors. In support of this directive, he also removed from regional directors the authority to disburse funds.

THE PRESIDENT declared that the strength of the nation is in the barangays during graduation rites for 6,000 leaders from 800 barangays of Batangas who completed a five-day barangay executive officers' training course aimed at instilling the spirit of self-reliance among the people. The President, in his speech, told the leaders to assist the government in the systematic delivery of basic needs of the people, particularly in the rural communities.

THE PRESIDENT, in a move to stop the upsurge of crime in Metro Manila, ordered the immediate hiring of 1,575 more men for the four police districts in the area and the training of thousands of barangay volunteers to help track down criminals. He also announced that he will soon fill up vacant courts to expedite pending cases, particularly those involving serious crimes. Another presidential directive was the tightening of security in the national penitentiary and rehabilitation centers to prevent escapes which has been found to be one of the reasons for the uptrend in criminal incidents. During a meeting with top law officers and mayors at Malacañang, the President said the new recruits who will beef up the police forces will be civilian employees to be drawn from the barangay tanod and paid P15 a day on a casual basis. The local governments, and if necessary, the national government, will provide the funds for their pay.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, who has become an instant hit in the Austrian press, met with the president of parliament while a cabinet team discussed possible economic projects with Austrian financiers. On the third day of her visit in Vienna, she spent more than an hour exchanging impressions on parliamentary work with the presiding officer of the Austrian parliament, Dr. Anton Benja.

THE PRESIDENT has ordered the Ministry of Agriculture to meet with rice farmers to fix a new floor price for palay which the government at present buys at P55 a cavan. The new floor plan will cushion the impact on farmers' income of forthcoming increases in gasoline, and other goods and services and wages,

AUSTRIAN financiers offered credit facilities to the Philippine delegation headed by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, for possible economic projects, envisioned in their newly signed trade agreement. Members of the cabinet with the party of Mrs. Marcos met for the second straight day with a group of Austrian businessmen, industrialists and bankers to discuss implementing details of the trade accord signed by the two countries.

THE PRESIDENT attended the graduation of his son, 2nd Lt. Ferdinand (Bong Bong) R. Marcos Jr., in a jungle warfare and mountain operation course. In his brief remarks during the ceremony, the President said the course is a part of the security plan of the Armed Forces of the Philippines and is intended not only for regular troops but also for the reserve force. Six other officers and 85 enlisted men graduated with Bong Bong, while two other officers and 26 enlisted men were made honorary graduates.

February 24—

DEFENSE Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has cautioned military personnel stationed in Kalinga-Apayao against committing any form of abuse towards tribal minorities in that region. Speaking during an unscheduled inspection trip at the military camp, in Tabuk, Kalinga-Apayao, Minister Enrile said erring personnel will be dealt with accordingly and dismissed from the service "if necessary."

February 25—

THE PRESIDENT disclosed government plans to keep the prices of essential commodities down by importing cheaper goods and decontrolling prices of certain items. He made the disclosure in an interview at Fort Del Pilar where he witnessed the turnover of the corps command of this year's graduating class of the Philippine Military Academy to the junior class; He also said he will stop the exportation of cement in a day or two to make more of the commodity available locally. However, he said he would encourage cement producers to operate at full capacity by allowing cement to seek its own price level in the free market.

March 12—

THE PRESIDENT led top government officials in welcoming the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos from her 23-day mission abroad which took her to Rome, Austria, Bavaria in West Germany and to Morocco. In an interview, the President said the First Lady's principal objective was to gain the support of as many influential Islamic leaders as possible and to request the good offices Of King Hassan II to help the Philippines' efforts to resolve the problems in the South. He added that his request for the good offices of Morocco was well received.

CERTAIN betting games prohibited under the recently issued Presidential Decree No. 1602 are now allowed. Domino, bingo, kuaho, panggingge, and mahjong, if played as parlor games or for home entertainment are now permitted provided they are not conducted in habitual gambling places and the betting does not defeat the intention of the decree. Poker, which the Supreme Court had ruled as a game of skill and which was included in the decree, was also allowed on condition that five-card stud is not dealt.

March 13—

THE PRESIDENT stressed the government's determination to "spare no expense nor effort to eradicate drug abuse." He told members of the International Drug Enforcement Association (IDEA) who called on him at Malacañang that all countries should support plans, operations and efforts of any organization in combatting drug trafficking and drug abuse. The IDEA members are currently holding a four-day meeting here to prevent the proliferation of drug abuse and to arrest the international traffic in drugs through international cooperation.

THE PRESIDENT increased the minimum daily wage by P2—or to P13 for non-agricultural workers in Metro Manila. He signed Presidential Decree No. 1614 in the presence of representatives of the national tripartite conference on wages, incomes and prices held in Tagaytay City recently. He also issued Letter of Instructions No. 829 to protect both labor and industry from the effects of the changes incorporated in the said decree. The new minimum wage levels under PD 1614 effective April 1 are: 1) Non-agricultural workers in Metro Manila—P13; 2) Non-agricultural workers outside Metro Manila—P12; 3) Plantation agricultural workers—P10; 4) Non-plantation agricultural workers—P9.

ENERGY and military authorities were directed by the President to stop hoarding and unauthorized rationing of petroleum products, particularly gasoline. His instructions were relayed to Energy Minister Geronimo Z. Velasco and PC chief Maj. Gen. Fidel Ramos, who called the heads of the five local oil companies to an emergency meeting immediately after he received the instructions.

MALACAÑANG announced the designation of Deputy Justice Minister Catalino Macaraig Jr. as acting minister of justice. The post has been vacant since January 17 when former Justice Minister Vicente Abad Santos was sworn into office as associate justice of the Supreme Court. The announcement said Macaraig's designation signed by the President was retroactive to January 17, 1979.

March 15—

THE PRESIDENT said that he is finalizing plans and programs for the production of "alcogas" as another fuel for the transportation industry. He told newsmen in an interview at the site of the BLISS project in Sta. Cruz, Makati, that the plans call for the production of millions of gallons of alcohol directly from sugarcane juice, without passing the molasses and refinery stage, as well as from cassava and other starchy products. He said the government is in the process of procuring the necessary machinery and looking into the possibility of converting existing sugar refineries into “alcogas” production. Once this program is realized, “alcogas” will constitute ten to 15 per cent of all gas consumption for all kinds of transportation except for high-performance machines like airplanes, the President said.

DURING the same interview, the President said the government would spend P800 million to P1 billion this year “to bring up the salaries of government officers and employees to a level similar to that of the private sector.” He said that not only will government pay increase, but there would also be instituted the principle of “equal work-equal pay and standardization so that no favorites can get higher pay for less work. This is the general idea, to establish a level on both the private sector and the government,” he said.

EXACTLY 187 four-story apartment houses for poor families will have been constructed in Metro Manila by the end of June, the President said. Speaking at the ground-breaking rites in Paco and Muntinlupa, Metro Manila where two of the housing projects will rise, he said that initial funding of P100 million for the housing projects came from funds raised under Presidential Decree No. 1630 which calls for collection of the funds by the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS) and the Social Security System (SSS). He was accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos.

THE PRESIDENT told an American senator that housing is only a part of the Bagong Lipunan Improvement Sites and Services (BLISS) program which, he said, aims to upgrade community life. “We are creating a community in which everybody will be self-sufficient,” he told visiting Sen. Park Matsunaga of Hawaii. The American solon congratulated the President for launching the BLISS program. He was accompanied by US Ambassador Richard W. Murphy.

March 17—

THE PRESIDENT directed all government offices and agencies to effect an additional compulsory savings of at least 5 per cent of their current operating expenditures in the face of inevitable fuel price increases. Under Letter of Instructions No. 828, he said the 5 per cent is in addition to cuts earlier imposed totalling 10 per cent as part of the fiscal restraint adopted by the administration. Exempted from the coverage of the LOI are hospitals and national schools. These institutions, however, are required to adopt economy measures so as to maximize the effective use of public funds.

March 18—

PHILIPPINE Virginia Tobacco Administration (PVTA) signed recently an agreement with the Central Bank to establish a lending program which will provide sufficient funds for tobacco trading in the four Ilocos provinces. About 100,000 leaf farmers are expected to benefit from the program. Under the agreement, the PVTA will deposit with the Central Bank P50 million from its corporate funds to set up the Virginia Tobacco Trading Loan Fund for the purpose of providing funds for lending to trading centers, exporters and cigarette manufacturers which buy the produce of tobacco farmers. The President, who presided over the signing rites, said the agreement will help not only the traders, buyers and manufacturers but also the government in monitoring and bringing about a more stable system of trading.

President's Week in Review: March 19-25, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 19—

THE PRESIDENT urged the expansion of the manpower development program to train more out-of-school youths and make it more relevant to present-day needs. Speaking at the 10th anniversary of the National Manpower and Youth Council and the inauguration of its administration building in Taguig, he said that although the government started the program, it was the primary aim for the private sector to take over the training of personnel. He said that since industries will ultimately take over the program, there was no need to construct permanent structures for the purpose.

US DEFENSE Assistant Secretary Michael Armacost called on the President at Malacañang. He arrived in the course of a tour of ASEAN countries and Japan. He was accompanied during his courtesy call by Don Toussaint, US embassy charge d'affaires.

March 20—

THE PRESIDENT urged the establishment of an international rice agreement to insure, a stable world food supply at reasonable prices. The mechanism is designed to accumulate rice-stocks during periods of oversupply so that it can be availed of during times of scarcity. He made his proposal in his keynote address that opened the 22nd session of the inter-government group on rice of the Food and Agricultural Organization at the Philippine International Convention Center.

March 21—

THE PRESIDENT inaugurated the Nido Oil Complex in Palawan with the assurance that the private sector will continue to assume the principal role in petroleum development and production. Exalting over the success of Filipino and foreign service contractors in opening the first two productive wells in the country, he said this policy will be maintained to accelerate private participation in oil exploration efforts. He delivered his remarks after he and the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos unveiled a commemorative marker in Malacañang's Maharlika Hall. They were assisted by Energy Minister and Mrs. Geronimo Z. Velasco and Mrs. Robert V. Sellers, chairman of the board of the City Service Co., the service contractor.

THE PRESIDENT, in his first report to the Batasang Pambansa this year, said that there might be an average increase of 23 per cent in the cost of petroleum products. The expected increases would raise the prices of premium gasoline from P1.81 to P2.23 per liter; regular gas from P1.66 to P1.87; diesel oil from P1.21 to P1.40 and kerosene from P1.12 to P1.30. However, he assured the Batasan that measures are being taken to offset the effects on the people of the increase, in prices. In this connection, he is issuing 10 more directives to cope with rising prices caused by increased oil costs, he added.

March 22—

THE PRESIDENT pledged to strengthen the Philippine Army to achieve a greater defense capability in times of emergency. Accompanied by the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos, he addressed the 82nd anniversary of the Philippine Army at Fort Bonifacio during which he commended the army for its ability to carry out the 10-year revitalization program, the first years of which is concentrated on coping with, internal and the last five years with external security.

March 23—

ECONOMIC Planning Minister Gerardo P. Sicat said government employes and industrial workers will get salary increases starting April 1 this year. He said the government has allotted not less than P500 million for the pay increase of government workers. The amount is expected to go up because the figure was only a result of an earlier preliminary study. He said the salary increase is designed to enable government employes to cope with higher costs of living as a result of the oil price increases. He, however, reported that the cabinet has not made up its mind on whether to give government employes 13th month salary bonus.

March 24—

THE PRESIDENT warned the nation that he will order the arrest of the detractors of his administration if they will return to their pre-martial law activities. He issued the warning in a speech before some 2,000 local and barangay leaders at the Philippine International Convention Center. He said that he has received reports that elements responsible for the disorders of pre-martial law days are again taking advantage of the present economic crisis to foment political unrest.

March 25—

CENTRAL Bank Governor Gregorio Licaros said the CB will do its utmost this year to help small and medium-scale enterprises that are export-oriented to obtain cheap credits from banks to finance their export activities. He also said the CB will fully use its resources and policy tools to boost domestic production, particularly of agriculture products, and help contain inflation in the light of the recent price adjustments carried out by the government.

President's Week in Review: March 26 - April 1, 1979

President's Week in Review: April 2-8, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 2—

THE PRESIDENT issued a proclamation setting the date of the election for the Sangguniang Pampook or regional assemblies in Regions 9 and 12 on May 7. With the issuance of Proclamation No. 1835, about two million Christians and Filipino voters in the two Mindanao regions will elect 21 members of the assemblies. Seventeen of these regional representatives will be elected at large and five will serve as sectoral representatives of the youth, agricultural workers, non-agricultural workers and professionals. However, the President will appoint five more representatives whenever in his judgment any other sector is not properly represented in the assembly. The proclamation set the campaign period from April 5 to May 5 and the deadline for the filing of the certificate of candidacy not later than April 12.

THE PRESIDENT received top officers of the American Society of Association Executives who are here to survey trade possibilities and to determine if facilities are adequate for bringing in more of their group. The group's chairman, S. L. Goldsmith, Jr., president of the Aluminum Association, observed that the President "has been incredibly successful in raising the standard of living of the Filipino people." The President assured him the Philippines has deep reservoir of goodwill for the Americans and "it would be good for both the Philippines and the United States if more Americans would come to see the country at first hand."

THE PRESIDENT upgraded the government pay scale from three to six ranges, which is equivalent to five to 30 percent depending upon the classification of the position. It will call for an additional outlay of P231 million for the eight-month period from May 1 to Dec. 31. The President stressed the need to adjust salaries of government workers in view of increases in cost of living and to keep abreast the pay level of 208,460 officials and employees of the national government with the private sector.

GOVERNMENT Service Insurance System (GSIS) announced a 16 percent increase in assets despite full implementation of Presidential Decree No. 1146 which increased benefits and provided new ones to over one million members and pensioners. Roman A. Cruz, Jr., GSIS president and general manager, reported that the system's assets reached P7 8 billion on December 31, 1978, up by P1.082 billion (16 percent) over the December 1977 total of P6.751 billion. Likewise, net income rose up by P29.7 million or 18.18 percent, from P163.4 million in 1977 to P1 93.1 million in 1978. The total gross income of GSIS in 1978 stood at P1 .598 billion, up by sixteen percent over the 1977 figures of P1,378.5 million.

THE PRESIDENT ordered a study made of salary plans for the judiciary, commission on elections and some executive offices in line with a policy to achieve uniform salary levels in all agencies of the government. He also directed a study of salary levels in all agencies of the government, including government controlled corporations to facilitate the formulation of recommendations on salary adjustments, allowances and fringe benefits called for by current economic conditions. He signed Letter of Instructions No. 840 directing Budget Minister Jaime C. Laya to make the studies on the judiciary, the foreign service, including service attaches, and uniformed personnel of the Armed Forces and the police.

April 5—

THE PRESIDENT warned the opposition he will never tolerate the use of violence to grab power in government. He issued the warning before mayors and barangay leaders in Region VII (Central Visayas) who gathered at the gymnasium of the University of San Carlos in Cebu City. He noted that some members of the opposition were once again undertaking divisive activities, abetting violence and preaching subversive activities to grab power of government.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos, hours later before the same audience, expressed hopes that BLISS will be more successful in Cebu than in Metro Manila. She anchored her optimism on the full support given by local leaders in pursuing BLISS projects. She told her audience that everybody will be needed in the development projects.

April 6—

THE PRESIDENT authorized the release of P15 million to help local governments increase teachers' salaries in local schools. Through Letter of Implementation No. 82, the amount would be allotted among the local schools in accordance with the guidelines and rules to be evolved by the joint commission on local government personnel administration. The salary adjustments will be effective on May 1.

THE PRESIDENT told political leaders in Central Visayas he would support to the hilt whoever becomes governor of Cebu province. At the same time, he told local leaders, from the provincial to barangay levels, he would replace those found wanting or remiss in their duties. He spoke before mayors and barangay officials who met him after he delivered his keynote speech to open a three-day convention of some 2,000 lawyers and jurists from all over the country at the University of San Carlos in Cebu City.

ACTING BIR Commissioner Efren Plana announced the approval and implementation of revenue regulations 279, reducing the withholding tax rates of employees by an average of 15 percent. The new rates would benefit a total of 935,511 wage earners and would minimize administrative work of both employers and the government.

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, called for unity to enable the country to surmount the serious problems it faces. "We must unite," he said. "Our country is facing serious dangers and if we are divided, we will have no strength, will be powerless. But if we are welded together—the people in government and those governed—then we can surmount all difficulties." The First Couple made the plea during the Pagkakaisa Community Relations Day ceremony held at the Quezon Memorial circle in Quezon City.

THE PRESIDENT set aside P32 million as subsidy for the government's fertilizer program. The allotment, he said, was intended to cushion the effects of the fertilizer price adjustments on the country's farmers. Budget Minister Jaime C. Laya said the fertilizer and pesticide authority approved a 18.4 percent increase in imported grades (urea, ammosul, and potash) and 26.7 percent increase in locally produced grades (complex and complete).

VARIOUS front organizations were being formed throughout the country, but principally in Metro Manila, the President said. He made the remark to Malacañang newsmen following his four-and-a-half hour meeting with various Armed Forces of the Philippines commanders at AFP headquarters at Camp Aguinaldo, where he pressed for a compulsory reduction of military expenditures by 15 percent. Asked if he could identify any particular group creating trouble in Metro Manila, he said "they are the same old groups, with a few new faces but the same old groups." He warned that the law would be applied inexorably to meet violence.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos and GSIS President and General Manager Roman A. Cruz, Jr., signed a memorandum agreement formalizing the insurance coverage of some 250,000 members of the barangay community brigades. The agreement makes effective Presidential Decree No. 1232 which extends life, disability, and accident insurance to BOB members. The signing was witnessed by the President during the Community Relations Day rites at the Quezon Memorial circle in Quezon City.

THE PRESIDENT went on a two-day retreat aboard the RPS Mount Samat under the guidance of the retreat master of the Society of Jesus and chief of the chaplain services of the Armed Forces of the Philippines. He spent the day in private meditation, prayers and spiritual exercises, together with five cabinet members and some personal friends.

President's Week in Review: April 9-15, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 9—

THE PRESIDENT designated the period from June 1, 1979, to May 31, 1980, for the annual educational and fund campaign of the United Way Philippines. He also commended the UWP program on rural development supportive of the declaration of 1979 as the "Year of the Common Man."

April 10—

MINISTRY of Labor announced that covered employees are entitled to 100 per cent of their basic wage even if they do not report for work on Maundy Thursday (April 12) and Good Friday (April 13), both regular holidays. Labor Standards Director Antonio Nuesa said employees who absent themselves from work on the day immediately preceding the first holiday of the successive holidays like Maundy Thursday and Good Friday are not entitled to a holiday pay. Under the Labor Code, employees who work on any regular holiday should be paid at least 200 per cent of their regular daily wage.

COMMISSION on Elections set the ceilings on campaign expenses for Regions 9 and 12. Under the ruling, a political party or group participating in the May 7 election may spend 50 centavos for every voter, while a candidate may spend up to P24,000, the one-year salary of a representative to the regional legislative assembly, for the entire election campaign. These limits will include any expenses that may be incurred by any political party or group or any candidate in connection with the regional balloting. To insure that expenses are kept within these limits, the Comelec requires political parties or groups and candidates to submit periodically to its regional directors in the election areas reports on their expenditures.

April 11—

THE PRESIDENT, through Proclamation No. 1836-A, reset the dead line for the filing of certificates of candidacy in the May 7 Sangguniang Pampook elections in Regions 9 and 12 to April 30. The April deadline is for candidates of political parties. Independent candidates may file their candidacies up to May 6, the day before the election. The new deadline would allow political parties who have already nominated candidates to alter or withdraw them and replace them with new candidates, or to complete their tickets.

April 12—

THE PRESIDENT and his children—Imee, Bongbong, and Irene—made the traditional "visita iglesia" at the basilica of Our Lady of Charity in Agoo, La Union. The First Lady, who was indisposed, was not with them.

April 13—

THE PRESIDENT and his family spent Good Friday quietly at Santa Rita beach house at barangay Paratong in Agoo, La Union. They did not receive any callers.

THE PRESIDENT took a direct hand in the Halsema national road irregularities in Benguet province and ordered the immediate suspension of all officials involved in the case. His order to suspend those involved in the Benguet highways racket came after he was informed that the accused Officials were still holding office or reporting to work despite the filing of anti-graft charges against them by the Tanodbayan. The Benguet highway mess involved an alleged ghost project in Atok where 5,500 cubic meters of aggregate materials worth P99,990.

April 14—

THE PRESIDENT called on all Filipinos to muster the season's spirit of hope and indomitable will to help them triumph over the economic hardships and difficulties now besetting the country. "These hardships and difficulties are neither overwhelming nor insuperable nor unprecedented in scale," he said in his Easter Message. New and more measures have been formulated and implemented by the government to deal with the problems, he assured the nation.

THE PRESIDENT ordered the restructuring of the budget outlays of two ministries to avoid the improper use of funds. He issued the directive citing instances of the improper use of funds in the highways and education ministries. He said local and national officials were involved in this. A case in point, he said, is the use of road maintenance funds to build new roads resulting in the deterioration of some of the road networks in the country. In the case of the Ministry of Education and Culture, he said vocational schools in the provinces are not getting the proper support from the ministry.

THE PRESIDENT cancelled his trips to Laoag to return to Manila to tackle the problem of rising prices and shortages of prime items like diesel fuel, cement, and canned fish. He told Malacañang reporters that Energy Minister Geronimo Velasco had assured him there would be enough diesel for priority activities and there would be no need for rationing. He said he would also look into the legality of a wildcat sit-down strike by workers in some industries, particularly the hotel industry. He took the occasion to call on both labor and management not to use the present crisis of shortages, rising prices, and the threat of unemployment to attain their own selfish objectives.

THE PRESIDENT, in an interview with members of the Malacañang press corps, disclosed that Philippine-based officials of the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF) have indicated willingness to participate in the May 7 election in Regions 9 and 12. Asked if he had received any reaction from Nur Misuari and Hasim Salamat, MNLF leaders-in-exile, on the Chief Executive's invitation to them to return home and participate in the regional election in the South, he said he did not get the words directly from Misuari and Salamat but "their Philippine-based officials have indicated a willingness to participate in the elections." Asked if he would use his appointing-power in case they (MNLF leaders) would like to be appointed by him to sit in the executive committee of the legislative council, the President answered: "Yes, this is a part of the plan. This is one of the reasons the Batasan Pambansa agreed to the proposal that five, in addition to the 17 elective members of the legislative council, be appointed by the President. This is the basic purpose—to give representation to the secessionists, if necessary."

THE PRESIDENT has ordered the release of P13,750,000 for various infrastructure projects in the Mountain Province. According to Mountain Province Assemblyman Victor Domingues, who helped follow-up the release of the amount from the Ministry of Public Highways, the funds were broken down as follows: Construction of new barangay roads, P3,500,000; construction of the Barlig-Natonin-Paracelis-Cudal road, P2,542,000; construction of new barangay health clinics, P486,000; construction of new school buildings, P1,335,000; repair of damaged school facilities, P1,160,000; funds for Various irrigation projects, P1,300,000; and Agoyo river control along the Chico river, P500,000.

MORE THAN P2 million was ordered released by the President to implement three cadastral projects in Central Luzon in an effort to spur the agro-industrial development of the region. According to Lands Director Ramon N. Casanova the project will benefit about 20,000 lot claimants.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 16—

THE PRESIDENT witnessed the signing of an agreement under which Kuwait will sell to the Philippines close to one million tons of fuel oil annually for three years. This is equivalent to 16,000 barrels a day. Energy Minister Geronimo Z. Velasco and Chairman Ahmed Mutair of the Kuwait National Petroleum Corp. finalized the agreement between the two countries.

ENERGY Minister Geronimo Z. Velasco, during the same occasion, said the diesel supply situation is under control and that the government is taking steps to prevent a crisis. He said the state-owned Petrophil had been able to secure 65,000 barrels of diesel fuel. Caltex will also bring in about 150,000 barrels of diesel. These new imports, plus the country's inventory of the product may reach 23 days' supply level by the end of April, will help ease the temporary shortage of diesel fuel in the market, he said.

DEPUTY Foreign Minister Manuel Collantes stressed in his speech-before the Makati Rotary Club that the fifth session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) scheduled in Manila next month will try to revise international economic relations in the face of impending economic crises. He said the acceleration of economic development everywhere in the world in the wake of economic difficulties will dominate the UNCTAD discussions. In the process, he added, the conference will find solutions to these problems.

DEPUTY Social Services Minister Sylvia P. Montes called, on delegates to the 6th Asia-Pacific Youth Forum "to further strengthen the ties and promote friendly relations among the people of the region." She said the 300 delegates can make a plan to achieve regional cooperation by discussing the economic aspects of cooperation which would be submitted to the economic planners of their respective countries. Speaking on the out-of-school-youth development program in the country, she said the program started by the government under the integrated social welfare program focuses on the youth and children has greatly aided them in achieving self-reliance and self-realization.

THE PRESIDENT issued several directives to bring down and stabilize the prices of prime commodities and control adjustments in the prices of items removed from price control. In a meeting with Energy Minister Geronimo Velasco, Economic Planning Minister Gerardo P. Sicat, Deputy Trade Minister Vicente Valdepeñas Jr. and Animal Industry Director Salvador Escudero III, the President, among others: 1) Ordered the flooding of the market, if necessary, with consumer items the prices of which should not exceed reasonable levels; 2) Told the Ministry of Trade to place back under price control items that go beyond the reach of the masses "if all other options fail;" 3) Directed the Philippine Navy to ferry excess cement from the Visayas and Mindanao to ease the cement shortage in Metro Manila; 4) Ordered the acceleration of the lowering of tariffs on food items; and 5) Told the Ministry of Energy to set up plants for the processing of liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) from natural gas imported from Indonesia and other sources. These directives were issued in reaction to reports that prices of vital commodities had risen beyond expected levels, the President said.

ROMAN A. Cruz, Jr., chairman and president of the Philippine airlines, accused the developed countries, particularly the United States and Australia, of seeking to coerce Third World nations into accepting their decisions on the airline fares issue. Cruz, who is also president of the International Air Transport Association, made this charge in his keynote address at the 28th annual conference of the Pacific Area Travel Association in Seoul. He said that "the bigger nations should keep in mind that in a global community of countries and airlines whose philosophies and goals are as diverse as their interests, one should not impose, one's ideology and expect this to resolve issues."

CHIEF Justice Fred Ruiz Castro died after a heart attack aboard a KLM plane 80 minutes before it landed at the New Delhi airport. The 13th chief justice of the highest court, Chief Justice Castro, who would be 65 on Sept. 2 this year, is the first to die in office. Accompanied by his wife Natividad Hizon and 17-year-old daughter Meli-Sande, Chief Justice Castro flew to New Delhi to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of Rajasthan and honorary membership in the Indian Society of International Law and the Indian Council for Cultural Relations. From India, he was to go on an official trip to China as guest of the Chinese Institute of Foreign Relations.

April 21—

THE PRESIDENT, his cabinet and members of the foreign diplomatic corps, went to Bataan for the joint commemoration of the fall of Bataan, Corregidor and Bessang Pass, and the surrender of Japanese forces on Mt. Samat. Earlier in the day, the President and his guests witnessed the delivery of the first 250,000 barrels of oil from the Nido well. He also turned the symbolic switch to inaugurate the Agus II hydroelectric project in Lanao del Sur.

April 22—

FOREIGN Minister Carlos P. Romulo has asked Japan to allow the entry of more Philippine exports to balance the lopsided trade relations between the two countries. Romulo, who is now on an official trip to Japan, made the appeal during a two-hour meeting with Japanese Foreign Minister Sunao Sonoda. The Philippines' deficit in her trade with Japan rose by 88 percent last year, from $248.4 million in 1977 to $466.7 million. Romulo and Sonoda also discussed developments in the region, the North-South problems, as well as bilateral issues related to energy, trade cooperation, development cooperation, insurance and immigration problems.

Official Week in Review: April 23 – April 29, 1979

April 23—

THE PRESIDENT directed that industrial concerns in Metro Manila and selected industries in the provinces be given priority in power service allocation. This policy was laid by the President at a meeting with industry and energy officials at Malacañang during which he also took steps to ease power shortage in Luzon particularly in Metro Manila.

WORLD Bank officials assured the President they would support the government's Bagong Lipunan Improvement of Sites and Services (BLISS) and the Zonal Improvement Programs (ZIP). Those who called on the President at Malacañang were the World Bank urban mission headed by Edward Jaycox, director of the urban sector, and David Williams, head of the bank's appraisal mission for the Third Urban Loan. The bank sent them to appraise the projects to be funded by the $60-million loan the Philippines is negotiating with it.

THE PRESIDENT witnessed a demonstration of the United States Air Force's E-3A Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) at the Manila International Airport. The unusual aircraft, developed by the USAF, is a modified Boeing 707 packed with computers, navigational and communications equipment and a notably superior radar, according to the USAF. The USAF pointed out that the system "represents the most modern methods and equipment for surveillance, command and control."

THE PRESIDENT called upon the members of the Cabinet to help insure the success of the Fifth United Nations Conference on Trade and Development set from May 7 to June 1 in Manila. He stressed the importance of the conference in view of the high-level representations from the 167 participating countries during a Cabinet meeting in Malacañang. Upon the suggestion of the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos, the President asked the Cabinet members to participate in the preparations.

April 25—

THE PRESIDENT called for a barangay security network to prevent the infiltration of the grassroots by subversive elements. He also redefined the role of the barangay in the New Society and pledged the government's continued support for their activities. His statement was prompted by a pledge of loyalty by Mrs. Aurora Panlilio, president of the Metro Manila Katipunan ng mga Barangay, on behalf of the organization. Every Metro Manila resident should know beforehand what the government expects of him because such knowledge would be helpful to him in an emergency, the President added.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos was named by the President chairman of the 45-man delegation to the UNCTAD V conference which starts May 7. Named co-chairman was Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo while Finance Minister Cesar Virata was named vice chairman, Trade Minister Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr., was designated co-vice chairman.

THE PRESIDENT said "the country has lost a social diversionary" with the death of the late Chief Justice Fred Ruiz Castro of the Supreme Court. In necrological rites at the Manila Cathedral, he said the late Chief Justice "was no mere brilliant craftsman of the law. He was mindful of the spirit of the strict letter of the law, weighing the social facts with the legal norms, situating the law properly within the framework of human reality." The late Chief Justice succumbed to a heart attack last April 20 on board a KLM plane about 30 minutes before landing at the New Delhi airport. He was to receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree and memberships from various associations in India. He was the 13th chief justice of the high tribunal and the first to die in office.

April 26—

THE PRESIDENT declared the province of Leyte in a state of calamity and ordered the immediate release of P4.5 million for the repair of its roads destroyed by Typhoon "Bebeng." The provincial military and civil officials recommended this move to the President, although they admitted that the situation was under the effective control of the regional disaster control center.

April 27—

THE PRESIDENT took up with the U.S. Ambassador Dick Clark, coordinator for refugee affairs, the scheduled conference on refugees in Jakarta, Indonesia, on May 15 to 16. The Philippines and Indonesia have offered an island to serve as temporary haven for Vietnamese refugees and act as a processing center. Ambassador Clark conveyed to the President the willingness of the United States government to increase the number of refugees entering the United States. The President, in turn, made it clear that the Philippine government was willing to work with other nations to help resolve the international refugee problems.

April 28—

COMMISSION on Election (Comelec) decided to allow rebels and evacuees in the Mindanao area autonomy to register even on election day, May 7. This was contained in a resolution which provides that any rebel or evacuee, who is a qualified voter, may register personally on election day in any special voting center to be established exclusively for them in specified areas. The poll body warned it will prosecute a registered voter who registers again in any of the special voting centers. Double registration is an election offense severely penalized under the new Election Code.

April 29—

THE PRESIDENT laid the cornerstone of the P500-million Marbella Club (Manila) at Caylabne, Ternate, Cavite. In brief remarks during the luncheon, the President stresses the relevance and vital importance of tourism in maintaining the stability and security of the country.

President's Week in Review: April 30 - May 6, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 30—

THE PRESIDENT took up arrangements with Japanese Ambassador Kiyoshiza Mikanagi for the visit of Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira early this month. Mr. Ohira's Manila visit, also his first in the Pacific region, will fall sometime during the fifth session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) scheduled May 7 to June 1. The President had earlier said he hoped the Ohira government would adhere to the Japanese commitment of close cooperation with the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

FOREIGN Minister Carlos P. Romulo said the President's desire to maintain a balance of power in Asia motivated him into entering into an improved bases agreement with the United States. Minister Romulo, who arrived in the country from Bangkok, said this was what he told officials, as well as civic leaders in Thailand, when he asked about the US military bases in the Philippines. "Without this balance of power in the region, there will be polarization, or one country siding with another which, will result in instability that none of us would like to have," he added.

THE PRESIDENT said he would amend the Labor Code to make certain unfair labor practices, including union-busting, criminal offenses. Addressing an overflow of crowd in the Labor Day celebration at the Philippine International Convention Center, he gave Minister of Labor Blas F. Ople 24 hours to prepare the proposed amendments to the Labor Code. He said this would serve as a fair warning to management sectors which were anti-labor. At the same time, he ignored the demand in the manifesto presented to him earlier by the Trade Union Congress of the Philippines asking for the lifting of the ban on strikes. To facilitate the solution of labor-management disputes, he announced the appointment of 35 new labor arbiters. He also signed the appointments of Guillermo Medina, Gabriel Gatchalian and Miguel Varela: as commissioners of the newly-created division of the National Labor Relations Commission. He appointed Aurelio Intertas as member of the Price Stabilization Council (PSC) and Ernesto Herrera as member of the National Manpower and Youth Council (NMYC).

DURING the same occasion, the President signed four letters of instructions, which would: 1) Establish the Workers Rehabilitation Center Complex under the Employees Compensation Commission. Some P15 million is set aside for this; 2) Establish the Institute of Occupational Health Safety under the Ministry of Labor. For this, P2 million is appropriated; 3) Establish the policy that henceforth, only Filipino construction companies may export Filipino construction workers, with the Ministry of Labor and the Overseas Construction Board to determine the appropriate rules and regulations; and 4) Legalize the boundary system in the land transportation industry.

EARLIER, the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos, gave an inspirational talk, reaffirming her dedication and that of the President to the cause of Labor, whose welfare is the primary objective of the New Society.

THE PRESIDENT announced new appropriations to modernize the Philippine Air Force, making it an air force "we can be proud of and which will stand the challenge of the 21st century." Speaking at the 44th anniversary rites of the PAF at Nichols Air Base, he said that while the budget for the Armed Forces of the Philippines would increase by P200 million, the bulk of it would go to modernizing the Air Force. He reiterated the government's policy of building a "self-reliant defense posture, in all aspects of military preparedness, not as an instrument for aggression but as the shield of a sovereign state standing guard over its heritage and its territory."

THE PRESIDENT suggested that conditions for development assistance set by the Asian Development Bank (ADB) be further liberalized for the benefit of developing countries. To accomplish this, he told over 1,000 delegates who came to Manila for the 12th annual meeting of the ADB board of governors, it will be necessary to reexamine loan procurement terms for possible modification. The ADB should continue to support growth and change in the region by helping us in a very real sense to achieve the full measure of our potentials, the President said.

THE PRESIDENT said he hopes that the coming fifth United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) would bring about a new international: economic order. He expressed his hope to Ambassador F. W. Wanigasekera, who presented his credentials as the first resident ambassador of Sri Lanka to the Philippines. He also received later the credentials of Ambassador Christianus Theodorus Franciscus Thurkow as the new ambassador of the Netherlands to the Philippines, replacing former Ambassador Frans von Oven.

THE PRESIDENT said he would welcome an air agreement between the Philippines and China to further strengthen the close ties between the two countries. He made the statement during the call of a Chinese delegation which arrived, to negotiate an agreement that will allow the Philippine Airlines and the Civil Aviation Administration of China to make regular flights to each other's country. Roman A. Cruz, Jr., PAL president, who accompanied the delegation to Malacañang, said the agreement, if concluded, would make Manila the gateway to China in view of the hotel congestion in Tokyo and Hongkong.

THE PRESIDENT expressed optimism that the UNCTAD V meet would go down in history as that which set down in its charter the establishment of the Common Fund, the program of action to help developing countries. "This is what we hope to achieve," he said in a brief press conference with Malacañang newsmen. "I do not see any serious hindrances but anything can happen in a meeting like this." He was confident; "however, that "we will overcome all difficulties this time."

THE PRESIDENT announced that Tara island, part of the Calamianes Island group, east of Busuanga and Coron, would become the processing center for Vietnamese refugees, pending their permanent resettlement in other countries of the world. Replying to a question from a Malacañang newsman during a press interview, the President said the setting up of a refugee center was not in reaction to, a foreign proposal. "This is a Philippine proposal," he said.

May 5—

FOREIGN Minister Carlos P. Romulo said the Philippines expects to increase its sales to Japan substantially as a result of the new Treaty of Amity, Commerce and Navigation to be signed by the President and Japanese Prime, Minister Masayoshi Ohira during the latter's arrival in the country. Interviewed on television, General Romulo said, "I believe that in this new treaty, we have succeeded in establishing a more relevant legal framework for our trade and economic relations with Japan."

May 6—

DR. KURT Waldheim, secretary-general of the United Nations arrived to the country to address the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) fifth session. The visiting top UN official, accompanied by his wife, was met at the airport by the President and the First Lady, Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos. Also on hand to meet Dr. Waldheim were members of the Cabinet and the diplomatic corps.

President's Week in Review: May 7-13, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 7—

THE PRESIDENT urged the delegates to the fifth session of United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) to start a "momentum of change and creativity" to bail humankind from poverty and underdevelopment. He made the call in his keynote address at the opening of the fifth session at the Philippine International Convention Center. He said a great number of the deprived "can no longer wait and stand on squibbles and reservations and further study." He asked the delegates from 158 participating nation "to break the vicious cycle of crisis and impotence" and to admit the need for the establishment of a new international economic order.

ALL the 34 candidates of the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) were leading their opponents in today's election for the Sangguniang Pampook (regional assemblies) in Regions 9 and 12, according to partial unofficial results received by the Commission on Elections tabulation center in Davao City. About 1.5 million voters trooped to the polling places as early as 6 a.m. although the actual voting started at 7 a.m. and closed at 5 p.m. Voting centers in Western Mindanao (Region 9) and Central Mindanao (Region 12) totalled 7,823, including 38 special voting centers set up exclusively for rebels and evacuees.

THE PRESIDENT said United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim and Vietnamese Prime Minister Pham Van, Dong have agreed on a proposal to allow refugees to join their families abroad. The president met for an hour with the UN official in Malacañang before the latter's departure for Jakarta at 4:45 p.m. Under the compromise proposal, the refugees would be provided with the necessary documents to enable them to leave the country legally. Waldheim, in a predeparture press conference at the airport, assured the refugees of permanent asylum.

They will be accommodated on Tara island, a temporary processing center 150 kilometers from Manila. He also indicated the possibility of UN financing.

THE PRESIDENT said the results of the May 7 Sangguniang Pampook elections in Regions 9 and 12 indicate that the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) candidates have been elected. He sounded pleased over reports that there were no serious incidents in the votings. The elections involve voting for 21 members of the legislative councils to be established in the two regions. Of the 21, 17 were elected at large and four will represent various sectors.

May 9—

THE PRESIDENT and Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser of Australia agreed to correct the trade imbalance between their countries during a two-hour talk which was described as "frank and cordial." The two leaders also discussed security implications to the region of recent regional and international developments. In a press briefing, Information Minister Francisco S. Tatad said the President and Prime Minister Fraser, who is in the country for a four-day state visit, also took up "important bilateral questions like trade and aviation."

COMMISSION on Elections set for May 27 the election of sectoral representatives to Sangguniang Pampook in Regions 9 and 12 as all the 24 official candidates of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) in the May 7 elections appeared to have already clinched victory. In a meeting at Davao City, Comelec Chairman Leonardo B. Perez and Commissioners Venancio S. Duque, Flores Bayot, Vicente Santiago Jr., and Domingo C. Pabalate decided that the sectoral elections will start from 7 to 11 a.m. in Zamboanga City for Western Mindanao (Region 9) and in Cotabato City for Central Mindanao (Region 12). Four sectoral representatives from the youth, agricultural, non-agricultural and professional sectors will be chosen for each region by representatives of the Sangguniang Bayan and the Sangguniang Panlungsod in every town and city in the regions.

May 10—

THE PRESIDENT and Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira signed a new treaty of amity, commerce and navigation between their countries. At the signing ceremony at, Malacañang, the two leaders expressed hopes for fresh opportunities to expand Philippine-Japanese economic relations. The new treaty replaces an agreement reached in 1960 which came into effect only in 1974 due to a delay in ratification by the Philippine government. The President, in a short speech, said the new treaty now opens the Japanese market to Philippine exports thereby narrowing the gap the Philippines continues to suffer in trading with Japan. Last year the Philippines bought $1.5 billion worth of Japanese goods. However, Japan purchased only $1,057 million of Philippine products, leaving a trade deficit of $489 million.

May 11—

THE PRESIDENT and Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser exchanged, letters of ratification, formally putting into effect a trade agreement between their countries. The trade agreement, described by both as a “significant development” in Philippines-Australia relations, helped remove a number of irritants between the two countries. Among other things, the agreement guarantees increased market opportunities for Philippine export products to Australia. The exchange of ratification of the trade agreement was contained in the joint communique issued by the President and Prime Minister Fraser at the end of the latter’s four-day state visit.

THE PRESIDENT inaugurated the Mak-Ban (Makiling-Banahaw) geothermal power plant in barrio Bitin, Bay, Laguna which, started feeding Luzon an additional 55 megawatts of electricity. In his brief speech, he pointed out that the world is in the midst of another oil crisis where industrial nations are beginning to seriously consider a rationing system for all kinds of fuel oil and the Philippines, although it has not been spared from the oil crisis, “is lucky enough to have alternate sources of energy, like this geothermal power project.”

May 12—

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos said that she would spell out the Philippine position on the various problems confronting the developed and developing countries in a speech before the Fifth United Nations Conference on Trade and Development this week. This was disclosed by Mrs. Marcos, who is head of the Philippine delegation to the UNCTAD V, in an interview with Malacañang newsmen during a lunch which she gave in honor of the delegates to the UNCTAD at the National Arts Center in Mt. Makiling, Laguna.

LABOR Minister Blas F. Ople proposed a reexamination of the protectionist policies within the five member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations. Keynoting the three-day conference of the ASEAN Confederation of Employers at the Philippine Plaza, he said the review should be made from the standpoint of the common interest of the member countries in becoming a major industrial region. By intra-ASEAN protectionism, he said, he meant all forms of restrictions to the flow of goods and resources. He said the combined population of the ASEAN countries represent a big market that will sustain all the heavy industries that may be established by Singapore, Philippines, Thailand, Malaysia and Indonesia.

THE PRESIDENT reiterated that the Filipino people still believe in the world of America. In brief, extemporaneous remarks at a luncheon he and the First Lady gave in honor of US Ambassador to the United Nations and Mrs. Andrew Young, the President said the Filipinos were honoring Ambassador Young not only because of his prestigious position but also because of his “unassailable, splendid record in the defense of small people.”

President's Week in Review: May 14-20, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 14—

THE PRESIDENT sought the assistance of the Food and Agriculture Organization in providing food for the “Vietnamese refugees in the country. The request was made by the President to Edourd Saouma, director-general of the FAO, who called on him at Malacañang. He informed Saouma that the Philippines has established an island processing center which can accommodate 7,000 refugees and that their stay here will be supported by donations from the international community. The refugees will be staying in the center while waiting for their permanent settlement in different countries abroad. “I really hope the FAO will help out in this operation, initiated by the Philippines,” the President told Saouma.

May 15—

MINDANAO provisional government is bowing out upon the assumption of office of the elected members of the Sangguniang Pampook or regional legislative assemblies in Regions 9 and 12. The provisional government, composed of the governors of the two regions and headed by Lanao del Sur Gov. Ali Dimaporo, will present today its successors to the public at a conference in Cotabato City.

May 16—

THE PRESIDENT urged the forming of a group to study two schemes proposed by the secretary-general of the Asian and African Consultative Group to help bring about a new international economic order. He made the suggestion after his exchange of views with Dr. B. Sen, secretary-general of the AACG, who called on him in Malacañang. The two schemes which had been earlier proposed to the fifth session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) by Dr. Sen, are: 1) Rapid industrialization to bring about a new international economic order through regional cooperation; and 2) Transfer of arbitration of commercial disputes from the International Chamber of Commerce to national institutions and by regional centers.

May 17—

THE PRESIDENT took steps to hasten the development of Samar, one of the country's depressed areas, and to improve its peace and order. In a two-hour meeting with civilian and military leaders at Malacañang, he stressed the need for greater coordination among government agencies involved in the, development of Samar. During the conference, he ordered: 1) The release of P1.5 million for the construction of roads linking several towns in northeastern Samar to be undertaken by army engineers; 2) The release of P1 million for the completion of Dolores airstrip and P600 million for the extension of the airstrip in Catarman plus P100,000 for the purchase of its lighting equipment; 3) The establishment of a broadcast station in Borongan to beef up the information campaign in the hinterlands where insurgents reportedly are active; 4) The release of P2.5 million for the integrated national police in Region 8 for the purchase of various equipment and P2.5 million for their subsistence allowance; 5) The beefing up of the civil home defense force, for the citizens may be involved in securing peace and order in remote areas.

FIRST autonomous regional governments in Regions 9 and 12 started “functioning today. This came about when the President ordered the immediate and smooth transfer of responsibilities from the provisional government to the, two Sangguniang Pampook or regional legislative councils. He issued the directive after receiving the report at Malacañang of Lanao del Sur Gov. Ali Dimaporo, chairman of the provisional government, on the election of 34 representatives of the two regions. With the election of the representatives, the councils will complete its – membership with the election of eight (four for each of the regions) sectoral representatives. The appointive representatives or five for each of the two regions will raise be named by the President upon recommendation of the two legislative councils.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, prodded the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) to move from “slogan to a program of action” and firmly committed the Philippines’ contribution of $50 million to the common fund which aims to stabilize world commodity prices. In her speech at the fifth UNCTAD session, Mrs. Marcos, who heads the Philippine delegation to the meeting, said “individuals in the rich nations are 13 times better off than their counterparts in the poorest nations.” She urged the UNCTAD to speed up action on measures to cure the World’s economic ills.

May 19—

DIRAAR Y. Alghanim, chairman of the Alghanim International Corporation of Kuwait, called on the President to discuss the establishment of a Philippine trade house in Kuwait and the possibility of investing in all fields of industries in the country. He was accompanied by Ambassador Wilfredo Vega, Ricardo S. Laudico and Albert C. Aguirre.

May 20—

SOUTH Korean Foreign Minister Tong Jin Park called on the President at Malacañang. He is in the country to address the fifth session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD). He was accompanied by Ambassador Yang Kyoo Kang and Deputy Foreign Minister Manuel Collantes.

President's Week in Review: May 21-27, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 21—

THE PRESIDENT reported that government officials have been holding trade talks with at least 12 delegations, led by China and Russia, which are attending the current United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) here. In a report to the Batasang Pambansa on trade developments, he said that aside from these 12 countries, "we expect to have further dialogues with other countries in the course of UNCTAD V which will adjourn June 1." He also reported on the Philippines' new Treaty of Amity, Commerce and Navigation with Japan, and also on its trade treaty with Australia. He also discussed the elections in Regions 9 and 12 which resulted in the choice of 17 representatives for each of the legislative councils. The Batasan reconvened following a long recess which started just before the Holy Week.

THREE government overseas employment agencies, the bureau of employment services, the overseas employment development board and the national seamen board, have been tapped by the Ministry of Labor to stop the misuse of tourist visas by Filipino workers seeking employment overseas. Labor Minister Blas F. Ople also ordered heads of the three government overseas employment agencies to work out a plan to check the exodus of disguised jobseekers through the use of tourist visas. The three agencies were also ordered to draft rules to implement Letter of Instructions No. 852 which seeks measures that will prevent the abuse of tourist travel as a means to obtain overseas employment.

MINISTER Jose A. Roño of the Ministry of Local Government and Community Development (MLGCD) ruled that a barangay council cannot enact an ordinance declaring curfew for residents within its jurisdictional area. A barangay is under the Pambansang Katipunan ng mga Barangay which is directly under the MLGCD minister himself. Commenting for the first time on the controversial issue revolving around the validity of a curfew ordinance in a barangay in Quezon City, Minister Roño said that it is only the President who can impose curfew in any part of the country or over the entire country.

THE PRESIDENT received P. A. Graham, managing director of London Standard Chartered Bank' Ltd., who called, at Malacañang. He is in the country as part of his tour of Pacific countries. He was accompanied by Roberto Pudner, manager of the local branch of the bank, and Mrs. Pudner.

May 23—

THE PRESIDENT paved the way for the overhaul of the government's monetary, infrastructure, and budgetary policies to accelerate food production and energy development. In support of these directive, he also increased the credit line of the National Grains Authority (NGA) to P500 million for its buying program and P42 million for the construction of additional warehouses. Earlier, he authorized the Central Bank to release P10 million to increase the lending facilities of the rural banks. He made these recourses during the Pulong Pulong dialog at Malacañang with tenant leaders on the occasion of Farmers Week.

May 24—

THE PRESIDENT cancelled the results of the National College Entrance Examination (NCEE) that 586,000 high school students took last November to qualify them for admission to four-year college course in the coming school year. He said he is leaving it to the colleges and universities to adopt their own admission policies for four-year courses, at least for this year. He also ruled that the opening of classes would not be June 4 but on June 13, the original date. He did this to end, once and for all, tensions and confusions among students and their parents caused by conflicting announcements on these two issues.

THE PRESIDENT shifted the emphasis on government funding, from grains to fish production, by creating the P10-million Biyaya ng Dagat '79 Fund. He announced this new policy in his speech on the closing of the 14th annual Convention of the Philippine Federation of Fishfarm Producers (PFFP) at the Manila Peninsula. During the same occasion, he also ordered: 1) Creation of 21 five-year scholarships on fisheries, directing the Ministry of Natural Resources to set aside P2-million of the ministry funds for the purpose; 2) The preparation of a new fisheries education program by the Ministry of Education and Culture (MEC); 3) Strict enforcement of the prohibition against illegal and dynamite fishing, with the deputization of all fishing boat captains to implement the law; 4) Investigation of reports that too many middlemen are making huge profits in the fishing industry at the expense of producers, consumers and the sound economy; 5) A complete survey of marginal lands, heretofore considered not adaptable to fishpond culture (areas between agricultural lands and the sea), for possible use as fishponds in order to save the mangroves; and 6) Constitution of a fishermen's committee to keep a dialog with the government through the director of fisheries and aquatic resources, the minister of, natural resources and the President.

NATIONAL Grains Authority (NGA) was ordered by the President to study if part of the rice earlier set aside for export should be held back to, form part of the country's buffer stock for emergencies. However, he instructed NGA Administrator Jesus Tanchanco to honor all the export commitments which had been contracted with buyer-countries on a government-to-government basis. His order was prompted by bad weather including typhoons which have started to hit the country and, the fuel crisis which may cause a shortfall in rice harvests.

THE PRESIDENT disclosed the possibility of a 10 percent increase in the prices of oil next month. He made the disclosure as he ordered the reduction of this year's energy consumption from the projected 87 million barrels to 84 million barrels—the 1978 consumption level—beginning July 15. He presided over a joint meeting in Malacañang of the National Security Council and the National Economic and Development Authority, (NEDA), which looked into the global and national energy situation and the problems of prices and how these would affect the people.

THE PRESIDENT has assured producers and distributors of agricultural products of financing to maintain steady price levels. Malacañang said that the President has ordered changes in the government's monetary policies so that food production and energy development would get enough financial support. The order was made at the joint meeting of the National Security Council and the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) recently during which he also decided to allow the price control law to expire in July.

MINISTRY of Finance said, that the 10 per cent limitation on increases in assessments of real property for purposes of taxation refers to assessment levels and not on the taxable values of properties. The clarification was made by the ministry to correct the misconception that the decree amending the Real Property Tax Code (PD 464) allows only 10 per cent increase in realty taxes.

BANKS were allowed by the Central Bank to accept time deposits with various ranges on maturities thereby scrapping the old regulation which limited maturity dates to either 90, 180, 360, 540 or 730 days. In a circular signed by Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros, Sr., time deposits can now be placed at maturities ranging from 90 to 179 days, 180 to 359 days, 360 to 530 days, 540 to 729 days, and from 730 days or more. Covered by the regulation are commercial banks, the Development Bank of the Philippines, Land Bank of the Philippines, thrift banks and rural banks.

SOME 300 families which will be affected by the contraction of the Bangkulasi cut off channel in Navotas, a flood control project, will be relocated in the Dagat-Dagatan housing project. Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos directed public works and Metro Manila officials to make sure the affected families will get their units from among the 1,500 core houses being constructed by the National Housing Authority (NHA) at the Dagat-Dagatan. The Bangkulasi cut off channel will relieve the flooding problem which affects some 28,000 families in Navotas, Malabon and Caloocan during the rainy season.

May 27—

LABOR Minister Blas F. Ople called on labor arbiters to, speed up the disposal of labor cases to hasten settlement of various labor disputes in the country. In a speech at the induction of 34 new labor arbiters and three commissioners, Minister Ople said labor arbiters should live to the expectations of the President and should discharge their duties with dedication and sincerity to give justice to every Filipino worker.

President's Week in Review: May 28 - June 3, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 28—

THE PRESIDENT cited the need for heroism during Memorial Day rites at the American Military cemetery at Fort Bonifacio in honor of those who died in the defense of freedom in the Pacific during World War II. During his speech, he said that the essential significance of Memorial Day was that it is a guide for all people to remember, particularly during these times of crisis and challenge. He said there was nothing nobler than the sacrifice of one's life, honor and happiness for a cause he considers worthy.

THE PRESIDENT bared the determination of the developing countries to promote economic cooperation among themselves. He made known the stand of the developing countries during his breakfast conference / with delegates from Group D (Socialist) countries of UNCTAD V, headed by A. Ginev of Bulgaria. This is the second time that the President and the First Lady tendered a breakfast in Malacañang in honor of UNCTAD V delegates.

INDIA and the Philippines entered into an agreement providing most-favored-nation treatment between the two countries. The agreement calls for exchanges of commercial and technical mission and the establishment of a joint trade committee to promote better economic relations. The treaty will last for a year but may be continued indefinitely unless either party terminates it. The agreement was signed by Trade Minister Troadio T. Quiazon Jr. and his counterpart, Mohan Dharia. This is the third agreement the Philippines has signed during the current fifth session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD).

THE PRESIDENT signed Letter of Instructions No. 866 directing the establishment of a reforestation and forest management program to preserve the ecological balance in the Ilocos region and provide Virginia tobacco farmers with abundant supplies of firewood for the tobacco industry. The signing was witnessed by Justice Federico B. Moreno, chairman and general manager of the PVTa; Demetrio Tabije, PTA chairman and general manager; Natural Resources Minister Jose Leido Jr. and Agriculture Minister Arturo Tanco Jr.

LEADERS of the Group of 77 informed the President at a breakfast meeting in Malacañang that the developing countries were united in fostering economic cooperation among themselves. Many of the delegates from the Group of 77 composed of Third World countries, sounded pessimistic about the outcome of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD). The President, however, said he was "cautiously optimistic."

THE PRESIDENT welcomed the offer of the United Nations to extend to the government maritime technical assistance. C. Srivastava, secretary-general of the Inter-Government Consultative organization of the UN, made the offer during a call on the President at Malacañang. Srivastava said the UN makes available to all interested countries in the developing a technical cooperation program in organizing technical assistance world in the maritime field, particularly in training personnel, adoption of safety measures, application of anti-pollution measures and the administration of ports and harbors.

THE PRESIDENT and leaders of the Group of 77 decided to organize a 15-man committee to work out a mechanism that will guarantee economic cooperation among its members. The committee will be composed of five members each from the Group of 77 countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America. Nominees from Asia will include delegates from Saudi Arabia, India and Indonesia. In a meeting at Malacañang, the conferees, who included members of the negotiating groups of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) also agreed: 1) To remain united in the face of crucial issues; 2) To support the Arusha Declaration irrevocably. (The Arusha Declaration was forged by developing countries in Arusha, Tanzania before UNCTAD V so that a common stand could be arrived at); 3) To proceed to explore all possibilities of multilateral cooperation action within the Group of 77 in all levels of activity such as agriculture, industry, science and technology without weakening their position on the restructuring of international trade and the elimination of protectionism. Before the meeting started, the President “reiterated the readiness of the” Philippines to provide aid in food production to any developing nation.

MOROCCAN Foreign Minister M’Hamed Boucetta pledged his government’s assistance in the settlement of the Mindanao problem. He informed the President that he was instructed by King Hassan of Morocco to convey his commitment, which is in the interest of Muslims and Christians alike. The Moroccan official is here as his country’s representative to the fifth session of the UNCTAD. He called on the President, however, as the president of the recently concluded Islamic Conference. The foreign minister and his wife were honored at a Malacañang luncheon which was also attended by members of the cabinet and diplomatic representatives and some heads of the UNCTAD delegations.

EDUCATION Minister Juan L. Manuel was ordered by the President to take over the Philippine Public School Teachers’ Association (PPSTA). In Letter of Instructions No. 860, he told Minister Manuel to weed out and prosecute officials and employees of the association who have committed wrongdoings. He also ordered the minister to carry out reforms and take steps to insure the stability and continued operation of the association. He took this move because the association, he said, performs welfare services vital to the moral of public school teachers.

THE PRESIDENT, in separate proclamations, had declared Friday, June 1, a special public holiday in Olongapo City and in Makati, Metro Manila, but the day will remain a regular working day in the two localities. He issued the proclamations to underscore the importance of the day as the foundation anniversaries of Olongapo City and Makati, and for the residents of the two localities to observe special events and preserve cultural traditions.

June 1—

THE PRESIDENT ordered the immediate implementation of 11 energy conservation measures in view of tightening supply and spiralling prices of oil in the international market. The measures were contained in Letter of Instructions No. 869 and released-for publication by Energy Minister Geronimo Velasco.

THE PRESIDENT took a direct hand in the controversial $1-million seizure at the Manila International Airport as he ordered Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile to arrest anyone, “military or not,” who had a hand in the scandal. In a television interview, Minister Enrile ordered the military “to show to the world” that it can enforce the laws as well as discipline within its ranks.

VISITING California trade mission was informed by the President that the Philippines has “high hopes” of attaining self-sufficiency in oil in the foreseeable future. He based his optimism on the recent discovery of gas at a depth of 4,000 ft. in Tarlac which, he said, “indicated the presence of on-shore oil in the Philippines. He added that the explorations and exploitations of other sources of energy will continue. Two geothermal (volcanic steam) plants, one in Tiwi, Albay and the other in the Makiling-Banahaw area in Laguna, are now generating electricity. The 27-member mission organized by Filipino-American Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, California, was led by Mrs. March Fong Eu, California secretary of state, and Demetrio Jayme, president of the organizing chamber of commerce.

June 2—

THE PRESIDENT issued a directive to reduce the number of special public holidays during which work is suspended. The guidelines provide that: 1) All regular working days that fall between holiday and a weekend shall not be considered a special holiday; 2) Academic holidays during which classes are suspended due to typhoons and floods and other natural calamities shall be governed by regulations of the Ministry of Education and Culture (MEC); 3) All private and government offices shall wait for the announcement from the Office of the President as to whether work would be suspended due to typhoons and floods; and 4) For unforeseen special public holidays that may prolong the suspension of work, the Saturday immediately following such a holiday may be declared as a working day. Special public holidays for provinces, cities and towns may be proclaimed by the President to observe cultural traditions and celebrate anniversaries, although unless specified through a proclamation, these special public holidays shall be working days.

DEFENSE Minister Juan Ponce Enrile warned the officers of the Armed Forces against tolerating the misconduct and abuses of their men, especially those assigned in the far-flung areas of the country. Speaking during the third anniversary celebration recently of the Aviation Security Command under Brig. Gen. Petronio M. Lapeña at Nichols Air Base, Pasay City, he said that nothing can be more illogical and dangerous than the tendency of some AFP officers to overlook the misconduct of their men on the false assumption that this is needed to maintain the loyalty of those under their command.

FOREIGN Minister Carlos P. Romulo formally closed the four-week session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development

(UNCTAD), with the poor and the rich countries battling each other down the wire. "There have been no victories in UNCTAD V, and there have been no defeats," he said as he banged the gavel ending the month-long talks. The conference agenda covered a wide range of interrelated fundamental issues considered vital to restructuring the world economic order. However, it was only during the last hours of the conference that agreements were reached on some minor issues, and the decision on most of the 70 unresolved issues touching on trade, finance, technology and aid was to include it as part of the UNCTAD secretariat's work programs. UNCTAD Secretary General Gamani Corea said the Manila conference had given impetus to a continuing process of negotiations between the rich and poor nations during the 1980s.

MINISTRY of Local Government and Community Development (MLGCD) directed the country's 42,000 barangays to carry out various energy conservation measures at the grassroots level. In a circular released pursuant to a letter of instructions issued recently detailing several plans designed to reduce fuel consumption, the MLGCD directed all governors, mayors and barangay officials to urge all fuel users in the provinces and the rural areas to cooperate fully with the government in its energy conservation program.

President's Week in Review: June 4-10, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 4—

THE PRESIDENT said that the just concluded United Nations" Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), although having an agenda many times heavier than previous conferences, made the first realistic approach to the problems of trade protectionism and energy. Saying that UNCTAD V was a conference of "many firsts," he also said that it began the serious restructuring of the international economic order. In his assessment of the meet, he said that protectionism and energy were two issues no international conference ever dared to take, up. The UNCTAD V will also be remembered for formally creating the Common Fund (for commodities) and for launching the integrated commodities program, aside from extending the life of the General Scheme of Preferences. The President, having been active in bringing together, the various blocs toward the end of the meet, said he was satisfied with the stronger unity in the Group of 77, composed of poor nations. As a result, the group has become a greater force to be reckoned with.

June 5—

THE PRESIDENT created a special group to determine priorities in the allocation of petroleum products in accordance with the requirements of food production, energy development, mass transit, and other basic needs. This group is a joint committee of the Board of Investments and the Ministry of Energy. It would also determine priorities in the additional allocation of products in line with basic guidelines issued earlier. At a meeting with Minister of Industry Vicente Paterno, who is also BOI chairman, he asked that credit policies be synchronized with energy policies.

THE FIRST LADY and Minister of Human Settlements Imelda Romualdez Marcos described the country's experiment on national renewal through human settlements as a "heroic act of national salvation." Speaking before the Asia Pacific Regional Conference on Human Settlements Finance and Management at the Philippine International Convention Center, she emphasized that "human settlement transcends the traditional social dole and charity, and becomes the moulder of the wholeness of man in his dignity and of the Filipino national character,"

June 6—

THE PRESIDENT signed into law Cabinet Bill No. 19 penalizing certain acts that violate energy conservation measures. The action capped the concluding session of the first regular meeting of the Batasang Pambansa. Also signed by the President into law were two parliamentary bills—PB No. 292 expanding the coverage of the anti-subversion law, and the PB No. 146 broadening the benefits for labor.

THE PRESIDENT clarified the rule on succession by reaffirming the power of the Batasang Pambansa to choose the Prime Minister in the event the President is incapacitated. This clarification was made by the President in his address shortly before the adjournment of the first session of the Batasan. He said the organization of the Batasan answered the fears of some people in case the incumbent President dies or suffers permanent disability.

THE GOVERNMENT activated a new body to determine priorities in the allocation of petroleum products, particularly for the industrial sector. The committee was set up by the President to insure proper distribution of petroleum products among industrial, commercial, agro-industrial and fishing sectors. Named by Energy Minister Geronimo Velasco and Industry Minister Vicente Paterno to the joint body were Orlando Galang, director of the Bureau of Energy Utilization, as chairman; Ignacio Salcedo of the Ministry of Industry as vice chairman; Rene Ira and Agapito Kalingking of the Ministry of Industry as members.

THE PRESIDENT ordered that the home development mutual funds one managed by the Social Security System and the other by the Government Service Insurance System, be merged and placed under the sole management of the National Home Mortgage Finance Corp. He said this would achieve unified management, cost-savings and more stable financial viability to insure effective implementation of the program.

PROCLAMATION: No. 1682 was signed by the President declaring Friday, June 8, Ice and Cold Storage Industry Day. This lends significance to the first national conference of the industry at the Philippine Plaza hotel on Friday, under the auspices of the Association of Philippine Ice and Cold Storage Operators (APICSO).

June 7—

OFFICIALS of Tabacalera and members of the Spanish and Chinese soccer football teams called on the President at Malacañang. He cited them for helping build the character and physique of the youth.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos launched a nationwide program to make every town self-reliant in its power needs. In a meeting at Malacañang, Mrs. Marcos said that in view of the oil crisis which threatens the Philippines, more watershed-based ecological communities should be established throughout the country. Known as the ECO-BLISS project, it involves the construction of water catchment basin which at the same time serves as a communal fishpond. The impounded water may be used for irrigation, while trees like ipil-ipil planted to protect the watershed and the basin will in turn provide a steady supply of wood for the electric plant and protein-rich leaves for animal feeds. The kilowatt output of the thermal plant is expected to provide electricity not only to the community but neighboring towns as well.

THE PRESIDENT ruled that the assignment of military men to any civilian office should not mean removing or diminishing the responsibilities and duties of civilian official's working there. Among the offices directed to follow this policy were the Central Bank, the Ministry of Health, the Bureau of Customs, Bureau of Immigration and the Bureau of Quarantine. The President pointed out that in case of the Bureau of Customs, the military men assigned there are not authorized to open baggage passing through the customs areas for examination without the approval and presence of customs officials or employees.

CABINET Ministers must leave the comfort of their plush Manila offices to visit the provinces to examine the progress of programs and projects operating under their offices. The President issued this order as he noted that much of the delay and inefficiency in national government work in the provinces would be attributed to lack of firsthand knowledge of the actual needs of the people in rural areas. He said that this firsthand knowledge cannot be obtained by cabinet men just by sitting in their offices in Manila. He also announced he would soon, hold a series of cabinet meetings where the ministers would be required present projects and programs of their respective offices, as well as their work objectives. His order was addressed specifically to the heads of the National Economic and Development Authority and the Ministries of Defense, Agriculture, Public Works, Public Highways, Health and Education.

THE PRESIDENT said the forthcoming Summit Conference of the developed countries in Tokyo assures the developing countries their interests will be taken up in the meeting. This view was made by the President during his conversations with Ambassador Takeshi Yasukawa, who called on him as the personal envoy of Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira of Japan. Yasukawa is here to sound out the President on the Tokyo summit which will be held late this month.

THE PRESIDENT conferred the Philippine Legion of Honor, degree of commander, on visiting Gen. Prem Tinsulanonda, commander-in-chief of the Royal Thai Army and concurrently minister of defense of Thailand, in a ceremony held at Malacañang.

June 9—

THE PRESIDENT ordered Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile to clean up the Cagayan Valley, particularly the provinces of Cagayan and Kalinga-Apayao, of communist terrorists. At the same time, he approved the increase in the number of civilian defense forces in the towns affected by renewed rebel activities. He took note of reports that the renewed and intensified NPA activities in the region are designed to embarrass Minister Enrile who hails from Cagayan.

June 10—

DEFENSE Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said he is thinking of reassigning abusive armed forces personnel to “war zones” and far-flung posts. The form of punishment, he said, will also be applied among arrogant military personnel and those who cannot get along with civilians in their respective areas of responsibility. He spelled out the alternative-punitive measures after receiving complaints from civilians during a gathering inside the Philippine Marines headquarters in Brooke’s Point, Palawan. At the same time, he ordered Commodore Gil Fernandez, Western Command chief, to throw out from service nine troopers denounced in public by civilians for alleged kidnapping, murder and mauling.

MINISTRY of Education and Culture (MEC) said that there are enough school teachers and classrooms to meet the expected influx of students this school year, which opens on June 13. “There will be no confusion in the opening of classes on June 13,” Deputy Education Minister Narciso Albarracin said during the “Meet the Press” program of the National Press Club on GTV—4. He said school superintendents and teachers have been given enough leeway to adjust and cope with whatever problems that may occur on the first day of classes. The MEC has projected an increase of about 400,000 students this school year, with 12 million students trooping back to classes on Wednesday. Of this number, 8.2 million are elementary pupils, 3.2 million high school students, and 940,000 college students.

FINANCE ministry has ruled that real properties with assessed value of not more than P1,000 are exempt from the basic real property tax. The ruling takes effect July 1, 1979 in cities and towns in Metro Manila, and Jan. 1, 1980, throughout the country. For properties located in one town or city, with assessed value of more than P1,000, the first P5,000 of the value of the properties shall be exempted from the additional 1 percent special education fund (SEF) tax. No SEF tax will be imposed on properties whose assessed value does not exceed P5,000. If the assessed value of the properties exceed P5,000, the amount of P5,000 will be deducted from the total assessed value of the properties and only the difference will be subjected to the additional 1 percent SEF tax. The new exemptions from the SEF are effective July 1, 1979 for real property located in Metro Manila and on January 1, 1980 throughout the country.

President's Week in Review: June 11-17, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 11—

THE PRESIDENT said he had delegated to cabinet members certain presidential powers to enable them to make on-the-spot decisions on matters essential to development. However, the use of the President's name does not include the power to dismiss or suspend erring local officials because this function cannot be delegated. In ease of doubt a cabinet member in the province may consult the President by long distance telephone and action will be taken within 24 hours. The clarification was intended to avoid confusion during the visits of the cabinet members who have been required by the President to spend more time in the rural areas.

THE FIRST Couple inaugurated the first three projects of the Bagong Lipunan Improvement of Sites and Services (BLISS) program to coincide with the first anniversary of the Ministry of Human Settlements. The first three projects are in barangay Sta. Cruz, Paco; barrio Sta. Rita, Makati and barangay Tadalac in Los Baños, Laguna.

June 12—

THE PRESIDENT called on the people to close ranks if the country is to overcome the many crises that now beset it. Keynoting the country's 81st Independence Day anniversary rites, he dwelt at length on the "Isang Bansa, Isang Diwa" (One Nation, One Soul) theme of the celebrations. During the three-and-a-half hour ceremonies, he accepted the surrender of 565 top commanders of the Moro National Liberation Front. He also swore into office the members of the Sangguniang Pampook (regional assembly) in Regions 9 and 12 (Western and Central Mindanao).

June 13—

STATE colleges and universities and national agricultural schools, beginning this school year, will participate in the "Alay Tanim" program designed to support the national goal of self-sufficiency in food. Under Letter of Instructions No. 872, these schools will produce protein-rich food such as casava, seguidillas, mongo, soya beans, fish, livestock products and other food sources such as fruits. The LOI authorizes the sale of commodities from planting and livestock raising. The income generated from such sale will go to the school's revolving fund.

June 14—

THE PRESIDENT launched a P1.25 billion development program-for depressed areas. Details of the program were drawn up during a joint meeting of the National Economic and Development Authority and the National Security Council in Malacañang. The, First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos was directed to coordinate the program. Initially, the program, which will include development of fisheries, establishment of settlements and prosecution of the Bagong Lipunan Improvement of Sites' and Services (BLISS) program, will cover Samar-Leyte, Southern Philippines and Cagayan Valley. The development program is expected to stabilize the peace-and order situation in these areas.

THE PRESIDENT postponed to Oct. 1 a scheduled power rate increase which would have been in effect July 1. The order was addressed to Energy Minister Geronimo Velasco and National Power Corporation president Gabriel Itchon. It was the second postponement of the new power rates, a move taken because of increased costs in imported fuel.

June 15—

CONSTRUCTION work on the $1.2 billion nuclear power plant in Bataan was suspended by the President pending inquiry into its maximum safety features against the dangers of possible nuclear contamination. The suspension order was spurred by a letter last June 14 from former Sen. Lorenzo Tañada who pointed out the danger the Bataan nuclear power plant may pose. The project is being undertaken by Westinghouse Electric of the United States and is expected to be completed late in 1982 or early 1983.

THE PRESIDENT extended for another two years the suspension of tax increases on gross sales of rice and corn which is due to expire at the end of this year. This is contained in a package of incentives for the country's rice and corn growers which he announced before the National Convention of the Confederation of the Filipino Rice and Corn Associations at the Philippine International Convention Center. He also: 1) Directed the Philippine National Bank to set aside P10 million for loans to grains retailers duly affiliated with the federation in response to their clamor for financing assistance through soft loans; 2) Issued a directive to the Central Bank of the Philippines to increase the loan value of the grains quedan from 50 per cent to 70 per cent; 3) Ordered the Development Bank of the Philippines and the Land Bank to provide sufficient loanable funds for the financing and improvement of rice mills to meet the requirements under Letter of Instructions No. 645, which directed that all rice mills should have a minimum milling recovery of 62 per cent; 4) Amended LOI 112 to allow rice and corn haulers to load the equivalent of 11 tons' weight for 10-wheeler trucks to maximize transport facilities in hauling the commodities; and 5) Made mandatory the installation of steam boilers using corn husks as fuel for all new mills installed to conserve energy supplies in the industry.

THE PRESIDENT disclosed plans to gradually pull back troops from Mindanao and leave the responsibility for peace and order in that region to the two regional autonomous governments. "It is my intention, and this is the first time I announce it, to withdraw the military in Mindanao" he told the annual convention of the Rural Bankers Association of the Philippines, "and leave the development and peace and order to the two regional autonomous governments principally through economic development." At the same time, he called on the rural bankers to extend their support to the various government programs to improve the lot of the masses.

TRADITIONAL executive clemency was granted by the President to total of 174 prisoners on the occasion of the 81st anniversary of Philippine Independence. Of those given executive clemency on recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole, fifteen were granted absolute pardon, one special absolute pardon, three individual pardons, 479 conditional pardons with parole conditions and 216 commutation of sentence.

June 16—

THE PRESIDENT ordered a study of the legal implication of the cancellation of a $1.2-billion government contract with Westinghouse Electric of the United States to build a nuclear plant in Bataan. He ordered the study because of the violation of what he called "implied warranty of safety. Under a still-unnumbered letter of instructions, he directed Acting Justice Minister Catalino Macaraig and Solicitor General Estelito Mendoza to undertake the study and submit their recommendation not later than July 1, 1979.

June 17—

GRANDMASTER Fridrik Olafsson, FIDE president and current leader in the on-going Marlboro Grandmasters Chess Classic, called on the President at Malacañang. He was accompanied by FIDE deputy president Florencio Campomanes and Justice Federico Moreno, president of the Philippine Chess Federation.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 18—

THE PRESIDENT has directed Public Highways Minister Baltazar Aquino to send all of the first shipment of 50 bulldozers arriving in the country this month to Mindanao, to beef up the present government massive barangay road construction and development there. Also expected to arrive soon are 350 bulldozers, a large number of excavators, and other heavy equipment to be used in the barangay road program of the country.

DEPUTY Defense Minister Carmelo Z. Barbero said that an anti-graft committee of the Armed Forces of the Philippines has been quietly conducting investigations since it was formed last year. The committee, composed of generals, has been looking into reports—even rumors—about officers who have allegedly enriched themselves in office, he said. The President himself is “deeply embarrassed” by an excess in military ranks and erring officers had been removed from their commands or deprived of promotions, he said.

THE PRESIDENT created a three-man committee to work out the early establishment and operation of the Sangguniang Pampook in Regions 9 and 12. Consisting of Chairman Armand Fabella of the Reorganization Commission as chairman, and Budget Minister Jaime C. Laya and Local Government Minister Jose A. Roño as members, the committee will draw up the necessary letters and orders of implementation. In constituting the committee, the President cited the need to get the autonomous government moving as soon as possible. Initially, the national infrastructure projects, broken down into 962,491,000 for Region 9 and P422,344,000 for Region 12, or a total P484,825,000 for the two regions, will be turned over to the two autonomous governments. The transfer will symbolize the exercise of autonomous functions which include responsibility for maintaining peace and order, economic planning and other activities for the improvement of living conditions.

NATIONAL Grains Authority (NGA) has channeled to the countryside since January this year a total of about P293 million through its cereal procurement program. This amount, according to the NGA, represents payments made to farmers who sold their harvests to the cereal agency since January. Purchases, which now total 5,031,254 cavans, include palay, corn, sorghum, mongo and peanut. The biggest turnover registered so far was during the period May 23 to 31 when the NGA bought direct from farmers 648,899 cavans of palay worth about P40 million. NGA Administrator Jesus Tanchanco said that his office has braced itself for more intensive buying this year as bigger number of farmers deliver their harvests to the agency's buying stations to avail of government support prices.

June 20—

THE PRESIDENT ordered the preparation of plans for the establishment of 20 resettlement areas in Regions 9 and 12. The resettlement areas are intended for rebels, trainees, AFP retirees who want to settle in Mindanao, and displaced civilians who fit into the program. The resettlement areas will be modelled after the Sacovia settlement project near the US Clark Airforce Base, which was originally a resettlement project of the Ministry of Agrarian Reform but which was taken over by the Ministry of Human Settlements and the military. The plans will be prepared by a committee headed by General Antonio Venadas of the Ministry of Human Settlements.

PRESIDENTIAL Medal of Merit was conferred by the President on Carlyle Reed, a columnist of the Sacramento Union, for his objective and clear interpretation of events in the Philippines. In expressing gratitude for the award, Reed said it was no trouble to report favorably concerning the Philippines and what is happening here because he just reports accurately what he sees, hears, and observes.

THE PRESIDENT has released P850 million for loans to fishermen in the depressed areas of Southern Mindanao, Samar, Leyte, and Cagayan. He also allocated P500 million for the fisheries credit program in Southern Mindanao, P200 million for the provinces of Samar and Leyte, and P1.50 million for Cagayan. The loans will be used to fund the purchase by small fishermen of boat engines and fishing gear, operation of fishponds less than 10 hectares in size, tilapia culture, and cottage industry fish processing.

REFUGEES problem is not a problem for any one country or for Southeast Asia alone but a problem for the whole world, the President declared during the opening of the two-day second Philippine Navy sea power symposium at the Philamlife Auditorium.

June 22—

CAR racing, water skiing, sky diving, hoarding of petroleum products and overpricing of such products are among the things banned by the Energy Conservation Law. The law, signed by the President one day after it was passed by the Batasang Pambansa last June 5, is now in effect, having been published in two newspapers of general circulation. Under this law, it is now the declared policy of the state to institutionalize as a way of life energy conservation geared toward the judicious and efficient use of petroleum and petroleum products. This would enhance availability of these products to support economic, social and developmental goals.

THE PRESIDENT, calling for the early operation of the autonomous governments in Regions 9 and 12, said the government has made it a policy to transfer all possible powers to the two governments to make them truly autonomous. Meeting with the cabinet and the assemblymen of the sangguniang pampook of the two regions, he laid down guidelines to be followed by a three-man committee charged with drawing up plans for the implementation of the two governments.

June 23—

THE PRESIDENT received at Malacañang visiting officials of the Westinghouse International Projects Co. headed by James Moore, general manager of the nuclear fuel division. During the call, the President announced that the commission created to look into the safety features of the Bataan nuclear power plant held its first public hearing at the Philippine International Convention Center this morning, lie told the officials of Westinghouse, the builder of the Bataan nuclear power plant, that he created the investigating commission following the malfunctioning of the three Mile Island nuclear plant in Pennsylvania, USA. He was influenced likewise by the position of the American government restricting the export of nuclear equipment unless the safety factor is fully considered.

June 24—

THE PRESIDENT said the government is consulting both developing and developed nations on the problem of refugees from Vietnam. He told newsmen the main problem is not the current number of refugees but how to stem the tide of Vietnamese people seeking refuge in foreign nations. He said refugees settled at present in foreign countries could be rehabilitated. He said he had directed foreign ministry officials to take up the refugee problem with representatives of foreign nations. Earlier, he said the Philippines would no longer accept refugees. He, however, did not order the navy to drive them away if they enter Philippine territory.

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Governor Imelda Romualdez Marcos announced a 20 percent across-the-board salary increase for all the 75,000 government employees of Metro Manila. The salary increase will be retroactive to May 1 of this year. The announcement was made during the celebration of Manila's 408th founding anniversary at the Folk Arts Theater. At the celebration, the Metro Manila governor renewed her pledge to the country's children by saying that "no homeless child shall roam the streets, no child will go hungry, naked, ill or unschooled and no youngster shall ever despair of his tomorrow."

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 25—

AGENCIES of the national government were directed by the President not to contract domestic or foreign loans to finance their activities unless the full amount of such loans is covered by “obligational authority” issued by the Ministry of the Budget within the regular budget program. In a letter of instructions he issued recently, he also directed that loan proceeds, whether in cash or in kind, shall be utilized only upon the issuance of a Cash Disbursement Ceiling (CDC) or its equivalent, which shall be within approved cash budget limits. These directives were issued upon the recommendation of Minister of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Minister of the Budget Jaime C. Laya, and Governor Gregorio S. Licaros of the Central Bank to bring agency borrowings more fully under fiscal control.

June 26—

THE PRESIDENT directed Minister of Agriculture Arturo R. Tanco to implement the new P600-million food production program for the most depressed areas. He cited these areas as Regions 9 and 12 in Mindanao, Region 8, comprising Samar and Leyte, and Region 2, consisting of the Cagayan valley. Mainly, the program for these three areas would call for an extension of credit facilities, totalling P500 million for Mindanao, P200 million for Samar and Leyte, and P150 million for Cagayan. Credit facilities will be given for the development of fisheries, poultry, piggery and cattle dispersal, as well as for the tapping of new sources of protein and new sources of energy.

June 27—

THE PRESIDENT has ordered a review of tenancy situations in lands planted to crops other than rice and corn to improve the tenurial arrangement between landowners and tenants. He has created a presidential committee composed of the minister of agrarian reform as chairman, with the ministers of agriculture and justice as members, “to determine classes or nature of relationship or arrangements where tenancy shall be considered to have been established.” His directive was contained in Presidential Decree No. 1583.

THE FIRST Couple presided over the symbolic inauguration of the second unit of the geothermal plant in Tiwi, Albay, and the Bohol diesel power plant in Tagbilaran City at the ceremonial hall of Malacañang. Inclement weather prevented them from flying to Albay and Bohol. The President said that the development of local sources of energy is moving on schedule. With this encouraging sign, he expressed confidence in the country's ability to see itself through the difficulties arising from the oil shortage.

SULTAN Khalifa Al Hastoor, a leading member of the National Federation Council (Parliament) of the United Arab Emirates called on the President. He is in the country to look into the investment climate in the country.

June 28—

THE PRESIDENT reassured the people that contingency plans have been readied to ease possible difficulties caused by additional increases in the cost of oil. He was reacting to reports that members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) who met in Geneva recently raised the price of oil. The price increases ranged up from a minimum of $18 for the Arabian light crude to $23.50 for top-grade oil. Unbothered by these reports, the President said he will soon call the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) and the cabinet to a joint emergency meeting. The meeting will restudy the impact on the local pricing of commodities of the new round of price increases.

YUGOSLAVIAN Vice President Fadilj Hodza arrived at a warm welcome including full military honors, to start a five-day official visit here. The President and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, throwing aside protocol, welcomed Hodza and his party at the Manila International Airport. The two leaders are expected to concentrate on trade in then-talks.

June 29—

THE PRESIDENT ordered the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) to make a study of the implications of the oil price increase on the entire economy, including its effects on income and price policy. He issued the order in view of the recent price hike of oil by an average of 35 per cent, thereby threatening all oil-importing countries with the grim prospects of a worsening economic crisis.

HUMAN Settlements Minister and Metro Manila Governor Imelda Romualdez Marcos directed all metropolitan mayors to intensify efforts to provide Metro Manila residents with all 11 basic needs for a good life. In a conference with the four city and 13 municipal mayors at Malacañang, the First Lady urged them to initiate more development projects in their respective localities.

THE PRESIDENT received the summary outline for a proposed Executive Order designed to give the two autonomous regions in Mindanao the widest latitude of power and authority. The outline was submitted by Armand Fabella, chairman, of the Presidential Commission on Reorganization, upon instructions of the President who had time and again expressed the desire to set the autonomous governments (Regions 9 and 12) in motion in order to speed up economic development and return to normalcy in the two regions.

July 1—

INFORMATION Minister Francisco S. Tatad, in a three-hour dialogue with administration critics and oppositionists, asked the opposition not to play on the passions of the people by utilizing their present economic difficulties. Speaking to a combined meeting of the Cebu City and Mandaue Breakfast Clubs, he reacted strongly to reports that a ranking member of the opposition had earlier asked the people of Cebu not to pay their taxes as a sign of protest against the continued enforcement of Martial Law. He described the proposal as “unpatriotic, inane and absurd—a disservice to the civic education of our people and a direct assault on the values with which we weave the fabric of the nation.” He said that “the people are being seduced by dangerous ideas,” and asked the members of the two clubs “not to be caught in this game.”

July 9—

THE PRESIDENT received Dr. Hiroshi Nakajima, Regional Director of the World Health Organization for Western Pacific, who called to pay his respects. Dr. Nakajima took over the WHO post last July 1 from Dr. Francisco Dy of the Philippines, who retired after serving with the WHO for 13 years. Dr. Nakajima briefed the President on the continuing programs of the WHO on training for primary health care, malaria control and schistosomiasis research.

July 10—

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, and her multi-sectoral delegation are guests of the Chinese government on a three-day, three-city cultural extension of their successful working mission in Peking. Her escorts on this trip are Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs Han Nien-lung and Chinese Ambassador to the Philippines Chen Hsi-ren. They left Peking the other day from Sian, once the capital of 11 dynasties, and the site of several important archaeological excavations, a city whose fantastic limestone crags have lent their distinction of Chinese landscape paintings. The group will leave for Canton tomorrow for a brief visit to Southern China's most important city, before proceeding to Manila in the afternoon.

July 11—

THE GOVERNMENT, the President said, will import a big quantity of beef and allow the tax-free importation of some 45 essential food items to prevent unreasonable increases in prices of prime commodities. He made the announcement in an interview with newsmen after the three-hour meeting of the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) at Malacañang. He also told newsmen that he just signed the amendment to the Tariff Law allowing the importation of such food items as meat and even tin for canning, free from taxes.

THE PRESIDENT received former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda of Japan, who arrived in Manila recently on the last leg of his tour of ASEAN capitals. During the one-hour conference held at the Music Room in Malacañang, the two exchanged views on the world situation, particularly the economic problem posed by the energy crisis, the Indo-china refugee problem, and Japan-ASEAN relations.

METRO Manila took on a festive atmosphere as it welcomed the First Lady and Minister of Human Settlements Imelda Romualdez Marcos upon her return from a successful six-day official mission to the People's Republic of China. The welcomers were headed by the President who, along with ranking government officials and members of the diplomatic corps, was on hand at the Manila International Airport to greet the First Lady as she emerged from the plane. Addressing the nation on the result of her official mission, she said the President had sent her to Chin with a three-fold mission: 1) to obtain from China's highest leaders a clear understanding of China's outlook on and perceptions of the situation in the region; 2) to seek the cooperation of China in coping with the nation's oil problem; and 3) to see how the Philippines can benefit from participating in China's development program. "I am happy to report that we return from this, my third visit to the People's Republic of China, with our mission accomplished," she said.

INFORMATION Minister Francisco S. Tatad said poor Asian countries must now revise their old concept of development and progress and the rich better heed "the doomsday message of this age of scarcities" before it is, too late. Addressing the second council meeting of the Federation of ASEAN Public Relations, Organizations, Minister Tatad said, "we need a new life style in our developing cities and countryside that recognizes the need for development and progress for people, but without swallowing every attribute given to the idea by the affluent Western Societies.” The poor, like the rich countries, should now begin to live within their means, and there should be some kind of parity between the development of the city and that of the countryside, he said. In the same address, he said the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) is today confronted, with a dilemma on how to proceed as an economic community “without being sucked into a situation that is completely and hopelessly political.” He challenged the public relations practitioners of the region to help propagate “ASEAN as a reality, ASEAN as an emerging way of life, ASEAN as the only alternative to regional rivalries and dissension.”

July 14—

THE PRESIDENT has approved the exportation of 30,000 metric tons rice to Brazil, the first to be concluded with a Latin-American country and the first outside of the ASEAN region. The rice is valued at $298 per metric ton, FOB, Philippine port—the highest price ever among all other previous export transactions made this year. Indonesia and Malaysia, both ASEAN-member countries, were the first buyers of Philippine rice.

July 15—

PUBLIC school teachers will no longer have to buy school supplies for their classes from their own pocket money. Education Minister Juan L. Manuel ordered all local school boards to use part of their funds in buying chalks, erasers, forms and other supplies needed. The move was prompted by complaints of the teachers that they have to use their own money in buying school supplies which are supposed to be given to them free.

July 16—

THE PRESIDENT sought the assistance of Czechoslovakia on the Vietnamese refugee problem. He conveyed the request through Foreign Minister Bohuslav Chnoupek who called on him at Malacañang. In their brief conversation, the President pointed out that the refugee problem is not only a problem of countries in Southeast Asia but the rest of the world. He also expressed confidence that the visit of Chnoupek will strengthen further the relationship between the two countries. He suggested more exchanges of visits between officials of their countries.

PARTICIPANTS in the 25th Session of the; United Nations Joint Staff Pension Board, led by Ambassador Ernesto Garrido of the Philippines and L. Goll, chairman and first vice chairman, respectively, called on the President at Malacañang. They informed the President that, because the pension board, which represents 44,000 members in the UN and its specialized agencies, had accumulated a substantial fund, they are under instructions to study all possibilities of investment in developing countries to a degree higher than before, Goll said that by the time they are ready to leave they shall have made the necessary contacts in Manila to fulfill their instructions from UN Secretary Kurt Waldheim to investigate all investment possibilities.

THE PRESIDENT requested Indonesian President Suharto to hike Indonesian oil shipments here from 20,000 barrels a day to 33,000 barrels and offered to pay for this with Philippine rice of which there are 100,000 tons available. Minutes after President Suharto's arrival at the Manila International Airport, the First Couple whisked the visitor to Puerto Azul in Ternate, Cavite by helicopter where they will stay for the duration of Mr. Suharto's 21-hour visit.

THE PRESIDENT has created a top-level inter-agency committee to draft a comprehensive national alcogas program which is aimed at displacing 15 percent of the country's premium gasoline requirement with alcogas in 10 years. The committee, created through Letter of Instructions No. 888. is composed of the minister of energy as chairman, the commissioner of the Philippine Sugar Commission (Philsucom) as co-chairman, the minister of finance as vice, chairman, and the ministers of agriculture, natural resources, industry and land reform as members.

THE PHILIPPINES and Czechoslovakia concluded an agreement aimed at the expansion of bilateral trade between them. The agreement was reached during the meeting between Trade Minister Troadio T. Quiazon Jr. and Bokuslav Chnoupek, visiting minister of foreign affairs of Czechoslovakia. Among the matters agreed upon was the need for a more balanced trade between the two countries. The Philippines, has always suffered trade deficit with Czechoslovakia since the start of trade relations between the two countries six years ago. The agreement also proposed the establishment of a joint trade commission headed by the trade ministers of both countries which would serve as a venue for discussing and threshing; out common problems affecting trade. The promotion of trade, on the other hand, will be handled by trade offices in Manila and in Prague.

THE PRESIDENT said Indonesia would increase its oil exports here from 20,000 barrels a day to 26,000, meaning an annual increase of 1,825,000 barrels. At the same time, the Philippines will enter into a joint venture to develop Indonesian natural gas deposits, wherein the Philippines will receive 200,000 metric tons of the gas to convert into liquefied petroleum gas or other finished products. In an interview at the airport VIP lounge, after seeing off Indonesian President Suharto, the President told newsmen the oil and natural gas deals were among the main achievements of the two-nation summit which was held entirely in the Puerto Azul beach resort in Ternate, Cavite. He was accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos.

July 19—

ECONOMIC Planning Minister Gerardo P. Sicat assured continued government financial assistance to the development of local waterworks systems which would provide the country's millions of rural folks adequate supply of potable water. In a speech he delivered before the participants in the three-day water district forum being held in Tagaytay City, Minister Sicat said the government equity participation in the Local Water Utilities Administration (LWUA) a government-controlled corporation, has reached P83.6 million this year. Annual government equity allocation to LWUA in the past years totalled to only P50 million. He said the government will continue to tap international lending institutions, like the World Bank and the Asian Development Bank, for the funds needed by the expanded local waterworks program.

July 20—

THE PRESIDENT appointed 27 new generals in the Armed Forces, effective July 11. Elevation of 23 colonels and four Navy captains to flag rank was announced in a letter he sent to Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile. Of the 27, one belonged to the corps of professors, 10 to the Army, seven to the Constabulary, and four to the Navy.

MINISTER of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo said that disruptive effects of hundreds of thousands of Indochinese refugees threatened the stability of Southeast Asian societies, and was already being felt in the Asean countries. In a statement delivered during the two-day United Nations International Conference on Indochinese Refugees and Displaced Persons in Southeast Asia being held in Geneva, he added that unless solutions were found quickly, there would be serious repercussions on economic growth and efforts to erect stable policies—"commensurate with the tremendous potentials of the Asean region." He said that what was needed was a concerted international effort to solve a problem that, although tragic in itself, could have even more tragic consequences.

DEPUTY Governor Ismael Mathay Jr. said a performance audit of metropolitan mayors was going on quietly to do away with "deadway" if necessary. The performance audit was intended primarily to determine whether changes, in the leadership was necessary for a more effective administration in the metropolitan area, he said as he addressed the weekly Manila Bay Breakfast club meeting. He said he had been directed by Metro Manila Governor and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos "to monitor closely the activities of local officials in Metro Manila to find out if these officials have been contributing their share in the implementation of the (Metro Manila) commission's various programs."

DEVELOPMENT Bank of the Philippines has programmed P300 million for the development of rural and depressed areas in Region VIII—the Samar-Leyte area. DBP Acting Chairman Rafael A. Sison said the new DBP thrust was in line with the policy of the President to develop depressed rural areas as food production centers.

July 22—

THE PRESIDENT ordered a 15 percent increase in salaries of personnel of the University of the Philippines. He ordered the release of P10 million to effect the raise immediately. He acted on a petition of employe organizations of the UP. The additional increases will be funded by available UP funds for the first five percent while the remaining 10 per cent will be funded by the Ministry of the Budget.

Official Week in Review: July 23 – July 29, 1979

THE PRESIDENT revamped his cabinet to place the government, he said, in a better position to cope with the present problems out of the oil crisis. The major revamp, the first since he assumed the presidency in 1966, was announced during his opening address at the second session of the Batasang Pambansa. Affected by the reshuffle were seven ministries. The new cabinet appointments included: 1) For the Ministry of Transportation and Communications—Jose Dans with Cesar Zalamea as consultant; 2) Ministry of Education—Dr. Onofre D. Corpuz of the University of the Philippines, vice Juan Manuel, who retired; 3) Ministry of Health—Dr. Enrique Garcia, director of the Quezon Institute, vice Pr. Clemente Gatmaitan, who retired; 4) Ministry of Public Highways—Vicente T. Paterno, industry minister, vice Baltazar Aquino, whose resignation was accepted; 5) Ministry of Industry—Roberto Ongpin, vice Minister Paterno; 6) Ministry of Trade—Assemblyman Luis Villafuerte, vice Troadio T. Quiazon Jr.; 7) Ministry of Justice—Assemblyman Ricardo Puno.

DURING the same opening address, the President also announced seven other appointments, namely; 1) Manager Nereo Andolong of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office, as deputy minister for the Ministry of Sports and Youth Development; 2) Assistant Manager Mario Rama of the PCSO as PCSO manager; 3) Rear Admiral Romulo Espaldon, chief of Southern Command, as concurrent chairman of the newly created Commission on Islamic Affairs; 4) Assemblyman Emmanuel Pelaez as minister of state for foreign affairs; 5) Assemblyman Carmencita Reyes as minister of state for social services; 6) Assemblyman Antonio Tupaz as minister of state for local government and community development; and 7) Philamlife President Cesar Zalamea as consultant to the ministry of transportation. The ministers of state serve principally as liaison between the legislature and the executive branch of the government specifically to the ministries to which they are appointed.

THE PRESIDENT said the economic progress achieved by the country in the last seven years is the key to the reduction to the threat to national security which prompted the proclamation of Martial Law in 1972. This assessment was made by the President in his brief remarks after inducting 26 new one-star generals in the armed forces, nine of whom come from the army. The new generals bring to 77 the number of generals in the AFP.

THE PRESIDENT said protectionism in global trade should be eased and the realization of a more open world market be sought by leaders of Asia and the United States. In a speech delivered at the closing of the first ASEAN–American Business conference held at the Philippine Plaza, the President said the region has started encouraging business communities to follow upon the initiatives of governments and encourage their leaders to propose and put forward mechanisms and arrangements consistent with their goals for closer economic ties. Lauding the setting of the new ASEAN–US Business Council, he said the formation of the council is an invaluable addition to the forum for cooperative endeavor that over the past few years had emerged in support of stronger ASEAN–American relationship.

EXECUTIVE Order No. 546 issued by the President abolished the Bureau of Public Works while the Land Transportation Commission and the Board of Transportation had been absorbed by the newly created ministry of public works and the ministry of transportation and communications. Under the order, the functions of the bureau of public works are transferred to appropriate bureaus, divisions, units or regional offices of the new ministry. Also abolished by the splitting of the old ministry of public works, transportation and communications were the bureau of transportation, the board of communications and the telecommunications control bureau. The Land Transportation Commission has been renamed bureau of land transportation and shall continue to perform its regulatory and enforcement functions, including the registration of public utility vehicles and the enforcement of the decisions of the board of transportation with regards to public utility vehicles. The BOT on the other hand, will now be under the administrative supervision of the ministry and shall continue to exercise the powers and functions entrusted to it by law.

THE PRESIDENT, meeting his reorganized cabinet for the first time, called for an indepth study on the economic situation, with emphasis on a possible rise in unemployment. Officials of the National Economic and Development Authority, who also attended the meeting, were asked to determine if a rise in the unemployment rate was expected, and if it was, in what sectors of the economy. He also asked them to determine the correct inflation rate to anticipate, given the current price movements brought on by the spiralling oil prices.

JUST before the meeting, the President swore into office Dr. Onofre D. Corpuz as minister of education and culture, Dr. Enrique Garcia as minister of health, Roberto Ongpin as minister of industry and Alfredo Juinio as minister of public works.

THE PRESIDENT signed a decree establishing the organizational framework of the autonomous government of Regions 9 and 12 and defining their relationship with the national government. He also issued letters of instructions expanding the powers and duties of regional directors of various national government agencies in the area. These orders would also restructure operations of the Southern Philippines Development Administration to enable it to extend more effective assistance to the autonomous governments.

THROUGH an executive order which the President signed at Malacañang, the Commission on Islamic Affairs was created to serve as a link between the national government and the regional governments. This will be directly under the Office of the President. He administered the oath of office to Adm. Romulo Espaldon, chief of the Southern Mindanao Command, as head of the Commission.

THE PRESIDENT released P1.3 million for the prevention of disability as well as the rehabilitation of disabled persons. He also issued a letter of instructions to Minister of Labor Blas F. Ople to look for ways to eliminate discrimination against disabled persons in employment and salary scales. He issued the directives during the program in observance of the National Disability Prevention and Rehabilitation Week at Malacañang's Heroes' Hall.

THE PRESIDENT said he was confident that the establishment of autonomous regional governments in Western Mindanao and Central Mindanao would finally bring peace, unity and progress in these two regions. He said the regional assemblies (sangguniang pampook) carry the great responsibility of blazing the trail in the employment of regional autonomy as an effective instrument for regional development throughout the country. The President's speech was read by Armand Fabella, chairman of the presidential commission on reorganization, at the inaugural session of the sangguniang pampook of Region 12 at the Chariff Kabunsuan Cultural center at Cotabato City.

THE PRESIDENT decided to hold a referendum in strife-ridden Cagayan province on the issue of local leadership while the leaders of the two factions, Minister of Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and Gov. Teresa Dupaya, stay away from the province. The president decided on the referendum on the recommendation of all concerned, including Minister Enrile, Gov. Dupaya, and the mayors.

THE PRESIDENT created a special committee to help the board of energy make up its mind whether, to increase the prices of oil products such as gasoline, kerosene, diesel fuel, and motor oil. Minister of Energy Geronimo Velasco, appointed to head the committee, was instructed to meet as soon as possible with Chairman Ponciano Mathay on this issue. The President wanted to do away with uncertainties about the rumored price increases. At the same time, he asked for a study for a mass transit system, which might be subsidized by as much as P300 million.

PHILIPPINE National Bank (PNB) has raised its crop loans to sugar planters from the P73 to 79 per picul for crop year 1980–1981 PNB President Panfilo Domingo said the bank is restructuring overdue loans to planters. Defaulted loans in crop year 1978–1979 amounted to 11 percent of the P516 million released by the bank. These moves were taken in response to numerous requests from sugar planters badly hit by rising costs of oil products, fertilizers, and labor.

DEFENSE Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said that development, rather than force of arms, has been the main weapon used by the government in its effort to put an end to the conflict in Mindanao. “Now,” he said, “the government is availing of another recourse—the political measure of establishing the autonomous governments for Regions 9 and 12. New hopes have sprung from this new measure and our people throughout the nation eagerly await the outcome of this new approach to the resolution of the problem.” He delivered the keynote address at the opening in Iligan City of the 11th Mindanao regional conference of the Philippine Jaycees.

MINISTRY of Social Services and Development (MSSD) moved to curb the selling or illegal placement of abandoned children. The ministry ordered all hospitals to report abandoned babies to its branch offices. The MSSD’s action came in the wake of reports that many hospitals in the country were illegally placing abandoned children instead of turning them to the MSSD pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 603. The ministry’s bureau of family and child welfare warned that violators of the adoption law involving abandoned babies could be charged in court and sentenced to at least six months in prison upon conviction.

DEFENSE MINISTER Juan Ponce Enrile said anew that there is press freedom in the country. His assurance came in reply to a query by local mediamen during an open forum following his keynote speech at the 11th Philippine Jaycees Mindanao area conference held in Iligan City. Minister Enrile said no one, not even members of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, except those authorized by the President, can arrest or detain any person in the pursuit of his profession.

August 13—

THE PRESIDENT, through a letter of Instructions, has ordered the National Power Corporation (NPC) and other government authorities concerned to terminate the nuclear power plant contract with Westinghouse International Projects Company (WIPC) if it cannot secure an export license and thereby fail to deliver the nuclear reactor equipment to the Philippines. "Circumstances relating to the nuclear power plant project, more specifically the failure to date of Westinghouse to secure an appropriate export license for the nuclear reactor components, places in serious doubt the ability of Westinghouse to perform its obligations under the NPC-WIPCO contract," the President said.

THE PRESIDENT approved adjustments of power rates of the National Power Corporation effective September 1. In line with the socialized pricing policy of the government, he approved an average increase of three centavos per kilowatt hour in Luzon and one centavo per kilowatt hour in the Visayas and Mindanao for residential customers consuming more than 200 kwh. This means that residential customers using 200 kilowatt hours or less a month will be exempted from the power rate increase. Also exempted from the new power increase are sari-sari stores with a monthly consumption of 90 kwh or less.

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, inaugurated the new ballet studio of the National Arts Center at Mt. Makiling, Los Baños, Laguna. The guest of honor was Natalia Makarova, prima ballerina assoluta. Among the members of the small party was Mrs. Ann Murphy, wife of the American ambassador.

MINISTER of Transportation Jose Dans Jr. said Metro Manila bus operators will get a bigger share of the P400-million transport subsidy to be given by the government to improve the country's mass transit system. The reason for this, he said, is that transport problem is more acute in the metropolis and the provincial operators can still provide an efficient service to their respective commuters. The 1,000 buses procured by the government will first be offered to private operators and the funds to be used in procuring the 1,000 buses would be taken from the P400-million subsidy, he added.

NOMINATION of Felipe Mabilangan Jr. as the new Philippine ambassador to France has been accepted by the French government. He replaces Luis Moreno Salcedo, who had been assigned to Moscow.

August 16—

THE PRESIDENT directed the three-man standing committee of the Cabinet to give priority to pending proposals relating to price levels, production incentives and subsidies and wages. Speaking at the reunion of the United States Armed Forces in the Pacific Northern Luzon held at Malacañang, he pointed out that there is "a need for a new equilibrium on prices and wages." The directive to vie priority to proposals on prices and wages is contained in the five-point guideline which the President gave the "super Cabinet."

THE PRESIDENT elevated the Office of the Solicitor General into a ministry, increasing the number of line ministries to 24. He announced the elevation of OSG into a ministry during his speech at the United States Armed Forces in the Pacific-Northern Luzon reunion in Malacañang. Under Executive Order No. 552, authority and responsibility for the exercise of the powers and the discharge of the functions of the ministry are vested in the Solicitor General, the position of which is held by Minister Estelito Mendoza. The ministry has the same powers and performs the same functions as the Office of the Solicitor General as defined in Presidential Decree Nos. 478 and 1347.

August 17—

THE PRESIDENT underscored the importance of Japan's close association with the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) in the Indochina conflict. He made the remarks in a speech delivered for him by Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo to keynote the two-day second annual Japan ASEAN Symposium sponsored by the Mainichi newspapers at the Manila Hotel. He said it was eloquent proof of Japan's desire to contribute to the lessening of tension through a peaceful solution to the volatile situation which threatens to engulf the rest of Asia.

THE PRESIDENT cited the importance of blending humanism "in military training with the most advanced developments in the military field." He said that "today as never before, the times demand for officers to man the military service who have a deep understanding of the national environment of the economic, political, social and cultural factors that constitute the life of a nation." The President's speech at the commencement exercises of the Armed Forces of the Philippines Command and General Staff college was read for him by Chief of Staff Gen. Romeo Espino.

MINISTER of Human Settlements Imelda Romualdez Marcos said she hoped the country's rice exports to Brazil would increase so that it could help offset the Philippines trade deficit with that country. She presided at the signing of an agreement under which the Philippines would export 40,000 metric tons of rice to Brazil for $11 million. The agreement was signed by National Grains Administrator Jesus Tanchanco and Director Raul Campos of Interbras Cayman Co., a subsidiary of Petrobras, the Brazilian national oil company. This is the first time the Philippines has entered the international rice market outside of Southeast Asian region.

August 18—

THE PRESIDENT directed the picturesque Kennon road be opened to traffic before Sept. 1. The directive was sent to Region I and Benguet district engineers through Highways Minister Vicente Paterno. It said that full-scale work should be started to re-open the closed Kennon road before Sept. 1. Kennon road was closed last August 7 when a mountain slide rolled down and covered some 100 meters of road as a result of heavy rains.

TRADE Minister Luis R. Villafuerte urged Filipino exporters to cooperate with the government, "in the light of bigger national export volumes and goals in the days to come." In a speech at the monthly meeting of the Confederation of Philippine Exporters, Inc., he asked exporters to be part of the solution to the problems, instead of being part of the problems.

HIGHWAYS Minister Vicente Paterno stopped the negotiating of contracts with private construction firms for road and bridge projects. He said the government itself would undertake repairs or construction of emergency projects, since a letter of jurisdiction which followed negotiated contracts for emergency projects was not being followed strictly. He also said he was shifting the Highways Ministry's emphasis from construction to maintenance, particularly on repair methods, inspection and routine work on drainage and canals, to make roads last longer. He spoke during the "Meet the Press" program of the National Press Club along with Health Minister Enrique Garcia.

August 19—

THE PRESIDENT ordered his special three-man Cabinet team of trouble shooters which is composed of Minister of Finance Cesar Virata, Minister of Highways Vicente Paterno and Minister of Budget Jaime Laya, to clarify the confused picture created by conflicting reports on the outcome of the two-day tripartite conference on wages at Puerto Azul, Ternate, Cavite. He directed the special Cabinet team to submit a report on the matter to him immediately. At the same time, he also ordered the committee to obtain confirmation of statistics that might have been used in the study of the tripartite conference.

THE PRESIDENT said that negotiated contracts for public works involving more than P300,00, except in emergency cases, have been prohibited since January this year. The reminder was the presidential reaction to a directive of some ministers who ordered a ban on negotiated contracts. The President called attention to Letter of Instruction No. 794, dated January 19, 1979, which provides that all civil works of the national government and government corporations costing more than P300,000 each shall be advertised for public bidding and the contract awarded to the lowest bidder. In the case of contracts costing more than P300,000 these shall only be undertaken by the agency concerned or through negotiated contract in cases of urgent necessity or in time of natural calamities where immediate action is needed to prevent imminent loss of life or property. In this instance the contract still has to be approved by the head of the ministry, if the project costs less than P1 million, and by the President upon recommendation of the ministry head concerned, if he costs exceeds P1 million.

THE PRESIDENT approved an additional monthly allowance of P2,500 for each member of the Batasang Pambansa. With this additional amount, an assemblyman now receives P10,000 a month in salary and allowances. He has a salary of P5,000 and previous allowance of P2,500 for his staff. In addition, a Batasan members is entitled to travel expenses to and from his province for those living outside Metro Manila or a quota of 400 liters of gasoline, tax free at P2.30 per liter per month for those living in the metropolitan area.

THE PRESIDENT signed a decree raising the emergency monthly allowance of private company employees by P60 effective Sept. 1 and P30 by next January. He also issued a letter of instructions directing the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) to prepare a program that would encourage greater production of commodities. He also instructed the NEDA to study policies on investment, incentives, credit and matters related to production and employment creation. He took these moves in response to the recommendation of the tripartite conference held at Puerto Azul in Ternate, Cavite recently.

A PHILIPPINE task force on refugee assistance and administration under the Ministry of Human Settlements, with the minister as chairman was created by the President. The task force includes 11 other Cabinet members—the members of foreign affairs, national defense, public works, public highways, local governments, natural resources, health, agriculture, education and culture, transportation and communications, and social services and development. The President's Executive Order No. 554 creating the task force coincided with a call on the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos by Otto Gobius representing the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), and Victor Beermann, senior consultant to the UNHCR.

AMERICAN Congressman Joel Pritchard and Norman Dicks called on the President and expressed satisfaction both with the handling of refugees here and conditions in the bases under the amended bases agreement.

THE PRESIDENT conferred the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Datu, on outgoing Ambassador Filip Tomulesco of Romania in recognition of his services in the international field. The ceremony was attended by members of the Cabinet and the diplomatic corps.

THE PRESIDENT signed a decree penalizing the use, possession or unauthorized sale to minors of “volatile” substances which disturb any person's normal functions. The decree defines the “volatile substances as any liquid, solid or mixed substance that releases toxic vapors or fumes containing certain chemical compounds which when sniffed, exhaled or introduced into the body produce intoxication inebriation, excitement, stupefaction, dulling of the brain or nervous system, depression, giddiness, paralysis or irrational behavior or in any manner changing, distorting or disturbing the auditory, visual or mental processes. The decree makes mere possession liable, to imprisonment from six months to four years and a fine ranging from P600 to P4,000. However, an accused can seek the suspension of his sentence and confinement in a rehabilitation center for drug addicts upon admission before the court of his addiction.

DR. WALTER Althammer, a member of Parliament of the Federal Republic of Germany and deputy chairman of the Hans Seidel Foundation of Munich, called on the President at Malacañang. Dr. Althammer is on his way back to Germany from China where he led a 12-man delegation.

August 23—

THE PRESIDENT ordered a review of existing economic policies to spur production and growth of various local industries. This directive was issued to NEDA Director-General Gerardo P. Sicat in a letter of instructions he sign after addressing the Batasang Pambansa on the state of the nation's economy. The NEDA review will look into areas directly affecting various industries, especially with regard to credit availability, government incentives and taxation.

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda Romualdez Marcos formed a super-committee which was given up to Sept. 21, and Nov 11 at the latest, to put Metro Manila in order. "In order" means the rehabilitation of damaged streets and sidewalks, arrangement of the unsightly tangle of wires and cables above the ground and the dredging and beautification of Metro waterways.

MRS. Julita C Benedicto was inducted by the President as acting chairman of the National Commission Concerning Disabled Persons (NCCDP). A member of the NCCDP board of commissioners, Mrs. Benedicto succeeds Justice Corazon Juliano Agrava of the Court of Appeals Justice Agrava has resigned due to pressure of work at the Court of Appeals.

SOLICITOR General Estelito Mendoza said that the special committee on naturalization has approved 2,740 petitions for Philippine citizenship by decree. He said the approved petitions, which were filed mostly by Chinese, included 31 petitions for repatriation, 352 applications of wives, and 421 petitions for minor children of naturalized citizens. The newly approved petitions bring to 19,327 the number of Philippine citizenship granted to applicants through decree since December when the first batch of 2,802 petitions for naturalization by decree was approved by the government.

THE PRESIDENT has told military commanders that before approving arrest orders on suspected subversives, including members of religious groups, they must first be fully satisfied with the evidence presented as a basis for the arrest. He made this clear at a meeting with military commanders at Malacañang, during which he exhorted the military commander to stress to the men in their commands the need to maintain friendship and cooperation with priest, ministers, preachers, and other religious leaders. He said AFP personnel must exercise restraint and be polite and patient with the citizenry, including religious groups.

LABOR Minister Blas F. Ople said that Aug. 26, the fourth Sunday of the month, observed as National Heroes Day, is a regular holiday. He said that consequently, employees are entitled to their regular daily wage if they don't report for work on that day and twice their rate of pay if they work.

RAMADAN came to a close ending the period of fasting for the 2.5 million Filipino Muslims. In Manila, Quiapo was the center of religious festivity where 26,000 Muslim followers converged at the golden mosque built two years ago. Datu Mamadra, special assistant to Ambassador Lininding P. Pangandaman, said most of the 26,000 Muslims live in Metro Manila. "It is a very special event for all of us, Muslims, because we all thank Allah for having sustained us for a fasting over a period of one month," said Datu Mamadra.

THE PRESIDENT inducted Transportation and Communications Deputy Minister Don M. Ferry as concurrent acting chairman of Board of Transportation succeeding Court of Appeals Justice Leopoldo Abellera and Lt. Col. Mariano Santiago as director of the new Bureau of Land Transportation replacing Romeo Edu, at ceremonies held in Malacañang.

THE FIRST Couple congratulated Jaime Cardinal Sin, Archbishop of Manila, for the acceptance of Pope John Paul II of his invitation to visit the Philippines later this year. The President also asked Cardinal Sin, since Pope John Paul II is also a head of state, if the Philippine government could have the privilege of extending to him the “usual ceremonies for his welcome and stay” which the President said are given to visiting heads of state on a state visit.

THE PRESIDENT ordered the construction of a national memorial to honor the “great number of our national heroes.” He issued the order in his brief remarks at the wreath-laying at the Libingan ng mga Bayani in Fort Santiago in observance of National Heroes Day. He said the national memorial will be built at the reclamation area on Roxas blvd. and with government funds and contributions from the people. He deplored that the Philippines does not have a national memorial for its heroes.

September 3—

THE PRESIDENT acted to rationalize the coconut oil milling industry to insure a reliable supply of coconut products at stabilized and competitive prices in the world market and to assure farmers of a reasonable and steady return for their produce. In Letter of Instructions No. 926, the President affirmed that it is the policy of the state to promote the rapid integrated development and growth of the coconut and other palm oils industry in all aspects and to insure that the coconut farmers become direct participants and beneficiaries of such growth and development. He pointed out that the coconut industry is one of the major earners of foreign exchange for the country and its continued survival, growth and development is therefore, vital to the national economy.

CERTAIN land areas were declared by the President as wilderness and directed their closure to any form of commercial exploitation or similar activities. He said his action, contained in Letter of Instructions No. 917, was intended to achieve the government objectives on national security, the enhancement of a healthy and wholesome environment, as well as the maintenance of adequate water supply for hydropower generation, irrigation, industrial and domestic lands, and the prevention of floods, droughts, excessive soil erosion, and surface runoff.

THE BATASANG Pambansa approved on third and final reading the P39.8 billion national budget for 1980 which is P5.6 billion more than the current budget. Earlier, the Batasan also approved on second reading the two remaining tax measures intended to help support the national budget—Cabinet Bill No. 22, also known as the energy tax bill, and Cabinet Bill No. 25, also known as the omnibus tax bill.

THE BATASANG Pambansa approved on final reading three of four tax measures recommended by the government for enactment to raise about P230 million additional revenue to support the national budget for 1980. The chamber also passed on final reading Cabinet Bill No. 13 requiring the compulsory registration of foreign agent in the country.

THE GOVERNMENT limited the employment of foreign nationals in the hotel industry to prevent aliens from edging out qualified Filipino workers. The move was contained in a joint circular signed by Labor Minister Blas F. Ople, Tourism Minister Jose D. Aspiras and Immigration Commissioner Edmundo M. Reyes. Under the circular, alien workers may be employed only as general manager, food and beverage manager, executive chef, executive sous chef, sous chef, pastry chef, especial chef and butcher. However, these workers may be hired in four other positions only on a consultancy basis and for a limit period. The positions are for restaurant manager, engineering consultant, sales and marketing director, and foreign sales account manager.

September 5—

THE BATASANG Pambansa passed on final reading the Omnibus Tax measure (Cabinet Bill No. 25) intended to generate P100-million to help support the P39.8 billion national budget. The approval of the bill is expected to stop the connivance of unscrupulous revenue collectors and taxpayers in either undervaluation or misdeclaration of taxes due the government. The tax bill, which is the last of the four tax measures recommended by the President for Batasan enactment, revises several provisions of the National Internal Revenue Code to plug loopholes for the commission of malpractices.

THE PHILIPPINES and the United States governments agree to continue operations of the US veterans' administration in this country. The new agreement was signed at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs with Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo signing for the government. The agreement would extend medical grants-in-aid until September 30, 1981 to eligible Commonwealth army and recognized guerrilla veterans who served during the war.

September 6—

THE PRESIDENT expanded the membership of the three-man Cabinet standing committee to include Economic Planning Minister Gerardo Sicat and Industry Minister Roberto V. Ongpin. Presiding over a three-hour joint meeting of the National Economic and Development Authority and the Cabinet, he has decided to expand the committee into five to enable it to tackle effectively the problems brought before it, especially those affecting the nation's economy.

MSGR. BRUNO Torpigliani, papal nuncio to the Philippines, called on the President at Malacañang. He was accompanied by Jaime Cardinal Sin, AFP Vicar General Mariano Gaviola and Mrgr. September 7—

THE PRESIDENT signed Batas Pambansa Blg. 40 providing for a national budgetary program of P39.8 billion for Calendar Year 1980. He also signed into law: 1) Batas Pambansa Blg. 36 imposing an energy tax on electric power consumption; 2) Batas Pambansa Blg. 37 amending certain provisions of the National Internal Revenue Code and imposing additional requirements for allowable deductions on income taxes; 3) Batas Pambansa Blg. 38 consolidating the provisions on travel tax by amending certain sections of Presidential Decree No. 1183, as amended; 4) Batas Pambansa Blg. 39 regulating the activities and requiring the registration of foreign agents in the Philippines; and 5) Batas Pambansa Blg. 41 amending certain sections of the National Internal Revenue Code by subjecting to the final tax capital gains deprived from the sale of real property.

ADDRESSING the opening session of the two-day Eight ASEAN Economic Ministers Meeting at the Manila Hotel, the President called for a stronger and more positive steps to provide a better life for the people of the ASEAN countries. He particularly called attention to several matters aimed at strengthening ASEAN Economic cooperation such as acceleration of intra-ASEAN trade, encouraging private participation, and promoting economic cooperation among developing countries (ECDC). However, the President emphasized, ASEAN has a strong foundation for meeting the challenges and "am confident that with our firm commitment to the establishment of the Zone of Peace, Freedom and Neutrality in Southeast Asia, the stability of our region will be preserved."

September 8—

THE PRESIDENT announced the release of P10 million for loans this year to small fishermen under the "Biyaya ng Dagat," credit program, a Masagana 99-type plan. During his tour of Bulacan where he inaugurated electric power service for 11 island barrios, he said the P10 million is only the start of "Biyaya ng Dagat," which would eventually loan out P850 million to some 600,000 fisherman in the next five years.

AT THE same time, the President also: 1) Appointed Assemblyman Teodulo Natividad, a native of Bulacan, as minister of state for justice. He administered the oath of office to him before a group of fishermen; 2) Directed Deputy Minister of Public Works Aber Canlas to hasten the construction of the Labangan channel to prevent floods in Central Luzon; 3) Approved the construction of a fish landing complex in Tibagin, Hagonoy which will have cold storage facilities similar to the one in the fish complex in Navotas, only on a smaller scale; 4) Activated symbolically the Agus II hydroelectric power unit in Saguirayan, Lanao del Sur. It would increase the output of the two Agus units from 60 to 120 megawatts; 5) Announced the release of P20 million to import sardines; 6) Directed Minister of Public Highways Vicente Paterno to designate the Angat-Norzagaray-Bustos, Plaridel highway as a priority project by making it part of the Philippine-Japan Friendship highway; and 7) Announced the release of P200 million for building barangay roads and said he might include the construction of farm-to-market roads in Bulacan.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

THE PRESIDENT declared he would call for “local elections for all local officials” within the next 18 months, which he called crucial with respect to the economic crisis. This would be the first time local elections are held in the Martial Law regime—which the President said he had earlier planned to end this year, but decided to postpone because of the economic crisis and the international situation. He explained it was necessary to use some Martial Law powers to keep the people united “to do battle with this new danger.” Speaking at the Armed Forces of the Philippines Loyalty Day rites at Camp Aguinaldo, he urged all, “including those who do not wish us well, to join hands to preserve for our children what you and I are striving to preserve.”

THE PRESIDENT, in a wide-ranging speech, also: 1) Reiterated his basic policy that the government would not condone abuses by men in uniform, whether there is Martial Law or not; 2) Ordered the release of all detention prisoners against whom no charges have been filed up to now; 3) Decreed that no arrest, search and seizure orders would be issued without the approval of the President, unless the accused is caught in flagrante delicto (in the act of committing a crime); 4) Revealed that all military tribunals would be phased out as soon as possible; 5) Granted amnesty to more than 15,000 prisoners charged with various crimes; and 6) Promoted 1,400 officers of the AFP.

THE BATASANG Pambansa unanimously approved on third and final reading a bill amending the charter of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO). It was the first bill filed by the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos and the first measure passed by the assembly without a single negative vote or abstention. The bill now goes to the President to be signed into law. After enacting the measure, the Batasan adjourned until Oct. 22. All standing committees, however, will continue working during the recess.

THE GOVERNMENT Service Insurance System (GSIS) has extended its “on-line” loan services to 38 additional government ministries, offices, and corporations that have updated membership records and remittances to the GSIS. GSIS President and General Manager Roman A. Cruz, Jr., said that officials and employees of 38 state instrumentalities may now be served on-the-spot on their salary loan needs.

THE PRESIDENT issued Proclamation No. 1893 declaring the entire Metro Manila area as Urban Land Reform Zone. He took this historic step, the second land reform edict since PD 27 was signed on October 21, 1972, in a bold move to confront the progressively deepening problem of unregulated use and unlimited ownership of urban land. The proclamation is in accord with PD 1517, signed on June 11, 1978, which proclaimed urban land reform in the Philippines and provided for the machinery to carry it out. Section 4 of said decree calls on the President to proclaim specific parcels of “urban and urbanizable lands” as urban land reform zones. Upon their proclamation, the Ministry of Human Settlements shall draw up appropriate development and zoning plans.

THE PRESIDENT described as “very inspiring” the mass rally in honor of his 62nd birthday at the Luneta and pledged to work for the welfare of the people with more dedication. In an interview with newsmen at the Heroes Hall in Malacañang, he expressed elation over the participation of some two million people in the rally at the Luneta. He said that he was surprised at the large crowd “and it is not even a holiday.” People from all walks of life, including-government officials and employees, barangay members, students and plain citizens went to the Rizal Park as early as 5 a.m. to participate in the rally.

The President approved a uniform Position Classification and Pay Plan for 14 government corporations belonging to the infrastructure and utilities group. The pay plan, approved through Letter of Implementation No. 97 covers adjustments in basic salary, allowances and fringe benefits of 36,239 employees belonging to transport, power, infrastructure and water utilities firms, namely; The Philippine National Lines, Philippine Aerospace Development Corp., Philippine National Railways, Metro Manila Transit Corp., National Power Corp., National Electrification Administration, Cavite Electric and Development Authority, National Irrigation Administration, Philippine Ports Authority, National Housing Authority, Farm Systems Development Corp., Philippine Tourism Authority, Local Water Utilities Administration, and Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System. According to Budget Minister Jaime C. Laya, the pay plan, when fully implemented, will incur an additional cost of P25 million per month and involve increases in compensation from 17 to 98 percent.

THE PRESIDENT said that it is the policy of the administration to strengthen the governments of Regions 9 and 12 in Mindanao so as to make them truly autonomous. He received members of the Sangguniang Pampook of the two autonomous regions who informed him that their regional assemblies are already operational. Headed by Nur Hussein Ututalum and Abdul Khayr Alonto, the assembly members presented the President with reports of their accomplishments since the two legislative bodies were constituted last June 12. Congratulating them for having managed to operate at minimum expense, the President urged them to give priority to infrastructure projects like barangay roads, farm-to-market roads, irrigation systems and other projects designed to increase production. He added that the main thrust of government activity today is productivity and energy, he enjoined the Sanggunians to contribute their share in the solution of national problems.

JUDGE Advocate General's Office was directed by the President to stop hearings on the case involving former President Macapagal for alleged rumor mongering and inciting to rebellion. Earlier, the President has asked the JAGO to explain why hearings on the case were set. The JAGO informed the President that the hearings were called in connection with Macapagal's application for clearance to travel abroad and in view of the pending charges against him. The President directed that no hearings on the case be conducted but the former president should instead be merely "invited" to give his side on the charges. Macapagal may or not attend the inquiry. The President explained that "invitations" of this nature are a routine procedure in connection with applications for travel clearance of persons facing charges.

September 13—

THE PRESIDENT directed the Ministry of Human Settlements to conduct public hearings on his order making Metro Manila an urban land reform zone. He said that the views expressed during the hearings will help guide the ministry in formulating policies and guidelines for the ULRZ program. He wants the hearings to start after the seventh anniversary of the proclamation of Martial Law on Sept. 21. To be invited to the public hearings are big and small landowners, real estate developers, tenants and the general public.

THE PRESIDENT said he would consider lifting Martial Law, either fully or partially, after 18 months if the economic crisis and the peace and order situation in Mindanao do not worsen. In an interview with foreign and local journalists in Malacañang, he said the next 18 months are crucial not only for the Philippines but also for other countries because of the oil price increase. He stressed that he has no intention of maintaining the crisis government indefinitely. In the same interview, he also: 1) Scotched rumors that the peace and stability of the country is being threatened by a civil war similar to what had happened in Nicaragua; 2) Reiterated the government has no intention of expropriating lands in Metro Manila, but merely to place the lands under a proper regulatory system and thus stop the various evils spawned by land speculation; 3) Explained that the Spratlys are part of a trusteeship and do not allow their occupation and exploitation or administration by any country and that the islands—called Kalayaan—that have been occupied by the Philippine government in the area are not part of the Spratlys; 4) Denied a reported move to nationalize coconut oil mills; 5) Said that options on the establishment of a refugee center nearer Manila are being considered to cut down on cost of transportation which uses up 50 percent of the outlay for the maintenance of refugee centers.

HIGHWAYS Minister Vicente T. Paterno announced in a press conference that the President, through a proclamation, had changed the name of the 1,230-kilometer Pan Philippine Highways which stretches from Allacapan, Cagayan to Davao City, to Maharlika Highway. Minister Palace said the word Maharlika, which means “noble,” would characterized the Filipinos themselves and would underscore the role of P2.3 billion highways as “a road to freedom and to a better tomorrow.”

TRANSPORTATION Deputy Minister Don Ferry, concurrent chairman of the Board of Transportation, said the country’s 80,000 tricycles operating along national highways and main streets of the urban areas will be banned starting Sept. 24 and relegated to the side streets. He said the move will decongest traffic flow and assure the safety of the riding public.

ENERGY Minister Geronimo Velasco who heads an official delegation in Brazil, said will provide technical help to the Philippines in developing the use of alcohol as automobile fuel. During a press conference in Brazil he said the Philippines planned to buy Brazilian made Volkswagen vehicles equipped with alcohol-burning motors. Or perhaps, he added, the Philippines would produce Volkswagens on its own, with the help of Brazilian technology and equipment.

September 15—

THE PRESIDENT granted executive clemency to 410 persons, upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole. Of the number, 18 were given absolute pardon, 254 conditional pardon, and 138 commutation of sentence.

HIGHWAYS Minister Vicente Paterno ordered a nationwide inventory of equipment and spare parts of the highway ministry in an effort to uncover anomalies involving overpricing and missing equipment and spare parts. The ministry’s equipment and spare parts are kept in its six regional equipment depots, base shops and area shops.

THE PRESIDENT has ordered recently the publication, free of the usual P1,000 fee, of the work of creative writers. Pointing out that it is about time that something be done to encourage creative writing in this country, he: 1) Directed the National Media Production Center (NMPC) to allocate 15 percent of its output to the publication of literary works also upon certification as such by Writers’ Union of the Philippines (WUP); 2) Donated P100,000 to the Creative Writers’ Center of the University of the Philippines and directed the Ministry of Public Works to provide three-two-story pre-fabricated buildings for the center to be put within the UP campus; and 3) Made a personal contribution of P50,000 for the Writers’ Union of the Philippines of which he is a member. During the testimonial dinner he and the First Lady tendered at Malacañang in honor of the nation’s writers in connection with the three-day first Filipino literary festival, the President was presented with a scroll citing him for his “vital and prodigious contribution to the progress of Philippine society and letters.”

DEVELOPMENT Bank of the Philippines stepped up its food production drive in the countryside in line with the program of the President to extend credit facilities to people living in depressed areas as a means of improving their livelihood. The DBP recently approved the granting of, among others, agricultural financing assistance to a rice milling project in Davao del Sur and a mushroom canning plant in Baguio. The rice milling project loan is extended under DBP-IBRD grab processing and storage program while the mushroom canning plant is assisted under the bank’s small and medium industry program.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 17—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, were unanimously chosen as recipients of the first two highest Balangay Awards for their outstanding services to the barangay. The President will receive the first and only all-time Golden Salakot Award while the First Lady will be the recipient of the first annual Silver Salakot Award. Supreme Court Justice Antonio Barredo, chairman of the Balangay Awards national board of judges, said the President will be cited for founding and looking after the welfare of the barangay and for being the moving spirit of the nation's smallest political unit. The First Lady will be honored for, among other accomplishments, founding the barangay brigades.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, in a meeting at Malacañang with Metro Manila mayors, said the country's 15-million school children will take to the streets on Sept. 21, seventh anniversary of the proclamation of Martial Law, to demonstrate their "faith in the future." Starting at 7 a.m., the Filipino youth from Cagayan to Davao will line the 2,100-km. "Daang Maharlika" with ipil-ipil seedlings. "It is but fitting and proper for the country's school children and out-of-school youth to plant seedlings along the highway which physically unites the Filipino people for the first time," Mrs. Marcos said.

MINISTER of the Budget Jaime C. Laya said some P900 million would be set aside for a 10 percent salary increase for about 700,000 government workers beginning next year. The increases according to him were computed in a projected 10 percent increase in the cost of living index next year as reflected in the consumer price index. This would enable government workers to cope with rising prices. At the same time, this would result in placing government pay on par with salaries in the private sector.

MALACAÑANG announced the appointment of Presidential Assistant Victor G. Nituda as acting commissioner of the Commission on Immigration and Deportation during the absence of Commissioner Edmundo Reyes. Secretary Nituda has been associate commissioner since 1970.

MALACAÑANG also announced that the National Thanksgiving Day on Friday, Sept. 21, is a non-working nationwide special holiday. This announcement was made in response to numerous queries reaching Malacañang whether it is a working or a non-working holiday. The day also marks the seventh anniversary of the proclamation of Martial Law.

September 19—

THE PRESIDENT said he will continue to uphold academic freedom in the University of the Philippines in line with the government's efforts to maintain the state university's standard of education. He made the pledge in his brief remarks after the oath-taking of Emmanuel V. Soriano as new UP president. Soriano took over from now Education Minister Onofre D. Corpuz.

AFTER the oath-taking of Emmanuel V. Soriano, the President swore in Associate Justice Carolina Griño Aquino of the Court of Appeals.

THE PRESIDENT, through Letter of Instructions No. 933, approved the energy priorities plan (EPP) jointly proposed by the Board of Investment (BOI) and the Ministry of Energy. The plan seeks to develop or manufacture non-conventional sources of energy. To implement the plan, the President directed the BOI and the energy ministry to classify all projects under the EPP as pioneer preferred areas of investment. The classification will entitle project proponents to full government incentives such as tax holidays or tax-free importation of raw materials. At the same time, the BOI was also directed to set aside procedural requirements to speed up registration or implementation of EPP projects.

September 20—

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, recently penned the lyrics of a short marching song entitled “Maharlika” on the occasion of the seventh year anniversary of the proclamation of Martial Law. The song is brief but beautiful. It emphasizes the fact that it was “only under the New Society that the Filipinos have been freed from colonial influences.” Mrs. Marcos said that “Maharlika symbolizes the new Filipino who is proud of his race and has no identity crisis.” The music was composed by Prof. Lucio D. San Pedro.

September 21—

THE PRESIDENT called for unity, as he pledged determination to nurture the New Society, which is seven years old today. He sounded his call for unity as he and the First Lady led the nation in observing the seventh anniversary of the New Society by kicking off the tree-planting along the Daang Maharlika (previously known as Philippine-Japan Friendship Highway). In his brief remarks at the Philippine Trade. Exhibit site in Roxas Boulevard, he said that the country has come to a turn in its destiny and that the people must decide once and for all whether they have the stamina, resolution, and the personal and national courage to continue what they started on Sept. 21, 1972.

THE FIRST Couple motored from Malacañang about 8 a.m. and proceeded to the Philippine Trade site to usher in the tree-planting along the Daang Maharlika, passing by the Luneta to view the mass calisthenics by about 4,000 young men and women. From the Philippine Trade Site where they planted an ipil-ipil tree each, they proceeded to Malacañang where an estimated 2,000 members of the Kabataang Barangay were waiting to give a cultural presentation symbolizing their various programs, and presented the First Lady with symbolic products of a progressive society, including bread, hog and poultry, as well as loaves of bread. Following the program, the First Couple, who were accompanied by their daughters Imee and Irene, toured the KB exhibits showing various inventions by KB members. Later, the President held a 30-minute dialog with the younger sector of society.

September 22—

THE PRESIDENT, during his recent nationwide Pulong-Pulong TV broadcast, gave the assurance that former Sen. Raul Manglapus, a leader of the opposition living in America, may come back to Manila any time with a safe conduct guarantee from the government. He said that Manglapus could come home and look around, and if he did not feel like staying, he could go back to his friends in the United States. The former senator, however, has never made any feelers about wanting to come home. He went to America just before Martial Law was proclaimed and never came home since.

SOUTHERN Command Chief and Commissioner of Philippine Islamic Affairs Romulo M. Espaldon disclosed that a full-scale development of the fishing industry in Western Mindanao is expected with the P340 million loan granted recently by the Norwegian government for the region’s integrated fishing program. He made the announcement during the 27th anniversary celebration program of Zamboanga del Sur. He said the amount would augment the Philippine government’s current “Biyaya ng Dagat” project in Southern Philippines which carries an appropriation of P500, 000. He added that the loan would be used for the acquisition of enough failing equipment like fishing boats, nets, and gears as well as the establishment of ice and cold storage facilities.

September 23—

MINISTRY of Finance has reclassified 11 municipalities of Davao del Norte on the basis of average income realized during the last four consecutive fiscal years, as certified by the Commission on Audit. Reclassification of the 11 towns shall be the basis for determining the maximum amounts expendable for salaries and rates, representation allowances, administrative aids and other statutory contribution in the adoption of their annual budgets, as well as the maximum salary rates of local government officials and employees in accordance with existing laws and regulations. Reclassified one degree higher were the towns of Asuncion, Carmen, Compostela, Kapalong, Mabini, Mawab, Nabunturan, Panabo, Pantukan, Santo Tomas and Tagum.

President's Week in Review: September 24-30, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 24—

THE PRESIDENT served an ultimatum on corrupt Bureau of Internal Revenue personnel to reform voluntarily or face the consequences of being sent to jail. Summoning 2,500 BIR officials to Malacañang, he warned that “it would be a very sad duty for me to prosecute those men and send them to jail but I will be compelled to do so unless in the next several months there is a change in the conduct of these officers and men of the BIR.”

ACTING on the recommendation of the first amnesty commission of the armed forces, the President granted amnesty to 51 former members of the defunct Northern Mindanao Revolutionary Command of the Moro National Liberation Front. The former rebels were under the command of Abdul Khayr D. Alonto, former vice chairman of the MNLF central committee.

September 25—

THE PRESIDENT declared that real estate sales in non-developed areas, which cover 90 percent of Metro Manila's land area, could be transacted as before—without any need to report them to the Ministry of Human Settlements. However, he said, there are three types of land which cannot be sold or developed without permission of the said ministry. They are: 1) Open areas in the Metropolis; 2) Blighted areas, such as slums; and 3) Areas where infrastructure would be developed.

THE FIRST LADY and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda Romualdez Marcos asked the PC Metrocom to assign policemen to see to it that the waterways being cleaned by “river aides” are not dirtied up again. She asked Brig. Gen. Prospero Olivas, Metrocom chief, to assign at least one policeman to each banca of river aides. She noted that after the Pasig river and esteros are cleaned, “it's frustrating to see filth scattered anew after a few minutes.” The order was issued during a follow-up meeting of the super-committee of Metro Manila with Mrs. Marcos at Malacañang.

OWNING or importing piranha, a man-eating fish, now fetches a fine ranging from P500 to P5,000 or a prison term of six months to four years, at the discretion of the court. It used to be illegal to own or import piranha, as provided for in Presidential Decree No. 702, but no penalties were prescribed for these acts. Fisheries Director Felix Gonzales made the recommendations when his office could not impose any punishment on a Tondo pet shop owner recently discovered to have acquired piranha for sale.

September 26—

THE FIRST Couple started the day with a breakfast with Peter Blaker, minister of state for foreign and commonwealth affairs of the United Kingdom. During the three-hour meeting with Blaker, matters of mutual interests were taken up.

THE PRESIDENT suggested safeguards in the construction of refugee processing centers which are expected to be located either in Bataan or Ulugan Bay, Palawan. The safeguards include the use of construction materials that are available locally and strong enough to withstand erosion caused by bad weather or tropical climate. He made the suggestions during the call of Victor Beermann, senior consultant to the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. Beermann called at Malacañang to say goodbye to the President before returning to Geneva where he will submit his recommendations on the construction of facilities for refugees. He was accompanied by Manfred Paeffgen, UNHRC representative to the Philippines.

RETIRED Brig. Gen. Francisco A. Joves was inducted by the President as chief of mission, Class 2, and ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary.

September 27—

THE PRESIDENT granted amnesty to 1,455 detained subversives and 147 others facing charges on common crimes in the spirit of unity and compassion. It was the second time this month he granted amnesty to detainees who have been confined in various military camps throughout the country. On the eve of his 62nd birthday, he ordered the release of 705 of them.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, promised to help in the immediate release of P3 million in government funds for improvement in Cebu City. She said the President had set aside 3-1/2 percent of the proceeds from the Manila Bay Casino to help Cebu City. The Land Bank will give a P24-million loan to Cebu City for its other programs, she said. She made the announcement during the inauguration of the Cebu Eco-Technology Training Center, the Labangon BLISS project and the Human Settlement Children's Park.

THE PRESIDENT declared he would implement 11 major industrial projects in the 1980's—all designed to provide the basic industrial infrastructure of the economy. In a speech delivered before the University of the Philippines Law Alumni Association at the Philippine International Convention Center, he named these projects: 1) Heavy industry (fabrication of machinery for alcogas, cement, refineries, heavy equipment, and so forth); 2) An integrated steel mill; 3) A petrochemical complex; 4) A copper smelter; 5) A phosphatic fertilizer plant (assigned the Philippines by the ASEAN); 6) An aluminum smelter; 7) Diesel engine manufacturing; 8) An integrated pulp and paper industry; 9) Expansion of the cement industry; 10) Rationalization of the coconut industry; and 11) Development of non-conventional sources of energy. He invited the public to invest in these projects estimated to cost about $6 billion.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos arrived in Cebu City to inaugurate the P4.5-million Ecological Technology Livelihood Community Center built primarily to check ecological imbalance in Central Visayas provinces and Mindanao. The site, a 12-hectare lot inside Sudlon Agricultural College compound in Lahug, is a joint project of the Ministries of Education and Culture, Human Settlements Technological Resource Center, and Technological Research Foundation, Inc. She also inaugurated 50 housing units of BLISS in Labangon and Human Settlements children's playground at Fort San Pedro put up by Aboitiz Foundation Inc. During "her speech at the Eco-Tech. Center, she announced the release of P3-million on orders of the President to finance more city development projects and approval of the President for Cebu City to start receiving regular shares from proceeds of Manila Bay Enterprises Inc. which operates a floating casino in Cebu City.

September 29—

MINISTRY of Agriculture announced that it is ready to embark on alcogas production based primarily on cassava. Agriculture Minister Arturo It. Tanco, Jr., said the ministry has prepared cassava seed pieces of improved varieties enough for 1,500 hectares. In 18 months, there will be enough seed pieces for the 5,000 hectares contemplated in the cassava project. He added that feasibility studies in Brazil indicate that cassava roots have a greater potential as raw material in alcohol production than sugarcane.

BUREAU of Internal Revenue posted a collection of P10.83 billion for the first eight months of the year representing an increase of 25 percent compared with the same period last year of P8.63 billion. In a memorandum-report to the President. Acting Commissioner Efren Plana also reported that for the month of August, total collection reached P1.253 billion compared with P971.2 million for the same month last year, representing an increase of 30 percent. The acting commissioner expressed optimism that for the remaining four months, revenue collection will also substantially increase and collection might reach if not exceed the collection goal this year of P15.2 billion.

September 30—

THE PRESIDENT ordered the cancellation of all forest and timber concessions in Negros Oriental. His action was made upon the representation of the people of Negros Oriental to the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, during her recent trip to the Visayas. The order which was issued to Director Edmundo V. Cortez of the Bureau of Forest Development, was to take effect immediately.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, has just returned from an inspection trip to Cebu, Dumaguete and other points in the Visayas in connection with the Bagong Lipuian Improvement of Sites and Services (BLISS).

LABOR and management agreed on a four-point consensus to improve working conditions of nurses and other health personnel throughout the country. The agreement was readied at the closing rites of the tripartite conference on nurses at the Army and Navy Club. Labor and Management also agreed to give the President a free hand to decide the wage issue. The four-point consensus follows: 1) A joint recommendation for the immediate enactment by the government of a Magna Carta of the rights and obligations of nurses and other health care personnel; 2) Workers in non-profit institutions shall have the right to self-organization and collective negotiation; 3) Two additional members representing labor shall be appointed to the Board of Directors of the Philippine Medical Care Commission; and 4) Fifteen to 20 percent of the professional fees of physicians, to be paid through the hospitals, shall go to a special hospital fund to be apportioned to labor and management.

UNITED States Ambassador Richard W. Murphy recently inaugurated the Capitangan water system in Bataan, one of a number of joint Philippine-American projects designed to improve the general health, productivity and the quality of life of rural inhabitants. As guest speaker at the ceremony, he congratulated the people of Capitangan saying that, "the barangay water system will serve as an example for other communities to follow. It is an encouraging force because it shows what can be accomplished when a community pulls together."

Deputy Minister Salvador Socrates of the Ministry of Local Government and Community Development who also attended the ceremony, hailed the project as significant because it is an important vehicle for melding national, local government and community resources in the achievement of Philippine development goals.

NATIONAL Cottage Industries Development Authority (NACIDA) Administrator Mario R. Reyes said entrepreneurs should make full but judicious use of government incentives such as financing and tax exemptions to generate jobs and foreign exchange savings and receipts. In a statement directed to producers and exporters for the Cottage Industry Week, he said the government has consistently induced the growth of cottage industries.

President's Week in Review: October 1-7, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 1—

THE PRESIDENT gave Commissioner Efren Plana of the Bureau of Internal Revenue two days to reorganize thoroughly his bureau—reaching down to the levels of division chiefs and group supervisors. He said the commissioner's duty would be to separate the good revenue men from the bad and to base the revamp on two lists already drawn up, one containing the names of those with good records and the other containing names of "undesirables." The revamp involves 17 directors of the BIR regional offices, plus 91 regional district officers.

MEETING some members of his Cabinet at Malacañang, the President expressed grave concern over reports that middlemen dealing in vegetables, fruits and fish were making excessive profits "far too large" to the detriment of the consuming public. He warned that the government itself would market these commodities to protect consumers if the middlemen do not cooperate on stopping the rise, in prices of consumer goods. He directed Agriculture Minister Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., to meet with these middlemen and get them to maintain a reasonable margin of profit in order to keep down prices. The First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, was one of those who reported the profiteering. She had been undertaking surveys of prime commodities in her recent visits to the provinces.

SECURITIES and Exchange Commission (SEC) ordered the immediate adoption of a Securities Industry Protection Fund to insure stock market investments against default or fraud committed by securities brokers and dealers. SEC Chairman Angel Limjoco, Jr., activated the protection fund after the flight of Manila Stock Exchange broker Enrique Santamaria recently. The protection fund has already been set up but has remained dormant because securities brokers and dealers could not agree on the amount of their contribution.

THE PRESIDENT has ordered the abolition of a three-man special Cabinet committee involved in the investigation of complaints for anti-graft filed against elective and appointive government officials. The order is contained in Memorandum Order Mo. 665 issued recently. The abolition of the anti-graft probe body had earlier been recommended by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile following the creation of the Tanod-bayan. The members of the committee are Defense Minister Enrile, who is the chairman, Local Governments Minister Jose Roño and Justice Minister Ricardo Puno who took over from the then Justice Minister Vicente Abad Santos who is now a Supreme Court associate justice.

THE PRESIDENT directed the senior officers of the Integrated National Police, headed by PC Chief and Director General Fidel V. Ramos to support the move of the various sidewalk vendors associations, retailers and sari-sari store owners and independent merchants to clean up the mess from "tong" collection allegedly involving some city hall employees and police officers in Metro Manila. In a meeting with Ismael Mathay Jr. special assistant to the Metro Manila governor, Polly Cayetano, president of the recognized market vendors association and senior officers of the INP headed by Maj. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, the President also instructed Mathay to supervise and participate in pinpointing and prosecuting city hall employees involved in the mess. He also told police officers present that it would not appear good if he calls on other investigating agencies to do this. In this connection, he pointed out the necessity for the INP to clean up its ranks, adding that there should be no sacred cows.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, announced that Plaza Miranda and the arteries leading to it will shortly become a hawker's paradise. She instructed Manila City Engineer Romulo del Rosario to complete the plans for a "vendor's paradise" within two weeks. The plan includes the construction of uniform stalls to accommodate many hawkers who will be occupying Plaza Miranda, Carriedo, Villalobos and Evangelists streets, which will be closed. The announcement was issued during her inspection tour of Metro Manila and in the wake of reports on an anti-sidewalk vendors campaign.

CENTRAL Bank reported that the consumer price index in Metro Manila registered its biggest monthly jump during the year in August as it leaped by 3.5 percent and pushed the annual inflation rate to 23.2 percent. The big jump in consumer prices during the month reflected the price movements triggered by the rise in the prices of oil products which, in turn, influenced the retail prices for the other basic commodities.

JUNK dealers selling purely junk items are exempt from securing clearance or permit to sell used second hand articles as provided for by Sec. 6 of Presidential Decree No. 1612, otherwise known as the Anti-Fencing Law. This ruling is contained in a circular issued by Maj. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, chief of the Constabulary, to all PC and INP, commanders, including the PC Metrocom units. Junks as construed by PD 1612 Gen. Ramos said, means worn out and discard materials which have outlived their usefulness such as old newspapers, caps, bottles, cans, refuse pieces of iron usually collected from garbage cans or clumps or bought by ambulant buyers from households for conversion into other products of either the same or different kind. He added that "junk dealer" shall be construed to mean any person or establishment dealing in the buying of "junk" for sale not to the general public but to a clientele who recycle these items to useful articles. However, he said, should they also engage, in the buy and sell of used second hand articles other than junk as defined in the circular, they should secure a permit as required by Sec. 6 of the Anti-Fencing Law.

BEER-making industry will be listed back as an overcrowded industry after the Board of Investments (BOI) selects the first and only competitor of San Miguel Corporation, the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) said. The selected company could be wholly-owned by Filipinos or owned by foreigners to the extent of 30 percent. The relisting of the brewery trade was recommended by the Investment Coordinating Committee (ICC), a NEDA agency chaired this year by Finance Minister Cesar Virata. This same body deleted beer brewing from the list of overcrowded industries in a meeting last July SI, 1979. Its decision was later forwarded to the President, chairman of the NEDA, for his review and approval.

DIRECTOR Felix Gonzales of the Bureau of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources (BFAR), urged fish canners to look for sources of fish other than the Navotas fish market. He urged them to put up their own fish production units. He said that if canners get their fish supply from sources other than the Navotas market, prices of fish in Metro Manila would considerably go down. At present, local canners produce every year 22,000 tons of canned fish or 43 percent of the total demand for canned fish. The remaining 57 percent or 29,000 tons is supplied by importers.

October 3—

THE PRESIDENT directed all government officials concerned to maintain periodic dialogues with leaders of jeepney drivers and operators for the purpose of finding out their problems and helping formulate solutions to them. In a meeting with some 500 representatives of jeepney drivers and operators at Malacañang, he said he would like to seek their cooperation in flushing out members of the Metro Manila police reportedly engaged in "tong" collection and extortion.

October 4—

THE PRESIDENT ordered that P800 million in government funds be made available to cottage industry producers and exporters for loans at low interest. He issued the order to the Ministry of the Budget and the Ministry of Finance in a speech before the 7th National Conference of Cottage Industry Producers and Exporters sponsored by the Chamber of Cottage Industries (CCI) at the Maharlika Hall in Malacañang. Some of the P800 million will come from available funds under previous appropriations acts, many of which have already become idle, such as the fund for retailers and the fund for raw materials, the President said. To help administer the fund and draw up the guidelines for its lending, he reactivated and expanded the cottage industry development council, now headed by Labor Minister Bias F. Ople, chairman of the National Man power and Youth Council.

October 5—

IMPLEMENTING the "Biyaya ng Dagat '79" lending program, the President turned over to Bulacan fisherman Claro Martinez of barangay Pamarawan, Malolos, the first check for P14,700. Martinez who played host to the President at breakfast last Sept. 8, was granted a loan of P15,000 for the purchase of fishing gear, payable in five years at 10 percent interest, from the Community Bank of Paombong, Bulacan. A two-percent service fee had been deducted from the amount of the loan.

THE FIRST Lady and Minister of Human Settlements, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, briefed members of the diplomatic corps on the establishment of the refugee processing center in Morong, Bataan. She told the foreign diplomats that the establishment of the center “is one project on which there could be no disagreement because it answers one of the most elemental needs—survival or life itself.” The processing center, located in a 300-hectare valley seven kilometers north of Morong, is two hours and 15 minutes by car from Manila, or 25 minutes by helicopter. The center, which will accommodate 50 000 refugees at any one time, will be constructed in stages, the first of which will be for 10,000 refugees scheduled for completion in December, and the second for 40,000 to be finished by April 1980. The center will be a self-contained community, complete with all social and medical facilities to provide community housing for refugees awaiting final entry into recipient countries.

October 6—

MONEY supply at the end of August totalled P16,244 million, posting a P608 million or 3.6 percent decline from the preceding month’s level, the Central Bank reported. The decrease during the month was largely attributed to the P848 million contraction in externally-generated money which more than offset the P240 million expansion in money of internal origin. Compared with the level a year ago, that month’s money stock, however, reflected an increment of P1,463 million or 9.9 percent.

October 7—

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, during a working dinner at Malacañang recently, cited seven roles she envisioned for the Pasig River. There are: 1)) Mode of transportation starting from Laguna de Bay down to Fort Santiago; 2) Source of income and livelihood; 3) Decongest Metro Manila’s traffic; 4) Fishing ground for the “miracle fish” aptly called Gintong Biyaya (Golden Bliss); 5) Catch-basins of excess water or flood control; 6) Sports and cultural center; and 7) Tourist spot. She appointed Admiral Hilario M. Ruiz as project officer of the Pasig development program.

President's Week in Review: October 8-14, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 8—

THE PRESIDENT told rural electric cooperatives to develop their own self-reliance programs and not to continue depending on the National Power Corporation whose generated power will be needed for industrialization. He made this admonition when he signed the new charter of the National Electrification Administration which is designed to give the NEA added stature, funds and power. Under the new charter, NEA's capitalization is increased from P2 billion to P5 billion, and its borrowing authority from $500 million to $800 million.

DURING a dialogue with senior editors and deskmen of the print and broadcast media at Malacañang, the President disclosed that all senior officials in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, with the exemption of Revenue Commissioner Efren Plana, who would supervise the revamp, would be replaced in the impending revamp of the said government agency. Those to be affected by the revamp, according to the President, are deputy and assistant commissioners, service chiefs, regional directors, regional district officers and senior examiners. Commissioner Plana, upon his request, will be allowed to go back to the Court of Appeals after supervising the revamp.

DURING the same dialogue, the President also: 1) Directed the members of the Cabinet to prepare data books on government policies concerning their respective ministries to serve as guides for the print and broadcast media; 2) Disclosed that there are plans to reorganize all government boards, particularly the Board of Censors for Motion Pictures; 3) Directed the ministers to give regular briefings to journalists to acquaint them with government policies.

THE PRESIDENT said that even though the country has no space industry to speak of, advances in medical science and technology associated with the conquest of space have had their everyday applications from which even developing countries have benefitted. He cited the medical monitoring which had been developed for astronauts; it is now being used on patients in the intensive care units of modern hospitals as example of such application of space medicine to everyday life. He made these observations in a speech read for him by Dr. Pacifico E. Marcos, chairman of the Philippine Medical Care Commission, during the 27th International Congress of Aviation and Space Medicine at the PICC.

THE PRESIDENT, meeting with 12 of the nation's biggest corporations, offered more incentives for export-oriented industries particularly for those who would set up trade offices in foreign cities. He said these trade offices would start the export acceleration campaign, to be patterned after those of Japan, South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Singapore. The industrial leaders called this move timely in view of the productivity campaign. They said the trade offices would pave the way for new export markets.

TWO new deputy ministers of education and culture were sworn into office by the President. They were Dr. Abraham Felipe who assumed a newly created position of deputy minister and Hermenegildo Dumlao who replaced the retired Deputy Minister Narciso Albarracin. Also sworn in by the President was Antonio Carpio as general manager of the National Development Co., to replace Constancio Farinas, who remains as member of the NDC board of directors.

INFORMATION Minister Francisco S. Tatad clarified news items which made it appear that Commissioner of Internal Revenue Efren Plana was among those being replaced by the President. He said that Commissioner Plana will not be among those "to be ousted" in the projected revamp in the BIR but will be allowed to go back to the Court of Appeals. It was not "uniformly fair to BIR Commissioner Efren Plana who was lumped together with the other BIR officials" expected to be affected by the revamp, Minister Tatad added.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, said no vendors will be displaced in the drive to turn Plaza Miranda and the streets leading to it into a hawkers' paradise. "We are rushing the Plaza Miranda projects to accommodate all the vendors," she said. "We are not going to ease out any vendors because they have every right to live and earn a living." Barring unforeseen circumstances, the hawkers' haven to be named "Kabalikatan ng Bagong Lipunan," will be ready before the end of the month. The streets to be closed to vehicular traffic for the vendors aside from Plaza Miranda are Villalobos, Evangelista, Carriedo and R. Hidalgo. The streets around the Quiapo mosque, Globo de Oro and Gunao, were set aside by the First Lady for the exclusive use of Muslim vendors.

KUWAIT, which supplies about a fifth of the Philippines' crude oil supply, has raised the price of its crude by 10 percent, from P19.49 to $21.48 per barrel. Initial computations of the Board of Energy indicate that the increase may raise local gasoline prices by roughly two centavos per liter. However, the BOE said, the Kuwaiti increase can be easily absorbed by the local companies. The two previous price order of the BOE—one last July and another last August—set up a fund to compensate the oil companies for any raise in their cost of importing crude oil up to a certain level. The fund, which comes from a collection of 9.4 centavos per liter of all petroleum products sold by the oil companies—is called "crude cost equalization differential."

October 10—

THE PRESIDENT, speaking before participants in the first seminar of the Islamic Affairs office of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, called on Mindanao leaders to "stop this blood-letting and internecine strife in the south" and to bond together and work for the country's welfare. He said the time has come to put aside partisan interests and petty rivalries. The establishment of the two regional autonomous governments in Mindanao, he said, marks the beginning of a complete overhaul of society in the Muslim areas. These governments are crucial in the attainment of a lasting peace in the south. He pledged to direct all his efforts and powers to make sure that these governments would succeed, thereby letting the Muslim shape their own destiny. The First Couple were presented plaques of appreciation for what they have been doing for the Muslim communities.

October 11—

ACTING Chief Justice Claudio Teehankee, through a circular he issued recently, instructed CFI, city and municipal judges to order the release without bail of temporary detention prisoners accused of light felonies or criminal offenses punishable with six months' imprisonment and/or a P2,000 fine. Such judicially-ordered release of detention prisoners, however, must comply strictly with the conditions imposed by Republic Act 6036 which provides that instead of bail, the qualified prisoner shall be required to sign in the presence of two witnesses of good standing in the community a sworn statement binding himself, pending final decision of his case, to report to the Clerk of Court hearing his case periodically every two weeks. Among those excluded from the privilege are recidivists, previous escapees, sentence dodgers and those who have jumped bail before.

October 12—

THE PRESIDENT limited participation of national government personnel in the rural service to bureau directors, assistant directors, division chiefs and those with special skills. In case of employees working in government-owned or controlled corporations, only those in the third, fourth and fifth levels shall participate. The same holds true for those employed in the cities and municipalities in Metro Manila, Cebu and Davao. Through an unnumbered letter of instructions which took effect immediately, the President said that the rural service, also known as Paglilingkod: Bagong Lipunan will depend mostly on the perspective, maturity and special know-how of the participants.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos left for New York where she will address the United Nations General Assembly and take up various issues with some foreign delegations. This will be her fourth speech before the 152-member world body. The President and a large crowd of officials and friends saw her off at the Manila International Airport.

THE PRESIDENT moved to stop the hoarding of dollars abroad by ordering eight government agencies to immediately check the reported undervaluation or misdeclaration of exports. The directive was given to the ministries of finance, trade and natural resources, under which the bureau of forest development and bureau of mines operate, the Central Bank, the Philippine Coconut Authority and the Philippine Sugar Commission.

October 14—

PAYMENT of salary adjustments was ordered by the President to not more than 15 percent for officers and employees of 10 government financial institutions effective as of May 1 this year. Known as the uniform classification and pay plan, the scheme will be carried out on the basis of the assets and profitable performance of each institution. Benefitted by the adjustments are officers and employees of the Central Bank, Development Bank of the Philippines, Government Service Insurance System, Home Financing System, Land Bank, Philippine Amanah Bank, Philippine Deposit Insurance Corp., Philippine Veterans Investment Development Corp., Philippine National Bank and the Social Security System.

THE COUNTRY has attained self-sufficiency in corn during the last crop year, the President announced. He made the announcement after he received a report from Agriculture Minister Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., on corn production from July 1, 1978, to June 30 this year. According to the report the country produced a record 3,167,000 metric tons of corn during the last crop year. This meant the country raised about 11 percent more than the previous year's production of 2,855,000 metric tons. The President after receiving the report, directed the Ministry of Agriculture to gear the country for export of yellow corn principally to Taiwan and Japan.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 15—

THE PRESIDENT called on Asia's accountants to help small and medium-scale industries to strengthen the industrial foundation of their countries and the region. He also called for a change from financial accounting to the more relevant practice of managerial accounting. Addressing the delegates to the 9th Confederation of Asian and Pacific Accountants meeting at the Philippine International Convention Center, he urged that the CAPA be strengthened so it can become the arbiter of a standardized and highly professional regional accounting system.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, challenged the 152-member countries of the United Nations to draw up programs in waste recycling as a means of raising funds for programs to save the starving children of the world. Speaking before the 34th session of the General Assembly in celebration of the International Year of the Child, she told the countries which have more "to go outside their wall of affluence" and do something concrete for the two-thirds of the world's children "who are hungry, in pain and ignorantly languishing in physical and moral decadence and poverty." She said that all it takes is compassion and the willingness to invest in socially-oriented projects.

THE PRESIDENT announced seven major actions to boost Philippine exports. In a two-hour meeting with 500 exporters at the Heroes Hall at Malacañang, the: 1) Created a Bonded Export Marketing Board through Executive Order No. 565, with the wide ranging function to develop new exports products; 2) Eased rules to speed up processing of tax credits and refunds on duties exporters apply for; 3) Ordered removal of marginal deposits on imports used by export industries; 4) Abolished the 4 percent tax on shrimp and prawn export; 5) Ordered the Philippine Export and Foreign Loan Guarantee Fund to allot more funds to small and medium-scale industries which are exporting; 6) Ordered the transfer of registration of export producers and traders from the Philippine Export Council to the Board of Investment.

MAHARLIKA Lullaby, a lilting song espousing the values of Godliness, patriotism and love of fellowmen among the young, has been composed by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, for the country's children. Competed during the two nights she worked on her speech, The Right to be Human, which she delivered before the UN General Assembly recently, the song is the second she has composed in a month. The first was written last September entitled Maharlika, a marching song with music by Prof. Lucio D. San Pedro.

BUREAU of Internal Revenue released the revenue regulations governing implementation of the energy tax on electric power consumption. The regulation provides that the energy tax imposed shall apply to every family dwelling unit whose energy requirements are serviced and measured through only one electric meter issued and installed by an electric power utility company. The graduated rates are as follows: 1) Not over 650 kilowatt-hours (kwh.) exempt; 2) Over 650 kwhs but not over 1,000 kwhs.—P0.10 per kwhs. in excess of 650 kwhs. 3) Over 1,000 kwhs but not over 1,500 kwhs.—P35.00 plus P0.20 per kwh in excess of 1 000' kwhs. 4) Over 1,500 kwhs.—P135.00 plus P0.35 per kwh in excess of 1,500 kwhs. The regulations take effect immediately and shall apply on electric consumption of residential consumers whose monthly billing periods start on Sept. 7, 1979 and thereafter.

THE PRESIDENT, speaking at the annual Barangay awards presentation at Malacañang, called the country's barangay type of democracy more free, direct and participative than other forms of democracies. Reviewing the achievements of barangays throughout the country, he described the barangay as the life of the national reform movement which has resulted in improving the way of life of the people. At the ceremonies he presented trophies and cash awards to 13 outstanding barangay captains from different parts of the country who were presented to him by Vicente Besa, president of the Philippine Jaycees, and Mrs. Nora Z. Petines, PKB national president.

ENERGY Minister Geronimo Z. Velasco, after conferring with the President on the implications of the reported Iranian move of cutting off its oil supply to the Philippines, said the country is prepared to step up local oil production, produce more alternative fuels and buy oil from other sources. He stressed that he does not expect any oil shortage as a result of the reported cut-off. Iran is committed to deliver to the Philippines about 10,000 barrels daily for 1979. So far, it has shipped about 1.8 million barrels since April. A cut-off in deliveries at this point will mean 800,000 barrels of crude oil less to the national stock, Minister Velasco said. The Ministry of Energy estimates this to be less than one percent of the country's total oil imports of roughly 80 million barrels for 1979. Minister Velasco, however, stressed that "the government has not yet been officially notified about that reported cutoff."

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, who heads the Philippine delegation to the 34th session of the United Nations General Assembly, received Richard Holbrooke, assistant secretary of state for East Asian affairs. They discussed matters of mutual interest to both countries. Later, she also attended the plenary session of the General Assembly.

THE PRESIDENT lauded the 12 outstanding farmers of Asia and the Pacific, stressing that their contribution to free trade and productivity is 'the key to the solution of world inflation and unemployment. In brief extemporaneous remarks at the award ceremonies for the farmers held at the ceremonial hall of Malacañang, he singled out the awardees, Saying: "All government and states are now concerned with inflation and unemployment, but if everybody were to have your industry and your initiative, there will be no problem of unemployment, and if there is true productivity there will be no inflation." The 12 awardees are Ian Jones of Australia (hog raiser), Bernard Duncan of New Zealand (sheep raiser), Roy P. Duenas of Guam (poultry raiser), Hashin Bin Mat of Malaysia (rice farmer), Akihiko Hiradate of Japan (rice farmer), Wan Sik Kin of Korea (rice farmer), Ezharul Hague Chowdhury Of Bangladesh (rice farmer), Tok Chen Kah of Singapore (hog raiser), Don Wilfred Weragoda of Sri Lanka (hog raiser), Hilarion de la Cruz of the Philippines (rice farmer), and Karo Vali of Papua New Guinea (coffee grower). The Philippine Jaycees and the Jaycees International were commended by the President for initiating the project of giving recognition to people regardless of race or creed, who set examples in agriculture.

THE PRESIDENT disclosed recently that several foreign corporations have shown interest in the search for oil as the Philippines gets set to drill 30 to 50 inshore and offshore wells this year to increase local oil production and offset the increasing cost of crude oil. During a dinner he hosted in honor of the officials and directors of Marcopper, a company supported by foreign investors, he said this could be attributed to the¹ discovery of new oil deposits in the Nido complex, which, he said, promises to increase production above the present 41,000 barrels daily.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romuladez Marcos, met with senior executives of major multinational corporations doing business in the Philippines who assured her of their continuing confidence in the stability of the Philippine government and the economy despite recent adverse publicity on the Philippines. They said they still find the country a profitable investment area. The First Lady dropped in unexpectedly at the Philippine Center on Fifth Avenue during the monthly meeting "of the Philippine-American Chamber of Commerce board of directors and spoke with the businessmen for about half an hour. Earlier in the day, she attended the third and last plenary session of the United Nations" General Assembly on the national programs of action for the International Year of the Child.

CRIMES committed with the use of unlicensed or illegally possessed firearms will now be tried by military courts and will no longer be bailable. This directive was issued by the President through Letter of Instructions No. 947. The directive amends Letter of Instructions No. 772 which directs the transfer to civilian courts of cases involving crimes perpetrated by the use of firearms and at the same time allowing the respondents to post bail.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, received an assurance of funding support from the United States government for the Indo-chinese refugee processing centers being put up by the Philippine government. Ambassador Richard Clark, US coordinator for refugee affairs, called on Mrs. Marcos and informed her that the United States would like the contract for the administration of the refugee centers be signed as soon as possible. Mrs. Marcos told him that the cost for the operation of the processing centers has already been agreed upon by the Philippine government and the UN High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR). She said that although no funds have yet been released by the UN Commission, the Philippine government has gone ahead and set up the refugee camps.

October 20—

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, briefed recently a Manila bound trade mission from Rhode Island on the economy of the Philippines with emphasis on its export-oriented program. It was the second business group she met since she arrived in New York to address the UN General Assembly. In an hour-long talk with Thomas R. DiLuglio and Joseph Lombardo, leaders of the 25-man trade mission, she expounded the country's resources and literacy rate, making it a vast source of skilled manpower. She also asked the group what products it would be interested in. DiLuglio replied that handicrafts and dried fruits are among the most popular items Rhode Island businessmen import. Mrs. Marcos instructed Alfredo Agustin, trade representative of the Philippines in New York, to see to it that mission members are placed in contact with right parties.

THE PRESIDENT cited three-objectives in balancing government efforts and resources between big and small scale industries. These are: 1) Lessen imports of certain basic raw materials by producing them locally to save on foreign exchange; 2) Make full use of existing productive capacities to improve volume, quality and competitive price through modernization of land facilities; and 3) Build "downstream" projects to produce raw materials for manufacture or export instead of depending only on second stage processing facilities. The President said he was compelled to clear up the picture because of the resulting confusion in the interpretation of his announcement made last month before the UP alumni gathering.

MORE than 300 doctors who make up the nucleus of the Philippine Communities Executive Council in the eastern United States were urged by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, to "be proud you are Filipino. We have so much to be proud of, especially now." The doctors were the second group of Filipinos specially invited to the Philippine Center during the First Lady's current working visit in New York to open up a regular channel of dialogue between Philippine officials and Filipinos working in the US.

TIN can manufacturing was deleted from the list of overcrowded industries, Economic Planning Minister Gerardo P. Sicat announced in a speech he delivered before members of the Management Association of the Philippines. He also disclosed that the investment coordinating committee (ICC) which he co-chairs with Finance Minister Cesar Virata, is finalizing a new set of guidelines that will determine the inclusion and deletion of investment areas from the list of overcrowded industries.

THE PRESIDENT assured three foreign delegations that the Philippines is interested in tapping their countries' scientific and technical knowledge in furthering economic cooperation. He thanked the Finnish trade delegation led by Minister for Foreign Trade Esko Rekola, the French agricultural delegation led by Secretary of Trade for Agriculture Jacques Fouchier, and the Rhode Island trade delegation headed by Lt. Gov. T. Diluglio, who called at Malacañang for their efforts to promote economic and agricultural cooperation between their countries and the Philippines.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, received the commitments of officials of the "state and agriculture departments of the United States government, the USAID, the World Bank, the Rural Electrification Agency and The National Rural Electrification Cooperatives Association, of increased technical and financial assistance of the Philippines' rural electrification program. Prior to her informal talk with said officials she addressed the officials of the Cosmos Club on Massachusetts ave. during a luncheon hosted by Maj. Gen. Robert Partridge, NRECA executive vice president.

FINANCE Minister Cesar Virata, Economic Planning Minister Gerardo P. Sicat and Acting Internal Revenue Commissioner Efren I. Plana were directed by the President to draw up the mechanics of the tax on gross income tax scheme which would serve as the basis for the discussion by the Batasang Pambansa of the gross income taxation. In his speech before the Batasan recently, he asked the legislature to restructure the country's tax system, paving the way for the adoption of a tax based on gross instead of net income.

COCONUT oil and copper exports displayed remarkable increases for the first nine months of the year. According to a Central Bank report, coconut oil exports rose by 67 percent to $530.06 million while copper, enjoying higher prices, increased by 66 percent to $395.1 million. With these gains, exports of all coconut products grew by 40.9 percent to $731 million and mineral products, 51.5 percent to $395.1 million. These increases pushed total export receipts for the nine month period by 31.7 percent to $2.75 billion from $2.09 billion for the same period last year. Sugar and sugar products increased by 34.8 percent to $175.9 million for the same period while forest products hit $329.8 million, representing an increase of 51.6 percent. Electronics posted the biggest gains with 82.3 percent to $74.8 million as it continued to overshadow the accomplishments of garments which still accounted for the bulk of non-traditional manufacture exports with $187.2 million, representing an increase of 34 percent over $139.7 million for the same period last year.

CUSTOMS Commissioner Ramon J. Farolan said port collections as of October 19 totalled P8.8 billion, surpassing the target of P8.7 billion set by the Ministry of the Budget. "Barring major hitches, this year could be a banner year for the customs collection efforts," he said. He attributed the increase to intensified collection and the anti-smuggling drive of the government.

October 24—

THE PRESIDENT reiterated the government policy of encouraging joint ventures of local and foreign investors, especially in pioneer areas. He told Robert Bryant, president of Dobbs Houses, Inc., which had entered into a joint venture with the Sulo group, that the government has always encouraged foreign participation in economic development. Dobbs Houses, Inc., is reputedly the second largest airline catering operator in the United States, and the world's largest air terminal operator with over 250 restaurants all over the world.

JUSTICE Minister Ricardo C. Puno was ordered by the President through Letter of Instruction No. 946 to decongest and improve conditions in national prisons and correctional institutions "with emphasis on rehabilitation and inmate productivity." The President also said that priority attention should be given to Metro Manila jails with the support of the Metro Manila jail project jointly initiated by the Ministries of Human Settlements and Justice.

THE PRESIDENT formally announced the holding of elections for the regular Batasang Pambansa in May 1984 and that the tenure of office of its members shall be for six-year term—from 1978 to 1984. He made the announcement at the end of a two-hour KBL caucus at the Heroes Hall at Malacañang which he presided over as KBL chairman. In the afternoon, the Batasan acted immediately to restore the 1,600 positions of vice governors and vice mayors.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, had a 45-minute conversation with US Vice President Walter Mondale at the White House. The talks centered mostly on the security situation in Southeast Asia in the light of the recent developments in Indochina. They also discussed the proposed refugee processing center to be set up in the Philippines as a first asylum for those fleeing Indochina. She came to Washington for the second day in a row to meet with officials of the US State Department, the Pentagon, and members of Congress.

US ASSISTANT Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke recently called on the President at Malacañang. During their three-hour talk, they discussed the situation along the Thai-Kampuchea border. The US official who had just arrived from a personal inspection of Thailand's troubled areas, briefed the President on the border incidents, the plight of the Kampuchean refugees and the action taken by the US to help Thailand cope with the situation.

DFPUTY Prime Minister Brian Talboys of New Zealand gave the Association of Southeast Asian Nations his government's "fullest assurance" that his country would remain a "steady, reliable friend and partner in the testing time ahead." He said that the Vietnam-Kampuchea conflict which threatens the peace and security of Southeast Asia, has served to underline the "political interests" shared by New Zealand and the five non-communist ASEAN countries—Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, Singapore and the Philippines. He flew in to Manila for a four day visit.

THE PRESIDENT declared Nov. 2 and 3 (Friday and Saturday) as special public holidays to give the people an uninterrupted four-day holiday during the observance of All Saints Day, Nov. 1.

October 27—

THE PRESIDENT assured the country's estimated 14 million workers of better income despite the economic crisis brought about by the oil price increases. He gave this assurance in a speech read for him by Local Government Minister Jose Roño on the 25th anniversary and 6th National Congress of the Associated Labor Union being held in Cebu City. He said that "again, as in the first crisis, the government is ready to promote the expansion of food production so that the farmers, who compose the overwhelming majority in this country, can have higher income, so that the consumers, particularly the wage-earners, can buy food at lower prices, because of its abundance." The government, he said, has already appropriated P1 billion for the expansion of fish production. Despite inflation, he reiterated "the government will not suspend development programs but press on it."

WITH the death of South Korean President Park Chung-hee, Asia and (be whole world have lost an able leader. In a message to the Republic of Korea, through the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, he said that the Philippine government and the Filipino people extend their profound condolence to Park's family and the people of South Korea.

October 28—

THE COUNTRY'S economic growth measured by the gross national product (ONP) slowed down to 5.7 percent during the first six months this year, compared to 6.2 percent during the first half of 1978, Economic Planning Minister Gerardo P. Sicat said. The GNP is the total value of goods and services produced in the economy during a given period. Despite the slower growth during the first semester, Minister Sicat said he is optimistic that the rate will reach six percent to 6.5 for the whole of this year. He said the optimistic projection is based on the continuing favorable performance in several growth areas such as food production, mining, exports and the oil sector.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 26—

THE PRESIDENT, during a chance meeting with Malacañang reporters after the luncheon he tendered in honor of New Zealand Deputy Prime Minister Brian Talboys, said that if all goes well in the next 18 months, he would "consider the matter of lifting martial law." Asked if there is a relationship between martial law and the 1984 national elections, he said "this is something which has no relationship at all." He cited the 18 months period on the basis of the analysis of world economic experts that the current economic crisis would settle down after a year and a half.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, spoke before some 8,000 Filipinos representing a majority of the 150 Fil-Am Community organizations in the bay area at the St. Francis hotel in San Francisco and an equal number at the Hilton hotel of Los Angeles. In her speeches, she lauded the Filipino immigrant who sends a small portion of his earnings in America to relatives in the Philippines. "You are the true heroes abroad, who in your own little way serve as the standard bearer of the Philippines' good name, unlike those oligarchs who bleed the country dry and then keep and spend their money here," she said.

THE PHILIPPINES and the United States concluded the ten years of tariff and trade negotiations with the signing in Malacañang of a new agreement reducing duties on Philippine exports by 65 percent while granting only 5.7 percent duty reductions for US exports to the Philippines. The agreement also provides for the opening of more opportunities and market abroad for local products. President's Week in Review: November 5-11, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

THE PRESIDENT appointed 34 officials to the Tanodbayan of Manila to strengthen the organization for the speedy dispensation of justice. Of the 34 officials appointed, 11 were named prosecutors, 12 investigators, one director for legal office, one director for the prosecution and investigation office, and nine legal officers. Manuel G. Herrera has been appointed director of the Tanodbayan prosecution and investigation office.

JUSTICE Minister Ricardo C. Puno ruled that the Manila Electric Co. (Meralco) and other power firms must pass on to their customers the savings derived from the franchise tax reduction benefits granted to electric utilities by Presidential Decree No. 551 in the form of reduced power rates. The decree which was promulgated on Sept. 11, 1974, aims to ease the burden on consumers of electricity caused by rising cost of fuel oil. Minister Puno issued the opinion in answer to a query by the Board of Energy acting chairman who wanted to know whether Meralco can defer passing on to its customers such savings until the BOE shall have determined that the electric firm's rate of return on its investment has exceeded the rate recognized for public utilities which is 12 percent.

THE PRESIDENT started the reorganization of the Bureau of Internal Revenue by accepting the resignation of 65 officials and employees, including the two assistant commissioners and promoted and reassigned 122 others. At the same time, he appointed as assistant commissioners Romulo de Villa, special counsel of the Asian Development Bank, and Tomas Toledo, a lawyer and a career BIR official. The two replaced assistant commissioner Bernardo Carpio and Lauron Abraham, whose resignations were accepted after indicating their desire to retire. The revamp was approved by the President during the call at Malacañang of Finance Minister Cesar Virata. Revenue Commissioner Efren Plana and Deputy Commissioner Ruben Ancheta. The announcement of the BIR reorganization came "6 days after the President directed Commissioner Plana to rid the agency of "notoriously undesirable" personnel.

THE PHILIPPINES pledged recently 815,000 to help the people of Cambodia and also offered to send an unspecified number of doctors to treat refugees from the war-ravaged country. Philippines Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo promised the aid at a one-day conference convened to receive offers of assistance for the people of Cambodia.

November 7—

THE PRESIDENT authorized the setting of a new pricing policy for sugar producers to help stabilize the sugar industry. Speaking at the one-day Sugar Industry Convention at the Philippine Plaza, he directed the Philippine Sugar Commission headed by Roberto S. Benedicto to come up with a formula to give sugar producers additional benefits and at the same time liquidate their indebtedness to the government. He suggested that the liquidation price be set at a level equal to the National Sugar Trading Corp. break-even cost plus 50 percent of the difference between the actual price and the Nasutra cost. The other 50 percent will be retained by the government and applied to advances to the industry during periods of low prices, the President said.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos said that the Filipinos in America are intensely proud and appreciative of the New Society that has brought considerable growth and development to the country. Reporting on her 27-day official mission which had brought her to the United Nations and six cities in the United States she said: "The most unforgettable and moving experience of our trip was our encounter with our countrymen in America, as we took time from our official conferences to share a few precious moments with Filipinos in New York, San Francisco, San Jose and Los Angeles." She added: "No confrontations marred that encounter. Indeed, it was an encounter of joy and love, an event that was truly Filipino in spirit. It was an experience I will never forget as long as I live." Accompanied by Tourism Minister Jose D. Aspiras, Budget Minister Jaime C.

Laya and a few other officials, she arrived in the country from Seoul where she represented the President and the Filipino people at the state funeral for assassinated President Park Chung-hee of South Korea. On hand at the airport to accord her a warm welcome were Philippine officialdom led by the President, his daughters Imee and Irene, his mother, Dona Josefa, other relatives, members of the diplomatic corps, and delegations of city and municipal officials, as well as of the Katipunan ng mga Barangay from the Metro Manila area.

THE PHILIPPINES was granted by the Asian Development Bank $85 million in loans to finance three major projects. These projects are the development of the Bicol River Basin Irrigation Project ($41 million), Northern Palawan fisheries development ($18 million), and the Manila ports project ($27 million). The loans have a maturity period ranging from, 20 to 30 years with a grace period of from four to seven years and an interest rate of 7.6 percent per year. The loan agreement was signed by Finance Minister Cesar Virata and ADB President Taroichi Yoshida.

METROPOLITAN Manila marks its fourth year today with activities in the four cities and 13 towns of the metropolis to focus on programs, specifically those benefitting the poor. The highlights of the celebration will include the inauguration of seven water supply projects and the opening of 11 Pera sa Basura redemption centers.

SOME one million more individuals will join the ranks of the 7.5 million members of the Social Security System when the self-employed are included in the system's coverage on Jan. 1. Under Presidential Decree No. 1646, the self-employed—including lawyers, licensed professionals, artists and newspaper correspondents were included in the coverage of the SSS. Those who refuse to be covered are liable to fines and imprisonment. Unlike employees of private business, however the self-employed will have to contribute 8 percent of their monthly earnings not exceeding P1,000 per month as premiums and another 1.5 percent as Medicare contributions, for a total of 9.5 percent.

November 9—

THE PRESIDENT accused the United States of often being condescending and graceless in its relations, treating the Philippines like a small brother. Addressing a group of touring students from Japan and the members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), he described the peculiar "love-hate relationship" between the Philippines and the United States. "But we are a bit older now: Over the running of our internal affairs, we have seen how awkward, often how graceless they are . . . they are committed to materialism but we are Asian and Asians are fundamentally spiritual," he said.

November 10—

MINISTER of Transportation Jose Dans, Jr., said the thrust and implementing policies of the seven year-old progressive car manufacturing program (PCMP) should be reviewed to prevent further deterioration of the country's public transportation system. Dan's who once headed one of the country's largest transportation companies, deplored the failure of government planners and policymakers to consider the implications of mass car production on traffic and road situation before launching the PCMP.

November 11—

THE PRESIDENT has approved the establishment of the National Institute of Biotechnology and Applied Microbiology at the University of the Philippines in Los Baños. He gave his approval during the conference with Energy Minister Geronimo Velasco and Dr. Peter Farley, President of CETUS Corp. of Berkeley, California, who has been invited by the government to assess the progress of scientific research in the Philippines.

President's Week in Review: November 12-18, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 12—

THE PRESIDENT through a Letter of Implementation, directed the setting-up nationwide of barangay courts (Katarungan Pang-Barangay) to ease the backlog of cases in the courts. He issued the directive during his conference with Justice Minister Ricardo Puno, Deputy Minister Catalino Macaraig and a group of judges and prosecutors in Malacañang. The system of barangay courts was established under Presidential Decree No. 1508, which took effect last Jan. 1, 1979, to amicably settle disputes at barangay level.

THE FIRST Couple awarded 552 land titles and 159 houses in the Bagong Lipunan Condominium-II to Tondo foreshore families, in simple rites at the community center on Herbosa st., barrio Magsaysay. During his speech, the President announced an additional P221 million to complete the Tondo foreshore and Dagat-dagatan development program, bringing the cost of the urban renewal program to a total of P357 million.

THE AGREEMENT for the construction and operation of the refugee processing center in Bataan was signed recently between the Philippines and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR). The First Lady and Minister of Human Settlements Imelda Romualdez Marcos, who is chairman of the task force on refugees, signed the agreement for the Philippines, while UNHCR resident representative Manfred Paeffgen signed for the world organization. Under the agreement, the Philippines will build and operate the refugee processing center while the UNHCR will provide the funding and make direct disbursements, as well as keep an accounting of all expenditures.

THE PRESIDENT ordered the indefinite suspension of the construction of the $1-billion Bataan nuclear plant until the contractors, Westinghouse Electric Corp., can guarantee its safety. The suspension order, he said, will only be lifted after the contractors have introduced fundamental changes in design and have adopted health and safety safeguards. The order was issued after he had received the 134-page report of Justice Minister Ricardo Puno, who heads a special probe commission organized last June to look into and conduct public hearings on the safety of the controversial plant.

THE PRESIDENT reversed the Batasang Pambansa's committee on local governments recommendation to divest the finance minister of the power to recommend for presidential appointment provincial city and municipal treasurers and assessors throughout the country. He directed the deletion of the proposal which was included in the draft of the proposed local government code.

THE PRESIDENT approved the P4.8 billion infrastructure development program intended to accelerate implementation of major projects such as rural food production, electricity, water, and transportation. The approved budget is bigger by P403 million or nine percent than the 1979 level.

THE PRESIDENT, in a memorandum, directed Finance Minister Cesar Virata to review the economic and equity issues involved in the dispute arising from the refusal of the Manila Electric Company to lower its rates despite the granting of tax benefits by the government. The power rates controversy started when Justice Minister Ricardo Puno ruled recently that the Meralco should lower immediately its electric rates because of the granting of tax benefits by the government under PD No. 551.

THE FIRST Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, said that it was time the benefits being reaped by the tourism industry seeped down to more people in the provinces. In a speech read for her by Tourism Minister Jose D. Aspiras at the opening of the second National Tourism Congress of the Philippines, she said she would be proud to be included in those planning to bring the blessings of tourism to the countryside.”

THE PRESIDENT took time off from his hectic schedule to welcome a boyhood friend, Eladio Lopez, 64, who once saved him from drowning in a creek in Batac, Ilocos Norte, 50 years ago. Lopez, a retired PC sergeant, was accompanied at Malacañang by one of his sons, Pablo, 26, an air force pilot.

November 15—

THE PRESIDENT said that the emergence of the so-called “third force” known as the “Nagkakaisang Partidong Demokratikong Sosyalista ng Pilipinas,” is a potential threat to stability. When asked during the recently held press conference in Malacañang about the magnitude of the threat posed to national security by the NPDSP, the President said: “To what extent, we are not sure, because we cannot separate the propaganda from the reality.” However, he added: “Presently, it is not a threat but if it should be able to obtain support from outside as well as bring about its avowed aims of unifying all opponents of the present administration, including the armed elements of the New People’s Army as well as the Moro National Liberation Front that might spell trouble for us.”

THE PRESIDENT has proclaimed Nov. 16 of each year a special public holiday in Ilocos Sur to enable the people there to commemorate the birthday of the late President Elpidio Quirino, one of the great sons of Ilocos Sur. In a still unnumbered proclamation, he cited the late Chief Executive for dedicated leadership, able stewardship of the government and personal virtues which had developed among Filipinos in general, and in Ilocanos in particular, a feeling of pride for the race inspiring in them a sense of patriotism.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos revealed recently that the government will soon convert the whole Candaba area bordering Pampanga-Bulacan-and-Nueva Ecija into a multi-purpose development project complete with facilities for a modern community. She made the disclosure during an interview with newsmen in Malacañang following the regular monthly audience with the President. According to her, the development strategy of the Candaba project will be patterned after the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) which has become a model community.

THE PRESIDENT rallied the entire business community behind the government’s program for aggressive industrialization and the greater expansion of foreign trade during the closing of the two-day 5th Philippine Business Conference sponsored by the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry and the Federation of Filipino Chinese Chamber’s of Commerce and Industry.

MINISTRY of Trade was restructured by the President recently by creating positions for two deputy ministers and three assistant ministers and two new bureaus under it. He effected the restructuring in a decree he signed in the presence of participants in a business conference that elided recently.

November 17—

GOVERNOR Imelda Romualdez Marcos named recently an inter-agency Metro Manila committee on justice to expedite the disposal of criminal cases in the national capital region, decongest local jails, and make prison conditions humane and livable. The committee, to be coordinated by Deputy Gov. Ismael Mathay, Jr., will consist of representatives from the Supreme Court, the Ministry of Justice, the solicitor-general’s office, the Metro Manila commission, and the metropolitan police force/ PC Metropolitan command.

November 18—

THE FIRST Lady, Metro Manila Gov. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, directed the Metro Manila commission to enforce strictly traffic rules and regulations in the metropolitan area, particularly along the 11 major thoroughfares.

She was apparently irked by persistent complaints against reckless and abusive drivers of Metro Manila transit buses, government and military vehicles, and even garbage trucks.

President's Week in Review: November 20-25, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 20

THE PRESIDENT conferred the Order of Sikatuna, rank of datu, on outgoing Ambassador Kiyohisa Mikanagi of Japan. The award was conferred to him in recognition of his services in the field of international relations. In accepting the award, Ambassador Mikanagi said the firm foundation of cooperation between his country and the Philippines was made possible only through the able and determined leadership of the President. He also cited the successful implementation of the integrated and coordinated development of the country under the five-year plan.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos graced the ceremonies marking the 7th anniversary of the Bataan Export Processing Zone, declaring that the government would not allow industrialization to dehumanize man. In her speech, she ended speculations that the seven-year-old Export Processing Zone Authority (EPZA) was headed for a revamp. During her stay at the zone, the First Lady inaugurated the administration building, viewed the exhibits of products manufactured at the zone including apparel, footwear, electronic gadgets, toys and automotive spare parts. She later on laid the cornerstone for the 100-bed/hospital and prayed at the chapel. From the zone, she visited the site for the refugee processing center and was briefed by National Housing Authority Chairman Gaudencio Tobias on the development of the project.

COMMISSION on Elections was notified by the President that local elections will be held either before the end of the year, or in early 1980. He made the official notification when he met in Malacañang with Comelec officials headed by Comelec Chairman Leonardo B. Perez. Details of the two-hour meeting between the President and the Comelec officials who accompanied Chairman Perez were not disclosed.

JAPANESE Ambassador Kiyohisa Mikanagi informed the President during his call recently at Malacañang that the Japanese government has pledged to grant a 36-billion yen ($146,484,000) loan to the Philippines to finance various impact projects. The Eight Yen Package Loan will be made through the Overseas Economic Cooperation Fund of Japan. The loan is payable in 30 years at three percent annual interest including a 10-year grace period.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos cited the need for greater mutual cooperation among nations in the Asia-Australasian region. In a speech read for her by Health Minister Enrique Garcia at the opening rites of the 5th Asian Australasian Congress of Neurological Survey at the PICC, she noted that among the current problems confronting the region in the field of neurosurgery at this time was the need for closer rapport among the nations in the regions on the vital subject of neurosurgical education and training. She said there should be frequent exchanges of skills and resources in the area in so far as "mutuality of conditions and resources" which she described as necessary. On the subject of the proposed establishment of a brain center in the Philippines, she said that it would depend on the present situation in the country which she said would justify such an ambitious project.

THE PRESIDENT received Pierre Giraudet, board chairman of Air France, who came to pay his respects. The Air France official, whose company is reputedly the third largest in the world, offered to help promote Philippine tourism in Europe. "The Filipino people certainly welcome your offer and will extend all available cooperation to you," the President said. Giraudet was accompanied by Ambassador Raphael Leonard Touze, and Jacques Depardon and Jean Pierre Bourgneuf, AF director for Asian-Pacific route, and Manila office manager, respectively.

THE PRESIDENT welcomed the plan of the Paris-based International Herald Tribune to set up a publishing plant in Asia to cater to Asian readers. He told Lee Huebner, IHT publisher, that the idea was timely, considering the hunger for world news of the common people due to the fact that transportation and communication have made the world smaller and smaller. Huebner noted that the Philippines is assuming a key role in the Asian economy, and that the Philippine International Convention Center is fast making Manila a world convention city.

EARLIER, the President received Dr. N. C. Brady, director-general of the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI), who discussed the progress of research on rice at the IRRI. In reply to the President's query, Dr. Brady said the IRRI has been gathering rice varieties with nitrogen-fixing quality from all over the country to develop a variety that can grow under ordinary local conditions. He said this variety, the IR 50, is highly resistant to tungro infestation, and has long and slender grains, but is still in the testing stage. The President congratulated Dr. Brady for the good work and informed him of plans to set up the National Institute of Biotechnology and Applied Microbiology at U.P. Los Banos, so that scientific researches being carried out by the IRRI, the Plant Breeding Institute, and the new institution can be coordinated.

THE PRESIDENT conferred the Sikatuna (rank of lakan) Award on Dr. Robert James Whitelaw, Australian representative and executive director, of the constituency representing the Philippines in the International Monetary Fund. The award was given in recognition of Dr. Whitelaw's active promotion and defense of Philippine interests in the IMF Executive Board, enabling the Philippines to avail itself of the wide range of IMF facilities.

November 24

THE PRESIDENT conferred the Philippine Legion of Honor (degree of officer) on two members of the Elizalde family for extraordinary heroism in the resistance movement in World War II. The award was presented to Don Manuel Elizalde and his deceased brother Juan (posthumous). Pointing out that proper recognition had not been given the two brothers who, almost unknown, unrecorded and anonymously, offered their lives for the country during the dark days of the occupation, the President said he was greatly honored to be the one to give recognition to their heroism. Present at the ceremony were the First Lady and Minister of Human Settlements, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, members of the Elizalde family and their relatives, and friends, and members of the general staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines led by Gen. Romeo C. Espino, chief of staff.

November 25

THE PRESIDENT has declared Nov. 25 to Dec. 2 this year, and every year thereafter as "Electrical Engineering Week," to focus public attention on the vital role played by the profession in the economic development of the country.

President's Week in Review: November 26 - December 2, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 26

THE PRESIDENT said it is "unhealthy" for the Philippines to keep the bulk of its trade principally with the United States and Japan and emphasized the need to develop more trade with Europe. He made this remark during a luncheon toast in honor of Crown Prince Albert of Belgium and members of his economic mission at Malacañang. He said the Philippines is diversifying its trade relations and is aware of the need for foreign investments and technology. He welcomed the arrival here of the Belgian economic mission to look at possibilities for trade with the Philippines.

SOME 120 officials and players from 29 countries participating in the forthcoming 9th World Tenpins Bowling Championships were welcomed by the President at Malacañang. Members of the Philippine team, including three World Cup Champions, were among those who called on the President. He told his guests, headed by Franklin Vega of the American Bowling Congress, and Soetupu Janantu of Indonesia, that the Philippines is engaged in promoting sports and upgrading local participation in world competition. He also expressed the hope that bowling would be picked up by more Filipinos and said it would not be a bad idea for the three world champions to go around the country and promote the game. He was referring to Bong Co, who won the World Cup (women's division) in Bangkok recently, Lita de la Rosa, the 1978 women's champion, and Paeng Nepomuceno, the 1976 men's champion.

THE PRESIDENT signed into law Parliamentary Bill No. 612 which seeks to promote investments in less developed areas of the country and accelerate the dispersal of industries to the countryside. The new law, signed by the President during a simple ceremony at Malacañang, provides additional incentives, in the form of tax deductions and financial assistance, to registered enterprises in less developed areas, as well as to their individual investors.

THE PRESIDENT called for the collective support and cooperation of all airlines and governments to insure the success of the air transport industry. He sounded his call at the opening session of the 35th general annual meeting of the International Air Transport Association (IATA) at the Manila Hotel. Citing the fuel crisis as the major problem facing the industry, he said "it will take nothing less than the collective efforts of airlines and governments to meet what appears to be the major and most intractable problem, the fuel crisis." He urged the industry to devise an equitable method of distributing access to fuel supply, warning that the shortage and high cost of fuel should serve as a sobering antidote to any undue intoxication with unbridled, predatory, and ruinous competition.

November 28—

THE PRESIDENT told a 16-man trade delegation from Hawaii that all the reforms instituted under the New Society are intended to protect and preserve the human rights of the poor. "We respect human rights in the Philippines," he told the trade delegation headed by United States Congressman Cecil Heftel of Hawaii. "In fact we proclaimed martial law because the human rights of the poor were trampled upon. The delegation arrived recently and will remain in the Philippines for 10 days to explore investment and trade possibilities through consultations with government officials and private business leaders in Manila and Cebu.

SMALL nations can draw courage and strength from the efforts of the International Air Transport Association (IATA) to put more conscience in the relations among nations, the President said. In a dinner toast in honor of the IATA delegates at Malacañang, he cited the present unstable world conditions that compel small nations to despair for humanity." Where the efforts of statesmen have failed, the President said the IATA has succeeded in unifying the world. In response, Knut Hammarksjod, executive director of the IATA, thanked the First Couple for a "wonderful evening." The guests were entertained with a variety show performed by the Madrigal singers, the Bayanihan Dance Troupe, and the Pitoy Moreno models.

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, received the members of the Governing Council of the ASEAN Law Association, who called to pay their respects. The council members invited the President to act as honorary chairman and to deliver the keynote speech in their general assembly meeting to be held in Manila on Nov. 25 next year. Chief Justice Enrique Fernando of the Supreme Court said the association was formed to create an ASEAN legal community so that when any of the five ASEAN countries is faced with problems involving principles of law, it can avail itself of the expertise of distinguished jurists from the other member countries.

THE PRESIDENT, concurrently Minister of Youth and Sports Development, assumed personal direction of the training of Philippine athletes, particularly those for international competition. He said he was assuming control of the training because of the very dismal showing of our athletes in international competitions. He made the announcement during his meeting with other officials of the ministry, heads of national sports associations, sports editors, and patrons of sports, at Malacañang.

THE PRESIDENT said he will finalize plans for the economic social and political development of the four mountain provinces. He made the announcement when he addressed tens of thousands attending the opening ceremonies of Grand Cañao 1979 at Burnham Park in Baguio City. He promised to see to it that the culture and traditions of the minorities will be maintained because, he said, a country with limited resources has to fall back on spiritual strength when danger threatens.

WORLD'S major airlines belonging to the International Air Transport Association (IATA), agreed to raise air fares next year to compensate increases in the prices of aviation fuel. The extent of the fare adjustments, however, will depend on the outcome of the OPEC meeting on Dec. 17 in Caracas, Venezuela. Delegates to the 35th annual general meeting of the IATA which wound up recently admitted helplessness in dealing with oil price increases.

December 1—

THE PRESIDENT said that he has ordered a periodic reshuffle of the regional directors of all the ministries as part of the effort to rid the government service of deadwood and corrupt officials. In an interview with newsmen after holing out on the ninth green of the Baguio Golf and Country Club in Baguio City, he said that the regional reorganization, which will include the military, will be on a continuing basis every two years to prevent fraternization.

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda Romualdez Marcos disclosed that the Kilusang Bagong Lipunon (KBL) in Metro Manila will hold "an honest-to-goodness survey" to determine the party's mayoralty candidates in the area. She said that she wants to feel the pulse of the people on whom they prefer to be the KBL standard bearers in the four cities and 13 towns in the region. She was in Baguio City-together with the President to attend the Grand Cañao 1979.

December 2—

THE PRESIDENT said the government may reimpose price control if the price of oil is raised again. In an interview with newsmen at the Mansion, the presidential residence in Baguio City, he said the move is being studied by government financial experts as a means to cushion the impact of the projected oil price hike.

President's Week in Review: December 4-9, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 4—

THE PRESIDENT said that the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan will consider the date of the holding of local elections during its caucus on December 12. In talks with newsmen upon his arrival from Baguio City and Pangasinan, he said that the holding of local elections will depend on the world situation, oil price increases, the US-Iran crisis, the Indochina conflict, and the secessionist movement in the south. He was accompanied by the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos.

THE GOVERNMENT is launching land assembly and other innovative land acquisition techniques and is also establishing official development registries in areas declared as Urban Land Reform Zones and Bagong Lipunan Sites. For this purpose, it will use the Lungsod Silangan site and its adjacent area being developed, as a model. In this connection, the President issued Executive Order No. 570 creating a task force to undertake land assembly operation in Lungsod Silangan and in the areas peripheral to the Marikina-Infanta Road identified by the Ministry of Human Settlements in its Lungsod Silangan Development Plan and approved by the President as Bagong Lipunan Sites and Urban Land Reform Zones.

December 5—

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez, Marcos inaugurated a BLISS project in San Jose, Nueva Ecija and expressed assurance that towns in the province will soon have their own BLISS projects. Among her guests during the rites were Senator Patsy Young of Hawaii and actor George Hamilton. Also present were the town and provincial officials of Nueva Ecija headed by Governor Eduardo Joson. After the inauguration, the First Lady proceeded to Cabanatuan City to confer with the provincial and town officials of Nueva Ecija on a host of other problems.

THE PRESIDENT gave the assurance that religious freedom will be respected and maintained in the country. He gave this assurance to delegation of the Methodist Church in the Philippines, headed by Bishop and Mrs. Paul Locke A. Granadosin, who made a courtesy call at Malacañang. The President assured the delegation that since he committed himself to public service, he had also committed himself to the basic principle in the Constitution which mandate not only freedom of religion but also all freedoms which go with it. Bishop Granadosin, speaking for the delegation, expressed gratitude "for the consistent position" taken in the implementation of the constitutional mandate to grant religious freedom to all citizens.

PHILIPPINE Legion of Honor, degree of commander, was conferred by the President on Real' Admiral Huntington Hardisty, outgoing representative to the Philippines of the commander-in-chief, U.S. Pacific Forces and concurrently commander of the U.S. Naval Base, Subic Bay, and acting co-chairman of the RP-US Mutual Defense Board. He was cited for having "pursued vigorously and with understanding the implementation of the existing defense agreement between the two countries when RP-US relations were undergoing re-evaluation on the military bases agreement."

BATASANG Pambansa was asked by the President to consider passing a law to ban the use of all non-biodegradable (cannot be dissolved in water) detergents. He made the suggestion following reports by ecology experts that non-biodegradable detergents pose a danger to the environment.

December 7—

THE PRESIDENT received recently the group headed by Jacques Fournier, board chairman of the Dumez Group of Industries of France, who paid a courtesy call at Malacañang following their arrival here in the course of an Asian tour to survey investment prospects. With Fournier were Christian Trouve and Jean Piere Chaufur, directors; and Andre Iconomoff, consultant.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos was awarded recently the Order of Friendship among Peoples by the Supreme Soviet of the union of Soviet Socialist Republics (USSR) at the Philippine International Convention Center. Cited for her active work in developing friendly relations between the peoples of the Philippines and the USSR, Mrs. Marcos facilitated the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries with her historic visit to Russia in 1972. The award was presented to the First Lady by Ambassador to the Philippines Valerian Mikhailov on behalf of the Supreme Soviet.

THE PHILIPPINES was granted recently by the World Bank a $27 million loan to promote the development of Samar. The project will include road and port rehabilitation, irrigation construction, and improvement of water supply facilities. The loan is for 20 years at an annual rate of 7.95 percent.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, said that the child “must have priority in our deeds, in our minds and in our hearts,” as she asked the Parent Education Congress at the Philippine International Convention Center, that it has to carry on and institutionalize at all levels “as the medium and network for the integration of knowledge, and skill in ‘parenting’.” Addressing delegations from all over the country on “The Development of the Child in the Face of Changing Family Patterns,” she said that we must realize that to serve and teach those we love—our children—we must always be equipped with a heart that thinks and a mind that feels and that in doing this our future is never a sacrifice.

STARTING next year, disabled workers covered by the Employees Compensation Commission will receive higher compensation benefits. This was disclosed by Labor Minister Blas F. Ople during the 47th anniversary of the Ministry of Labor. He said beneficiaries of the increased benefits under Presidential Decree No. 1641 are current pensioners and workers with service-connected disabilities or their beneficiaries in case of death. As EEC chairman, Minister Ople said that PD 1641 is a “companion”, decree to PD 1636 which upgraded the benefits of the Social Security System by 20 percent.

December 9—

THE PRESIDENT directed recently the regional and other local leaders of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) to settle all party disputes before the KBL caucus at Malacañang on Wednesday. The directive was issued to clear obstacles to the organization of regional and other local chapters of KBL for the coming elections. This is a prerequisite to the holding of the local elections, the date of which is expected to be announced in the coming KBL caucus.

President's Week in Review: December 10-16, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 10—

THE PRESIDENT was assured that the ASEAN has nothing to worry from the deepening friendship and cooperation between Japan and the People's Republic of China. In a letter to the President, Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira, who had just returned from talks with the Chinese leaders in Peking, assured the President that the growing cooperation between the two countries would be economic in nature and would not be extended to the military field. The Japanese prime minister also assured the President that financial assistance to China amounting to 50 billion yen this fiscal year would not in any way diminish Japan's economic assistance to the ASEAN countries. This assurance was conveyed to the President by Deputy Foreign Minister Yasue Katori who called at Malacañang.

December 11—

INFORMATION Minister Francisco S. Tatad recently said that the prospects for war and peace in the 1980s will be decided in Asia and that America's position and influence in the world will, in the end, depend on the role she chooses to, play or not to play in that region of the world. Speaking before the California Press Association in Sacramento, California, Minister Tatad said: "No matter how volatile and flammable the situation in Iran today, it should not distract us from the not so subtle developments taking place in the vast landscape of Asia . . . the course of international affairs will, in the next several decades, be shaped by what happens in Asia and the Pacific more than anywhere else."

MINISTRY of Public Works was instructed by the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos to start the dredging of Pasig River as construction of the Love Boat terminals have already been programmed. These river terminals will allow Metro Manila residents living near river banks to take the Love Boats in going to and from their offices, thus helping ease up heavily congested land routes.

THE PRESIDENT presided over a four-hour caucus of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan, which formally approved a new set of rules designed to strengthen the ruling party on the regional, provincial, city, municipal and precinct levels, preparatory to the forthcoming local elections. During the caucus, nominations were made for party vice presidents for Luzon, Visayas and Mindanao. Nominated for Luzon were Gov. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal, Labor Minister Blas F. Ople and former Gov. Eduardo Cojuangco of Tarlac. The lone nominee for the Visayas was Gov. Benjamin Romualdez of Leyte, while the nominees for Mindanao were Gov. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur, Assemblymen Emmanuel Pelaez Constantino Navarro, and Region XI Chairman Antonio Floreindo. The caucus also unanimously nominated Minister of Local Governments and Community Development Jose Roño as party secretary general and Ambassador Roberto S. Benedicto as party treasurer.

THE PRESIDENT received Minister of Communications Zeng Sheng of the People's Republic Of China. In receiving the Chinese Minister, who is an official guest of the Philippine government, the President said there should be more exchanges of officials between the Philippines and the People's Republic of China in order to promote closer understanding between the two countries. He also took the occasion to thank the visiting official in publicizing the Philippines, especially the Philippine Air Lines flights which "are always full" and for the hospitality accorded by the people of China to Philippine visitors, including the President and the First Lady. With the minister were Directors Zhang Yung of protocol, Qi Xinhua of industry, Dong Jun of inland river transportation; Li Zhiran, Ren Jinghua and Shuo Rumei.

December 13—

CENTRAL committee of the KBL, with the President presiding, met in Malacañang to draw up plans for the forthcoming elections and thresh out party problems. During the more than three-hour meeting, the committee decided to :1) Set the date of the elections at another meeting of the committee next Dec. 20; 2) Hold the election of municipal and provincial officials ahead of the election of barangay officials. The central committee also confirmed the election of Minister of Local Governments and Community Development Jose Roño as secretary general of the party and Ambassador Roberto S. Benedicto as treasurer. The secretary general was also instructed by the President to draw up a new party platform with the assistance of seven presidential advisers.

December 14—

THE PRESIDENT called upon all Muslim leaders to participate actively in efforts to end the strife in the South to enable the Muslim areas in Mindanao to keep pace with the economic development and progress in other parts of the country. In his talks with Region XII leaders who called at Malacañang recently, he pointed out that the country is moving into a period of industrialization and the Muslim regions in the South may again lag behind other regions if peace and order is not restored in the area. Led by Gov. Muhammad Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur, the Muslim delegation presented the President with resolutions approved during a conference of Muslim leaders from Regions IX and XII.

December 15—

THE PRESIDENT sent an urgent message to the Batasang Pambansa proposing that local elections be set for January 30 in view of recent international development, including the latest hike in the price of oil. The Batasan has deferred its scheduled Christmas recess in order to enact an election law governing the local election.

December 16—

THE PRESIDENT took steps to speed up fund releases for government projects even as he widened the participation of local officials in the implementation and monitoring of national government projects. At the same time, he ordered a more speedy payment of contractors' claims to avoid spiralling prices. In a two-hour meeting with the regional directors of various ministries at the Heroes Hall of Malacañang, he also ordered regional directors to coordinate with local officials and members of the Batasang Pambansa.

THIS FIRST Couple, with some government officials, lead the faithful in hearing the traditional misa de gallo which ushered in this year's Christmas season at the Cultural Center of the Philippines complex.

President's Week in Review: December 17-23, 1979

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 17—

THE PRESIDENT said the effects of Martial Law will be lifted during the election campaign. This assurance was given by the President in an interview with newsmen after his speech at the ground-breaking ceremony of the $91.3-million shipyard of the Philippine Engineering Corp. in Cabangan Point, Zambales. The lifting of the effects of Martial Law will cover not only speech but also mobility and assembly and printing of necessary campaign materials.

THE PRESIDENT pledged to provide more incentives to accelerate the development of the maritime industry which, he said, is vital to the country's economic self-reliance. Speaking at the ground-breaking ceremony of the Subic ship repair yard in Cabangan Point, Subic, Zambales, he noted the expansion of the industry because of various incentives granted to the private sector by the government. The ship, repair yard, which can accommodate vessels up to 300,000 dead weight tons, will be one of the 'biggest ship repair facilities in Southeast Asia, the President said. The First Lady, assisted by Makoto Watanabe, charge d'affaires of the Japanese embassy and Generoso Tanseco, president of the Philippine Shipyard Corp., officiated in the ground-breaking.

December 18—

THE PRESIDENT administered the oath of office to Col. Nicanor Jimenez, former general manager of the Philippine National Railways, as Chief of Mission, Class II, in Malacañang. Nominated as Philippine ambassador to South Korea to succeed Ambassador Benjamin Tirona, retired, Col. Jimenez served with the Philippine Expeditionary Force to Korea (PEFTOK) as commander of the 14th Battalion Combat Team in 1953-54. At the induction were Mrs. Maria Clara Vega-Jimenez, the inductee's wife, other members of his family, ranking PNR officials headed by Col. Salvador Villa.

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, cited the importance of the role of media in reaching the majority of the people during the inauguration of the DWIM-FM station at the Philippine Communications Center on Ortigas avenue in Pasig. "You have authority," she told radio broadcasters. "You are like teachers. You have credibility because the people listen to you," she added. At the same time, she urged top singers to sing the national anthem before every show or concert for "this is one way you can show fervor for your country."

THE PRESIDENT received the letters of credence of Ambassador Todor Petkov Dichev as new ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary (non-resident) of the People's Republic of Bulgaria to the Philippines. In receiving the credentials of the new envoy, the President reaffirmed the country's policy of peaceful co-existence with other countries or the world and the promotion of closer understanding between the Philippines and Bulgaria.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, expressed gratitude to the French government and people for the grant of a large concessional loan to the Philippines for the development of alternate energy sources. The FF 200 million loan, consisting of 40 percent in treasury loan and 60 percent bankers credit, will be spent for the development of dendro thermal powers plants (FF 110 million), mini-hydro power plants (FF 80 million) and woodgas fired power plants (FF 10 million).

December 20—

THE PHILIPPINES was granted by the World Bank a $38-million loan to finance the improvement of fisheries education in the country. The loan according to Education Minister Onofre D. Corpuz, who together With Finance Minister Cesar Virata composed the negotiating team, will be used to convert seven fisheries schools into regional institutes.

December 21—

THE PRESIDENT took steps to promote closer coordination between the military and the civilian authorities to speed up the process of normalization. During a Command Conference held at the AFP General Headquarters in Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, following the parade marking the 44th anniversary of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, the President: 1) Ordered Justice Minister Ricardo C. Puno and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile to prepare a decree creating local police committees with adequate investigative powers that would curb police abuses; and 2) Appealed to the military commanders to call the attention of their officers and men to the fact that they are expected to conduct themselves according to the norm of conduct that had been set for them. In issuing the directive, he pointed out that the responsibility for the exercise of governmental powers is in the hands of both the military and the civilian authorities.

THE PRESIDENT called on the men in uniform to play their role as impartial guardians- of the law in the campaign and elections of local executives scheduled for January 30. He issued his call during the 44th anniversary celebration of the Armed Forces of the Philippines in Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City. At the same time, he also announced his intention, if recommended by the Ministry of National Defense and the Armed Forces of the Philippines, to lift the effects of martial law in the entire country during the period of the campaign. He also placed under the local executives the operational control of police units in areas where criminality is on the rise, particularly by syndicates.

THE PRESIDENT signed into law four bills passed by the Batasang Pambansa, paving the way for the holding of the first local elections under the New Society on January 30, 1980. Signed by the President were: 1) Parliamentary Bill No. 885, providing for the elective and/or appointive positions in various local governments, and for other purposes; 2) Parliamentary Bill No. 886, governing the election of local government officials; 3) Parliamentary Bill No. 889, defining the rights and privileges, of accredited political parties, and for other purposes; and 4) Parliamentary Bill No. 891, providing for the holding of a plebiscite, simultaneously with the election of local officials on Jan. 30, regarding proposed amendments to the Constitution.

SPEAKING before the members of the Batasang Pambansa before signing into law four bills covering the forthcoming local elections, the President said the worsening world situation had forced the political leadership to set the local elections on Jan. 30, 1980. Besides, he explained, the rising oil prices also threaten to double the P11 million daily oil subsidy granted by the government to oil users. "We could probably conclude, the President said, "that the Philippine government could not afford any election after Jan. 30, 1980." Because of financial problems, it has also been necessary to shorten the period of campaign to 30 days, he added.

THE- FIRST Couple started off the annual Task Force Maligayang Pasko project which distributed gifts to 18,000 families in Metro Manila. Twenty-six army trucks were fielded for each of the 26 distribution centers in Metro Manila. Rear Admiral Ernesto Ogbinar, task force commander, said that 200,000 gift packages were, also distributed to 73 provinces.

THE PRESIDENT proclaimed 60 gubernatorial and 35 city mayoralty candidates of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan in 11 regions for the Jan. 30, 1980 elections. He made the proclamation after approval of the KBL central committee of the partial list of candidates in the Jan. 30 elections, the first to be held since 1971.

December 23—

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda Romualdez Marcos has signed an ordinance creating the Metro-Manila Commission Cultural Development Fund., She directed Ismael Mathay, Jr., Assistant to the Metro Manila governor, to issue the guidelines, rules and regulations immediately for the effective implementation of the ordinance. Under the ordinance, the MMC will spearhead the promotion of cultural endeavors in Metro Manila through an educational and financial assistance programs. The MMC shall operate and establish the cultural development fund and shall take charge of tapping all sources of funds for its programs.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 24—

THE PRESIDENT administered the oath of office to Datu Yahya "Jerry" M. Tomawis as duly elected representative of the non-agricultural labor sector to the Sangguniang Pampook of Region XII, comprising the Lanao and Cotabato province including the cities therein. Tomawis was proclaimed the winner by the Commission on Elections en banc over the protest lodged by a close rival in the said elections.

December 25—

THE FIRST COUPLE spent a quiet Christmas Malacañang with their children, Imee, Ferdinand, Jr., and Irene, the President's mother, Doña Josefa Edralin Marcos, and relatives and some close friends. All official engagements were suspended and the only activity at the Palace was the First Couple's reunion with family members.

CHRISTMAS gifts were distributed to more than 2,000 prisoners in Metro Manila jails by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, who also paid for the bail of three youths jailed for light offenses. During the surprise visit to the Manila, Caloocan and Quezon City jails, Mrs. Marcos told the inmates that "it's another year, so please make it your New Year's resolution to change for the better." Lunch boxes containing chicken, an apple and candy, and a P50 cash gift each were distributed to 2,418 inmates along with Maligayang Pasko bags with canned goods and T-shirts. Policemen in the three city jails were also given Maligayang Pasko bags and P100 each.

THE PRESIDENT said that restrictions of Martial Law will be lifted starting Saturday, December 29, for the 33-day campaign period for the Jan. 30 local elections. He said he will issue soon the order which will suspend the effects of Martial Law to encourage free debates and political rallies. However, he explained, laws on libel and subversion: will still be in force. He added that he was waiting for the final recommendation of the military and defense establishment for the lifting of Martial Law restrictions ail over the entire country.

EFFECTIVE next month, foreign nationals approved for issuance of student visas shall be required to obtain their visas, from Philippine missions in their country of origin, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs announced. In cases where the Philippines has no embassy or consulate in such places, the applicant will be given the option to choose alternative venues. This requirement is being emphasized in view of the increasing number of student visa applicants of various nationalities who, after coming to Manila either to file or follow up their applications locally, proceed to the Philippine consulate general in Hongkong to secure their visas.

THE PRESIDENT inducted Brig. Gen. Ernesto Bueno of the Philippine Air Force, as mayor of Baguio City. Until his appointment to the mayoralty of Baguio, Brig. Gen. Bueno was vice commanding general of the Defense Division, PAF. Following his induction, the new mayor pledged to make the Pines City not only clean, beautiful and peaceful, but also the number one tourist spot in the country. Among those present at the oath-taking were close relatives and friends led by Tourism Minister Jose D. Aspiras, Assemblyman Andres Cosalan, former Baguio City Mayor Luis Lardizabal, members of the inductee's immediate family led by his wife, Mrs. Babe Bueno.

THE PRESIDENT, as chairman of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan, proclaimed the official KBL gubernatorial candidates for Cebu and Masbate. To run in the Jan. 30 polls under the banner of the KBL are incumbent Gov. Eduardo Gullas and Ramon Durano, Jr., for governor and vice governor, respectively, in Cebu and incumbent Gov. Emilio Espinosa and Raul Estrella for the same respective positions in Masbate. The official nomination of the four KBL official bets came at the end of today's marathon six-hour session that the President had with the KBL central committee.

THROUGH General Order No. 64, the President announced the lifting of the effects of Martial Law for a 33-day period starting Saturday (Dec. 29) "except in such areas that the military authorities may consider critical in order to encourage our people to debate and hold political rallies during said period." During the suspension that will last till Jan. 30, no arrest, search and seizure order (ASSO) will be issued, except as a preventive measure, against such crimes as arson, murder or the illegal use of firearms and explosives. However, the laws on libel, subversion, sedition and rebellion will remain in force. The order further states that "the lifting, of Martial Law restrictions will cover not only speeches but also mobility, assembly and the printing of campaign materials."

December 28—

THE PRESIDENT inducted in Malacanang Judge Manolito L. Asok as acting governor of Siquijor, and Emmanuel Lebumfacil as acting mayor of Toledo City. Former Gov. Eulogio M. Omictin of Siquijor is being given a vice-consular post. Present at the oath-takings were members of the central committee of the KBL and close relatives and friends of the inductees.

JUDGE Jesus Borromeo of the Tacloban City Court of First Instance was appointed recently by the President to the position of deputy justice minister. He replaces Deputy Justice Minister Catalino Macaraig Jr., who will be named to a new post. Also promoted by the President were Chief State Prosecutor Juan A. Sison of the Court of Appeals and designated Tanodbayan special prosecutor and Manila Assistant Fiscal Artemio G. Tuquero as his replacement.

CENTRAL Bank allowed savings banks to accept demand deposits to act as depository banks of rural banks. The move may be interpreted as a step to expand the activities of savings banks and make their operations similar to those of commercial banks. In the past, only commercial banks were authorized to act as depository banks of Central Bank loan proceeds intended for rural banks.

COCONUT industry chalked up record export earnings of $1.01 billion this year to surpass foreign exchange receipts of $908 million in 1978, Rolando de la Cuesta, chairman of the Philippine Coconut Authority, disclosed recently. He said that the industry receipt accounted for about 27 percent of the country's foreign trade income this year. PCA records showed that coconut oil led dollar earnings of coconut export products with $740 million. It was followed by dessicated coconut with $100 million; copra, $89 million; copra meat/pellets, $77 million; activated carbon, $7.8 million; and coconut shell charcoal, $4.8 million.

THE PRESIDENT decreed recently that all provincial, city, municipal or municipal district officials running for reelection in the Jan. 30, 1980 local elections may remain in office. The decree modified Section 30 of the 1978 Election Code which provided that "governors, mayors, members of the various sanggunians, or barangay officials shall, upon filing of a certificate of candidacy, be considered on a forced leave of absence from office," whether or not they are running for the same office. The still unnumbered decree states that applying the provision in the coming elections "may give rise to chaos and confusion due to the difficulty of designating promptly and immediately the replacements of such officials to assure the continuity and stability of local governments."

THE PRESIDENT has appointed Albina Manalo Dans and Filemon W. Fernandez Jr., former Civil Service Commission executive director and Merit Systems Board commissioner, respectively, as new commissioners of the CSC. The appointments were made as a result of the appointment of CSC Commissioner Jose A. R. Melo as associate justice of the Court of Appeals. Promoted to the positions vacated by Dans and Fernandez were Mario D. Yango, former director of the CSC office of recruitment and examination, and Alejandro Madamba, former CSC-MSB associate commissioner.

President's Week in Review: December 31, 1979 - January 6, 1980

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 31—

THE PRESIDENT, in his capacity as president of the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan and chairman of its central committee, asked the Commission on Elections recently to grant all official KBL candidates the right to enjoy block voting. He submitted to the Comelec the list of official KBL provincial and city candidates for the Jan. 30, 1980 local elections, together with the names of KBL committee chairmen and representatives empowered to proclaim and nominate the party's candidates for governors, vice governors, mayors and vice mayors. Under the law, official candidates of a political party accredited by the Comelec are entitled to block voting while those of a registered but not accredited party can only be voted upon individually.

January 1—

THE PRESIDENT expressed optimism that the new year might just turn out to be the "turning point in our economic development." In his New Year's message, he also expressed hopes that the government and its people will be equal to the task of meeting the problems facing the country in the new year. The, problems which he said are critical, are the coming local elections, the final settlement of the conflict in the south and the deepening energy crisis. The January 30 local elections, he said, is "a test of the political maturity we have attained since the promulgation of Martial Law, a test we must pass before the full restoration of our normal political process."

January 2—

THE FIRST Couple, with their three children, motored to the Iglesia ni Kristo (INK) Palace in Diliman, Quezon City, to personally felicitate Ka Erdie on the occasion of his natal day. The President also expressed his appreciation for the support given by the INK in the maintenance of peace and order throughout the country, and in promoting the image of the New Society abroad. It was during the birthday festivities for the INK supremo at the INK pavilion that the President administered the oath of office to Court of Appeals Justice Onofre Villaluz and Chief State Prosecutor Artemio G. Tuquero.

EMPLOYEES of private companies who are earning less than P1,500 a month will receive an additional P80 monthly emergency living allowance starting last January 1. Labor Minister Bias F. Ople said the additional allowance was included in Presidential Decree No. 1634 which had earlier ordered the payment of a P60 allowance for these workers effective September last year. He said the increase was agreed upon during the conference attended by representatives of labor, government and management held at Puerto Azul in Cavite last year.

THE PRESIDENT recently upheld the right of the Nacionalista Party to field candidates in the January 30 local elections. In an interview with newsmen after a marathon meeting of the central committee of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan, he said that the policy should be "to allow fair, free and open fight among aspirants from the gubernatorial to the sanggunian position." It is obvious, he told newsmen, that in most places the tight will be between the KBL and the NP. "That would make the NP the opposition in the coming elections," the President added.

EDUCATION Minister Onofre D. Corpuz said that some 268,000 public school teachers will receive another round of salary increases this year. He said that he was informed by the President about this during a talk last December 30. However, the education minister did not disclose the amount of the increase and the date the wage hike will be given. The teachers received last year a 5 percent salary increase, raising their minimum monthly salary to P603 from P574 in 1978. The present minimum monthly salary of teachers is P666.

NATURAL Resources Minister Jose J. Leido, Jr., urged all sawmill operators without timber concession to submit within the year their supply scheme for approval of the ministry otherwise they face closure. He issued the instruction following the implementation of Presidential Decree No. 1559, which allowed the continued operation of sawmills that can present their supply schemes for approval by either the ministry or the bureau of forest development to ensure their log supply for their operations.

BUREAU of Land Transportation (BLT) reported recently that the number of the country's drivers has reached 1,663,873 while motor vehicles on the roads now total 1,199,359. BLT Director Mariano R. Santiago said his office collected a total of P226,208,700 in 1979, making it the third biggest revenue-generating arm of the government next to the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Bureau of Customs.

THE PRESIDENT expressed fears that the Afghanistan incident "may spill over to Southeast Asia." In an interview with newsmen, he said that a "continuing study" is being made of the situation. The Philippines, he said, "has been exchanging information with the Soviet, American and the ASEAN ambassador' on the matter. Pakistan has also been asked "to inform us what the situation is."

THE COUNTRY suffered a deficit of $570-million in its foreign exchange transaction in 1979, a sharp increase from the $54-million shortfall registered in 1978, Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros said in his report to the President. The deficit in the balance of payments (BOP) was caused mainly by the continuous increase in the prices of imports, particularly oil. "In the face of uncertainties that pervaded the economies of most countries of the world, the Philippine economy proved its resilience and capacity to sustain moderate growth despite adverse external influences, the most disruptive of which were the increase in oil prices," Governor Licaros said.

THE PRESIDENT, through a letter of instructions, ordered that women employees, both in private and government offices, be given equal opportunities as men to occupy positions that involve planning, policy and decision-making in local, national and international levels. The First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, made the announcement during the closing day session of the Fifth Congress of the National Commission on the Role of Filipino Women. The order provides that all practices which discriminate against women contrary to the laws of the constitutions, international conventions and other agreements entered into by the Philippines safeguarding her rights and privileges, shall be eliminated.

THE PRESIDENT said that he will wait until the oil price increase stabilizes before convening, the tripartite congress to assess its effects on income and prices. In answer to questions by newsmen about his plans in this regard, he said, "we have been trying to delay the convening of the tripartite congress as much as possible because there is nothing sure about the prices of oil nor the amount of-supply." The tripartite congress made up of representatives from government, management and labor recommends measures to the President to help cushion the effects of the oil price increases.

THE PRESIDENT inducted Ismael Mathay, Jr. as vice governor of the Metro, Manila Commission at ceremonies held in Malacañang recently. Mathay was formerly assistant to the Metro Manila government for administration and operation. Present during the induction was the First Lady and Metro Manila Governor Imelda Romualdez Marcos.

THE PRESIDENT formally fired the opening salvo for the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) campaign in the January 30 elections by calling for national unity to meet problems facing the country. Speaking at the proclamation rally for the KBL ticket in Bulacan, headed by incumbent Governor Ignacio Santiago, the President stressed that the nation can ill afford "division and quarreling" at this time. He also appealed to the people to support the KBL ticket over other groups who would use, he said, force and violence to achieve their political ends.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos, during the same rally, asked the voters to rally behind the ruling party “because voting for the KBL means helping yourselves.” At the proclamation site, the First Couple laid the cornerstone for the BLISS project and inaugurated the Hiyas Nutrition Center. Beside Governor Santiago, those proclaimed were Director Bernardo Ople of the National Manpower and Youth Council (NMYC), who will be Governor Santiago’s running mate, the eight candidates for the provincial board, 23 mayors, 23 vice mayors and the aspirants for positions in the town councils.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 7—

THE FIRST Couple proclaimed the official candidates of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) in the January 30 elections for city and municipal mayors and vice mayors of the four cities and 13 towns in Metro Manila. The proclamation of the KBL candidates was held at a mammoth proclamation rally at the Folk Arts Theater this morning. During the meeting, the President announced that "he had rejected the request of Chairman Leonardo Perez of the Commission on Elections to extend the deadline for the filing of certificates of candidates for the January 30 elections from January 4 to January 10. In turning down the request, he said it was the Batasang Pambansa which set the deadline for the filing of certificates of candidacy and he will not use his reserve power to legislate and to amend legislation but would allow the Batasan to establish the policy, especially during elections.

THE PRESIDENT proposed the establishment of an Asia-Pacific Forum on Economic Cooperation, and offered the initial support of the Philippines, until an institutional arrangement is made. He made the proposal in his keynote address at the UNCTAD Asian Regional meeting on Economic Cooperation Among Developing Countries (ECDC) at the Philippine International Convention Center. As one deeply committed to the ECDC concept, the President said, "the Philippines is prepared to provide initial support to the undertaking until such time as an institutional arrangement is made."

THE PRESIDENT endorsed the idea of establishing a foundation for the preservation of marine life, in the Philippines. The idea was broached by Sir Arthur Norman, chairman of the de La Rue company of London, who is the chairman of World Wildlife Fund (U.K.) and trustee of World Wildlife Fund (International). During his call, he proposed to the President the establishment of a foundation with the idea of linking it with an international organization such as World Wildlife Fund (International). The President suggested that the plan be discussed with Natural Resources Minister Jose Leido Jr. and Director Felix Gonzales of the Bureau of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources.

ANOTHER caller, Dr. Giancarlo Ligabue of Venice, presented to the President the first copy of his book, "Filipino, Isole in Controloce," which is based on the lifestyle of Philippine cultural minorities like the Ifugaos, the Tasadays and the Tao't Bato. The President lauded the Venetian writer, who had lived with various Philippine tribes by way of research, and said his book "will interest all Filipinos."

January 9—

THE PRESIDENT presided over the first joint Cabinet-NEDA meeting for the new year to review development programs of the government and assess the achievements in the previous year. In the two-hour meeting, the President also received a report from Foreign Affairs Minister Carlos P. Romulo on international tensions which could possibly affect the Philippines. Among the reports on development plans for the 1980 submitted to the President were those from: 1) Minister of Energy Geronimo Velasco, who said that by the end of the year the Philippines would be producing 25 percent of its petroleum requirements. 2) Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros who said that inflation had not very adversely affected the working man since the wage increase rate had so far outstripped the inflation rate. 3) Economic Planning Minister Gerardo P. Sicat reported on the rationalization of industry in view of pressures created by world economic trends. 4) Minister of Public Highways Vicente Paterno who reported on work in the establishment of priorities in the road-building program of the government.

THE PRESIDENT conferred the Order of Sikatuna, rank of datu, on outgoing Ambassador Guillermo Corona of the United Mexican States. The award was presented in recognition of the envoy's services in the field of international relations as the representative of his government and people in the Philippines.

EARLIER, the President welcomed Sir Campbell Fraser, chairman and chief executive of Dunlop Holdings, Ltd., who paid his respects accompanied by British Ambassador William Bentley, Sir Campbell expressed the desire to engage in the plantation industry, the manufacture of adhesive and sealing materials, and the opening of an export base in the Philippines.

January 10—

THE FIRST Lady, in her capacity as Metro Manila governor, inducted into office Ernesto Domingo as acting mayor of Mandaluyong. Mayor Domingo replaced former Mayor Renato Lopez who resigned due to ill health. Mrs. Soledad Lopez, wife of the former mayor, is running as vice mayor with Mayor Domingo as mayor under the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan. Among those present at the induction were close relatives and friends, including Metro Manila Deputy Governor Ismael Mathay, San Juan Mayor Joseph Estrada, PNRC Governor Johnny Dayang, Mrs. Corazon Domingo and daughter Carolyn, and Agelyn and son Ernesto Jr.

January 11—

THE PRESIDENT urged all political parties fielding candidates for the local elections to present their respective programs of government to enable the electorate to vote wisely. He made the proposal during his conference with local executives and KBL candidates of Batangas at the People's Mansion in Batangas City. He said the KBL stands for clean and good government. He maintained that the KBL being the party in power, under the parliamentary form of government, has the sole responsibility for the success of the administration, and therefore, everyone in government is duty bound to support it or has no business staying in the government. Following his brief remarks, the President, together with the First Lady, took up local problems with the local executives, during which he ordered the release of P2.2 million for the repair of roads. After a late dinner with them, the First Couple motored to the city pier where they boarded the RPS Ang Pangulo for Cebu City.

PUBLIC Works Minister Alfredo L. Juinio, said his ministry would embark this year on an integrated venture to convert dredging spoils into cash. He said that spoils dredged from rivers and harbors could be used to reclaim nearby marginally productive areas, rather than being disposed of at sea and to other distant places. He said the move would save the government millions of pesos.

THE PRESIDENT during a political rally in Cebu City, disclosed: 1) The Philippine National Bank had approved a loan of P12 million for the asphaltting of 150 streets in Cebu City. 2) The Land Bank has approved a loan of P24 million for improvement of the city market. 3) The approval of a letter of credit for $2.5 billion for the purchase of modern firefighting equipment for Cebu City. 4) Initial release of P4 million for port work projects in Region 7. 5) Release of a P70-million augmentation fund for the Mactan processing zone which will mean an additional labor requirement of 6,000 to 10,000 people. At the start of the evening's proclamation rally, the President swore into office as deputy minister of justice Judge Jesus Borromeo.

THE FIRST COUPLE had earlier attended in Tagbilaran a big rally. During his speech, the President lashed back at certain officials in Region 7 who, he said, criticized his administration but keep on going to him at Malacañang asking for special favors. He also signed a decree creating the Rural Waterworks Development Corporation to attend to the watersupply needs in the outlying communities. He also made a sentimental journey to Tubigon, a place where he hid during the war, and released P3 billion for communal irrigation project to service some 600 hectares of rice lands in Tubigon and Calape.

THE PRESIDENT said that the Philippines through ASEAN, would initiate a move to have the raging conflict between Thailand and Vietnam settled through peaceful means. In an interview with newsmen before he and the First Lady boarded the RPS Ang Pangulo for Dumaguete City, he also said he had directed the Philippine representative to the United Nations to initiate resolution for the UN General Assembly to debate on the matter of Afghanistan.

President's Week in Review: January 14-20, 1980

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 14—

THE PRESIDENT presented Foreign Affairs Minister Carlos P. Romulo a picture of himself with the inscription "To General Romulo, the best foreign minister the Republic ever had." Minister Romulo celebrates his birthday anniversary today "with the best birthday gift I have ever received, referring to the President's gift. A mass was held this morning at the Santuario de San Antonio at Forbes Park and was followed by a breakfast for senior officials of the foreign ministry at the Hotel Intercontinental. This evening, a black-tie dinner was given at the Fiesta Pavilion of the Manila Hotel to which members of the diplomatic corps, the Cabinet, the Batasang Pambansa, the Armed Forces, and close friends were invited.

January 15—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady received United States Ambassador-at-large and Coordinator on Refugee Affairs Victor Polinieri, who came to pay his respects at Malacañang. He informed the First Couple that he was very much impressed by the plans and operations of the processing center in Bataan which could very well be the model for the refugee processing centers in Thailand where there are between 300,000 to 600,000 displaced Khmers, Laotians and other displaced people in border refugee camps. Polinieri arrived from Thailand where he observed the enormity of the refugee problem and met with the people handling the refugee problem. He was accompanied at Malacañang by U.S. Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian Affairs John Negroponte, Ambassador Richard Murphy, and staff personnel of the U.S. State Department and local embassy.

January 16—

THE PRESIDENT ordered the legal panel of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan to file with the Commission on Elections the KBL position paper questioning the right of the Nacionalista Party to be accredited as a political party in the coming elections. He also put on record the fact that as titular head of the defunct NP, he had not authorized the candidacy of anyone running under the NP banner. "The KBL reserves the right to question the election of NP candidates before the Comelec and the Supreme Court to stop them from taking their oaths of office because they are disqualified," the President pointed out. The issue was raised during the proclamation rally of the KBL at the Batangas provincial capitol ground, which coincided with the 399th anniversary celebration of the founding of Batangas province. Earlier, the First Lady unveiled the "Diwa ng Batangueño," a monument which depicts the five outstanding virtues of the Batangueño: Kagitingan, Katalinuhan, Kasipagan, Katapangan and Karilagam. The First Couple flew by helicopter to Batangas City from the Manila International Airport where earlier in the day they stood as sponsors during the blessing of the Philippines Airlines' new Boeing 747 jumbo jet and Airbus 300.

January 17—

THE PRESIDENT received a delegation composed of leaders of the Katipunanang Manggagawang Pilipino (Trade Union Congress of the Philippines) who called at Malacañang to formally reiterate their support of his leadership and to pledge to campaign actively for all KBL candidates in the forthcoming local elections. The delegations which called at Malacañang was headed by Democrito Mendoza, TUCP president; BP Assemblyman Roberto M. Oca Jr., labor coordinator, and Aurelio S. Intertas, chairman of the committee on political action.

UNITED States Senator S. I. Hayakawa (Republic, California), called on the President at Malacañang together with Ambassador Richard W. Murphy. The visiting senator informed the President that he was impressed by the efficiency with which the Philippine government was handling the refugee problem and also surprised by the reservoir of goodwill which the people of the Philippines have not only for the United States but also for Americans. The President in turn pointed out that Filipinos and Americans have been through very traumatic experiences together, and it was not easy to forget men who died or were wounded as comrades-in-arms.

THE PRESIDENT received the letters of credence of Ambassador Hideho Tanaka as the new ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of Japan to the Philippines. Ambassador Tanaka succeeds former Kiyohisa Mikanagi as Japan's envoy to the Philippines. In accepting the new envoy's letters of credence, the President expressed the hope that Japan will continue to pursue a policy of close cooperation with the Philippines, and to play an important role in promoting peace, stability and progress throughout the world, particularly in Asia. Present at the ceremony were the First Lady, Cabinet ministers, members of diplomatic corps.

FOLLOWING the ceremony, the President received Speaker Al Haj Abdul Bakeer Markar of the Parliamentary of Sri Lanka, together with his wife, who called to pay his respects. An official guest of the Philippine government, the presiding officer of the Sri Lankan Parliament visited Cotabato and Zamboanga City and lauded the government's efforts to maintain peace and order and implement a massive development program including resettlement projects to help Filipino Muslims. He was accompanied at Malacañang by R. N. Seneviratne, acting secretary-general of the Sri Lankan Parliament and Ambassador Franas Wanigasekera.

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Governor, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, recently enjoined the people of Taguig and Pateros at two separate KBL rallies to vote for the official candidates of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan come January 30 to afford the national government opportunities to give to the local government the aid and assistance needed to complete and implement its proposed plans and programs. For Taguig, the First Lady informed the residents that there are plans underway to provide Taguig with 45 kilometers of pipelines around the town to solve its water problems, and that this alone would cost some P38 million. In addition, she also directed NAWASA Director Oscar Ilustre to complete the waterworks system in Pateros not later than early next year.

MINISTER of Information Francisco S. Tatad, reacting to the President's letter censuring him, announced at a press conference he was submitting his resignation from the Cabinet effective immediately. During a press conference in his office at Malacañang, Tatad who has been press secretary to the President for ten years, thanked the First Couple for their kindness to him and assured them of his continued good wishes. His resignation was prompted by a letter sent to him by the President castigating him for throwing his support to the Nacionalista Party candidates in Catanduanes in his fight with the Alberto brothers, Jose and Vicente.

January 19—

COMMISSION on Elections Chairman Leonardo B. Perez said political parties or candidates have until January 25 to file with the Court of First Instance exclusion proceedings against voters who were alleged to have been registered illegally. He explained, that the Comelec has no power to decide on the right to vote and that this is purely a judicial power. Therefore, the remedy for the parties concerned in cases of illegal registration is to file exclusion proceedings in accordance with Section 94 of the 1978 Election Code.

January 20—

THE PRESIDENT assured a United States congressional delegation headed by Rep. Lester L. Wolff (D-New York) that American presence in the Pacific is welcome depending on its intentions and policies. Addressing the 16-man delegation at Malacañang, the President discussed, among others that: 1) During the meeting of the ASEAN countries of the, Group of 77 on economic cooperation among developing countries (ECDC) he had proposed formation of a permanent regional forum for discussions and consultations in Asia, similar to the one proposed by Rep. Wolff providing for an Asian non-government consultative council. 2) The Mindanao situation is no longer a problem to the government and Col. Khadaffy of Libya and the secretary-general of the Islamic Conference have informed the government of their desire to participate in the final settlement. 3) The international situation and worsening world economic crisis do not warrant the lifting of Martial Law at present. 4) Violation of human rights is not an issue in the Philippines since the government is very strict about the care of prisoners.

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Governor, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, said that there was no plan to phase out passenger jeepneys in the metropolitan area. Speaking at a rally held at the Folk Arts theater where some 10,000 jeepney drivers and their families were present, she said, however, that there may be changes in the present routes to ease traffic congestion and avoid so much overcrowding. Transportation Minister Jose Dans, Jr., and Chairman Don Ferry of the Board of Transportation attended the final phase of the campaign for candidates of the KBL to assure the jeepney drivers there was no such phase-out plan.

President's Week in Review: January 21-27, 1980

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 21—

THE PRESIDENT said that the establishment of the refugee center in Bataan is an international commitment of the Filipino people. Speaking at the inauguration and blessing of the center in Barrio Sabang, Morong, Bataan, he expressed gratification over the chance for the Philippines to be of some help and to show its compassion towards displaced people of a neighboring country, Vietnam. He pointed out that the sprawling 300-hectare processing center, which is the biggest in Asia, is a joint project of the Philippines and the United Nations and financed from contributions of different countries. The President was accompanied by the First Lady who is chairperson of Task Force on Refugee Assistance and Administration, US Ambassador and Mrs. Richard W. Murphy and Japanese Ambassador and Mrs. Hideho Tanaka.

January 22—

EDUCATION Minister Onofre D. Corpus; announced that the ministry will limit college enrolment of public and private schools in Metro Manila next school year. Exempted from the plan were schools with wide campuses, state colleges and universities. He said the plan will be made in coordination with the Metro Manila Commission.

January 23—

THE PRESIDENT directed his top advisers to update "contingency plans" in the light of ominous development in Southeast Asian region and the Near East. At the two-hour closed door joint session of the National Security Council and the National Economic and Development Authority held at Malacañang, the President and his key advisers were: 1) Briefed by the National Intelligence and Security Agency under Gen. Fabian Ver on developments in critical areas or points of tension around the world, particularly in the Near East (Iran, Pakistan and Afghanistan), Indo-China (Vietnam, Kampuchea and Thailand) and South America, and the possible impact of the 3e developments in the Philippines; 2) Given background information by Deputy Foreign Minister Jose Ingles on various treaties entered into by the Philippines with other countries, particularly the Manila Pact of 1954 and the possible implications of Philippine commitments under this agreement in the face of a "security threat" to the region; 3) Briefed by Energy Minister Geronimo Velasco on possible twists and turns of the oil situation and a possible trade war.

INDONESIAN Foreign Minister Mocktar Kusumaatmadja was conferred by the President the Order of Sikatuna, rank of datu, for service in the field of international relations. Earlier, the Presiding and the foreign minister conferred for 45 minutes on matters of mutual interest, particularly on security. Sitting in on the meeting were Minister of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and Indonesian Ambassador Soedarmono.

ADDRESSING a mammoth rally at the Bonifacio monument in Caloocan City, the President appealed to the people to give him a fresh mandate in the coming local election. The First Couple asked the people of the land to vote KBL to insure the election of local officials who will serve as "the hands and fingers of the First Couple," in the implementation of these programs. During the rally, the President and the First Lady also proclaimed the official KBL candidates, Macario "Boy" Asistio, Jr., for city mayor, and Macario Ramirez, for vice mayor.

THE PRESIDENT sounded a call recently for all eligible citizens to, vote in this coming Jan. 30 election even as he provided additional days of registration: January 26 and 29. He said that at present the number of voters stood at 22 million. He predicted that after the two additional registration days the number of eligible voters would swell to 24 million.

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Governor Imelda Romualdez Marcos, continued to hammer away at her theme that only the election of Kilusang Bagong Lipunan official candidates could maximize implementation of the New Society's programs for the uplift and betterment of the people, especially the urban poor. Addressing rallies in Valenzuela and Malabon, she said that she was aware of "the specific and most urgent needs" of the people in the metropolitan area. As governor of Metropolitan Manila, she declared, she had actually allocated more than 50 percent of the Metro Manila Commission's budget to the municipalities in her domain "if only to give to the poor a better life, a better future."

January 25—

THE PRESIDENT said he would have to issue immediately two decrees to amend Batas Pambansa Blg. 53, known as the Election Law, concerning the political affiliation of members of various parties, as well as the controversial block-voting issue. Both decrees would take effect before, the Jan. 30 election. "The cases pending in the Commission on Elections and the Supreme Court have resulted in a restudy of the Election Law as to the date of affiliation of officers and members of the various parties who have been registered as of 1978," he said.

THE FIRST Lady and Metro Manila Governor Imelda Romualdez Marcos urged recently Marikina and Pasig residents to vote KBL on Jan. 30 to enable the government to cope with dangers confronting the country. She said that since under the present set-up, the KBL is responsible for the success of the government and the implementation of its various programs, it needs the reaffirmation of the people's mandate on Jan. 30. She warned that if the people become disunited at this time, it could be the worst thing that could happen to the country.

LABOR Minister Blas F. Ople said that Jan. 30, being Election Day, shall be treated as a legal public holiday under Article 94 of the Labor Code. Consequently, workers will be paid regular salary if they do not report for work and twice as much if they work on that day. To be entitled to this benefit, workers should have reported for work on the last working day preceding the legal holiday. He said the benefits arising from, the special holidays proclaimed by the President Jan. 29 and 31—shall be also governed by the Labor Code and its implementing regulations. Workers who report for work will get additional 30 percent of their regular rates. Those who do not will not be paid under the principle of "no work, no pay."

THE PRESIDENT issued three decrees recently laying down additional rules on the holding of the local elections on Jan. 30, specifically on "flying voters," bloc-voting, and "turncoats." Presidential Decree No. 1668, designed to curb "flying voters," inserted a new section in the 1978 Election Code, providing for the postponement or suspension of election whenever the Commission on Elections finds that rampant irregularities had been committed in the preparation of the registry, of votes. PD No. 1667, dealing with "turncoats," provides that "it shall be unlawful for a registered or accredited political party to nominate and or support as its official candidate any person belonging to another accredited or registered party unless he has affiliated with, the nominating party at least six months before the election." PD No. 1666 sought to clarify the issue of bloc-voting. The amendment to the Election Code says: "Sec. 28-A. If a voter has written in the proper space of his ballot the name of the duly accredited political party which omitted or failed to include nominees for, provincial, city or municipal elective offices and, at the same time, wrote names of individual candidates in the spaces provided therefor corresponding to positions to which the political party did not nominate candidates, the ballot shall be counted in favor of the candidates nominated by the political party and the candidates whose names were written in the spaces provided for individual voting, even if not belonging to the said political party."

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, met at the Manila; International Airport Austria's Chancellor Bruno Kreisky and took him to Malacañang where he conferred with the President for more: than two hours. During the said conference, the visiting chancellor confirmed a $150-million loan for Philippine community development plus another loan of still undetermined amount for any deserving project having a laudable social effect on the country. They also discussed the geopolitical situation in Europe and the Middle East as well as trade relations, economic and cultural exchanges, technology transfers, and other topics. Chancellor Kreisky is in the country for a four-day state visit.

THE PHILIPPINES and New Zealand governments sealed recently a five-year energy agreement in simple signing rites in Malacañang. The President signed the memorandum of understanding between the two governments for the Philippines and Prime Minister Robert Muldoon in behalf of New Zealand. The formal signing took place shortly after the two chiefs of state conferred in the Palace a few hours after Minister Muldoon planed in aboard a Singapore Airlines flight.

President's Week in Review: January 29 - February 19, 1980

OFFICIAL WEEKS IN REVIEW

THE PRESIDENT issued a last-minute appeal to the electorate to vote for the candidates who will serve the nation best and to help in the conduct of an honest and clean election. In an interview with Malacañang newsmen at the National Regional Community Center in Barrio Mabilao in San Fabian, Pangasinan he also expressed confidence that the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan candidates will sweep the election tomorrow, the first to be held since 1971. The President, accompanied by Director Gregorio Cendana, officer-in-charge of the Ministry of Public Information, stopped over at the said barrio and at the Sta. Rita beach house in Agoo of Tourism Minister. Jose Aspiras to confer with local officials regarding the progress of various development projects before proceeding to Batac, Ilocos Norte where he will cast his vote.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos accorded Bruno Kreisky, federal chancellor of the Republic of Austria, a warm send-off. The head of state who was in the country for a three-day visit, started his last day in the country with an early breakfast with the First Couple at the Maharlika Guest House where he and his party; were billeted during their stay. The two heads of state exchanged their farewells at the Maharlika threshold after which they went in two different directions. The President started his trip northward to Laoag, Ilocos Norte to cast his vote in his hometown. Chancellor Kreisky, accompanied by the First Lady, headed south for the Manila International Airport.

THE PRESIDENT and his daughters, Imee and Irene, cast their votes in Batac, Ilocos Norte at noon today. Asked how he felt to be voting for his son, Bongbong, he said: "It is something I have looked forward to." Bongbong, 22, is the official KBL candidate for vice governor of the province. Local leaders had teamed him up with his aunt, incumbent Governor Elizabeth Marcos Rocka. Bongbong Marcos is in the United States; working for his master's degree at the University of Pennsylvania.

THE FIRST Lady and Minister of Human Settlements Imelda Romualdez Marcos expressed gratitude to Prime Minister Robert D. Muldoon for supporting the geothermal energy development program of the country. The First Lady, in the absence of the President, led the official send-off for Prime Minister Muldoon at the Manila International Airport, who left after a four-day state visit.

EXPRESSING her confidence that the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan will win in this election, the First Lady cast her vote at Precinct 643, Zone 66, which is located at the V. Mapa High School on San Rafael, San Miguel, Manila. She was accompanied by Vice Governor Ismael Mathay Jr. and Manila City Mayor Ramon D. Bagatsing who is the official, KBL candidate for mayor of Manila. Noting that the elections had so far been peaceful and orderly, the First Lady enjoined the nation to go out and vote and prove to the whole world that the Filipino people have the maturity to hold peaceful and orderly elections.

THE PRESIDENT thanked the people for the peaceful and orderly election. He also thanked the electorate for the overwhelming support for the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan. In a message made for broadcast in Northern Luzon, he expressed the gratitude of the Marcos family to the people of Ilocos Norte for having elected his only son, Bongbong, as vice governor of the province. Motoring back to Manila, he dropped by Agoo, La Union where he had a three o'clock lunch. There he also conferred with national, provincial and municipal officials headed by Tourism Minister Jose Aspiras, Engr. Bernardo Vergara, general manager of the Philippine Tourism Authority, Assemblyman Joaquin Ortega, a Governor Tomas Asprer and town mayors.

February 1—

THE PRESIDENT underscored recently the role of tourism as an “indispensable agent for peace and fruitful exchange between East and West,” especially in the face of current threats to the global order. Addressing the closing session of the 29th annual conference and workshop of the Pacific Area Travel Association (PATA) at the convention center, he drove home his message to the delegates: “We must think once more of tourism as a bridge—a bridge to understanding and knowledge among the nations and peoples of the world.” Before he delivered his address, he presented a plaque of special recognition of the services of the late Ambassador Modesto Farolan, acknowledged father of tourism in the Philippines.

KILUSANG Bagong Lipunan (KBL) continued to widen its lead over the opposition in all the country’s 13 regions, even as the victory of some of the KBL candidates was threatened in a few places in Mindanao. The KBL headquarters reported the ruling party was assured of winning at least 98 percent of the 16,065 local elective seats in the 73 provinces, 60 cities, and 1,501 municipalities, as well as in the two municipal districts.

February 2—

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos led the nation in paying final tribute to Antonio J. Molina, National Artist for Music, who was laid, to rest at the Libingan ng mga Bayani. During the Pagdadalamhati (Necrological Services) for the late artist at the Cultural Center of the Philippines, the First Lady said “he had not really left us for he has given us his art and his music which will stay with us or always.” She cited among the famous compositions, of the late artist, the haunting and world famous Hating Gabi, Ang Balingaw Choral Symphony, which he regarded as his most significant composition, Pandanguhan, Misa Antoniana and a lot of others. Following her brief remarks, the First Lady, through whose initiative the Philippines is now witnessing the flowering of the arts, presented the National Artist Medal to Monserrat Molina Bejar and: Exequiel “Lito” Molina, who received it on behalf of their father.

February 3—

THE PRESIDENT ordered Major Gen. Fabian Ver of the National Intelligence and Security Agency and the Presidential Security Command, Philippine Constabulary Chief Major Gen. Fidel Ramos and Brig. Gen. Andres Ramos, commander of the Philippine Constabulary in Region IV, to take into custody and bring back to Batangas the provincial Comelec registrar, Fulgencio Castillo, so that the canvass of the election returns in the province can be resumed and completed. At the same time, he also ordered them to “see to it that the ballot boxes are doubly secured and in no way tampered “with.” The board of canvassers of Batangas were also ordered to conduct the canvass quickly and expeditiously night and day and to proclaim the winner without further delay and without prejudice to the rights of any candidate aggrieved to file a formal protest in accordance with the election law. The orders paved the way for the proclamation of Jose Laurel V, NP gubernatorial candidate, who was reported in earlier tallies as leading incumbent Gov. Antonio Leviste before the canvass was suspended by Comelec upon petition of the Leviste camp which alleged election law violations.

THE PRESIDENT expressed hope for the stabilization of the sugar industry so that the technological advances” in production could work effectively. Speaking at the XVIIth Congress of the International. Society of Sugar Cane Technologists at the convention center, he asked the sugar cane technologists to continue their efforts with vigor, citing their contributions to the sugar industry which were characterized by the spirit of cooperation in technical research and the free exchange of technological information—resulting, in greater productivity. He said that while problems may arise from the instability of global trade, the long term stability of the sugar industry rests on the success of the efforts to maximize efficiency in production and reduction of production costs to levels which assure profitable prices in the midst of abundance.

DELIVERING the welcome address at the same convention, the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister. Imelda Romualdez Marcos reminded technologists that man is the core and focus of all development and that all advances must be made to uplift him and serve his purpose. "We must aim for democratic technologies that will reach most and profit all," she added.

LATER at the Second Conference of Engineering Institutions of Southeast Asian Nations at the Philippine Plaza, the First Lady said that while development is economic stability, and, to others, the "acquisition of the good things in life, in the Philippines, it assumes a different imperative which is the whole of man—the core and focus of all development efforts and other priorities. She warned that the forces of development should not submerge man nor push him out of his center position, but must be the means to give him a better quality of life. She pointed out that the Philippines had evolved a humanistic approach in development which proceeds according to the needs of man.

February 5—

THE PRESIDENT met the general military council recently at Malacañang to assess and update security contingency plans in the light of the world tension brought on by the Kampuchean, Afghanistan, and Iranian conflict. He asked about the needs of the major services of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, asking each to list down its requirements and to draw up contingency plans to improve its capability.

EARLIER in the morning, the President received Habib Al Chatti, secretary-general of the Islamic conference, who came on a courtesy call. Chatti is in the country to observe the progress of various development projects being undertaken, by the government to uplift living conditions in Mindanao, particularly in Muslim communities, there.

THE PRESIDENT issued an "arrest and seizure order (ASSO) against all drug pushers facing" charges before the courts but who are out on bail and continuing their nefarious activities. "I consider the drug pusher as a dangerous criminal in the same category as any of the subversives that seek to destroy our Republic," the President declared. Malacañang said that with the issuance of the ASSO, drug-pushers would no longer be released on bail.

MINISTER Ricardo G. Puno of the Ministry of Justice was directed by the President to investigate and prosecute reported violations of election laws and alleged irregularities committed during the last elections. The President identified at least three areas where irregularities were reported. They were in Batangas, Nueva Ecija, and Cabanatuan City.

THE PRESIDENT cited the need to strengthen the hand of the United Nations in the maintenance of peace, particularly in small developing countries such as the Philippines. "Today we see that the fabric of International Law and international relations prove to be weak in many ways, much more than expected when the UN was organized or even dreamed of," he said. He spoke before delegates from 47 countries attending the fifth session of the-Special UN committee studying ways to strengthen the UN role in peace-keeping.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos directed the Metro Manila commission to increase the number of medical teams serving the city's depressed areas because of the coming summer months when seasonal diseases are prevalent, particularly among children. She also ordered that a number of rolling stores serving these areas be doubled as soon as possible to ensure continuous supply of low-priced essential commodities to poor families and daily wage earners. She noted that MMC has only seven medical teams making daily visits to 126 known depressed areas in the four cities and 13 municipalities. She said this was not enough to cover effectively these places.

LABOR Minister Blas F. Ople directed three offices in his ministry to set up a wage and price stability council to monitor current wage and price trends. The creation of the council was made in the wake of an impending price increase in oil products. According to Minister Ople, the wage and price stability council would be made up mostly of people from the wage commission, institute of manpower studies and the labor statistics service.

February 7—

THE PRESIDENT announced the unanimous Cabinet decision to throw the entire tax burden on gasoline, “the rich man’s fuel” while not tacking on any new tax on diesel, kerosene, bunker oil and other petroleum products. As a result the price of gasoline will go up 50 percent; which means the price of a liter of premium gasoline, now P3, may become 4.50. This includes both the tax and the additional cost asked for by the oil companies. Ministry of Energy sources indicated, though, that for premium gasoline, the increase would be P1.33 per liter. For regular, which now sells at P2.80 per liter, the increase would be P1.173 per liter. Speaking to newsmen after the meeting of the Cabinet and the National Economic and Development Authority, said that this was to “save the common people from the burden of additional cost of oil products.”

EDUCATION ministers of Southeast Asia were asked by the President to take proper steps with the world crisis on education. He made this call in his keynote speech before the 15th Conference of the Southeast Asian Ministers of Education Council (SEAMEC) at the Manila hotel. Expressing confidence in the ministers’ ability to cope with the problems on the agenda, he counselled: “The Southeast Asia Ministers of Education would do well to hear international developments in mind in its deliberations.” He added that although nations have learned to live with crisis in the last 40 years, every crisis imposes new problems and burdens on “the nations’ education goals.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos reiterated the Philippine commitment to help refugees as she welcomed a fresh batch of 1,401 Vietnamese refugees from Malaysia at Napot point, Morong, Bataan. She flew to the refugee processing center in barangay Sabang, Morong, where she also greeted another group of 1,528 refugees who had been transferred to Bataan from Tara island in the “south. With her were US Ambassador Richard Murphy, Manfred Paeffgen, representative of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, and retired Gen. Gaudencio Tobias, chairman of the National Housing Authority.

THE PRESIDENT mapped out a seven-point agricultural program to cushion the impact of the world economic crisis. Addressing the golden anniversary celebration of the Bureau of Plant Industry at the Heroes’ Hall of Malacañang, he barred a wide-ranging agricultural program: 1) Full attainment of self-sufficiency in food crops through continued increase in cereal production. 2) Continued development of plants as sources of protein for the people. 3) Continued and intensified development of energy crops such as cassava, corn, and sweet potatoes. 4) Planting of a variety of exportable crops and development of import-substitute crops. 5) Quality improvement and greater production in the country’s traditional export crops. 6) Increase of farmers’ productivity and income through greater processing of farm products. 7) Institutionalization of multicropping strategy.

February 9—

THE PRESIDENT said he told Habib AI Chatti, secretary-general of the Islamic Conference, that the government would meet with whoever representative who could guarantee enforcement of whatever agreements arrived at “provided there are no pre-commitments and no publicity.” He told Chatti that “we do not wish to give a status of belligerency to the Moro National Liberation Front because from our point of view, they are Filipino nationals and not belligerent.” The two men agreed that the Mindanao issue should finally be settled.

February 10—

ALL city and municipal treasurers were ordered recently by the Ministry of Finance to submit immediately to the National Police Commission all documents required in the liquidation of salary subsidies granted to members” of the police forces. In a memorandum circular issued by Acting Deputy Minister Pedro M. Almanzor, treasurers were directed to submit without delay the transmittal letter, subsidy payroll, list of disqualified policemen and the acknowledgement receipt, which accompany treasury warrants drawn in their favor for payment of salary subsidies of the members of the police forces. The directive was issued following a letter by Defense Deputy Minister Jose M. Crisol, officer-in-charge of the Napolcom, saying that “municipal treasurers are not complying with our requirements, thereby giving us difficulties, in rendering reports to higher authorities regarding proper disposition of salary subsidies.”

February 11—

THE PRESIDENT called on the Batasang Pambansa to look into the flaws of the Jan. 30 election: some having to do with voter registration, some with the system of policing and balloting and others with political violence and intimidation of voters. In his report to the nation opening the second regular session of the Batasan, he called for a permanent registry of voters to be placed before the public view two weeks before elections, copies to be given all chairmen of citizens election committees. He also warned against increasing prices of oil and called on the people “to support the initiatives of government to conserve the use of energy.” He called on the legislators to pass a law imposing tax on air conditioning or motor vehicles.

EARLIER, the president observed that the results of the last local election has laid the groundwork for the victory of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan for the parliamentary elections of 1984. He made the observation during the caucus of KBL assemblymen, victorious provincial governors and city mayors at Malacañang this afternoon. Among the decisions arrived at the caucus: 1) That the election of barangay captains and other barangay officials be postponed indefinitely in view of the economic problems confronting the nation, as well as other problems spawned by the last election. 2) To encourage the development of a strong opposition, possibly the Nacionalista Party, under the parliamentary form of government. In this connection, he directed KBL lawyers to withdraw the petition filed with the Supreme Court questioning the status of the NP. 3) Assemblymen who ran and lost in the last local elections will be allowed to retain their seats at the Batasang Pambansa.

THE FIRST Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos called on mayors of Metro Manila “to create livelihood opportunities for the poor in their communities to offset effects of a higher cost of living precipitated by increased fuel prices and worldwide inflation. She stressed this MMC thrust in a dialogue with Metro Manila mayors after she inducted them in Malacañang. The Officials will formally assume their respective duties on March 3 as stipulated under the law. She urged the mayors to go to the people to ascertain and identify their needs as entry points of their 11 basic requirements.

THE PRESIDENT was presented a copy of a resolution approved by the AMVETS, an organization of American veterans of World War II, Korean and Vietnam, urging the United States congress to extend greater military and economic assistance to the Philippines. Joseph Korelewski, AMVETS national commander who made the presentation, informed the President that the resolution was unanimously approved in a regular meeting of the AMVETS national executive committee in Washington, D.C. Korelewski arrived in the country recently at the head of a group of American war veterans which participated at ceremonies commemorating the 35th anniversary of the liberation of the city. He and his group paid a Courtesy call at Malacañang recently.

THE PRESIDENT issued an executive order creating a national coordinating committee for sports development and prescribing a uniform governing structure for accredited national sports associations. In Executive Order No. 579, he pointed out that various amateur sports organizations, otherwise known as the national sports associations, have been tapped to accelerate the task of developing respective sports. He said that the developmental activities of this various amateur sports organizations need to be coordinated in a meaningful manner consistent with national commitments to participate in regional and international competitions. Stressing the need to further rationalize the use of scarce resources to support the development activities of the national sports, associations, he ordered the creation of the national coordinating committee for sports development under the Ministry of Youth and Sports Development. The committee shall be composed of a deputy MYSD minister to be designated by the President as ex-officio chairman, and four members to be appointed by the President from among persons who have shown keen interest in sports development. Term of office of the appointive members, shall be at the pleasure of the President.

MALAYSIAN Foreign Minister Tengku Ahmad Rithauddeen called on the President at Malacañang and had an exchange with him on the latest world developments. In the 50-minute meeting, the Malaysian foreign minister gave the President his personal assessment of the Kampuchean and Afghanistan situations as well as his recent meeting with Vietnamese leaders in Hanoi. With Minister Rithauddeen were; Malaysian Ambassador Yusoff Zainai and

THE PRESIDENT ordered that three steps be considered immediately to further increase customs collections. These are: 1) Termination of the barter trade in the South; 2) Prevention of goods manufactured in the export processing zone from entering the domestic market; and 3) Agreement with the United States government for the taxing of PX goods entering the country. The ministries of finance, and trade, the National Economic and Development Authority, the Bureau of Customs and the Bureau of Internal Revenue will sit down to study the President's instructions. The directives were issued in the course of his speech during the 78th anniversary of the Bureau of Customs at the Port Area.

SPECIFIC instructions were given by the President to the National Economic and Development Authority and the Cabinet standing committee into reported violations of the three-month price freeze on basic commodities. Expressing concern over the implications of possible price violations of the government's price stabilization program, he told his "super Cabinet" it should determine whether violations, if any, would warrant the immediate reimposition of price controls.

ALL persons, regardless of party affiliation, who are found guilty of committing abuses and irregularities in the Jan. 30 election, will be punished according to the President. Director Gregorio S. Cendaña, officer-in-charge of the Ministry of Public Information, said that the President noted newspaper reports that the clergy in Zamboanga del Norte and Pampanga were taking to the pulpits to denounce election irregularities in their areas. Cendaña said the President "has taken positive steps to bring to justice all who tried to subvert the people's will in the last polls."

February 14—

THE PRESIDENT congratulated the Knights of Columbus and expressed profound appreciation for its services to the country and people during its 75 years of existence. He was keynote speaker at the opening of the diamond jubilee convention of the Knights of Columbus of the Philippines at the convention center. He pointed out that more than ever before, the high traditions of the organization—its civic activities, the quiet way in which it performs many services to communities, the inner passion it shows for the cardinal principles of charity, unity, fraternity and patriotism—can teach leaders and statesmen in meeting the contemporary predicaments and anxieties today.

February 15—

THE PRESIDENT gave official recognition to two United States nationals who had made invaluable contributions to the country's economic development and the betterment of Philippine society. Conferred the Presidential Merit Medal was Raymond Shoff who had rendered valuable services to the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA) consultants team for almost eight years, from October 1970 to January, 1979. The Order of the Golden Heart was conferred to Peter T. McNeill in recognition of his distinguished service as leader of the USAID-NRECA rural electrification team for over five years, from October, 1974 to date of its stint here. In expressing gratitude on behalf of his government and people, for the honors bestowed on Shoff and McNeill, Ambassador Richard W. Murphy said that while the NRECA has always offered its expertise to developing countries, only the Philippines, which has adopted a self-reliance policy, has taken advantage of the offer, so that today there are about 1.5 million households organized into rural electric cooperatives. He expressed the hope that with this as the take-off point, the National Electrification Administration will carry on and rise to greater heights. Present at the ceremony were Philippine and US officials led by the First Lady and Minister of Human Settlements Imelda Romualdez Marcos Brig Gen Pedro Dumol of the NEA, Finance Minister Cesar Virata and others.

PRICE control, according to the President, would be imposed on nine food products tomorrow if reports reaching him of violations of his order freezing the prices of these commodities were confirmed by the Cabinet Standing Committee headed by Finance Minister Cesar Virata. The nine commodities are: canned fish (mackerel and sardines) canned milk (evaporated and sweetened condensed), poultry, eggs pork cooking; oil and sugar. The President

February 16—

THE PRESIDENT has authorized the release of P10 million to finance the program to produce alcogas as a substitute for premium motor fuel, in line with country's program to develop indigenous energy resources and lessen dependence on imported sources of energy. In Letter of Instructions No. 983, he said that in compliance with his directive to accelerate the program to produce alcogas, the Philippine Sugar Commission has entered into a lease contract with Victorias Milling Co. in Negros Occidental for the use of their distillery in the production of alcohol for blending into alcogas. He pointed out that because existing distilleries are geared only towards production of hydrous alcohol, which is incompatible for blending with gasoline, there is need to install a dehydration facility in Victorias to further process alcohol to the desired quality. He then directed the PNOC to submit to him a report, accounting for the disbursement and utilization of the fund.

THE PRESIDENT called on the officers of the Philippine Association of Water Districts to adopt the policy of strict austerity in view of the problems brought about by rising oil prices. During the induction of the officers of the PAWD at the Mansion House, the President emphasized that everyone must be pragmatic and save money beginning with the government which has been ordered to cut spending by 10 percent in addition to previous cuts. Later, on request of the PAWD officials led by their national chairman, Moises Cating, the President directed LWUA General Manager Carlos Leaño, to submit as soon as possible a list of water districts classifying them into depressed or not depressed districts to determine which water districts will need a government assistance and which can stand on their own.

FORMER Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco died at 79 today of a stroke just two days after his birthday anniversary last February 15. As budget commissioner from February 15, 1960 to September 19, 1975, he served well beyond retirement age at the behest of the President. At one time he was concurrently the commissioner of import controls and of customs, after which he became deputy commissioner of the budget.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) will launch a massive tax campaign next year against tax evaders.

BIR Commissioner Ruben Ancheta said in a speech before the Kagitingan Lions' Club of Makati that the BIR had already set up the machinery by bolstering the personnel of the BIR tax fraud division, obtaining a memorandum agreement with the Ministry of Justice to give priority to tax fraud cases, and giving the BIR regional and district offices the capability to investigate their own tax fraud cases.

November 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS moved to save the government's dialogue with the Moro National Liberation Front in Jakarta by expressing readiness to deal with MNLF leaders other than Nur Misuari.

Misuari, who claim leadership of the divided MNLF, has set back the Jakarta talks scheduled this month with the announcement through the foreign media that he intends to send only his representatives.

His presence at the talks was deemed necessary because any agreement reached in Jakarta would bind the remaining MNLF holdouts in the South.

Starting Jan. 1, the government will relax import rules for more than 200 imported food products so low-income consumers can afford them.

Customs Commissioner Ramon J. Farolan said the Central Bank authority to import these food items will be scrapped.

Also, the customs duty on the more than 200 items will be reduced, from 100 to 80 percent.

Medical findings that link smoking to cancer have raised the moral issue of whether or not the government should encourage the production and consumption of tobacco, President Marcos said yesterday.

For this reason, the President said he has initiated the study on the replanting of tobacco lands to cotton.

This announcement on a possible shift in policy on tobacco was well received by the 39th plenary meeting of the International Cotton Advisory Committee which opened its conference at the PICC Nov. 24, 1980.

The Batasan passed on second reading a new law increasing the penalty for the corruption of minors. The penalty was raised from six months and one day to six years, to six years and one day to 12 years.

The approved measure also eliminated a requirement in the old law which said that for a person to be convicted of said crime, he should have habitually engaged in such misdemeanor.

The measure's principal author, Assemblyman Hilario G. Davide, Jr. of the minority Pusyon Bisaya defended the bill before the committee on revision of laws.

November 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS proposed the formation of an ASEAN economic community even as he underscored the necessity of a new constitutional framework for the Association of Southeast Asian Nations which, he said, would make for greater integration of the five ASEAN member-states and enable them to extend regional cooperation on a far broader range.

Addressing the opening session of the first General Assembly of the ASEAN Law Association at the Philippines International Convention Center, the President said that while development in contemporary times demands a more advanced state of economic integration, ASEAN's existing constitutional set-up is inadequate for the increasingly demanding role required of ASEAN for regional economic development.

He called upon the association membership to create an inter-governmental committee to work out the early attainment of this objective.

THE BATASANG PAMBANSA finally started plenary consideration of the proposed local government code. One of its features is a system of recall to weed out undesirables in local government units.

The final draft of the voluminous document (158 pages) was the result of more than two years of study and public hearings on various proposals for the full development of local units as self-reliant communities.

In a sponsorship speech, Local Government Minister Jose A. Roño said the local government committee followed the broad themes enunciated by President Marcos in drafting the proposed code.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said that contrary to what some sectors of the public think, the armed forces fully supports the government normalization moves which, barring unforeseen developments, are expected to culminate in the lifting of martial law next year.

The defense chief made this affirmation in a speech before a joint meeting of all eight Rotary clubs in this city and Cebu province.

Enrile also called on the opposition "not to foment violence or incite the people to take violence" against the government.

"It is the commitment of each and everyone now to dismantle martial law. This is imperative to the process of normalization which barring unforeseen development, is expected to culminate with the lifting of martial law by next year," he said.

US military bases in the Philippines, especially those at Subic Bay are probably the most important to the US Navy in the world says a report by the Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies here.

The report calls the bases "simply irreplaceable" and says the United States must study how to keep them intact, minimize their cost and prevent their cost, and prevent their degradation.

Labor Minister Blas F. Ople said starting December, Filipino workers who have been evacuated from the war zones in Iran will return to that country after they were recalled by the construction companies that employed them.

The return of the Filipino workers was agreed upon after a series of consultations with Philippine contractors.

The guidelines for the immobilization plan are expected to be signed by Ople during the International Labor Organization meet for Asia and Pacific from Dec. 2 to 11.

November 27—

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, expressed the hope that the ASEAN Law Association will come up with legal norms that would conform with the principles of basic human justice and compassion.

The First Lady advocated for “humane justice” at the special “Ladies Day” session of the assembly honoring the wives of the more than 1,500 delegates which include three chief justices, jurists and lawyers from Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia and Singapore, and the Philippines.

“I know that you the distinguished delegates of this august body will examine existing legal structures to see if they pass the test of concern and focus for the common man,” the First Lady said.

THE ARMY has pulled out an entire brigade, two infantry battalions, and an artillery group from the Southern Philippines “because of the greatly improved peace and order conditions.”

The disclosure came in the wake of a statement made by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile in Cebu City that “the problem posed by the Moro National Liberation Front has now been dissipated.”

Enrile attributed the breakthrough in the Mindanao conflict to the government’s policy of reconciliation which was won over-increasingly members of MNLF members and thereby isolated recalcitrant leaders of the secessionist movement.

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed that two members of; the five-member Cabinet standing committee be rotated every three months starting Jan. 1, 1981.

The order was designed to give the other ministers the chance to participate in decision-making in the national level.

The Cabinet standing committee was created by the President early this year to act on matters requiring immediate action and which do not need the action of the President.

The President’s directive, contained in a memorandum addressed to Finance Minister Cesar Virata, chairman of the committee, Virata, Industry Minister Roberto Ongpin and Budget Minister Jaime Laya will remain as permanent members of the committee.

The two non -permanent slots in the committee will be rotated among the other minister every three months. There are 24 Cabinet ministers with portfolio.

The other member of the committee at present is Economic Planning Minister Gerardo Sicat, Former Public Highways Minister Vicente Paterno used to be the committee vice chairman.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the government is reestablishing its oil sources in the Middle East to keep the oil situation in the country stable.

He made this disclosure in an interview with newsmen on the 18th hole of the Puerto Azul golf course, where he is participating in the President Marcos Invitational tournament.

The President said that there is nothing to worry at the moment because the country's 120-day oil supply is still intact.

According to the President, Iraq has started to export oil through Turkey and "we would like to know what could be done, to resume the country's oil import from that country."

PRESIDENT MARCOS reaffirmed yesterday the country's commitment to the goal of a "just, comprehensive and lasting solution" to the Palestinian question based on the recognition of the Palestinian people's right to self-determination.

The President renewed the commitment as he conveyed the greetings of the government and people of the Philippines to Falilou Kane of Senegal, chairman of the United Nations Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestine people on the occasion of the Independence Day of Solidarity with the Palestinian people which falls on Nov. 29.

November 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS created the Construction Industry Authority of the Philippines to give the fast-growing construction industry a bigger say in matters of concerning overseas contracts.

With a P5-million outlay to start with, the agency will rely heavily on the advice and expertise of the Philippine Contractors' Association.

The new agency, created through a presidential decree, will be headed by Industry Minister Roberto V. Ongpin. It will have six board members, among them Rodolfo Cuenca, president of the Construction and Development Corp. of the Philippines and the PCA president Antonio Diokno.

The CIAP will absorb the entire Overseas Construction Board, which until yesterday was the sole body supervising overseas contracts entered into with local construction firms. Its chairman, Ruben Ancheta, will now be one of the six board members of the CIAP.

The First Lady, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, gave the reminder to delegates to the Eighth Conference of Asian and Pacific Labor Ministers. They are meeting at the Philippine Plaza Hotel, the third such conference in Manila.

Calling for humanity in labor, she said “man is more than just a factor of production, he is what it is all about.”

Mrs. Marcos gave her views on the four major topics of the conference—labor migration, protectionism, working conditions and regional cooperation—and called for bilateral and multilateral agreements to protect overseas workers.

She suggested a joint representation for overseas workers “such that, where we don’t have official representatives in a labor-importing country, we may ask Thailand or Indonesia to intervene for us in labor disputes.”

IRKED by the slow pace with which regular courts are prosecuting smugglers, Customs Commissioners Ramon J. Farolan recommended yesterday the creation of customs circuit courts to try smuggling cases exclusively.

“It will be the major deterrent against smuggling,” Farolan said, as he submitted his formal proposal to Finance Minister Cesar Virata.

As this developed:

—Airport customs authorities seized 1,350 8 oz. bottles of American-made coffee worth P1 000,000. Imported coffee in commercial quantities is banned as it competes with local coffee products.

—Airport authorities said they have uncovered a group forging documents to facilitate the release of cargo at a bonded warehouse at the Manila International Airport.

Farolan’s proposal to establish courts to try smuggling cases exclusively came a day after Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile issued orders for the military to step up the manhunt for 12 remaining suspects in South Harbor hijackings. Two of the suspects are said to be Chinese millionaires.

President's Week in Review: December 1-6, 1980

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 1—

MALACAÑANG said the Philippine government has turned over to the United States government the evidence against Philippine and foreign terrorists based in the United States.

The evidence, consisting of a two-and-a-half-inch-thick sheaf of documents together with exhibits, was submitted to the US embassy.

Minister Estelito Mendoza, Philippine solicitor-general, said that the Philippine US governments have established a "satisfactory working procedure" regarding the investigation and prosecution of terrorists including those residing in the US.

Government sources said, by way of a backgrounder, that the opposition had originally adopted non-violent means in their efforts to "restore democracy in the Philippines." But they soon changed their strategy and tactics by adopting violent means including bombings and officials but of private businesses and people.

THE FIRST joint cooperation committee meeting between the European Economic Community and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations ended Saturday night with approval of a package of cooperation agreement.

In a joint statement, the committee established a working group to facilitate consultation trade issues related to commercial cooperation.

It also noted ASEAN's request for additional product listings in the new EEC general scheme of preferences (GSP) and reviewed the development of trade in textiles and other commodities of interest to ASEAN.

In a press conference after the closing session, Wilhelm Haperkamp, vice president of the Commission of the European Community External Relations said the EEC will apply the GSP for ASEAN for another 10 years.

December 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and New Zealand Prime Minister Robert Muldoon announced the organization of a firm under a joint venture which will provide engineering, technical, and related scientific services in the development of Philippine geothermal resources.

The new outfit, Philippine National Oil Company Geothermal Technology Corp., will be jointly owned by the PNOC and the Kingston Reynolds Thorn Allardice, a consultancy firm from New Zealand.

The announcement was made during a lunch given by the President in honor of Muldoon in Malacañang.

Muldoon arrived Sunday night to preside over a meeting of a special committee created by the International Monetary Fund to discuss the issue of Palestinian Liberation Organization representation in that body.

TAXPAYERS who did not pay their income taxes or those who filed erroneous or false income tax returns from 1974 to 1979 were given yesterday until June 15, 1981 to pay their correct income taxes.

This condition was among those laid down by the Bureau of Internal Revenue which issued the guidelines to implement Presidential Decree No. 1740. The decree condoned penalties for certain tax violations upon voluntary disclosure of undeclared income.

The tax condonation applies to resident citizens, non-resident citizens, resident aliens and estates or trusts.

The BIR said that those who did not pay income taxes from 1974 to 1979 will be allowed to file their tax returns, while those who declared inaccurate or false income will be allowed to amend their income tax returns.

THE EIGHTH conference of Asian-Pacific Labor Ministers yesterday urged developed countries to lower trade and tariff barriers to enable goods and services to flow more freely between countries in the region and other nations.

Assailing the protectionist policies of developed countries, the delegates who included 16 labor ministers in Asia and the Pacific, said more workers in the region have become unemployed due to such policies.

December 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS underscored the need for the workingmen to exercise their rights in accordance with public interest.

He said at the opening of the ninth International Labor Organization Asian Regional conference at the Philippine International Convention Center, that the freedom of the workingmen to organize is both “liberating and constraining.

However, he said, “where the right is exercised without regard for the public or national interest, and therefore ceases to be a right in order to become irresponsible license, the developing society as a whole feels both threatened and abused.”

This was revealed yesterday by the Batasan special committee on constitutional amendments which indicated that the transition President to be voted upon will be empowered to supervise the running of the government during the transition period until members of the assembly are elected.

The plan was agreed upon in a meeting of the 46-member special committee which the Batasan created to study various proposals to amend the Constitution.

Majority Floor Leader Jose A. Roño, who was named chairman of the special body, hinted that the transition President will have all the powers of the President and Prime Minister as stipulated in both the 1935 and 1973 Constitutions.

December 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday he is ready to submit himself to an election if the Batasang Pambansa feels that there is need for a Presidential election even before 1984.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he is ready to submit himself to an election if the Batasang Pambansa feels that there is a need for a Presidential election even before 1984.

A 46-man special committee studying constitutional changes, headed by Majority Floor Leader Jose Roño, has proposed the election of a transition president.

The proposed amendment would fix the end of the transition period at 1984 and provide for an election of a transition president to serve from 1980 to 1984.

Under the transitory provision of the Constitution, there is no fixed period for the transition period.

Some 350,000 public school teachers will be given P100 each next year by the government as cash assistance in buying teaching aids and classroom supplies.

Jesus T. Manipula, officer-in-charge of the Ministry of Education and Culture's financial management services, said the government has set aside P35 million for that purpose under the 1981 budget.

He said the amount is in addition to the classroom instructional material or allowance to be given to the teachers next year under the maintenance and operating funds of the MEC's school divisions.

Teachers have been encouraged by the MEC to prepare their own teaching aids such as flip charts, flash cards and pictures to improve their teaching standards.

December 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was assured by Batasan Majority-Floorleader Jose Roño that the opposition will be properly consulted regarding the proposed election for a transition president.

The President and Roño, head of the special committee on Constitutional amendments of the Batasan Pambansa, conferred in Malacañang on the three pending resolutions in the Batasan calling for the amendment of the Charter.

Roño informed the President that starting Tuesday, the opposition will be invited to give their views and to offer suggestions during the public hearing at the Batasan on the proposed Presidential election before 1984.

The special committee on Constitutional amendments had presented to the Batasan a resolution calling for the election of the transition President and the setting of a definite period for the transition.

THE FIRST LADY, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, has left for New York to attend to vital matters involving national security. This was disclosed by President Marcos in an interview with newsmen.

In a stopover in Honolulu, the First Lady addressed the Pacific Forum, which is a study group of Americans involving those of the present and the incoming administration.

"The First Lady has quite a lot in her hands," the President said as he enumerated the numerous things that the First Lady has to attend to in the United States.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos in a speech in Honolulu said the Philippines has attained significant breakthrough in its energy development that will help cushion the impact of the worldwide oil crisis.

The First Lady spoke before the Pacific forum seminar on the Makaha side of Oahu island being attended by some 50 American and Asian delegates. The seminar was held to discuss the US role in Asia and the concept of a Pacific community for regional consultation and cooperation

Mrs. Marcos arrived in Honolulu enroute to the US mainland to undertake a special mission for President Marcos.

Tuesday night, she was special guest at a dinner hosted by Hawaii Gov. George Ariyoshi and his wife.

In her speech, the First Lady said the Philippines has harnessed hydro and geothermal power as alternate sources of energy.

Aside from this, productive oil wells have been drilled in Palawan providing the Philippines with “at least 10 percent of our oil so we have to look for alternate sources,” Mrs. Marcos said.

The First Lady also told the gathering about prospects to transform the ipil-ipil into gas and into electric power.

THE SUPREME COURT paved the way for the government to collect unpaid taxes on “unreasonably accumulated” corporate surplus profits when it ruled that there is no time limit for the government to assess the 25 percent tax on such surplus profits.

The ruling was contained in the tribunal’s resolution reconsidering its decision of April 8, 1976, on the case of Commissioner of Internal Revenue vs. Ayala Securities Corporation and the Court of Tax Appeals.

December 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS convened the Batasang Pambansa into a constituent assembly from Monday, Dec. 8, to Dec. 19 to consider eight amendments to the Constitution.

Foremost among them are those calling for direct election of the President by the people and limiting his tenure as transition President to six years.

In his proclamation, President Marcos said the amendments are of crucial importance and dictated by recent developments. Without this urgency, he said, the amendments could have been considered in a Constitutional Convention like the one held in 1971.

However, the President said, irrespective of how the Constitution will be amended, a plebiscite must be held to determine whether the people approve of the changes.

The Batasan’s 46-man special committee on constitutional amendments presented to the assembly yesterday the following six changes, under resolution 272, to be known as the 1981 amendments.

A DECREE granting amnesty to offenders in cases of mere illegal possession of firearm, ammunition and explosive has been issued by President Marcos.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said the new law, Presidential Decree 1745, was signed by the President last Nov. 20.

The decree is effective for three months or until Feb. 20, 1981, Enrile said.

As defined in the decree, illegal possession of firearms, ammunition or explosive shall be deemed simple if no other offense is committed with the use of such firearm, ammunition or explosive.

President's Week in Review: December 8-14, 1980

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that those involved in the cold-blooded murder of a newsman in Iligan City Friday will be punished to the fullest extent of the law.

The assurance was given by the President in an interview with newsmen shortly before leaving for Paoay, Ilocos Norte, regarding the killing of Bulletin Today correspondent Demosthenes Dingcong.

“We will see to it that those involved in the atrocious murder (of Dingcong) will be punished,” the President stressed.

The President said that he has ordered the military and defense authorities to conduct an investigation.

In a telegram to the President, the National Press Club had sought the intervention of the President because “the case unveils a new threat to press freedom and undermines the normalization effort of the government.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS indicated he plans to lift martial law before the elections for the transition President expected to be held next April.

In an interview here with newsmen, the President said that elections can be held even with martial law. But he said he prefers that martial law shall have been lifted when the elections are held.

“It is a probability that martial law shall have been lifted before the elections,” the President said.

The President placed the possible date of the holding of the Presidential elections—the first since 1969—in April.

He recalled what he said last year that he would consider the lifting of martial law, imposed more than eight years ago, by March of next year and “I presume the elections will be after March.”

The President said it is hoped that the amendment to the Constitution would be approved by January by the constituent assembly which opens its session tomorrow in Quezon City.

December 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ruled out the granting of subsidy to political parties in the proposed election for a transition President expected to be held in summer next year.

In a talk with newsmen, the President pointed out that the granting of government subsidy or financial aid to political parties will only confuse politics in the country.

Some political sectors have proposed the granting of subsidy to encourage a strong opposition candidate in the coming elections.

The President said, however, the granting of such subsidy as in American elections will only “open the floodgates to nuisance candidates.”

“You will have the two political parties subject to the whims and caprices of nuisance candidates,” the President said.

THE BATASANG Pambansa convened as a constituent assembly to propose changes to the Constitution and prepare for the election of a transition President either in April or May next year.

The measures referred to the Batasan special committee which convened last night included:

Resolution No. 272 providing for the election of a transition President by popular vote, introduced by Majority Floor Leader Jose Roño and Assemblymen Ronaldo B. Zamora, Antonio Ceniza, Frisco San Juan and Arturo Pacificador.

Resolution No. 273 granting certain economic right to natural-born Filipino citizens but later naturalized in a foreign country, introduced by Assemblymen Mariano Agcaoili, Emilio Abello, and Manuel Garcia.

Resolution No. 274 seeking to remove present prohibitions on elective officials to accept additional posts in the government.

Resolution No. 280 seeking to lift present prohibitions on Batasan members to become deputy prime ministers, introduced by Assemblyman Manuel Garcia.

Resolution No. 281 granting representation to political parties in all election boards.

A resolution setting the transition period until 1984 after the members of the regular National Assembly shall have been elected.

PRESIDENT MARCOS approved the giving of Christmas bonuses to government employees and those in government corporations.

1. For national government employees—one week pay.
2. For local government employees—one week pay, provided money is available in the local unit’s coffers.
3. For government corporation employees—either one-month basic salary plus allowances or last year’s bonus, whichever is higher, provided the corporation is making money.

The President approved the bonus on recommendation of Budget Commissioner Jaime C. Laya “in recognition of the dedicated service rendered by government workers and the unusually high expenses normally incurred during the Christmas season.”

This is the first time since proclamation of martial law in 1972 that government workers will get a Christmas bonus.

FOR Humanitarian reasons, President Marcos ordered the immediate release from military detention of former Senator Eva Estrada Kalaw, former Con-Con Delegate Ernesto Rondon, and 23 others,

All will be placed under house arrest.

One other accused, former Senator Raul Manglapus, although covered by the presidential directive, is in the United States.

Kalaw and her co-accused were arrested on Dec. 4 on orders of a seven-man military court headed by Brig. Gen. Pacifco Lopez de Leon.

Charges against them include illegal possession of firearms, ammunition and explosives, conspiring to assassinate the President, and conspiring to commit rebellion and inciting to rebellion.

December 11—

CHILDREN—both the gifted and the deprived—will come under a big plan of the President to give them most of the benefits of development. In a speech in Malacañang addressed to 600 delegates to the 2nd President's National Conference for the Development of Children and Youth, the President outlined his goals:

1. Immunization of every Filipino child below two years of age against tuberculosis and polio; and every seven-year-old against respiratory and communicable diseases.
2. Doubling day care centers in the barangay from the present 5,000 to 10,000 by 1985.
3. Further emphasis on mental feeding in the rural areas, including children's literature.
4. Creating more opportunities for gifted and talented children. Neither the energy crisis nor inflation will deter the government from pursuing these goals, the President said.

THE BATASAN asked President Marcos for more time to pass proposed amendments to the Constitution in its role as a constituent assembly.

An indefinite extension of the deadline was recommended by the special committee on constitutional amendments headed by Majority Floor Leader and Local Government Minister Jose A. Roño.

Under Proclamation 2040, the Batasan is to act as a constituent body from Dec. 8 to 19.

Assistant majority Floor Leader Arturo Pacificador observed that the public hearings on the proposals are scheduled up to Dec. 18, leaving the Batasan no time to debate on the proposed changes and pass them on second and final readings.

To facilitate discussions, the various resolutions proposing Charter amendments were grouped into four general topics:

The election of a transition president by a direct vote and the fixing of the end of the transition period in 1984;

The manner of electing the members of the regular National Assembly, a definition of the constituency for the election whether by district or by region or by any other constituency;

The accreditation of political parties, including the determination of which parties shall be entitled to representation in electoral bodies, and the definition of turncoatism.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the government will encourage more foreign investments “to help sustain the momentum of the country’s economic growth.”

In a talk with newsmen, the President said, “I am looking forward to encouraging more equity or outright investments instead of loans because the atmosphere seems to be just right.”

Already, the President said, several international banking institutions, including some in the United States and Japan, have openly pledged support to the country’s 11 major industrial projects.

He also mentioned bankers from West Germany, Sweden and Britain as among those interested in investing in the country, particularly in mining.

December 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the Philippines would seek an active role in finding a “just and lasting” solution to the Iran-Iraq war, now on its 81st day.

He said it would be possible for the country to participate actively in this effort by virtue of its membership in the United Nations Security Council.

The President made this assurance to Dr. Saadoun Hammadi, foreign minister of Iraq, who called on him at Malacañang.

President Marcos underscored the vital role played by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, in the renewal of the government contract for the Philippines to import crude oil from Saudi Arabia.

The President said that the First Lady went to the United States for various missions but that the most important was on oil and the reinstatement of the Philippines in the good graces of Saudi Arabia.

He said that the First Lady had to go to New York to talk to Middle East representatives and other officials because the cancellation of the government contract to import oil from Saudi Arabia became a political matter.

“It was necessary for the First Lady to personally go because the alternative was for me to go and explain what had happened (in Mindanao).”

THE SAUDI ARABIAN government has agreed to renew the contract of the Philippines to import crude oil from that Middle East country.

The renewal of the government-to-government contract restores a 10,000-barrel daily supply for the Philippines.

December 13—

THE BATASANG Pambansa spelled out in two separate resolutions filed the rule on succession to the presidency during the transition period which ends in 1984.

One resolution provides that before the end of the transition period, the successor to the President/Prime Minister as determined by law in case of the latter’s death or permanent disability shall, within six months following his assumption of office, submit himself to a plebiscite called by, the Batasan for the purpose of affirming the mandate of his leadership.

The other resolution provides that in case of death, resignation, or permanent disability of the incumbent President/Prime Minister, the speaker shall act as Prime Minister until the Batasang Pambansa convenes and-elects the Prime Minister within 72 hours.

The two resolutions seek to amend Presidential Decree 1514 which provides that the speaker shall act as acting President and perform the duties under the Constitution and then call the Batasan to session and elect the successor.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said it was his intention to lift martial law “by the end of January”—if all legal questions on the matter are resolved by then by the Supreme Court.

Chief Justice Enrique M. Fernando said in an interview that “martial law” cases pending with the high court would be resolved before the end of January.

In a speech before the University of the Philippine Law Alumni Association at its homecoming the President also announced he would release before Christmas all persons charged merely with illegal possession of firearms if these guns had not been used in crimes.

In his 45-minute address, the President ordered the release from military custody of Nilo Tayag and Leoncio Co, president and secretary general, respectively, of the Kabatang Makabayan, described by the military as a subversive group, Tayag was convicted of violation of the anti-subversion law (RA 1700) and Co had a pending case on the same charge. Both were released for humanitarian reasons.

The President also:

Declared that a plebiscite on constitutional amendments would cost P75 million, a presidential elections P80 million, and a “misdirected” election P200 million.

Proposed the holding of public hearings on the proposed election of a transition President, stressing that the people, including the opposition, must decide whether they want such an election before the election in 1984 of members of the regular National Assembly.

Asked the Batasang Pambansa to resolve the issue of whether the elections shall be by district, as mandated by the Constitution, or by region as now proposed by certain sectors.

Urged opposition groups to unite to resolve the issue of accreditation in political bodies such as the boards of election inspectors and canvassers.

Expressed determination that while he wanted the active participation of the opposition, he was opposed to the participation of those who have sought the violent overthrow of the government.

The proposals were among several resolutions introduced in the Batasan.

December 14

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the immediate enforcement of a general order which grants bail to certain criminal offenders arrested under the strength of an arrest, search and seizure order.

General Order 68 also expanded the coverage of the ASSO to include not only crimes which directly affect or undermine national security but also those which do not directly affect security but are so pernicious; as to frustrate the goals of government.

Under the order dated Oct. 20, 1980, any offender arrested either through an ASSO or court order may be released from detention upon the filing of charges against him and upon his posting of bail.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the buying of copra under a price support scheme to enable the farmers to maintain their income until the price in the world market improves.

The price of coconut oil in the world market: has dropped from 28 US cents a pound to as low as 23 cents a pound. This drop would result in a copra mill gate price of P100 per 100 kilos.

“A price support scheme is needed to maintain the farm gate income of our coconut farmers until we can get better prices for our coconut oil.” the President said.

THE BATASAN special committee on constitutional amendments approved a proposal granting certain economic rights to overseas Filipinos subject to enactment of the assembly.

In a marathon session, presided over by Local Government Minister and Majority Floor Leader Jose A. Roño, the committee also recommended that a date of the election for members of the regular National Assembly be fixed on the second Monday of May, 1984.

The committee agreed to scrap a provision in Batasan Resolution No. 28 prescribing a specific area of real estate an overseas Filipino wishing to return may acquire in the Philippines. The resolution, introduced by Assemblymen Emilio Abello, Mariano Agcaolli, Manuel Garcia and 30 others, seeks to grant certain economic rights to natural-born Filipino citizens who have been naturalized in a foreign country, like owning a piece of land.

* * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS has authorized the release of P40 million for the repair of schoolbuildings, ports and flood control projects in five regions badly hit by typhoon “Aring.”

Public Works Minister Alfredo L. Juinio said the President authorized the release of the amount, or 50 percent of the P80 million needed for the repair of the projects.

The amount was based on reports on the extent of the damage in Regions 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5.

PRESIDENT MARCOS instructed Health Minister Enrique Garcia to review the government's medical care program in view of the rising cost of hospitalization.

* * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the investigation of the Food and Drug Administration for alleged irregularities.

The President directed Health Minister Enrique Garcia to conduct the probe and authorized him to call for legal assistance from other government agencies.

The FDA has been under fire from Batasang Pambansa members and from some sectors of the public for reported “acts of commission and omission that endanger the public health.

December 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS asked the Batasang Pambansa to decide before Christmas whether or not to hold this summer an election for a transition President.

The President pointed out that there may not be enough time to hold an election this summer if a decision is not made as soon as possible.

“If there is a plan to call an election by not late than May during summer when the season is good for campaigning, they should make the decision now,” the President said.

The matter will still have to be submitted to a plebiscite, which will take one or two months, he added. This will be followed by a two-month campaign period.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the First Lady might have to go to Saudi Arabia to follow up Philippine request for more Arab oil.

The President said that the First Lady is trying to see some of the high-ranking officials of the Islamic Council.

The First Lady left for the United States early this month on a special mission for the President, the principal one of which is to look for more sources of oil.

* * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed the PC and the police to “spare no one” in going after the killers of former governor and opposition leader Jose Lingad of Pampanga.

He decried the killing which, he said, was “not any different from the terrorism that I have been denouncing for the past several months.”

December 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was assured that Abu Dhabi is always ready to help the Philippines meet its oil requirements.

This assurance was conveyed to the President, by Dr. Mana Saeed al Otaiba, minister of petroleum and minerals of the United Arab Emirates and former president of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, after the latter was conferred the Sikatuna Award.

“We have oil and whatever we have we are prepared to contribute to enable your country to reach the target which you are aiming to reach.”

THE BATASAN special committee on constitutional amendments appeared set to reject proposals to hold a national election next year for a transition President.

Nothing what they said was the growing sentiment against such an election as expressed in public hearings conducted by the Batasan throughout the country, a majority of the committee’s 60 members said that they will vote against the proposal when it is presented for approval.

The special committee on character amendments will meet en banc today to make a decision on proposals to hold a transition election.

A bi-partisan group of assemblymen, meantime, drew up a new resolution seeking, the abolition of the position of the ceremonial president as provided in the present constitution.

* * *

ALL JUDGES and employees—except those disqualified for “sufficient reason —will be reappointed if the proposed reorganization of the judiciary is approved.

President Marcos gave this assurance to allay fears of some members of the judiciary that the proposed reorganization, now pending approval of the Batasang Pambansa, would result in mass lay-offs.

“I would like to emphasize that if this reorganization is carried out as now proposed, the policy shall be that all incumbent shall be re appointed unless there is good reason for their non-reappointment to the new positions,” the President said.

December 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus will remain suspended in the two autonomous regions in Mindanao and other troubled areas even if martial law will be lifted.

The President explained that it is necessary to suspend the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in certain areas to keep peace and stability in the country.

The President also assured that the gains of the New Society will be protected by existing laws which will continue even after the lifting of martial law.

The suspension of the writ allows the military to arrest civilians without securing warrants from civilian courts and to detain them indefinitely.

* * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS and visiting Saudi Arabian Minister of State Fayez Ibrahim Badr pledged closer economic and technical cooperation between their countries.

During a luncheon tendered by the President in honor of the visiting dignitary and his party, the President conveyed his gratitude to the Saudi Arabian government for its “understanding of the problems confronting the country and its readiness to help.”

The President expressed gratitude, particularly for the continued supply of Saudi crude oil to the Philippines, the $1-million assistance for the amelioration of Muslim Filipinos through roads and irrigation projects, and the establishment of the Islamic Institute at the University of the Philippines.

* * *

THE BATASAN special committee on constitutional amendments voted against the election of members of the regular National Assembly by district and opted instead for regional elections.

In another action, the committee also formally turned down two resolutions seeking the election next year of a transition President.

The committee decision to reject the transition presidential election was influenced by public clamor in recent public nationwide hearings.

December 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the military to turn over the subversion and sedition cases against former Sen. Eva Estrada Kalaw and former Constitutional Convention delegate Ernesto Rondon and their 24 co-accused to the civil courts for trial.

Malacañang said the President’s order is in line with the policy of reconciliation and normalization.

Kalaw and Rondon are part of a group, which also includes former Sen Raul Manglapus, accused of subversion and plotting to topple the government by seizing Camp Aguinaldo and assassinating the President.

The case is pending before Military Commission No. 34, headed by Brig. Gen. Pacifico Lopez do Leon.

* * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that plans to lift martial law before the end of January still stand notwithstanding the decision of the Batasang Pambansa to scrap the election for the transition President.

The President said that with no elections to prepare for, there will be more time to work out “the more complicated problems” attending the move toward normalization.

The President cited the Security Code, a compilation of orders, decrees and decisions promulgated by him, and the Public Order Act, which deals with some rights of an individual.

December 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS granted amnesty to 1,200 persons and ordered the temporary release of 530 others detainees all over the country.

Those granted amnesty are either under arrest or investigation, on trial or convicted of charges of simple illegal possession of firearms and ammunition or explosives.

The granting of amnesty and temporary release of these individuals is considered another move by the President to hasten efforts at normalization.

The President first announced his intention to release all prisoners who have been charged merely with illegal possession of firearms but who have not utilized these firearms for the commission of any crime during his speech at the University of the Philippine alumni celebration last Dec. 12.

President's Week in Review: December 23-25, 1980

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS listed some of the implications of the lifting of martial law, especially as it affects individual rights. He discussed them in his speech at the AFP Day celebration at Camp Aguinaldo.

They are:

1. The President will stop making laws, a function reserved for the Batasang Pambansa.
2. The President will stop issuing arrest, search and seizure orders (ASSOs).
3. Curfew will not be imposed, except in the few critical places where martial law may be retained.
4. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus will be restored, except in cases involving public order or security.
5. Movements of individuals will not be curtailed.
6. The press will have greater freedom and access to information, but the media councils and censors board will stay.
7. The freedom of peaceful assembly will be enhanced, except when used to torment disorder, sedition and rebellion.

* * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the dismantling of military tribunals and detention centers to help complete “the process of bringing martial law to a close.”

The President issued the orders during his speech at the commemoration of the 45th anniversary of the armed forces at Camp Aguinaldo.

With the dismantling of military tribunals, which were set up more than eight years ago with the proclamation of martial law, all cases before the tribunals, except those cases already submitted for decision, will be transferred to the civil courts.

There are 11 military commission and provost courts, 32 of which were set up last August, and 14 detention centers, including two in Metro Manila.

December 24—

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, came home laden with gifts for the Filipino people—oil from Saudi Arabia and strengthening of relationship with the incoming administration of US President-elect Ronald Reagan.

After a 20-day trip that took her to two thirds of the world from Hawaii to North Africa on official missions for President Marcos, the First Lady reported that her talks with the incoming Reagan administration was undertaken at the “highest level and with only positive results.”

On negotiations for oil, the First Lady said she:

—Succeeded, with the help of Prince Fadh, Prince Saud, and Ambassador Shoboksi, Saudi Arabia ambassador to the Philippines, in asking King Khalid of Saudi Arabia to restore the supply of oil to the Philippines. The country gets 50 percent of its oil needs from Saudi Arabia.

—Negotiated with Middle East suppliers of crude oil in the United States for a steady supply of crude oil for the country.

—Sought the cooperation of the American Petroleum Institute for the acceleration of the drilling program in the Philippines.

—Obtained the assistance of scientists of the National Academy of Sciences in the United States for the broadening of applicable technology in the development of local energy resources.

SAUDI ARABIAN OIL Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani said he hopes that the friendly relations between the Philippines and his country will grow stronger and deeper.

Yamani expressed this hope after the conferment on him by President Marcos of the ancient Order of Sikatuna, rank of datu, in recognition of his invaluable services as one of the world's most distinguished statesmen.

In accepting the "great honor," Yamani said he would "try (his) best to translate (his) feelings into action rather than words, and will go home with best memories of my visit to this great country and the overwhelming hospitality extended to me and my wife."

December 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the release of two American pilots who landed Nov. 12 at the Manila international airport with an unauthorized load of Claymore mines and other explosive devices.

In a directive issued on Christmas Day, the President set the two Americans—Duane Heist, 33 and Robert Rummel, 30—free under the principle of "nolle prosequi," which meant that they were forgiven for whatever violations of Philippine laws they have committed.

The two pilots were held by the authorities after they landed at the Manila international airport on a twin-engine Aero Commander with the mines and other explosive devices.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has appointed Assistant Minister Vicente Leogardo Jr. and Labor Relations Director Carmeio C. Noriel as deputy ministers of the Ministry of Labor and Employment.

Labor Minister Blas F. Ople recommended the appointment of the two to fill up two slots for deputy ministers, including the one vacated by resigned Deputy Minister Amado G. Inciong.

Until his appointment to his new post as deputy minister, Leogardo was officer-in-charge of the office of Deputy Minister Inciong.

METRO Manila Gov. Imelda R. Marcos has earmarked some P1 million for the squatters who may wish to return to their hometowns.

Vice Gov. Ismael Mathay Jr. made the announcement as he ordered a stepping up of the “Balik-probinsiya” program.

Mathay said the First Lady has assured the squatter families of the government’s assistance under the dispersal program launched two years ago.

An average of 150,000 migrants stream motropolis every year and the population may reach 18 million by the year 2000 if nothing is done to contain them Mathay said.

* * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS appointed two deputy labor ministers and shuffled two ambassadors.

Named were Vicente Leogardo Jr. and Carmelo Noriel two veteran officials in the labor ministry. Reassigned were Ambassador Rafael Ilete and Manuel Yan.

Ilete was transferred from Iran to Thailand while Yan was sent to Indonesia.

The new deputy labor ministers were recommended by Minister Blas F. Ople who cited the youth, integrity and competence of the appointees.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the strike ban in vital industries will remain even after martial law is lifted to prevent sudden dislocation in the economy.

There has been some apprehensions in the business community that with the lifting of martial law next month eight years of industrial peace will be threatened.

While stressing that he will not agree to any sudden dislocation of the economy, the President said that he will consult with both labor and management leaders to work out a plan to gradually phase out the strike ban in vital industries.

* * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS was informed by the United States embassy that the two American pilots ordered by the President released from Philippine custody last Christmas Day and their employer have waived all claims to the explosives and related devices confiscated from them by the Philippine government.

* * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared that even with the lifting of martial law next January the policy that there should be no strikes in essential industries would stand.

This policy would stand, he told Malacañang reporters in an interview, “until we can get everybody settled down.”

He allayed fears of business sectors that the lifting of martial law next month would bring on a spate of strikes, adding that industrialists need not fear “that there will be sudden dislocations, sudden changes.”

The President said that the no-strike policy is a part of the Labor Code, General Order No. 5, and other special laws.

THE BATASANG Pambansa, sitting as a constituent assembly, decided to conduct more public hearings on five major political issues to enable it to finalize proposed amendments to the Constitution and submit them to the people for approval in a plebiscite.

Speaker Querube C. Makalintal urged citizens in the Bicol region and Western Visayas to participate by sending representatives to the hearings scheduled for Jan. 8-10 in Iloilo City, Legaspi City, and Naga City on the following issues:

1. A constitutional provision which would guarantee that in a regional election for members of the regular National Assembly each province will have at least one seat.
2. Accreditation of political parties and their representation in all election boards.
3. Succession to the presidency during the period of transition.
4. Prohibiting elective officials to occupy other government positions during their tenure.
5. Immunity of the President and Prime Minister from suit for official acts during their tenure.

THE UNITED STATES government is expected to have a tougher policy against terrorists under the in-coming Reagan administration.

This assessment was made yesterday by President Marcos in a talk with newsmen as he noted the irritation by President-elect Ronald Reagan over the prolonged captivity of 52 American hostages in Iran.

The President said that he is certain that the adviser of Reagan have told him of how the permissiveness of the United States has helped to develop the terrorist organization not only those operating against the Philippines but also against other countries.

“Good sense, rationality and a wider perspective will now compel the United States to enforce its own laws” against foreign terrorists or political dissidents, the President said.

December 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he is retaining certain powers to prevent anarchy once martial law is lifted.

The first of these is the right to suspend the writ of habeas corpus in the event of any plot or conspiracy against the Republic and there is evidence about these. The other is his power to call out the armed forces to stop any disorder, riot or rebellion.

The President stressed these safeguards’ significance in the normalization process in his speech before a joint affair of the Annac Ti Batac and the Bataquenna Jaycees at the Imelda Cultural Center in Batac, Ilocos Norte.

January 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he plans to release all subversion suspects under detention, except those whom he described as “viciously militant.”

In a brief talk with newsmen, the President said “I am considering actually forgiving everybody, as many of them as possible, and turning them into productive members of society.”

Although the President had ordered the release or granted amnesty to a large group of detainees under arrest or convicted of simple illegal possession of firearms or explosives or facing subversion charges, a number of those accused of major crimes against the state are still under detention.

January 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared six provinces and three cities in Northern Mindanao under a state of calamity following continuous rains that flooded 24 towns and killed at least 18 people since Dec. 19.

The President issued the declaration in response to the request of provincial government officials who have been coordinating relief operations in the flooded areas which had displaced 9,015 families or 50,377 persons.

Government relief agencies had initially placed the damage to both public and private properties at P50 million, but destruction could be much more once final reports are completed.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that decisive changes in various sectors last year, including sports development, indicate bright prospects for the Filipino athlete.

The President, gave this optimistic assessment in a speech read for him by Michael M. Keon, president of the Philippine Olympic Committee during the awarding ceremonies for the Outstanding Athletes for 1980 under the auspices of the Philippine Sportswriters Association at the Philippine Plaza.

He stressed that sports development is part of national development of any country.

PRESIDENT MARCOS approved the grant of additional aid this year to local governments, particularly those adversely affected by the recent drop in coconut and sugar prices.

The aid which will come from the national government, was earlier recommended by outgoing Budget Minister Jaime C. Laya. The President's approval came shortly before Laya was appointed Central Bank governor.

Laya recommended to the President two measures concerning the grant of aid to local governments. They are:

—The grant of additional aid to local government whose incomes declined in 1980 due to low prices of coconut and sugar, in an amount not exceeding the actual drop in these local governments' local revenue from recurring sources between 1979 and 1980.

—The adoption of guidelines to implement a new decree which allows year-to-year increase in allotments from Bureau of National Revenue collections to local governments beyond the 25 percent ceiling imposed by law.

In Presidential Decree No. 1741, certain local governments may receive increases in their BIR allotments of more than 25 percent, depending on their needs.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the Central Bank under the leadership of former CB Gov. Gregorio Licaros played a vital role in the progress of the country's economy in the past decade.

Laya replaced Licaros who retired after 50 years of service in the government, including 11 years as CB governor.

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, approved a massive food production program aimed at bringing down the cost of food, particularly in Metro Manila.

The program called the Kadiwa Sa Bagong Liputan Production Program will be participated by 10 major government agencies concerned with the production of the country's staple foods.

The First Lady thought of integrating the functions of these agencies and harnessing their technology, manpower, and resources, as an assurance that the total plan of action towards an intensified food production will have long lasting effects and not "merely touch the surface of the problem."

The program is premised on the First Lady's concept of establishing food granaries in different provinces in the form of plantations, ranches, and by the maximum harnessing of waterways to step up on fish culture, to ensure the people of an abundance of vegetables, fish, beef and pork.

January 16—

THE RESPONSIBILITY of maintaining peace and order in the country will be shifted to local authorities and police forces when martial law is lifted, except in areas where there is actual conflict.

This was stressed by the President during the meeting of the National Security Council and the Cabinet during policy consultations before the formal announcement of the lifting of martial law, possibly tomorrow.

The President said that while the responsibility of maintaining peace and order will be given to the local police, military units should stay in their posts and continue to perform their main responsibility of safeguarding national security.

During the one-hour 40-minute meeting, the President reviewed the gains of the new society and restated the implications of the lifting of the emergency rule, imposed more than eight years ago.

THE 60-MEMBER Batasan committee on constitutional amendments adopted a proposal to elect by region the members of the regular National Assembly in 1984.

The plan was one of six resolutions endorsed by the committee for Batasan enactment beginning on Monday when the chamber convenes as a constituent assembly.

The committee gave in to proposals to allow individual amendments when the plan to hold regional elections is discussed in the plenary session.

January 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on the people to be more militant to enable the country to achieve greatness in the years ahead.

The call was issued by the President after formally proclaiming the end of martial law rule and the beginning of “a new era and a new day.”

In his address highlighting the ceremonies of Constitution Day in Malacañang, the President issued Proclamation No. 2045 ending the emergency rule which he imposed eight years and four months ago.

During the emotion-filled ceremonies, the President reminded the people that martial law does not carry with it the passing of all burdens.

There will be more tests for our capacity, for our resiliency, for our strength as a people,” the President stressed.

The President said the militancy of a concerned citizenry and the social commitment of a responsible elite are needed more than ever now because, the end of martial law does not mean the end of all needed reforms.

“As I now sign this proclamation in full view of our nation and the world at large, I am profoundly conscious of the tasks that remain, hoping that we shall not lose the momentum of our achievements so that those who shall come after us may carry on the quest of a greater society,” the President said.

PRESIDENT MARCOS attacked the "Western Press," claiming it exaggerated alleged human rights abuses in the Philippines as well as conflicts between his government and the Catholic Church.

In an interview carried on the ABC network, Mr. Marcos denied that his government is guilty of human rights abuses as charged by groups such as Amnesty International. He said there are only about 6 to 10 cases of alleged torture on record. He said this "was a pretty good record considering we have 150,000 men in the field."

"It's a good record particularly when you compare it to New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, or even Florida," he said.

THE FIRST LADY, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, urged the Muslim leaders and heads of cultural minorities in Mindanao to heed whatever advice Pope Paul II would give them.

The leaders of the two groups sought to meet with the First Lady before their scheduled encounter with the Pope after the Mass at the airport.

The First Lady arrived an hour ahead of the Pope and led in the blessing and inauguration of the new Davao International Airport.

February 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS flew to Baguio City to join Pope John Paul II and returned to Manila ahead of the pontiff.

The President told a huge crowd at the Manila International Airport that the Filipino people, irrespective of religion, had manifested love and affection for His Holiness.

He also expressed gratitude that the Pope had come to the country “to bring Christ back to those who have forgotten him, to replace hatred with love, anger with affection, arrogance with humility and quest for temporal power with spirituality.”

Pope John Paul II left for Japan, his next itinerary, after a five-day pastoral visit to the Philippines during which he held masses in Metro Manila, Davao, Cebu, Negros, Iloilo, Legaspi and Baguio City.

He also had talks with the President, leaders of the Catholic hierarchy in the country, civic and religious organizations and the studentry.

January 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS will outline this morning the government's priority goals as the Batasang Pambansa, resuming its third regular session today, assumes its role as the sole representative lawmaking body in the land.

The President will address the members of the Batasan at 10 a.m.

He is expected to inform the Batasan of the reason for his decision to hit martial law and why he imposed it initially more than eight years ago.

The appearance of the President before the Batasan today is considered significant because it will be the first time that he will be attending the session after the lifting of martial law.

January 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS pledged he will avoid reimposing martial law in coping with any serious national emergency in the future.

Speaking at the resumption of the third regular session of the Batasang Pambansa, the President pointed out that there are enough "safety valves" in the Constitution to enable him and the legislative body to meet such emergencies.

The President said that any crisis must be faced and must be fully dealt with, but "let us pledge to each other right now and pledge to our people that we shall ever avoid invoking the martial law necessity."

He asked Batasan members to pledge that whenever there is need to meet any situation not covered by ordinary legislation, they would provide for any requirement needed to meet such emergency.

The President said the PCPM is a body organized by its members and is only self-regulatory. This means that those who do not wish to be a member of the body are not bound by its rules and regulations.

The only requirements that a new newspaper has to fulfill are the basic requirements under the Constitution—that it has to be owned and controlled by Filipinos, he said.

In the case of radio stations, the President said that anyone can open a radio station as long as he has the required frequency.

THE KILUSANG Bagong Lipunan unanimously approved the draft of a modified parliamentary form of government providing for a strong President to be elected at large by the people for a term of six years beginning June 30.

During a three-hour caucus, the ruling party also set a political time table ending with the election of the president possibly this May.

The new set-up was recommended by a seven-man committee headed by Justice Minister Ricardo Puno. It called for the election only of the president.

February 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said there will be no radical shifts in the economic policies of the government to maintain free enterprise and political stability.

The assurance was given by the President in his dialogue in Malacañang with, the business community, including officers and members of eight national and international chambers of commerce and industry.

“I can assure you that the government is for continuity of policy and stability and, with respect to economic policy, there will be no radical changes unless you and I get together and decide to make such changes,” the President said.

The members of the business community have expressed fear that with the lifting of martial law industrial peace might be disturbed.

The President also assured the businessmen that there will be no confiscation of private property, contrary to the opposition policy of taking over private enterprise.

February 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS rejected a proposal by the opposition to elect a Constitutional Convention to amend the Constitution.

The President said that the calling of another Constitutional Convention “is not only a waste of time and money but it also divides responsibility.”

The United Democratic Opposition demanded the calling of a new Constitutional Convention because, it claims, the Batasang Pambansa has no authority to amend the charter.

The opposition assemblymen also questioned the authority of the Batasan to amend the Constitution, saying that the Batasan is a partisan body.

February 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he will never allow the return of the pork barrel system in allocating public works funds.

The President pointed out that the pork barrel system, practised before martial law to gain patronage especially during elections was wasteful, and funds, intended for public works projects were diverted elsewhere.

Under the system, public works funds were released through congressmen enabling them to use the funds for political leverage and generate temporary employment. The practice was discarded by the President when martial law was imposed.

This guarantee is contained in Presidential Decree No. 1791 signed last Jan. 16, but which was made public only yesterday.

President Marcos said he has informed the members of the Batasang Pambansa of the decree, designed to institutionalize reforms undertaken during the crisis government, for their guidance.

In issuing the decree, the President said that it is essential “that all public officials and employees be encouraged to perform their functions efficiently and expeditiously free from vexations and time consuming delays and litigations.”

February 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he will wait for the recommendation of the Oil Industry Commission before acting on the move for fuel price increases even as an aggrupation of nationalist groups opposed the price hikes.

The President made the response in answer to questions from newsmen regarding his position on the petition of some oil companies to increase the prices of petroleum products.

According to the President, the petitions for fuel price increase are addressed to OIC Chairman Ponciano Mathay and “I suppose we will have to wait for his recommendation.”

The President explained that the law requires 21 days of study and deliberations on the matter.

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, has set the upgrading of depressed areas in the country as a priority project of the Ministry of Human Settlements this year.

In a meeting with heads of various agencies of the ministry, the First Lady reviewed the programs and ordered that priorities be made on the following livelihood, power, water food and shelter.

She named Metro Manila Vice-Gov. Ismael Mathay, Jr. and Housing Administrator Gaudencio Tobias in charge of the upgrading of Tondo and of making the place an attractive village. Architect Jorge Ramos will design the plans.

She cited the Walled City of New York which was a ghetto before it was converted into a financial center. She said that the offices of the Metro Manila Commission will be established in Tondo so that the problems of residents can easily be attended to.

February 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed members of the Cabinet to discuss potentials for establishing trade relations with British Columbia.

“I have anticipated to my ministers the great potentials of opening relations between the Philippines and British Columbia,” the President told the visiting British Columbia economic mission led by Premier William R. Bennett that called to Malacañang. “So you can be sure this is not a mere formality.”

The President cited coal and industrial tree plantations as two fields in which the Philippines is most interested.

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, signed an agreement yesterday with the United Nations High Commission for Refugees in the Philippines for the turnover of the UNHCR of P65 million to the Philippine government for the operation and various programs of the Philippine Processing Center for Refugees in Morong, Bataan.

The First Lady said the agreement will serve to better define the responsibility of the Philippine government and the United Nations in relation to the center. She also expressed gratitude to Pope John Paul II for his appeal to all nations of the world for increased aid for the refugees.

Total commitment on the part of the persons involved in the service of the refugees has contributed to the efficient and smooth operation of the center, the First Lady said.

She also cited the efforts of Manfred Paeffgen, representative in the Philippines of the UNHCR, and Gaudencio Tobias, administrator of the center, who, she said, have been "very devoted to the service of the refugees giving freely of their time and effort to their care."

February 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the visit of Pope John Paul II to the Philippines has revitalized the spiritual and moral values of the Filipino people.

"Someone has come to reiterate these absolutes without wavering and impressed both those who belong and not belong to the church," the President said during an appreciation dinner given by Jaime Cardinal Sin at Villa San Miguel in Mandaluyong for members of the hierarchy, religious, government officials and laymen who contributed to the success of the Pope's visit.

"Since the arrival of the Holy Father, people go about with the feeling of lightness and inner glow," he said.

But, he said, the greatest beneficiary of the Pope's visit is the simple, common Filipino. "Everywhere you turn, you see a light of gleaming from the common man as if Christ Himself has come upon the earth once more," he observed.

THE RULING Kilusang Bagong Lipunan decided to tentatively set the holding of plebiscite for the ratification of the proposed amendments to the Constitution on March 27 and the election for President not later than May 28.

The dates were arrived at after the caucus approved in principle the omnibus resolution amending the Constitution that would provide a modified parliamentary system.

Presided over by President Marcos, the caucus also agreed that special session of the Batasang Pambansa will be held on April 6 to pass a law calling for Presidential election.

The Batasang Pambansa, sitting as a Constituent Assembly, is expected to pass the omnibus resolution amending the charter within the week and will subsequently pass a law calling for a plebiscite.

February 28—

THE POLITICAL performance of the martial law government was far superior than any of its predecessors.

This assessment was made by President Marcos in a speech to the 76th Philippine Military Academy Alumni Association at the Philippine International Convention Center.

“By taking the country’s destiny into our own hands and courageously charting our future, we were able to avoid the disastrous consequences that could have destroyed the nation if martial law had not been declared,” the President emphasized.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said in Tuguegarao yesterday that the proposed constitutional amendments are designed not only to set up an indigenous parliamentary government, but also to accelerate the process of normalization.

Addressing athletic delegations participating in the Palarong Pambansa, the President said the proposed amendments would be submitted to the people in a plebiscite March 27, and the presidential elections may be held June 7.

He explained that the proposed system of government is a parliamentary system suited to the culture and traditions of the Filipino people, with a strong president to be elected directly by the people.

THE BATASANG PAMBANSA last night set for April 7 the plebiscite on proposed constitutional amendments which would overhaul the country's parliamentary government structure.

The Batasan was previously set to fix for March 27 the plebiscite but the leadership resorted to a last minute change of decision because of an announcement of President Marcos that the presidential election may take place on June 7.

Political Affairs Minister Leonardo B. Perez, who sponsored Parliamentary Bill No. 1339 providing for the plebiscite, explained that the change in the plebiscite date would allow enough time for the required activities, like the printing of ballots, the campaign period and the translation into dialects of the questions to be asked.

March 6—

PUBLIC SCHOOL superintendents will soon get salary increases, Malacañang said. The salary adjustments may even come sooner, as the labor ministry said government employees will likely get pay increases before April.

President Marcos ordered Education Minister Onofre D. Corpuz and Budget Minister Manuel Alba to immediately upgrade the salaries of public school superintendents all over the country.

Responding to the fears expressed by the public schools superintendents the President said “there is no reason for the grievances of the public schools officials.”

According to the President, there is a continuing effort to upgrade the salaries of school officials. ‘Unfortunately, superintendents are in the last groups to be attended to,’ he said.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the strength of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations lies in the spirit of cooperation among its members.

“Compared to the European Economic Community and the African Organization of Unity, I think ASEAN has moved further ahead,” the President said.

This assessment was made by the President in a talk with Adm. Maurice Weisner (ret.) former commander-in-chief of the United States Navy in the Pacific, who called on the President.

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos announced that a Malacañang of the South will soon be established in San Carlos city to bring the presidency closer to the Visayan and Mindanao.

She said that the First Couple intend to go there more often to make the national leadership more intimate with the problems of the people in this region.

The First Lady made this announcement toward the end of her keynote address at the joint district conference of the Rotary International at the University of San Carlos Cultural Center.

March 8—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos has directed Mindanao leaders to undertake a “totally integrated” program in the flood-stricken region in the South.

She said the rehabilitation efforts should be designed not only to accelerate production and tame the mighty Agusan river but also to relate the efforts of government to preserve the culture of the people.

The First Lady directed all ministries to rush full rehabilitation of the food-ravaged areas in cooperation with local executives.

Mrs. Marcos directed State Minister Antonio Tupaz, chief regional action officer for Region X to confer with regional directors and match the program drawn up by the various ministries to the actual requirements of the different provinces, cities, municipalities and barangays.

March 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the Ministry of Agriculture to embark on a nationwide planting of the "hanga" or miracle tree.

Director Domingo Panganiban of the bureau of plant industry said 45 hectares of land have been planted to the tree and several cuttings of the tree are being nursed at the BPI central experimental station on San Andres.

He said propagation of the tree will be finished by 1985.

March 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared that a "yes" vote in the April 7 plebiscite would regain for the people the right to elect their President directly—a right removed from them by the 1973 Constitution.

"The issue is whether the people must have the power to elect directly the chief of state, the President, or whether this power should remain with the National Assembly as provided for in the 1973 Constitution," he told the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce at its 13th biennial convention in Malacañang.

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos stepped up the conversion of Tondo into a model community complete with livelihood centers, parks and playgrounds and a hub for industrial and commercial establishment.

She said timetable for most of the ongoing projects in Tondo, especially the basic infrastructure program under the project and loan agreement of the World Bank, would be advanced by at least one year to fit into an accelerated BLISS development program which she had earlier approved.

March 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged local officials to explain to their constituents the proposed constitutional amendments so that the people can vote wisely in the April plebiscite.

The President told local officials from Nueva Ecija who called on him that although the proposed amendments are not political in nature and might not arouse much interest among the people, they are important in determining the future of the country.

He stressed that under the “immunity from suit” proposal, abuses committed by his subordinates are not covered, because abuses are not in accordance with legal orders. One of the proposed amendments grants immunity from suit for presidential subordinates who carried out the President’s legal orders during martial law.

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred the Presidential Merit Medal on Ichito Fujimoto, chairman of the Kawasaki Steel Corp., one of the biggest Japanese corporate investors in the country.

The President conferred the award in recognition of Fujimoto’s “foresight and leadership” in providing the Philippines the important role of intermediary between iron exporters and importers through the establishment of the P1.5 billion Philippine Sinter Corp. in Cagayan de Oro City.

In the citation read for the President by Industry Minister Roberto Ongpin, Fujimoto was lauded for his high degree of confidence in the economic future of the Country.

By establishing the Philippine Sinter Corp., Fujimoto was able to promote economic cooperation among the Philippines and Latin America, Australia, South Asia and China, all exporters of iron ore processed in the Philippines.

The FIRST LADY and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda R. Marcos directed the Mayors and vice mayors in Metro Manila to submit by March 17 a performance report on the delivery of 17 basic services.

She said the reports will determine the areas where the government thrust will have to be accelerated. She asked officials in the area to be more sensitive to the needs and problems of the barangays as well as of the lowly employees.

She urged the assemblymen and the mayors to exercise strong leadership so that the 17 basic services may be delivered to the people more effectively and efficiently.

March 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS launched a nationwide campaign for a “Yes” vote for constitutional amendments that would establish, he said, a “stable and democratic” modified parliamentary system.

Opening the two-hour “Pulong-Pulong Pambansa” radio television program, the President said an affirmative vote in the April 7 plebiscite on charter changes would enable the people to regain control over their government because the right to vote for their President would be returned to them.

“This is not only more democratic but it conforms to the culture, the traditions, habits and customs of the Filipino people,” the President said.

He explained in detail the meaning of the three questions to be asked the voters in the plebiscite.

The President said the plebiscite is “crucial to the future of the country” and that the only issue involved is the form of government that the people would want for the nation.

lie pointed out that the modified parliamentary system is a combination of the parliamentary and presidential form a government removing the ills of both systems.

* * * * *

March 14—

FACTIONALISM which could lead to civil war would ensue if the Constitution was not amended, President Marcos said as he pressed his campaign for a “yes” vote on proposed charter amendments.

The President also sounded the warning in his concluding statement the other night in the “Pulong-Pulong Pambansa” radio-television program.

He said that under the present system, there is a possibility that the Batasang Pambansa will elect a ceremonial president who will have a party affiliation different from that of the prime minister.

Because of this, he said, the occasion arise where there will be factionalism “instead of a unified parliamentary system that we seek to establish.”

Continuing, the President warned: “We will divide the country and court possible civil war.”

March 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS reiterated his call for the print and broadcast media to give equal time and space in the discussion of issues of the April 7 plebiscite.

Media editors were asked to formulate with the spokesmen of both camps the rules for the public discussion of the plebiscite issues.

SOME MEMBERS of the Batasang Pambansa and other elected officials who have shifted party affiliation face forfeiture of their seats for the remaining period of their terms of office.

This punitive action against turncoatism is expressly provided for by law, under Presidential Decree No. 1667 dated Jan. 26, 1980.

The decree was brought to light by President Marcos during the nationwide “Pulong-Pulong” Thursday night when he was asked whether the proposed constitutional amendments in the April 7 plebiscite would bring back the old political evils, particularly turncoatism.

President's Week in Review: March 16-22, 1981

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS warned both military and civilian officials in government against the use of the proposed immunity amendment as a cloak to commit abuses,

“Immunity from suit is intended to prevent harassment of civil and military personnel for acts committed on lawful order and should not be made as a mantle for the commission of abuses,” the President said.

The President said under the Constitution, officers who carried this order are liable but could be used before the court. “Thus,” he said, “they could be open to future harassment.”

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the political leadership will continue to strengthen in Regions IX and XII to preserve peace and order in Mindanao.

Speaking at the graduation exercises of the Philippine Military Academy at the Baguio Convention Center, the President said that the autonomous government will be pivotal in stopping rebel activities in the area.

Apparently referring to the recent incident on Pata island where some 119 troopers were massacred, the President said, “For just as the strength and the autonomy of this government that have proven to be vital factors in providing and availing solutions to the once festering rebellion in the South, so are they now integral to meeting the occasional flashes of terrorism that have recently visited some local communities in the South.”

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed all government offices throughout the country to deduct withholding taxes from their employees' salaries.

Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) Commissioner Ruben B. Ancheta said the President issued the order because of many complaints of government employees that their offices have not been withholding taxes from their pay envelopes.

As a result, many taxpayers run short of cash to meet their annual income tax obligations.

Ancheta reminded taxpayers with fixed income that the deadline for the filing of income tax returns and payment of the taxes due is Wednesday, March 18.

March 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS told his leaders from Northern Luzon that the government would never tolerate nor compromise with terrorism.

He met with Region I leaders at the conference hall of the Mansion house as he capped a busy weekend in Baguio City.

The leaders led by Minister of Tourism Jose D. Aspiras of La Union and Minister Jacobo C. Clave, concurrently vice-governor of Pangasinan, and Ministry of Public Information officer-in-charge Gregorio S. Cendaña who is also from Pangasinan, were from the provinces of Mt. Province, Benguet, La Union, Ilocos Sur, Abra, Ilocos Norte, and Pangasinan, and the cities of Laoag, Dagupau, San Carlos and Baguio.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS rallied mayors and career executive service men behind the campaign to enhance government service by banishing red tape from the bureaucracy.

He delivered the exhortation in Baguio before a large group of Region I political and civil service leaders who gathered to see him induct the first set of officers of CES Development Program Alumni association in that Northern Luzon area.

PRESIDENT MARCOS indicated there was no question that prices of gasoline and other oil products would go up the only thing is when. In a talk with Malacañang newsmen just before leaving Baguio city for Manila, the President said:

“Every month that we delay the change in prices of gasoline, the government has to pay a bill of P95 million a month. We cannot continue to subsidize the price of gasoline in that manner.”

The last time the government increased gasoline prices was in August of 1980 when the oil-exporting countries increased their prices. That was when gasoline went up to P4.95 a liter.

March 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed confidence that as long as there are young achievers and leaders there is no need to worry about the human race or the Filipino people.

“I am certain there are many more like the TOYM awardees,” the President said as he presented the trophies to the Ten Outstanding Young Men for 1980 in ceremonies held in Malacañang, “and there is no need to worry about the human race or the Filipino people.”

The President said he is not a believer in elitism or exclusivism but that he believes civilization moves not by the great mass of people but by the leader class, the innovators who are born with creativity, imagination and ingenuity, and use old concepts successfully to solve new problems.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday Kilusang Bagong Lipunan teams will fan out the provinces to help familiarize the people with the issues in the April 7 plebiscite.

The President invited opposition groups to form similar teams to enrich public discussion of the issues.

In accordance with the wish of the President for both the ruling party and the opposition to discuss all aspects of the proposed Constitutional amendments, Local Government Minister Jose Roño and information ministry officer-in-charge Gregorio S. Cendaña invited opposition groups to participate in a public discussion of the issues.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has approved a two-pronged measure to extend additional aid to local government units, according to the Ministry of Local Governments and Community Development (MLGCD).

The measures, which were recommended by former Budget Minister Jaime C. Laya before his appointment as governor of the Central Bank include:

1. The granting of additional assistance to local government units whose incomes last year were adversely affected by declines in the process of sugar and coconut. This aid shall be “in an amount not exceeding the actual drop in the local revenue from recurring sources between 1979 and 1980.”
2. The adoption of implementing guidelines for Presidential Decree No. 1711 under which “local government units concerned will receive increases in their BIR allotments of more than 25 percent from one year to another on case-to-case basis and depending on the justification and actual need.”

Under PD 1741, the following increases for third-class to sixth-class local government units may be allowed over their previous year's BIR allotments, subject to certain conditions: third class, up to 30 percent; fourth class, up to 35 percent; fifth class, up to 40 percent; and sixth class, up to 45 percent.

The conditions include adequate justification for any such increase in BIR allotments, a recommendation from the MLGCD, and availability of funds.

* * * * *

March 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS deplored pronouncements by some members of the opposition treating the proposed amendments to the Constitution as political issues.

In a meeting with local officials from Quezon province, the President pointed out that the amendments “are not political issues since they will benefit everyone, not just the members of any party.”

Because of the proximity of the plebiscite, set for April 7, the President urged all local officials to mount an information drive to help inform the people about the importance of deciding whether or not to adopt the proposed amendments.

The national food authority headed by the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos approved a plan to boost food production and keep food prices low for consumers through an expanded Kadiwa program.

She called the NFA council to its first meeting since its creation Jan. 14 under Presidential Decree 1770.

The NFA took over the functions of the defunct national grains authority with broader powers to stabilize prices of basic goods aside from grains.

Mrs. Marcos called on the council members, some representing the country's financial institutions to launch a crash program of national food sufficiency.

Beyond this, the council will make plans for the exportation of any food surplus as an ultimate goal.

March 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered stricter rules regarding the handling of government funds because of recent findings that public money had been invested in risky ventures and questionable deals.

One recent case was the P30-million Land Bank loan to Ramawil Realty and Development Enterprises, which was found to have been guaranteed by fake land titles.

The President issued Letter of Instructions No. 1115 setting new guidelines and directing government agencies and state-controlled firms to withdraw or phase out funds they have invested in the money market or lent to individuals and private companies.

PRESIDENT MARCOS told a visiting US State Department official that he is satisfied with the policies of the Reagan Administration, particularly in revitalizing alliances with friendly nations.

"I am happy about the new orientation, particularly about the projected visit of State Secretary Alexander Haig (to Manila)," the President told John Negroponti, deputy assistant US secretary of state, who called on him in Malacañang.

Accompanied by US Ambassador Richard Murphy, Negroponti is here on the first leg of his visit to members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

Earlier the President received Ambassador Nazif Cuhruk, who presented his credentials as the new envoy of Turkey to the Philippines.

The President lauded Turkey as a dependable partner in the search for peace, understanding and harmonious relations among nations.

The new Turkish envoy noted that since the establishment of the United Nations, the Philippines has been a staunch supporter of international solidarity for peace and understanding, and strong advocate of a new international economic order.

PRESIDENT MARCOS approved hardship allowances amounting to P6.8 million for personnel of the Ministry of Education and Culture in Region 10 (Northern Mindanao).

Over 17,600 Region 10 teachers will each receive P100 per month retroactive from January to April 1981.

The President was prompted to grant the hardship allowance as an emergency measure to MEC Region 10 personnel upon the recommendation of Education Minister Onofre D. Corpuz.

Reports reaching the President and the MEC disclosed that the recent flood in the region has caused hardship on the teachers, besides wide spread destruction of school facilities, books, supplies and equipment.

DEFENSE MINISTER Juan Ponce Enrile ordered the recall of all standing and unserved arrest, search and seizure orders (ASSO) except those issued against persons linked to crimes involving public order or national security.

Enrile said the authority to issue ASSOs ceased when martial law was lifted last January.

In a memorandum to Maj. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief, Enrile said exemption of ASSOs on national security cases is in line with pertinent provisions of Presidential Proclamation No. 2045, the edict that ended martial law, which states that the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus remains suspended in Regions 9 and 12 and on cases involving national security.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS has rescinded the controversial executive order which detractors of the Philippine Olympic Committee used as leverage in taking up the issue of government intervention with the International Olympic Committee.

Executive Order 663 signed by the President last March 13 also clears the different project directors whom he had appointed in 1979 for the different sports associations, of any government supervision or control.

The new Executive Order suspended implementation of EO No. 579 creating a national coordination committee for sports development.

March 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS approved in principle the raising of basic wages.

The President's action was in anticipation of the possible approval by the Board of Energy of increases in prices of petroleum products by the end of the week.

To determine by how much wages will be raised, the President ordered Labor Minister Blas F. Ople to call as soon as possible a tripartite conference between representatives of labor, management and government to discuss the matter.

THE FIRST LADY, Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos, has ordered an intensified drive to provide the people with adequate supplies of nutritious food at low prices.

She directed the Nutrition Foundation of the Philippines to coordinate with the Kadiwa centers throughout the country so that locally produced food with high nutritional content can be sold to the masses at cheap prices.

The First Lady said the Kadiwa centers serve not only as convenient distribution outlets of low-priced food, but also as effective channels to instill healthy eating habits among the people.

March 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has granted 10 to 15 percent salary increases to all the national government employees, including members of the armed forces and the Integrated National Police.

According to the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, government employees receiving P700 or less a month will get a 15 percent increase, while those whose monthly salaries exceed P700 will get 10 percent.

The pay raises are retroactive to March 1. They were authorized in Executive Order No. 668 signed last March 19 by the President, the First Lady said.

Mrs. Marcos announced the pay increase in a speech at the seventh anniversary celebration of the Metropolitan Police Force at Camp Crame.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has authorized the release of 1M0 million, for a start, for the large-scale production of a machine that produces hydro-gas from charcoal.

The machine, known as gasifier, can run jeepneys and irrigation systems and can generate electricity for rural areas.

The gas now being marketed, the one that fuels stoves, is still largely from oil.

The President issued the order for the funding- after he and the First Lady were shown the latest models of the machine, vastly improved versions of those they saw a month ago. The President tried out the vehicles with the First Lady as his passenger. After making two rounds of the Malacañang grounds, his comment was "Okay, Okay."

President's Week in Review: March 23-28, 1981

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS announced yesterday five measures which the government will undertake to help cushion the impact of the new increase in the prices of oil products.

Speaking at the 81th foundation anniversary of the Philippine Army in Fort Bonifacio, the President said these steps are being taken "to meet any possible dislocation."

"I appeal to all elements of society to look at this (price increase) with sobriety and not impulsive anger nor anxiety," the President said.

To cushion the effect of the new oil price increase on the purchasing power of wage earners and the prices of other commodities, the President directed that the following steps be taken:

—For the Ministry of Labor to immediately call a tripartite conference among labor management and government to determine the proper adjustment in wages.

—A steady monitor on the problem of transportation and prices of commodities after which appropriate action will be taken to conciliate demands and to provide relief to consumers.

—Increases in tuition fees will be suspended until a policy is adopted. It may be necessary for the government to import newsprint to keep the prices of school supplies from going up.

—The Cabinet standing committee will study the reorientation of the capital budget, which means drawing from other sources funds for infrastructure and financial assistance to industries that the government is encouraging'.

—Food production and energy development programs will be accelerated.

March 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday granted a 35-day reprieve to a death convict, only 20 minutes before he was scheduled to die in the electric chair at 3 p.m. at the New Bilibid Prisons in Muntinlupa.

The reprieve was the third given in a month to Adelaido B. Ramos, who was convicted in 1970 by the Cebu circuit criminal court for the rape and murder of his cousin's wife, and the slaying of two children witnesses. The woman was then four months pregnant.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed Brig. Gen. Pedro Dumol, general manager of the National Electrification Administration, to conduct further test runs on hydro-gas powered vehicles.

The President gave the order after noting that charcoal-fed hydrogas powered vehicles will utilize indigenous waste materials, thereby saving millions of foreign exchange needed for oil imports.

"This may mark a new era," the President said.

Dumol informed the President that the jeepney developed by Commodore Alfredo Protacio of the Sta. Barbara Project, is 75 percent more economical than diesel-fueled jeepneys and can run 160 kms, on full load of charcoal.

March 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed the Cabinet standing committee and other concerned agencies to study the impact of the increase in prices of oil products on wages and prices.

The President said the study should cover all price increases and corresponding wage increase since 1971 so that a new minimum wage can be determined.

The National Wage Council has been conducting public hearings on wages since the government authorized the new round of oil price increases. The council, headed by Labor Minister Blas F. Ople, is expected to submit today its recommendations to the President.

Agencies that will work with the Cabinet standing committee, headed by acting chairman Minister Roberto Ongpin, are the National Economic and Development Authority, the Ministry of Labor, and the National Wage Council.

March 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed disappointment over stories which he said smacked of yellow journalism in some major Manila newspapers and asked Gen. Hans Menzi, chairman of the Publishers Association of the Philippines, to police their own ranks.

The President said he was particularly appalled by stories on sex. They do not only smack of yellow journalism but are going down to the level of the gutter, the President said.

In a letter sent through Presidential Executive Assistant Juan C. Tuvera, Mr. Marcos said that the publishers “are duty bound to establish standards” for printed materials.

General Abat, who served for 35 years, five of them as PA chief, was replaced by Brig. Gen. Josephus Ramas, PA chief of staff and intelligence chief.

Turnover ceremonies were held at Fort Bonifacio.

PRESIDENT MARCOS told a group of students and professors of America's National War college yesterday that subversion remains the main threat against nations in this region.

"From our point of view, the principal threat against Southeast Asian countries is not outright aggression but the export of wars and subversion," he said.

Cdr. Steve F. Kino of the United States Navy headed the war college group, part of the National Defense university.

The President said that the answer to subversion is economic development plus the capability to meet indigenous subversive groups like the Huks and the New People's Army.

He briefed the delegation on the growth of the communist government in the Philippines and the secessionist movement in Mindanao.

March 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS set the stage for a "democratic confrontation" when he invited opposition leaders to a face-to-face discussion of the plebiscite and other national issues in a three-hour nationwide "pulong-pulong" on Thursday.

Reacting to the issues by the opposition in connection with the proposed constitutional amendments which will be submitted for ratification in the April 7 plebiscite, the President said he was willing to face the opposition as a group or in a one-on-one confrontation on the plebiscite issues and other questions of national interest they would like to take up.

The opposition leaders can have their pick of either a debate or a question-and-answer exchange with him, the President added.

He specifically mentioned former Senators Gerardo Rosas and Ambrosio Padilla, chairman and legal counsel of the United Democratic Opposition, respectively; Assemblyman Salvador Laurel of the Nacionalista Party; Assemblyman Reuben Canoy and Misamis Oriental Gov. Homobono Adaza of the Mindanao Alliance; and Francisco "Soc" Rodrigo of Laban.

March 27—

Expected to benefit from the new allowances are 91 percent or 5.6 million of the country's six million work force in the private sector.

The granting of the allowances is contained in Wage Order No. 1, series of 1981, which the President issued on recommendation of the Cabinet Standing Committee and the National Economic and Development Authority.

Under the order, the allowances will be granted as follows:

—P2 a day for non-agricultural workers whose salary or wage is not more than P1,500 a month.

—P1.50 a day for agricultural plantation workers.

The granting of additional allowances does not apply to:

—Household or domestic help, including family drivers and persons in personal services of another.

—Handicraft industry workers.

—Workers in retail and service establishments regularly employing not more than 10 persons.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS extended additional invitations to former President Diosdado Macapagal, Ex-Sen. Jose Diokno and former Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr to participate in next Thursday's nationwide "Pulong-pulong."

The President also outlined the rules and format of the telecast so that televiewers and radio listeners can address questions to him and the participants from the opposition.

The President ruled out suggestions that the discussion be held on a one-on-one basis between him and an appointed opposition representative because of lack of material time.

March 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the all-embracing, issue at stake in next Tuesday's plebiscite was political stability which could only be attained through the proposed constitutional amendments.

In an interview with newsmen the President said there can be no economic development without political stability which, he said, must be the basic foundation of almost any kind of progress.

He said that in the search for such stability and progress, not only good leaders or good legislators are required but also political institutions which are strong yet flexible enough to changes.

"We want to be prosperous. We want to develop industries. We want to increase the per capita income. So we must have a machinery in government which can react to all of these with flexibility and resolution," the President said.

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, urged Filipino artists to come out of isolation and face modern day realities with a new sensitivity and a fresher approach to problems.

She spoke before the graduating scholars of the Philippine High School of the Arts at the National Arts Center on Mt. Makiling, Los Baños.

She said that far from making artists more withdrawn, the advance in technology should impel them to reach new heights of creativity.

"Through his modern perspective, without abandoning the traditional cornerstone of aesthetics, he (the artist) should be capable of interpreting the realities of contemporary times for the humanistic enlightenment of his people," the First Lady said.

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed disappointment at the posture taken by the opposition in their projected dialogue on national issues in the nationwide "Pulong-pulong" slated tomorrow night.

The President said in a statement that the opposition "miss the point of this exercise completely," adding that the Pulong-pulong is not a sophomoric debate where the participants seek to win college medals.

"The Pulong-pulong is part of the information campaign which is I repeat, non-political and non-partisan, where all of us would act as guides rather than as combatants and explain the nature, purpose and intent of the Constitutional amendment," the President said.

THE FIRST LADY and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda R. Marcos approved a plan to set aside 127 hectares of government land in Mandaluyong Metro Manila, for an urban renewal project for housing for the homeless.

The area, bounded by Ortigas Avenue, Wack Wack Golf Club and Fabella street, is presently occupied by the National Mental Institution, Welfareville and the Women's Correctional Institution.

Under the plan, the mental institution and the Welfareville will be relocated to the Lungsod Silangan while the Women's Correctional Institution will be transferred to a site still to be chosen for the Prisoner's Rehabilitation Center another project of the Metro Manila Commission.

Representatives of the ministries of justice, health and the social services will thresh out with MMC officials the transfer of the property from their jurisdiction to the city government.

NATURAL Resources Minister Jose J. Leido, Jr. yesterday warned fishermen all over the country from catching or transporting subalo.

Leido made the warning as the total ban on catching, selling and transporting of sabalo took effect in all areas of the country.

The ban is embodied in Fisheries Administrative Order No. 129. according to Fisheries Director Felix R. Gonzales who recommended the ban "to assure adequate bangus fingerling for the multi-million peso bangus industry."

Sabalo are full grown bangus (milkfish in English and Chanos chanos Foreskal, scientific name) and refers to both male and female measuring more than fill centimeters from the tip of its mouth to the extreme end of its caudal fin or tail.

The new order amends FAO 120 issued September 1975 banning the catching of sabalo for a period of live years.

APRIL 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has suspended until Oct. 1 the 50-percent increase in specific taxes of locally-produced liquor.

In Executive Order No. 672, signed March 31, the President said that the 50-percent increase would be adopted in two stages: 25 percent starting October 1 and the other 25 percent on April, 1982.

Batas Pambansa Blg. 82, which increased the rates of specific taxes on liquor and other fermented drinks by 50 percent, took effect Sept. 17 last year. Local producers, led by San Miguel Corp., Tanduay Distilleries Inc. and La Tondeña Inc., asked for a two-year deferment.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue, however, recommended only a one-year and two-stage deferment.

Revenue Commissioner Ruben B. Ancheta said that a two-year deferment would mean a loss to the government of P812 million, whereas the one-year relief would result only in a loss of P156 million.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called last night on the people “to move resolutely” and help refine the country’s political structure through the proposed amendments to the Constitution.

The President issued the call during the nationwide “Pulong-pulong” during which he answered the issues raised by the opposition regarding the amendments up for ratification in a plebiscite on Tuesday.

Apparently addressing himself to the opposition, the President said:

“These are critical times and I believe that in this study as to the proper form of government and the provisions of the fundamental law we should discard petty partisanship and join hands to resolve these issues which will affect not only our generation but also many generations to come.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS appealed today for support to amend the Constitution in a lug rally in Cebu City the seat of the opposition in Central Visayas.

It was the second campaign appearance of the President in the vote rich city since 1972. He campaigned for the local officials in the region early last year.

The political leadership is giving importance to Central Visayas (Region 7) because the Pusyun Bisaya gave the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan a thrashing during the election for the members of the Batasang Pambansa in 1978, winning all the 13 seats.

During the local elections last year, the KBL regained lost prestige in Cebu by winning the mayorship and governorship.

PRESIDENT MARCOS predicted a 4 to 1 victory for the "Yes" vote in the plebiscite on constitutional amendments on Tuesday.

Interviewed by newsmen shortly after his arrival in Cebu City, the President said that he based his prediction on random surveys being conducted by various groups. President Marcos laughed off reported efforts of former President Macapagal to reconvene the defunct Constitutional Conventions as an "April Fool's" joke.

"Perhaps, this is just coincidental, but I don't know why this has to happen on April Fool's Day," the President said, recalling Macapagal's "flight" to the American embassy in Manila where he sought "asylum" for an imagined danger to his person after writing an anti-Marcos administration book.

The President at the same time dismissed as "ridiculous" charges by some opposition leaders that the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan is engaged in a massive vote-buying in the coming plebiscite.

THE FIRST LADY and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda R. Marcos assured yesterday jeepney drivers and operators that the government will stand by them in their striving for a better life.

“I would like to know that you have nothing to worry about the future because the administration is behind you in your striving for a better life,” Mrs. Marcos told a delegation of the 100,000-member Katipunan ng mga Kooperatibang Pangsasakyan ng Pilipinas.

The leaders of the group called on the First Lady at Malacañang to pledge support for the constitutional amendments in the April 7 plebiscite.

April 5 —

TUIC SUPREME COURT yesterday upheld the power of the interim Batasang Pambansa to propose amendments to the Constitution as it dismissed the petition of two former Con-Con delegates.

At the same time, the high tribunal ruled that the 1973 Constitution is the fundamental law of the land.

Chief Justice Enrique M. Fernando, who penned the decision, said “it is much too late in the day to deny the force and applicability of the 1973 Constitution.

Fernando fell back on a previous case—Javellana vs The Executive Secretary—which dismissed petitions for prohibition and mandamus to declare invalid its ratification.

The chief justice of the Supreme Court then concluded: “This being the vote of the majority, there is no further judicial obstacle to the new Constitution being considered in force and effect.

“It made manifest that as of January 17, 1973, the present Constitution came into force and effect,” he said.

As to the Batasan’s power to propose amendments, Chief Justice Fernando said the applicable provision in the 1976 amendments is quite explicit.

He said it states thus: “The interim Batasang Pambansa shall have the same powers and its Members shall have the same functions, responsibilities, rights, privileges, and disqualifications as the interim National Assembly and the regular National Assembly and the members thereof.

He explained that one such power is precisely that of proposing amendments.

April 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and a battery of KBL speakers summarized before an overflow crowd the reasons why a “Yes” vote for Constitutional amendments would redound to the people’s welfare.

The President explained how these refinements being made on the charter would mean political stability, economic progress and dignity for the Filipino.

The one-hour extemporaneous speech of the President in Pilipino and English nearly went beyond the midnight deadline for the plebiscite campaign. The speeches were interspersed with songs of name stage and television artists.

He made telling points as he hammered away at the opposition being greedy (“sakim”), insincere and, inconsistent. He cited history and Supreme Court decisions to refute some legal points earlier raised by the opposition.

A “Yes” vote will refine the present parliamentary system, providing, among others, for a strong and effective President and will give back to the people the right to pick their own leader, the President said.

President's Week in Review: April 7-12, 1981

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged last night all qualified voters to go out and vote in today's plebiscite on Constitutional amendments.

The opposition made a similar call, prompting observers to say the turnout may be bigger than expected. The earlier estimate was 24.4 million, or 85 percent of registered voters.

In a brief message, the President said "I urge everyone who is qualified to vote, to reflect deeply on the issues and to make his wishes known through his vote."

The President said that "from the moment the people make known their sovereign will by vote, a great step forward will have been taken in the normalization of the country's political life and in the shaping of national future."

Last Sunday, the President made his final appeal for the people to support the proposed amendments in a huge rally in Plaza Miranda.

SAN FABIAN, Pangasinan, April 7—President Marcos said today that the Batasang Pambansa will have to pass an amended election law to determine the political parties to be accredited in the June 7 presidential elections.

In an interview with newsmen at the regional center here, the President said that he has already directed Majority Floorleader Jose Rono and Political Affairs Minister Leonardo B. Perez to organize a group to study possible accreditation alternatives to be presented to the Batasan for consideration.

Provisions for the accreditation of political parties will pave the way for the June 7 presidential elections, the first since 1969, when Mr. Marcos won in his re-election bid.

April 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS called last night for national unity and asked all concerned to give way to the people's mandate in the just-concluded plebiscite.

The message follows:

"The campaign and the voting are over and the nation now awaits the full canvass of the plebiscite results.

"The recent plebiscite will be recorded in our history as one of the most peaceful and orderly that we have held in our country, and for this I wish to congratulate and thank all our people and the many agencies of government and civic organizations which stood vigil over the voting, and now stand watch over the canvass of returns.

"It is important at this time, when the official Comelec canvass is being undertaken, that we allow the dust of the campaign settle and we prepare ourselves for the verdict of our people. As in elections past, the campaign has fully reflected the division of opinions in our national life. But now, with the voting over, the divisiveness must give way to the people's mandate."

PRESIDENT MARCOS requested the Commission on Elections to investigate complaints of reported anomalies in Tuesday's plebiscite in Zamboanga City and all other violations of the Election Code.

In a letter to Comelec Chairman Vicente Santiago, the President said: "I would be gratified to see that said investigation is conducted immediately and thoroughly because we want to set a precedent and impress upon everyone that the KBL, and particularly the President of the Philippines does not and will not tolerate, any violation of the Election Code or of rules and regulations by any individual, irrespective of political affiliation."

The President requested the investigation after Zamboanga Mayor Cesar Chmaco appeared on television the other night claiming that members of the city council raided a hotel room in Zamboanga City and seized what he said were forged tally sheets.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday he will call a caucus of the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan party soon to find the person the party wants to be the first prime minister.

The prime minister, under the amendments to the Constitution, shares executive functions with the President and is head of the executive committee, a new feature of the modified parliamentary form of government which appears to have been ratified in the last plebiscite.

Among those being considered for prime minister are Finance Minister Cesar Virata, who now heads of Cabinet standing committee; Assemblyman Arturo M. Tolentino, whose stock soared during the plebiscite campaign; and Assemblyman Emmanuel Pelaez, who could be foreign minister again and concurrently prime minister.

April 10—

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, appealed to the private sector to participate more actively in the Ministry of Human Settlements' housing and livelihood program.

The First Lady, who is minister of human settlements and Metro Manila governor, made the appeal in a three-hour meeting with other ministers, heads of government housing and financing institutions and the newly-organized Project Management Service Group.

She said that assistance from the private sector and government financing institutions is needed to speed up the housing and livelihood program.

The First Lady took officials on a tour of barrio Magsaysay in Tondo, to enable them to experience how it is to be in a slum and with the poor.

At the Barrio Magsaysay Multipurpose Center where a large crowd had gathered, the First Lady explained the Tondo improvement program with the aid of charts and photos.

As she was taking the officials around Tondo, word came from the PNA in Los Angeles that Mrs. Marcos had been selected by the Pan-Hellenic Council of the University of Southern California in Los Angeles as one of the "10 most influential women of 1980."

The criterion for the award is that the recipient be a "trend setter whose activities present women with new options." The other nine chosen included Nancy Reagan, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Mother Theresa Princess Grace of Monaco, former Rep. Barbara Jordan, Irene Kassoria, a psychologist, actresses Goldie Hawn and Barbra Streisand and Georgia Frontiere, owner of the pro football team Los Angeles Rams.

April 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS is scheduled to convene his Cabinet this noon to work out details of the coming presidential elections, including the possibility of resetting the date of the presidential polls to June 11.

The Cabinet meeting is also expected to consider nominees for prime minister and possibly enabling laws to implement new amendments to the Constitution.

The President said there is a possibility that the coming Presidential elections may have to be reset from the original date of June 7 to June 11 because the Batasang Pambansa may not finish passing the election law bill during the Holy Week.

He said he had just received word from some assemblymen that they do not wish to work during the Holy Week.

April 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS virtually ruled out a demand of the opposition for a longer campaign period in the coming presidential elections.

He said at the inauguration of the Integrated Bar of the Philippines” building in Pasig, Metro Manila, that a campaign period longer than 45 days, makes it “more bitter, more expensive, more personal, more vitriolic, and more dangerous.”

In his speech, the President summarized the rationale behind the amendments to the Constitution in three words—stability, continuity and representation.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS formally proclaimed the ratification of the constitutional amendments submitted in the April 7 plebiscite and immediately called the Batasang Pambansa to a special session starting April 14 to enact a bill holding a presidential election either on June 7 or June 11.

The President declared the ratification of the amendments after receiving the report of the Commission on Elections, acting as the national board of canvassers, on the official results of the plebiscite.

The canvass showed the ratification of all the amendments contained in the three plebiscite questions on the adoption of a modified parliamentary form of government, electoral reforms, and the grant of right to own residential land here to natural-born Filipinos who have lost their citizenship.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called the Batasang Pambansa to a special session starting Tuesday to set the date for the presidential election authorized by the recently ratified amendments to the Constitution.

Both presidential actions were embodied in Proclamation 2077 and 2078.

President's Week in Review: April 13-19, 1981

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS went last night on his traditional Lenten spiritual retreat, accompanied by Cabinet members and others, aboard the Presidential yacht RPS Ang Pangulo. The retreat will end Tuesday noon.

The Rev. Fr. Severino Pelayo, parish priest of Our Lady of the Miraculous Medal in Quezon City, will act as retreat master and deliver the inspirational talk in the retreat. He is a graduate of the San Jose Seminary and the Angelicum University in the Vatican.

The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, joined the President for Mass aboard the Ang Pangulo, then went back to Malacañang.

Among the officials in the retreat are Ministers Ricardo Puno, Blas F. Ople, Enrique Garcia, Jesus Hipoiito, Manuel Elizalde, Central Bank Gov. Jaime Laya, NMPC director Gregorio S. Cendaña, chairman Angel Limjoco of the Securities and Exchange Commission, Commissioner Edmundo Reyes, Maj. Gen. Fabian Ver and Rear Admiral Simeon Alejandro, navy flag officer-in-command.

Also in the group is Msgr. Ruperto R. Fernandez, AFP chaplain. The retreat coordinator is Ricardo Cu-Unjieng.

During the retreat, prayers will be offered for retreat members who have died. One of them is the late Budget Commissioner Faustino Sychangco.

April 14—

The Kilusang Bagong Lipunan, in a 55-minute caucus with President Marcos decided to make June 16 election day when the legislature enacts the bill authorizing the presidential election in June.

The caucus, held just before the Batasang Pambansa started its special session, agreed to have the election bill passed next Tuesday, April 21.

The President would sign the bill into law on the same day, which would officially open a 55-day campaign lasting up to June 14—two days before election day.

The conference also decided to hold the KBL convention to select a candidate on April 25.

The deadline for the filing of certificates of candidacy was fixed at 30 days before election day, which is May 16.

April 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged the opposition yesterday to organize for the June presidential election so that the people would have serious choices—"not a circus show" featuring the majority candidate against "multiple candidates with nary an organization to support them."

Speaking at the opening of the Batasang Pambansa special session he said:

“It is precisely in keeping with this desire to see a united opposition contesting the presidency with the majority party, that we in the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan are submitting to government a scheme for the accreditation of political parties, consonant to the second of the approved amendments.”

While the No. 1 priority in the special session is the bill calling for the June election, No. 2 priority is given the bill on accreditation of political parties.

The President said that basic to the task of implementing the constitutional changes is “the passage of legislation calling for the holding of presidential elections at the earliest possible time.”

He said that it is only with the inauguration of the new presidency as provided for by the amended Constitution “that the force of the amendments will come to life and effect.”

With this, he said, would follow the appointment of a new Prime Minister, the organization of the cabinet and the executive committee, and the start of the new relationship between parliament and presidency.

April 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered all copra buyers to pay a uniform price of P2 a kilo to coconut farmers.

He took this emergency measure to help more than a million coconut farmers ride out the current depressed world coconut oil market.

He also issued several directives to stabilize the domestic coconut oil industry. These are:

- Central Bank support to commercial banks financing hard pressed coconut oil mills.
- Buying of copra by all qualified dealers, instead of limiting purchases to authorized buyers.
- Purchase of an estimated surplus coconut oil production of 160,000 to 170,000 tons by the government.
- Payment in cash of oil millers’ copra purchases from coconut farmers.
- Study the possibility of putting up one marketing committee to stop the cutthroat competition among copra buyers through uniform pricing.

The farmers have met difficulty in selling copra in recent months as some of them could not transport their produce to authorized buyers which sell at P2 a kilo. Instead of selling their copra to the United Coconut Oil Mills, a group of 16 oil milling companies, the farmers were selling to buyers for as low as P1.10 a kilo.

A COMPETENT prime minister will stay on the job indefinitely to give him the chance to carry out long-range economic plans.

President Marcos gave this assurance yesterday to correct the impression that the premiership would change hands every year.

Mr. Marcos said, however, that if the prime minister does not show the qualities expected of him, he should give up the position gracefully.

An effective prime minister will be allowed to continue in office with a deputy prime minister gaining experience and competence by working with them.

He said he is now trying to measure the capabilities of possible candidates for the post of prime minister and other ranking positions between now and June 30.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the opposition demand to postpone the presidential election to next year "is out of the question."

He told Malacañang newsmen in an interview that the Batasang Pambansa had already approved the election bill on second reading.

The bill is scheduled to be enacted next Tuesday, with the President ready to sign it on the same day, thereby setting off the campaign period for the June 16, presidential election.

* * * * *

April 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the immediate implementation of a fuel mix program by using excess coconut oil in the local market, in a move to help small coconut farmers.

The move will ease the oversupply of copra and coconut oil in the market which, along with other factors, had brought down the prices of these products, adversely affecting the livelihood of more than one million Filipino coconut farmers.

The President's directive involves the purchase and use of surplus coconut oil by the government and will not affect the country's export commitments.

* * * * *

IF ELECTED on June 16, President Marcos said he would undertake a top-to-bottom reassessment of the performance of officials in various government agencies, including the Cabinet.

The performance audit plan was disclosed by President Marcos in a brief talk with newsmen shortly before he left for Baguio City.

Accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, the President will inspect government projects, such as the Export Processing Zone, in the Pines City.

* * * * *

April 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS warned that former Senator Benigno Aquino Jr. will have to face legal consequences if he returns to the country.

Answering questions from newsmen in Baguio City on the possibility that Aquino may return to the country for the coming presidential elections, the President said:

“If Aquino comes to the Philippines that will pose a problem because he is still facing a number of charges.”

Aquino, who left the country last May for a heart operation in the United States, went to Tokyo to confer with former Sen. Salvador H. Laurel, an opposition leader said to be interested in the presidency.

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister, Imelda R. Marcos, said she welcomed the coming international conference on human settlements in Manila as an opportunity for the Philippines to showcase her own programs and achievements in this field.

Mrs. Marcos told newsmen in Baguio City that she wanted the more than 600 human settlements experts from all over the world to see for themselves “what we have been doing in terms of making every settlement here a human settlement where the goal is not just economic wellbeing but a better quality of life and a sense of fulfillment for every Filipino.”

The First Lady was referring to the fourth session of the United Nations Commission on Human Settlements (UNCHS) scheduled at the Philippine International Convention Center April 27 to May 6.

* * * * *

April 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said former Sen. Benigno Aquino Jr. faces arrest should he return to Manila, and will be treated like any other Filipino facing charges before the courts.

“We will have to let the law take its course.” the President said in an interview with newsmen after his speech at the inauguration and blessing of the administration building of the Export Processing Zone in Loakan, Baguio City.

The President was commenting on reports that the opposition might boycott the June 16, presidential elections if Aquino is arrested upon his return.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS denied that the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) is being slowly transformed into a military organization.

In an interview with newsmen at the mansion house, the President emphasized that the ASEAN “is an organization that is oriented towards economic development and social integration.”

The President made this statement when asked to comment on reports said to be from a US defense publication that the ASEAN is slowly becoming a military organization.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the export processing zones are the answer to many deficiencies of the country’s economy.

The President was principal speaker at the inauguration and blessing of the Baguio City Export Processing Zone, the third in the country.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos, assisted by Mrs. Bebe A. Bueno and Mrs. Edelwina F Peña cut the ceremonial ribbon and unveiled the BCEPZ administration building marker.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 20—

CLASSES will open June 22, instead of June 15.

With the new schedule, students of voting age in the province can vote in their hometowns before going to the cities to enroll.

The decision to postpone the opening of classes was reached during the caucus of the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan last Tuesday at the Batasan building in Quezon City.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has asked the youth to take early interest in national affairs, reminding them of the disastrous consequences of a misguided leadership.

The President, in a speech read for him before graduates of the Don Mariano Marcos State university in Batac, Ilocos Norte, last Saturday, stressed the need for the youth to recognize, their stakes in the national life.

He reminded the youth that the course of action they take or the indifference they display affect those around them. He told the graduates:

“However we act—rightly or wrongly, with vision or with narrow-mindedness—our actions have consequences for more than just the life around us.

“And we need only remember the examples of militarist Japan and a surging Nazi Germany to realize the terrible discontinuities that can overtake a nation when it is blighted by misguided leadership.”

April 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed into law last night a Batasan Pambansa bill calling for presidential elections on June 16, the first since 1969. But a three-cornered fight looms as a grouping of a Pusyon Bisaya faction and other regional opposition groups said it will field its own candidate to face President Marcos and whoever is put up by the UNIDO.

The election law provides for an election of the president by direct vote of the people in accordance with the newly-ratified modified parliamentary system.

Signing of the law, witnessed by members of the Batasang Pambansa, was made a few hours after the Batasan had approved the bill on third reading.

Under the law the deadline for the filing of candidacy and nomination of candidates by political parties is April 28. The election campaign period has been set for 52 days starting April 24, and the election has been set on June 16.

The new law also calls for the registration of all voters by the Citizens Election Committee starting May 30 until June 5.

No further registration shall be allowed within 10 days prior to the election and for this purpose, the election registrar shall deliver to the Citizens Election Committee the precinct book of voters corresponding to the voting center concerned.

PRESIDENT MARCOS warned that he will be forced to take drastic measures if terroristic activities continue in Mindanao.

The warning was issued by the President in reaction to the grenade explosion incident inside the San Pedro Cathedral in Davao City during an Easter Sunday Mass. At least 13 persons were reported killed and more than 100 others injured when two grenades exploded one after another.

“If the terrorism continues in Mindanao. I’ll be compelled, elections or no elections, to take more forceful measures.” the President said.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS lauded President Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico for initiating the move to break the impasse in the North-South dialogue by calling a summit meeting in Acapulco this October.

The President made the commendation in brief remarks before the Mexican delegation to the Inter-Parliamentary Union Conference, headed by Sen. Joaquin Gamboa-Pascoe, which called on him in Malacañang.

“President Portillo is doing great service to Third World countries with his efforts to bring about resolution of the issues in North-South dialogue,” the President said.

President Marcos has been invited to attend the summit.

PRESIDENT MARCOS asked assemblymen from the coconut regions to monitor copra trading in order to ensure that his directives to help coconut producers are being followed.

The President told some 20 lawmakers during an hour-long meeting in Malacañang that he had fixed the millgate price of copra at P2 per kilo, the buyers to buy all copra brought to them and to pay cash on delivery.

* * * * *

ASSEMBLYMEN from the coconut-producing regions have formed a watchdog committee to see to it that copra is sold to coconut farmers at the uniform millgate price of P2 a kilo.

They formed the group as President Marcos urged them to see to it that every possible help be given the coconut farmers, who are suffering from the currently low price of copra abroad.

The President told 23 assemblymen from the coconut-producing areas to see to it that copra buying is kept open to all coconut farmers and farmers are paid in cash.

The measures are intended to protect the farmers, specially at this time of year when they need cash for tuition and other school expenses of their children.

The President reiterated that effective May 1, the government will buy all the excess oil that cannot be sold by local millers in the world market.

The coconut oil will be mixed with diesel oil at the ratio of 90 percent diesel and 10 percent coconut oil. The mixed fuel will be used by the National Power Corporation and the navy will require 260, 000 tons of coconut oil annually.

April 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS called for urgent global reforms to help “defuse the bomb” that threatens to destroy the world.

Speaking at the opening of the liter-Parliamentary Union spring meetings at the Philippine Convention Center, the President said the world is astride a “current of ferment” and that immediate solutions are needed.

The President cited the turmoil and the uneasiness in international life resulting mostly, he said, from the widening gap between the rich and the poor nations.

“Unless the superpowers finally realize the futility of arms race and the perilous course of rivalry and unless we begin” now to revise the charter of the United Nations and rebuild a system truly reflective and effective structure that shall bring about order to international life, we will continue to move irrevocably towards incineration of all nations in the world,” the President warned.

However, the President said that moral persuasion on the conduct and policies of nations may yet turn around the present situation decisively towards reform of the global system.

April 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the production of more gasifiers and their mass distribution after the June 16 election.

Several types of vehicles fitted with gasifiers were presented to the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, in Malacañang. Among the vehicles presented for demonstration were Kadiwa mobile store jeepneys and garbage disposal trucks.

The gasifier models attached to the vehicles had been improved and the method of producing the hydro-gas refined.

Vehicles with combustion engines that run on hydrogen gas developed by Filipino experts over the past few months were earlier demonstrated to the First Couple.

Filipino scientists working on the project have advanced the already known use of gasifiers to turn charcoal into gas by introducing the use of steam to form a combustible mixture for gasoline and diesel engines.

The President gave the assurance to Nigerian Agriculture Minister Ibrahim Gusau, who called on the President.

The Nigerian Minister is leading a mission exploring areas of cooperation in agriculture, particularly rice production, storage, milling and marketing and fish farming.

Minister Gusau said he was impressed by the strides made by the Philippines in agricultural production, and would like to invite agricultural technicians to help improve his country's agricultural production.

April 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, quoting a cabinet standing committee report submitted to him, said that the country's inflation rate went down to 12.64 per cent last March.

According to the report, there was a pronounced decrease in the inflation rate from February to March in Metro Manila. In February, the inflation rate was down to 12.21 percent, then declined further to 11.19 in March.

The cabinet standing committee cited figures from the National Economic and Development Authority which said that outside Metro Manila, the rate decreased from 14.92 percent in February to 12.88 in March.

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos lauded Japan's generosity and concern in helping Third World countries fight and conquer tropical diseases.

Speaking at the inauguration of the Research Institute for Tropical Medicine in Alabang the First Lady noted that Japan, having conquered what is commonly called tropical diseases, like malaria, tuberculosis, schistosomiasis and leprosy, has turned her attention and energies to helping other nations fight similar health problems.

Citing the institute as an example, the First Lady said: "That she has generously endowed us to establish this institute is a manifestation of her sympathy and identification with the health problems of Third World nations."

April 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared that the university is for quality education, not for ideological and partisan politics, which "can tear the academic community apart."

Speaking at the University of the Philippines alumni homecoming at the Manila Hotel, he said that the great political issues dividing society cannot be resolved in the university.

He said the university does not represent all sectors nor does it command majority votes in a referendum, plebiscite or election.

On the other hand, he called for academic freedom, with every citizen having the right to hold and express his political opinion.

“Academic freedom means we must listen, not force our ideas on the students or on any others,” he said. “Let us listen to everybody. Let us not riot and demonstrate to coerce and intimidate, but demonstrate in favor of intellectual quality.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS appears to be an unbeatable choice in the June 16 Presidential elections with prospective opposition candidates trailing far behind, according to an independent opinion poll released yesterday by the Malacañang press office.

The results of the survey, which apparently had also been reflected in polls commissioned by the opposition themselves, seemed to have triggered off the decision of Unido to stay out of the elections.

April 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, accepting the presidential nomination of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan, warned the opposition that its decision to boycott the June 16 election would consign it to oblivion.

“Let history bypass those who refuse to participate in the democratic processes of the country,” he said as he wound up his acceptance speech at the KBL convention in the Manila hotel. “Let them be forgotten in the dustbin of posterity.”

A day earlier, the United Democratic Opposition (Unido) had announced its decision not only to refuse to put up a candidate but also to boycott the election totally.

“If we must do it alone, we will do it alone,” Mr. Marcos said.

* * * * *

The ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) mobilized some 6,000 local leaders from 73 provinces and 60 cities, who attended yesterday’s KBL national convention, and directed them to campaign immediately for the election of President Marcos on June 16, with or without an opponent.

In his report to the convention, Local Governments Minister Jose A. Roño KBL secretary general, said the ruling party under the leadership of the governors, Batasan members, mayors, barangay captains, the youth, and local chairmen, was strong and willing to vote even if the President has no opponent.

Roño said it is obvious that the United Democratic Opposition (Unido) has taken the decision it announced as a means of providing itself with an excuse in advance for the defeat it will suffer in the hands of the KBL.

President's Week in Review: April 27 - May 3, 1981

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 27—

A HUMAN settlements conference, attended by 58 countries, opens in Manila this morning amid hopes that it will help push forward development programs throughout the world.

The conference marks the fourth session of the United Nations Commission on Human Settlements.

Six hundred delegates are expected to take part in the discussion at the Philippine Convention Center.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, cited the importance of the conference in an interview yesterday at the Manila International Airport, where she welcomed Sri Lanka Prime Minister Ranasinghe Premadasa.

Premadasa will lead his country's delegation to the conference.

According to Mrs. Marcos, the human settlements conference will discuss such 'basic community needs as energy, housing, livelihood opportunities and related topics.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS will meet with Sri Lanka Prime Minister Ranasinghe Premadasa this morning to discuss wider cooperation between their countries.

The talks are scheduled shortly before the President leaves for the Philippine International Convention Center to keynote the fourth session of the United Nations Commission on Human Settlements.

Besides discussing possible areas of cooperation between the Philippines and Sri Lanka, the President and his 56-year-old guest are expected to exchange views on security, economic development in Asia and other topics.

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, said the thrust of the coming election campaign will be on development and not on personalities.

This was disclosed by the First Lady in a brief talk with newsmen at the airport shortly before the arrival of Sri Lanka Prime Minister Ranasinghe Premadasa at the Manila International Airport.

"The election of President Marcos is only incidental," she told newsmen. "After all, the needs of the people is my No. 1 concern."

April 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the involvement of all government agencies in human settlement programs and the cultivation of self-reliance among the beneficiaries differentiate the Filipino concept of human settlements from those of Western countries.

Speaking at the opening of the fourth session of the United Nations Commission on Human Settlements at the Philippine International Convention Center, the President pointed out that while the tasks of human settlements are delegated to single office in Western nations in the Philippines, these are carried out by all government offices which bring to the people their 11 basic needs.

The Ministry of Human Settlements acts as a mere catalyzer of all these ministries, the President said.

The President added that instead of giving out doles to the poor, an idea espoused in the welfare state concept, the government puts up settlements based on self-reliance.

Houses must eventually be amortized, he said, but the government helps the people put up the money by employing them in income-generating livelihood projects established near their settlements.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS and 15 others filed yesterday with the Commission Elections their certificates of candidacy for president in the June 16 elections.

Assemblyman Alejandro D. Almendras and Reuben Canoy were also reported last night as being considered by the Nacionalista Party and the Philippine Alliance, respectively, for their standard bearers.

Registered political parties have until May 16 to file their presidential nominations, while the deadline for individual candidates was at 12 last night.

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, said that for the presidential campaign, she would work with the people in speeding up countryside development.

She said she will “spread the gospel of development and self-reliance.” Mrs. Marcos said she would like to see the resources of the government, especially in science and technology, fully harnessed and combined with the people’s ability and desire for a better quality of life.

Mobile teams composed of representatives from the various agencies have long been at work with local citizens in improving the delivery of the 11 basic services, she said.

* * * * *

SRI LANKA would like to be a member of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, Sri Lankan Prime Minister Ranasinghe Premadasa informed President Marcos during their meeting yesterday.

He later told a press conference that he has sought the assistance of the President in informing the other members of the ASEAN on the matter.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS lauded Sri Lanka for its role in helping the Third World look for its identity and its efforts to promote better understanding, cooperation and mutual benefits among nations.

The President spoke during a dinner in honor of Prime Minister Ranasinghe Premadasa of the Democratic Socialist of Sri Lanka at Malacañang.

The visiting Sri Lanka Prime Minister, in his return toast, likewise praised the Philippines for its significant contribution in bringing together countries in the region.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday directed the Philippine National Oil Corp. to increase its coconut oil purchases from 5,000 to 15,000 metric tons per month to meet the coco oil-diesel fuel mix requirements of the government starting May 1.

The President said the increase was necessary to facilitate implementation of his earlier directive for selected government-owned or controlled corporations to use coconut oil as part of their fuel requirements.

He said that the viability of coconut oil as fuel mix for power generation and transportation purposes has been proved in initial tests conducted by experts.

Under the program initiated by the President, PNOC will buy the coconut oil from United Coconut Oil Mills (Unicom) or any of the accredited oil mills for mixing in Petrophil bulk plants and eventual distribution to identified agencies.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that with the country being relatively peaceful today, the government is now pressing forward with its human settlements program as well as the training of leaders.

The President, honoring at lunch in Malacañang some 600 delegates to the Fourth Session of the United Nations Human Settlements commission, said:

“You have come at a time when we have settled down from internal violence to comparative peace and are now attending to such things as human settlements.”

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, was elected chairman of the UN conference by acclamation at its opening Monday.

* * * * *

May 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of Labor and Employment to look into the safety and possible evacuation of Filipino workers in Lebanon.

Filipino workers had sent a cable to the President requesting government action.

The President directed the two ministries to protect Filipinos who said they were caught in the middle of continuous bombing in all parts of Lebanon and that the airport has been temporarily closed.

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos urged yesterday a re-examination of the effects of technology on the environment to protect natural processes that are crucial to man’s survival.

Addressing the First Environmental Meeting of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, the First Lady pointed out that although technology has touched people's lives in positive ways, it could also be destructive.

The First Lady, who is also the Philippines' human settlements minister, was elected' chairman of the one-day conference attended by ASEAN environmental ministers. The conference was held at the Philippine Plaza.

Under her leadership, the conferees unanimously adopted a Manila Declaration on the ASEAN Environment which seeks, among others, the protection of the environment in the region.

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed yesterday Health Minister Enrique Garcia to suspend moves to close Quezon Institute and to transfer its patients to the Lung Center and other hospitals.

"We will restudy this whole plan to find out if it should go through or not," the President said.

Previously, the plan was to close the 44-year-old Quezon Institute and move the patients to the Lung Center and other hospitals, and to discharge those who can be treated at home.

* * * * *

May 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday he will ask the Batasang Pambansa for early approval of a bill restoring the right of workers to strike.

This assurance was given by the President in his speech at ceremonies commemorating Labor Day at the Philippine International Convention Center.

He said that he had earlier hoped to sign in the presence of the workers who attended the ceremonies a law that will signify further "our transition to a normalized state of national stability." But, according to the President, there was not sufficient time for the Batasang Pambansa to act on the bill.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, marked yesterday their 27th wedding anniversary by launching the "Kalusugan sa Bagong Lipunan" project which will provide free medical assistance to the poor.

The First Couple inaugurated a MARCOS (Medical Assistance for the Rural Communities and Other Sectors) free clinic in San Andres which started operating yesterday simultaneously with 42 clinics in other parts of Metro Manila.

The President called the "Kalusugan sa Bagong Lipunan" project "a new movement for the poor and the underprivileged."

* * * * *

May 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS pledged yesterday to continue building up the nation's defense to preserve its freedom, but under the principle of self-reliance.

“We will remain free only for as long as we can defend ourselves,” he said. “And that defense must be enduring for our freedoms to endure.”

The bitter lessons of the past, he said, teach the country “not to depend on a system of replenishment whose line can be easily cut off but on its own for its own requirements, to the point of improvisation if need be.”

May 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS reiterated his determination to prosecute grafters in order to maintain a strong, effective, and professional treasury and assessment service.

In a speech before 3,000 local treasurers and assessors attending the 59th national conference-workshop of the Provincial, City, and Municipal Treasurers and Assessors Association of the Philippines at the Manila Midtown Ramada hotel, he said:

"I shall continue to be resolute in my drive against graft and corruption, against dishonesty, against defalcation and the misapplication of public funds, but be assured I shall likewise remain equally steadfast in maintaining strong, effective, and professional local treasury and assessment career services."

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed the city fiscal's office to dismiss the charges of breach of the peace levelled by the police against opposition Assemblyman Salvador H. Laurel's wife and children "in the spirit of compassion and understanding."

City Fiscal Jose B. Flaminiano said that the President had directed the city fiscal's office "to forego the criminal prosecution of the respondents in accordance with the principle of nolle prosequi, which means that the state formally declares and makes of record its intention not to proceed with the prosecution of the case."

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that oppositions groups are trying to confuse the issues in the June 16 presidential elections by hurling "irrational, illogical and libelous" attacks on him.

Speaking at the opening of the 59th National Conference-Workshop of the Provincial, City and Municipal Treasurers and Assessors Association of the Philippines at the Midtown Ramada, the President said that the coming election is not "a confirmation" of his authority as president as claimed by the opposition.

"That's not true," the President said. The election, he said, will give the President a chance to submit himself to the people for "judgment" on his performance during the martial law period.

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda R. Marcos has approved a 10-15 percent across-the-board salary increases for 12,000 Metro aides.

The salary increases would enable the region's street sweepers to cope with the increased cost of commodities and services, Metro Manila Vice Gov. Ismael Mathay, Jr. said yesterday.

Mathay said Metro aides receiving below P700 monthly will get an additional P105, while those receiving more than P700 will receive an additional P70.

May 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he is not "personally opposed" to admitting new members in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

The President gave this position in answer to queries by newsmen in connection with the desire of some countries to join the ASEAN.

The latest to express willingness to join the ASEAN is Sri Lanka. The other nations who earlier expressed their wish to join the ASEAN are Papua, New Guinea, the Sultanate of Brunei and Burma.

May 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on the people yesterday to continue meeting the challenges confronting the nation to make the country secure and stable.

The President made the call in his speech highlighting the "Araw ng Kagitingan" rites at Fort Santiago, a joint commemoration of the Fall of Bataan, Fall of Corregidor and the Battle of Bessang Pass.

He said that the heroes of World II died in the pursuit of stability and security.

He said the image of the link among the past, the present and the future "commits us surely to labor relentlessly against the shadow of conflict that now hovers upon the world, and occasionally hovers upon our life, and to make our nation secure and stable."

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister, Imelda R. Marcos paid tribute to the social conscience of Filipino businessmen which she said has provided the breakthrough in the solution of the once formidable housing problem.

The First Lady made the observation in a speech at ceremonies marking the Chamber of Thrift Banks' participation in the government's social housing program, held at the Philippine International Convention Center

Mrs. Marcos said the decision of the private sector, through the Chamber of Thrift Banks, to participate in the government's housing program has given the people, particularly those in the low-income groups an opportunity to own homes.

PRESIDENT MARCOS launched the crop insurance program designed to protect farmers from the devastating effects of erratic climatic conditions.

Speaking before some 1,000 farmers at ceremonies in Malacañang, the President said “rather than fatalistically succumb to the harsh meteorological vagaries, we have chosen to arm ourselves with a potent mechanism that can blunt the capriciousness of nature.”

The President said that farmers in typhoon-prone areas face bankruptcy every time storms and typhoons devastate their crops.

Under the program, the President said, crop insurance will cover all types of farm products but initially, this year, it will cover standing palay crops, including cost of production such as labor, fertilizers, pesticides and farmers’ share of the insurance premium and other cost items qualified for financing under the government’s supervised credit program.

The President said 300,000 of the 1.6 million rice farmers will be covered this year, the number to increase next year.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said Nacionalista Party candidate Alejo S. Santos should not be taken lightly in the June 16 presidential elections.

This assessment was made by the President in answer to questions from newsmen as to how he rates the NP standard bearer.

The President said he has received Santos’ letter of resignation from his position as chairman of the Philippine Veterans Bank.

“So this means that he has accepted the nomination of the Nacionalista party,” the President said.

May 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS warned against violence, particularly in Mindanao, from terrorist organizations like the Moro National Liberation Front and from oppositionists during the June 16 election campaign.

In an interview he said terrorism in Mindanao was confirmed by Arnulfo Alba, the suspect who was caught with his confederates for the grenade throwing incident in the San Pedro cathedral in Davao city where 16 were killed and more than 100 wounded.

He said Alba confessed to having received word from two MNLF officials to step up terrorism, one, a certain Faisal who was a rebel returnee released two years ago and the other, a commander now hiding in the Middle East.

May 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS granted complete and absolute amnesty to 45 former Moro National Liberation Front commanders who pledged to help maintain peace and order and participate in economic development “Today I embrace you as brother Filipinos in the full meaning of the word,” the President told the returnees.

The returning rebel leaders came from Tawi-tawi, Basilan, Zulu, Zamboanga del Norte, Lanao and South Cotabato.

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed that regular judicial procedures be followed in the arrest and detention of persons involved in subversion and other similar crimes, even in areas where the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus is suspended.

The President issued the order in response to a request for the issuance of a Presidential Order of Arrest against Marino Jefferson, Joaquin Beturin, and several others.

Jefferson was identified as having led a group which ambushed a PC patrol in barangay Labaan, Bucloc, Abra last March 3.

Beturin and several others, on the other hand, were arrested last April 5 at San Jose and Baliwasa Grande, Zamboanga City, while posting subversive leaflets and stickers.

The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus remains suspended in the two autonomous regions in Mindanao and in all other places with respect to persons now under arrest or those to be arrested for subversion and other similar crimes.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that he will start May 16 to campaign “in earnest” for the presidency.

The President disclosed his campaign plans in brief remarks to visiting American judges and lawyers who called on him in Malacañang.

The President said that by starting his campaign on May 16, he will in effect limit his campaign period to only one month.

May 16 is also the last day for political parties to submit to the Commission on Elections their nominees for the June 16 presidential polls.

Nacionalista Party standard-bearer Alejo S. Santos will also lack off his campaign on May 16 in Cebu City.

President's Week in Review: May 11-17, 1981

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan faces the coming presidential election with “a record of achievements” unmatched in Philippine history.

The President gave this view in a talk with newsmen as he compared the platform of the KBL with opposition groups, including the Nacionalista party.

Citing an example, the President said that the KBL, whose program, he said, has been embodied in the new Constitution, makes social justice not a promise but a reality.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that the North-South dialogue in Mexico in October is an opportunity for Third World countries to seek solutions to their problems with developed nations.

These problems, the President said, include the need for a pragmatic approach to the transfer of technology to developing countries, elimination of protectionism, and establishment of a new international economic, or even a new monetary order.

* * * * *

THE IMPORT duties on hospital materials and equipment will be reduced 30 days after May 8, under an order issued yesterday by President Marcos.

The order modified rates of import duty on some imported articles to stimulate commercial transactions.

The import duty on hygienic, medical and surgical articles and surgical gloves were reduced from 50 to 10 percent, hospital rubber sheeting and electric filament lamps and electric discharge lamps (including infra-red and ultra-violet lamps) from 40 to 10 percent, electrocardiograph paper from 80 to 10 percent; X-ray films and other photographic plates and films, sterilization indicators, laboratory, hygienic and pharmaceutical glassware, sterilizing apparatus, tubas for X-ray machines, optical appliances and instruments and methaphy, massage apparatus and aptitude testing apparatus from 20 to 10 percent.

May 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS launched the “Alay sa Tao” Development Caravan yesterday at Freedom Park in front of Malacañang with the promise to provide everyone with a means of livelihood to generate production—the best solution to inflation.

The caravan is designed to accelerate the delivery of the 11 basic needs of man.

“The answer to inflation is production,” he said. “So we must convert every man woman and child into a producer not only of the things they need but also of things to sell to other countries.”

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos said that the delivery of basic services would be a permanent and continuing commitment of the government under President Marcos.

She said that 5,000 volunteers consisting of 2,000 doctors and 3,000 nurses are working in 390 towns all over the country and that in 45 days, they would have attended to 14 million people.

* * * * *

The government’s 393,711 extension workers are being organized into a massive civilian force to transform the countryside into what state leaders describe as “critical areas” of change and development.

A top-level inter-agency core of career executive service leaders ironed out yesterday kinks in the mobilization of what has been described until then as “this moribund and almost forgotten work force.”

Malacañang has tapped the Career Executive Service Development Program Alumni association, headed by acting Education Minister Hermenigildo C. Dumlao, to steer the project designed to spur the development of the countryside at practically no added cost to the government.

The extension workers include some 43,711 who are attached to the 18 ministries and other offices, complemented by some 350,000 barrio teachers.

May 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the division of the Nacionalista Party is “unfortunate,” but said that he would campaign just as hard as if the opposition party did not split up.

“It is unfortunate that the division of the Nacionalista had to come at a time like this,” the President said.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that former Sen. Benigno Aquino Jr. is now in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, but has not met Moro National Liberation Front Leader Nur Misuari.

The President said that the presence of Aquino in Jeddah has been confirmed by his men but that he (Marcos) could not understand why Misuari is snubbing Aquino.

The President told newsmen in a dialogue in Malacañang that Aquino is supposed to meet with Misuari to firm up the tie up between the MNLF and the New People’s Army, the military arm of the Communist Party of the Philippines.

“Nothing is definite about the linkup and everything is still up in the air,” the President said.

PRESIDENT MARCOS received officials of Armco International, and the Armco-Marsteel Alloy Corp., who informed him of the expansion of their operations in the country and putting in additional investment worth $7.8 million.

The company supplies 65 percent of the local market for grinding media in the domestic market and exports 15 percent of its production to ASEAN countries like Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand. It has an annual production of P250 million.

With the infusion of an additional $ $7.8 million, the corporation hopes to adopt the continuous caster” process of producing steel, designed to control and reduce costs and improve the quality of production.

May 14—

THE GOVERNMENT will soon launch a program covering not only receivers of health care but also “co-deliverers” of health services.

To lay the foundation for a wide-ranging national health program, the President said, the government is adopting the approach developed in collaboration with the World Health Organization.

“If we appeal for greater social concern and greater selflessness from our private sector, this is not meant in criticism but in the spirit of promoting a vital service,” he said.

Noting the problem of fake drugs, the President said that those found selling adulterated medicines or involved in the dishonest purchase and sale of medicines will be prosecuted.

“We shall take every measure necessary to correct this blight and we shall bring before the bar of justice all those perpetrating these misdeeds for there is simply no way we can allow these contemptible practices in our midst,” he said.

Citing reports that free medicine is being sold by government personnel, the President said that in a society where funds for health care are almost always taken from equally important programs, “there is no excuse for their being squandered or eroded by graft.”

* * * * *

MUSLIM religious leaders told President Marcos that they have organized themselves to effectively help the government maintain peace and spur development in Mindanao.

The Marawi-based Ulamas, who called at Malacañang, were led by Sheik Iman Ismali Yahyah, director and imam of the Jamio Mindanao-al-Islamiyah; and Macud Baunto, director-secretary of the Jamio Mindanao-at-Islamie and secretary general of the Ansar-el-Islam.

The religious leaders said they have organized a National Association of Ulamas and Ustadz and hope to put up mosques in other parts of the country, starting from Cebu.

May 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS invited yesterday the opposition and the public to discuss with him the June 16 presidential elections, including policy problems in government and possible alternative programs.

The President issued the invitation during the kick-off rally of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan at the Folk Arts Theater.

Citing what he said was the unparalleled record of the KBL, the President said that in the campaign, the KBL will bring the people “the cause which we represent as a party and the program of government which we pledge to carry out.”

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS denounced what he called the “senseless” attack on the Pope. This must now be denounced by all right-thinking men and governments and must now take forthright action against merchants of blood and sadistic violence,” he said.

He expressed bitter sentiments because “until now there are some elements in the world who think that violence can be justified because of an alleged noble cause.” Under no case nor purpose can violence be justified, he said.

The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, said she regretted the terrible deed of madness” done on “a man of love needed by the world which is so filled with confusion, selfishness and hate.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed government agencies to extend help to the rural banks by sharing in bank losses and granting more loans.

In a speech before the Rural Bankers Association of the Philippines, the President ordered the Development Bank of the Philippines to extend loans to rural banks.

Under this scheme, loans by rural banks may be rediscounted with the DBP. This would increase the loan funds of rural banks.

The President also directed the finance and budget ministries and the Central Bank to come up with ways of increasing the annual budget to help boost the capital of rural banks.

May 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the increase in the price of palay and corn to enable the country’s 1.6 million farmers meet the rising cost of production.

The President signed the order during his speech commemorating Farmers’ Day at the Folk Arts Theater.

Under the order, the price of palay will be increased from P1.45 to P1.50 per kilo on June 17 and the price of corn from P1.20 to P1.30 per kilo effective immediately.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that government lawyers serve as units of production in the country.

Speaking at the “Thank You” program for the First Couple by the Ministry of Justice, the President said that a man who feels an injustice had been committed against him cannot be a producer.

It is in this regard that the Ministry of Justice, the President said, must perform very efficiently as a grievance machinery.

Otherwise, he said, you have social tension resulting in political instability and economic recession.”

The rationale behind the continuous training of personnel in all the ministries as well as the upgrading of salaries is to have an efficient government machinery.

Earlier, the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, underscored the need for justice for all, especially for the poor.

It is only in an atmosphere of justice that the people can only harness their resources and talents for constructive ends, she said.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 18

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on all Filipinos to help maintain the momentum of progress which he said has been achieved by the crisis government.

The President sounded the call in two separate dialogues (pulong-pulong), and held at the Philippine International Convention Center, and the other with leaders of the Affiliated Filipino Organizations (AFO) in-the United States.

The dialogue between the President and the AFO officials was held via satellite, with Mr. Marcos answering questions from Malacañang and the expatriates making queries from San Francisco, USA. It was telecast nationally.

The AFO was organized recently as an umbrella organization of various associations of Filipino-Americans in the US to thank the President for making it possible for former Filipino citizens to own lots in the Philippines.

THE commission on elections reminded public officials yesterday about the ban on the hiring of new employees and giving of salary increases in all government offices, including government-owned or controlled corporations, during the current election campaign period.

Chairman Vicente M. Santiago Jr., said these are prohibited acts which constitute election offenses punishable by one to six years imprisonment and disqualification to hold public office.

He said the warning was directed at any head, official or appointing officer of a government or agency, whether national or local, including corporations and enterprises owned or controlled by the government.

Santiago also said the law prohibits the transfer or detail of any official or employees in the civil service, including public school teachers, within the election period, except upon prior approval of the Comelec.

THE FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, announced that the Asian Development Bank has granted the Philippines a new P57.5 million loan for its electrification projects.

The loan, signed by Philippine government officials headed by Mrs. Marcos and by ADB officials, will be used exclusively for "brightening up further," the Bicol region.

Mrs. Marcos, arriving in Bicol Saturday in her "campaign for development," said that the loans would be used for the following projects:

1. Five rural electrification projects, P33,123,000.
2. Two mini-hydroelectric projects, P17,647,000.
3. Dentro-thermal projects, P6,395,000.

THE MINISTRY of Foreign Affairs reported that the 2,500 Filipino workers in Lebanon were safe but were anxious to come home-Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo said Filipino workers have been asking if Philippine Airlines planes could land at the Lebanon airport to take them home.

Some of the workers, who were without proper documentation, were in a predicament, and were also seeking Philippine government assistance, a telex message received by Romulo indicated.

The government expressed concern over Filipino workers in Lebanon due to the worsening situation there. President Marcos has ordered the MFA and the Ministry of Labor and Employment to send a government team to look into the situation of Filipinos there.

May 19

PRESIDENT MARCOS during his “Pulong-pulong” program Sunday night, said he might synchronize the barangay election with the June 16 election.

There has been a strong clamor for barangay elections and the President said he would consider this.

The last time the barangay election was held was in 1972 and that was for barrio captains, whose positions were converted to barangay captains in 1975.

It was pointed out that the barangay elections would help justify the huge expense involved in a presidential election.

The President said that a barangay election would be the best counterattack against the election boycott promoted by the opposition.

May 20

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that contrary to the charges of opposition leaders, the government has taken every measure to bring to justice killers involved in celebrated murders.

The President mentioned at least four well-known murder victims former Pampanga Gov. Jose B. Lingad, shot down in the Pampanga highway; newsman Demy Dingcong, shot in his home in Lanao del Norte; Jesuit father Godofredo Alingal, killed in Bukidnon, and Dulag Macling, killed in Kalinga-Apayao.

“In the case of Jose Lingad, who happened to be my classmate, I have ordered the investigation not only by the CIS and the NBI, but also by other agencies,” he said. “And the reports seem to indicate contrary leads.”

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos inaugurated the 194th Kadiwa center in Valenzuela, Metro Manila, yesterday. She promised that Kadiwa operations would stabilize prices of other prime commodities, aside from rice and corn.

The First Lady, who is also Metro Manila governor, cut the ceremonial ribbon in the Valenzuela Kadiwa sa Bagong Lipunan center. Assisting her was Metro Manila Vice Governor Ismael Mathay and Valenzuela Mayor Gerry Angeles.

She announced that the growing chain of Kadiwa stores had already serviced 11 million Filipinos since the program started in February, 1980.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that he would refer to the Batasang Pambansa for consideration during its next session the matter of letting the vice mayor assume the mayorship in case the mayor is temporarily incapacitated.

This was one of the matters taken up by 210 vice mayors from the Southern Tagalog region who called at Malacañang to pledge their support in the June 16 presidential election as well as take the opportunity to discuss local problems.

The Southern Tagalog officials presented two festering problems:

1. Rectifying the hazy provisions of the law on succession to the mayoralty.
2. Future of the vice mayors in fourth, fifth and sixth class municipalities to receive their salaries.

Vice Mayor Eufemio Calaguio of Mamburao, Mindoro Occidental and president of the Region IV Vice Mayors league, informed the Chief Executive that under the present provisions a vice mayor does not automatically assume the mayorship in case the mayor is temporarily incapacitated.

The mayor is authorized to designate an officer-in-charge, not necessarily the vice mayor Calaguio said.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos surveyed yesterday the mountain areas east of Manila to look for new “breathing spaces” for Metro Manila’s teeming population.

Mrs. Marcos toured the hillsides of Antipolo, Tanay, Teresa and Morong in Rizal to and proposed sites for new housing projects.

She was accompanied by Administrator Jesus Tanchanco of the National Food Authority, Vice Gov. Ismael Mathay, Jr., Deputy Minister of Human Settlements Jose Conrado Benitez and Public Works Deputy Minister Aber C. Canlas.

The whole, area will become accessible to travelers upon completion of the Marcos Highway linking Metro Manila to Infanta, Quezon.

THE COMMISSION on Elections exempted yesterday the grant of salary increases to 21,000 Manila government employees from the ban imposed during the election period.

Members of the commission headed by Chairman Vicente M. Santiago Jr. decided that the pay hike authorized by the Metro Manila Commission last April 28 was not covered by Comelec resolution No. 1504 promulgated last April 24.

Santiago said that the ruling applies to all government offices and units which have also been authorized to grant pay hikes to their employees.

May 22

PRESIDENT MARCOS agreed to restudy the controversial capital gains tax imposed on profits derived from stock transactions.

He also approved two Letters of Instructions designed to encourage investments in the securities industry and to boost the sluggish trading in the stock market.

In the presence of the new officers of the two stock exchanges, the President signed:

LOI No. 1183 forbidding the Bureau of Internal Revenue to inquire into the source of funds used in the acquisition of stock listed in the exchanges.

LOI No. 1134 ordering the Central Bank to establish a P70-million special financing program to provide funds for secondary trading in non-speculative common and preferred stocks.

May 23

PRESIDENT MARCOS called yesterday upon career state executives to lead the change in the bureaucracy and usher in “my dream of higher equality of society” for the future.

He commended the formation of the Career Executive Service Development Program Alumni association which he said was necessary to unify the bureaucracy in improving performance and speeding up the delivery of public service.

The President appeared moved by the mass expression of commitment by the more than 700 middle-and upper-level managers of government at the Palace.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Mrs. Imelda R Marcos inaugurated yesterday the first of 1,000 schoolhouses being constructed around the country as a joint project of the Philippines and the United States.

The rest of the schools will be finished before the opening of classes on June 22.

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos ordered the selling of school supplies in all Kadiwa centers throughout the country at prices 10 to 15 percent cheaper than those prevailing in traditional outlets.

The move was aimed at stabilizing “runaway prices” of school supplies foreseen in the wake of the opening of classes, Administrator Jesus Tanchanco, overall Kadiwa coordinator said.

Tanchanco said some P10 million worth of school supplies will be distributed immediately by Kadiwa centers in various parts of the country in line with the directive of the First Lady.

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared he would need the backing of the people to expose a large number of fraudulent land titles issued between 1902 and 1925—now in the hands of “well-entrenched enemies.”

Apparently he was referring to the so called oligarches, owners of vast tracts of land which they got almost for free.

He said these people “know what I have in mind” and that “this is why these people are opposing me now and blocking my moves.”

Speaking before the alumni of the Career Executive. Service Officers Development program in Malacañang, Mr. Marcos said they knew and understood what he was talking about—and hence he chose the occasion as a forum to discuss the mission of this generation.

He said his fight against the oligarchy exploiting the people was not just his fight.

“I want all of you to participate,” he said.

May 24

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed a six-point plan designed to broaden the base and improve the quality of elementary and secondary education, and upgrade educational management skills.

The blueprint, he said, is intended to meet present and future challenges of development. The President spoke at the closing of the first executive congress of public and private school officials at the Baguio Convention Center.

The President drew a lengthy applause when he said; “We are working towards at P1.000 monthly salary for teachers.”

The basic pay of most of the 240,000 public school teachers in the country is P693 a month. An increase in the salary of teachers to P1,000 a month will mean an additional P800 million expense annually for the government.

The President earlier lashed at the opposition for regarding the June 16 presidential elections as “a mere contest for political power.

He said that for some of the opposition, the election is simply a war without values and national purposes.”

“They (opposition) are casualties in the pervasive erosion of moral and ethical values in the modern world,” he said.

GOVERNMENT officials and soldiers can cast their votes in their places of assignment on June 16, the Commission on Elections said.

The Comelec promulgated a resolution to this effect to enable government officials and soldiers assigned outside their places of residence to vote the in the coming presidential elections.

Affected by the resolution are thousands of government officials and employees and soldiers who have been sent to various places on official mission.

The resolution was adopted pursuant to a provision of the Election Code.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said there will be no increase in real estate taxes this year in Metro Manila or any part of the country.

The President was reacting to reports reaching Baguio City that the Manila city government plans to raise realty taxes in July by 15 percent. This move was reportedly intended to generate additional P34 million.

The President, however, categorically stated that he has not authorized such an increase.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 25—

GUIGUINTO, Bulacan—PRESIDENT MARCOS issued this afternoon Proclamation No. 2088 calling for a referendum simultaneously with the June 16 presidential elections to ascertain the will of the people on the holding of barangay council election.

The President issued the proclamation in response to the resolution of the Pambansang Katipunan ng mga Barangay and the Katipunan ng mga Barangay sa Kalakhan Maynila during a KBL rally at the barangay center in Tabong.

The two barangay groups explained that the holding of barangay elections simultaneously with the presidential elections is “untimely and inadvisable” and instead recommended that a referendum be held on the matter.

* * * * *

Speaking at a KBL rally here attended by some 20,000 people from five provinces comprising Region 3, the President said:

He said that politics is a noble art but in the hands of demagogues (apparently referring to the Nacionalista Party propaganda), it can be used to destroy.

May 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS hit the foreign media yesterday for making “the news rather than merely report news,” thereby influencing the readers mind along the directions they choose.

He told delegates to the 7th annual convention of the International Association for Educational Assessment at the Philippine International Convention Center that this issue should be taken up in their agenda.

Foreign media, he said, would create personalities that ultimately present supposed facts which “we cannot and do not verify because they come from celebrities and the western media.”

Citing the human rights issue as an example, he said:

“I have no quarrel with media militancy over the cruelties of some governments against their peoples. I support human rights. We support the sensibilities about individual rights that are enshrined in our respective constitutions.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS drastically revamped the Manila International airport set-up yesterday due to complaints about deplorable conditions at the country's premier port of entry.

In simultaneous directives, the President:

1. Ordered Brig. Gen. Jesus Z. Singson (ret.), director of the bureau of air transportation, to take over MIA operations.
2. Directed Commissioner on Immigration and Deportation Edmundo M. Reyes and Customs Commissioner Ramon J. Farolan to change the entire immigration and customs personnel at the international airport.

May 27—

LUCENA CITY—President Marcos ordered this afternoon the Philippine Coconut Authority to establish more copra buying stations and implement government regulations to give coconut farmers in Southern Tagalog a good price for their produce.

The President gave the order in response to complaints by coconut farmers in the region during a KBL rally at the Marcos Sports Complex here.

The President told the PCA, the United Coconut Mills, and other agencies concerned “to put everything in order” in a week’s time or “they will be fired.”

MALACANANG said that P43 million has already been released to the Commission on Elections for payment to teachers for services rendered in the 1980 local elections and in the April 1981 plebiscite.

President Marcos said he had directed that the funds, which were released last week, be paid immediately to the teachers who had worked with the citizens election committees in the 1980 local elections and in the April 7 plebiscite.

The Malacañang statement also said it was “impossible” that some 50,000 provincial public school teachers had not been paid for two months because the funds intended for their salaries were used in repairing municipal and provincial roads.

May 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has accepted the resignation of Postmaster General Felizardo Tanabe and has named a new man as acting postmaster, general, paving the way for a complete revamp of the Bureau of Posts.

In appointing J. Roilo S. Golez of the Maritime Industry Authority to take over the post of Tanabe, the President told Golez, "You have complete authority to reorganize, kick out and recommend prosecution of the corrupt and dishonest, and reassess the procedures and introduce Hovel ideas to improve the system."

The President told Golez to "use the broom and not to hesitate in punishing the dishonest, through legal means," assuring him that if additional financing is needed to improve the system the President will authorize their release.

The Saudi role in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries decision to freeze oil prices and maintain the present supply level was described yesterday by President Marcos as "reassuring to other nations.

Welcoming Saudi Prince Faisal Bin Yzid Bin Abdullah in Malacañang, the President said that “the stand has guided the world to a channel of rationality, sensibility and communality.”

May 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS organized yesterday the Ministry of Muslim Affairs and appointed former Commissioner on Islamic Affairs Romulo Espaldon as its minister.

The MMA was created under Executive Order No. 697 to integrate Muslim Filipinos into the mainstream of Filipino society, giving due regard to their beliefs, customs, traditions, and institutions.

May 31—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister, Imelda R. Marcos, yesterday urged natives of Leyte and Samar residing in Metro Manila to form an action group that will look into the problems and needs of the region.

The natives of the other 11 regions in Metro Manila will also be organized into similar action groups to look after the welfare of their own regions, she said.

Mrs. Marcos announced this move during a luncheon in Malacañang for members of An Leyteno Inc., who brought the image of the Sto. Niño de Tacloban for a few days' stay in the Palace.

The Metro Manila Commission will create a section that will coordinate with the different action groups, and extend them possible assistance, she said.

June 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS indicated that the clean-up drive in government will be intensified after the June 16 elections.

“We are working deeper into many things that have been pestering us and which were not acted upon for varied reasons,” the President said.

According to the President, the reorganization initiated at the Manila International Airport and the Bureau of Posts “is just the tip of the iceberg.”

In a talk with newsmen, President Marcos said, the political leadership will go after grafters in government and those who exploit the people for selfish, personal ends, “whoever they may be, friend and foe alike.”

He said that a new mandate from the people in the coming elections is necessary to enable him to intensify reorganization in government and a review of basic policies requiring drastic action.

The President also told of the need to review the objectives of the country's economic development.

While basic objectives of agriculture development have been more or less achieved, there, remains the principal purpose, of development, which is a balanced agro-industrial economy, the President explained.

“This is something which can mean almost anything,” he said. “It could mean the processing of agricultural products into processed or semi- processed products or it could mean a take-off into industrialization.

CEBU CITY—The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos signed yesterday a loan of P18.3 million for the electrification by mini-hydro of 208 barangays in Southern Cebu.

Mrs. Marcos said the loan was for the Cebu Electric Cooperative I to build, within a year, six mini-hydros in the towns of Barili, Badian and Dumanjug, with a total output of 1,300 kilowatts.

Eighteen towns with 208 barangays will get their electricity at lower rates upon completion of the project.

China, which has made extensive use of mini-hydros to generate electricity, will supply the equipment.

June 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the scrapping of fuel adjustment cost of electric power consumption in the Bicol region which was imposed recently by the National Power Corp. and the Ministry of Energy.

The President acted on complaints of Bicol housewives, who informed the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, during her recent visit to the region, about the rising electric bills due to the imposition of fuel adjustment charges.

In his order, the President noted that the Bicol region, through its Tiwi geothermal plant, produces 220 megawatts compared to its total electric consumption of only 30 to 40 megawatts.

Because of this, the President said, Bicolanos should pay lower electric bills than other consumers in Luzon.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has prohibited tax examiners from inquiring into' the sources of money by investors to buy shares in companies listed at the stock exchanges.

The President's move, contained in Letter of Instructions No. 1133, is an assurance to investors that, information on their investible funds would be kept confidential.

To give the directive teeth, it provides for the immediate dismissal of Bureau of Internal Revenue examiners who will violate the presidential directive.

The directive limited the investigators' powers of the BIR to stock transaction returns needed to verify the price at which stocks are bought and sold and allowable deductible expenses.

Looking into these returns helps the BIR determine the capital gains tax that the investor should pay out of profits from stock market deals.

"In no case shall the bureau inquire into the sourcing of funds used in the acquisition of stocks listed in the stock exchanges," the President's order said.

June 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS described the Development Academy of the Philippines as a "futuristic institution" with a will to attain the good life for the people "efficaciously, equitably and even elegantly."

The chief executive led national leaders in praising the DAP on its eight anniversary which falls on Sunday, June 7, but whose celebration starts today with ceremonies at the DAP in Tagaytay City.

DAP President Onofre D. Corpuz, who is also education minister, outlined a program to meet development demands of the 80s. It consisted mainly of new approaches in enhancing food production, energy conservation and utilization, exports development and livelihood generation.

Corpuz said the DAP mission "necessarily springs from the condition of the people, for we cannot afford the luxury of separation and alienation from our national situation."

THE COMMISSION on elections has deputized all city and provincial fiscals and their assistants in the prosecution of cases involving violations of the Election Code.

The deputation was contained in Resolution No. 1525 issued by the Comelec en banc.

The Comelec said the deputation of fiscals would augment the joint Comelec-Ministry of Justice task force handling the prosecution of election cases.

June 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS warned that the full force of the law will be applied to those who will boycott the June 16 presidential elections.

In an interview with newsmen, the President said that he does not have plans of “playing lenient nor of playing magnanimous once the elections are over” for those who will violate the provisions of the Constitution.

The President also described his two political opponents in the coming elections as “mere pawns of other forces” out to demolish the gains and achievements of the government.

In separate interview, the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, said the country's development will be much faster if the people will give the President a fresh mandate in the coming polls.

Mrs. Marcos, in a talk with newsmen before the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan caucus at Malacañang last night, said that once the political will of the people is expressed, the President will be prodded to do more for the welfare of the people, particularly the poor.

She said that the President is submitting himself to the judgment of the people to find out whether the President still has the support of the people in pursuing development of the country.

ON CAMPAIGN expenses, President Marcos told leaders of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan, that they should not spend more than 50 centavos per voter as provided by law.

The President gave the reminder during a three-hour caucus at Malacañang attended by key party leaders, including Cabinet members, assemblymen and some 120 governors and city mayors.

He also asked the KBL leaders to work for a clean, orderly and honest election not because foreigners are forcing them to do it, but because it is the right thing to do to strengthen democracy in the country.

Various governors and mayors briefed the President on the political situation in their areas and are optimistic of an overwhelming victory for the President.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos announced that small hydroelectric plants would soon supply remote barangays with cheap power.

Mrs. Marcos, chairman of the national electrification administration said that such a plant is now lighting 13 homes and a school-house in barangay Talampas, Bustos, Bulacan.

The Bulacan plant was developed by the Mitsubishi Electric Corp. and can generate 3.2 kilowatts from river current with a speed of 2.2 meters per second. The Bulacan tests were said to be the first to be conducted throughout the world.

One hundred of the small plants, worth $2 million, were donated by the Japanese government for the Philippine national electrification program.

THE COMMISSION on elections assured it was prepared to meet any threat to the safety of voters and the citizens election committees on June 16.

Comelec Chairman Vicente M. Santiago, Jr., said the poll body's assurance was made to allay fears of possible violence on election day, following discovery of a plot to disrupt the balloting.

Santiago said the Comelec had deputized the Armed Forces, the Philippine Constabulary, and the integrated national police to ensure an orderly election.

The barangay brigades had also been deputized to help maintain peace and order in the electoral zones and protect voters from any form of harassment, coercion, intimidation, or undue influence from any source, Santiago said.

June 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday cited a papal encyclical and a pastoral letter of the Catholic hierarchy of the Philippines which he said, consider an election boycott a mortal sin.

The President made the observation in a speech after receiving a unanimous declaration of the Assembly of Lawyers' Association of the Philippines condemning the boycott proposal and informing the Filipino citizens of their duty to vote.

The President said the obligation to vote is both a legal and moral obligation.

On moral grounds, the President quoted from an encyclical of Pope Pius XII and a joint pastoral letter on elections issued by the Catholic hierarchy on Sept. 12, 1953, which said that a poll boycott amounts to committing mortal sin.

Both the Pope's statement and the pastoral letter are contained in a textbook, "Government and Politics of the Republic of the Philippines," which is used in most local Catholic schools. The book is authored by Gregorio F. Zaide and Sonia M. Zaide.

On page 146 of the book, the President noted, there is a section on the topic "Duties of the Citizens," which says:

"4. To Vote Honestly and Intelligently, Filipino citizens are duty-bound to participate in elections. They must go to the polls on Election Day and cast their ballots for 'a vote is man's weapon to protect his freedom.' Any citizen who voluntarily and willfully refuses to vote commits not only an offense against democracy, but also a mortal sin. As Pope Pius XII said: 'It is strictly obligatory for whoever has the right to vote, man or woman, to take part in the elections. He who abstains, particularly through indolence or from cowardice, commits thereby a grave sin, a mortal offense!'"

PRESIDENT MARCOS told those taking part yesterday in the 1981 Q'ran reading contest that the nation faces many enemies and "it is necessary that our country be unified."

"To stay united," he said, the government has made it a policy to make Mindanao as progressive as other regions of the country."

He would have the people of the Southern Philippines, "the Muslim brothers, join the mainstream of political and cultural life of the entire people."

In his unification program, he said, education should play an important role.

Under my administration, there is no second-class citizen, and Muslims and Christians are treated alike as Filipinos united under one flag," he said.

THE FIRST LADY and Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos launched Project Kabalikatan sa Lansangan, promoting the use of gasifiers to replace gasoline engines.

The project, jointly, implemented by the Metro Manila commission and the University of Life, will have 27, 000 jeepney drivers and operators take part in a seminar-workshop to train them in the use of gasifiers.

Speaking at the University of Life campus, the First Lady told some 10,000 jeepney men that the gasifier was invented with the welfare of the drivers foremost in the mind of the President.

The device, introduced early this year, used to run on charcoal, but has now been adapted to run on wood chips, the First Lady said.

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, has recommended to the Commission on Elections the granting of amnesty to those who failed to vote in the April 7 plebiscite, but will vote on June 16.

Mrs. Marcos announced her recommendation during a rally at the Folk Arts Theater organized by the United Metro Manila Market Stallholders Association and the Chamber of Filipino Retailers to pledge their support to the President in the coming elections.

The First Lady said she made the amnesty recommendation to the Comelec in her capacity as Metro Manila governor because of many representations from their constituents,

June 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that the country will succeed in the struggle for national freedom despite efforts by what he called the “colonial elite” to gain power.

In his speech during the Independence Day celebration at the Luneta, the President said that after 35 years of independence, these remnants of the old society, under the guise of opposition, still do not grasp the significance of national freedom.

The President lamented the “most pathetic characteristic of this ‘remnant colonial mentality is its mendicancy towards foreigners, especially towards the United States.

“A people can only be free if they are masters in their own land and architects, of their destiny,” the President said.

June 15—

REJECTING the opposition's bitterness, hatred and extremism, President Marcos asked the people to give him a fresh mandate. He also warned that the achievements of the New Society would be negated unless the citizenry affirmed its support for them by participating in the elections.

In a dialogue with the nation, the President said a massive turnout of voters tomorrow will serve the interests and future of the nation.

"It is the clear and constitutional duty of every qualified voter to cast his ballot," he stressed.

The President also spelled out the platform of the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan and asked the people to compare it with those of the other parties.

The KBL's four-point platform:

- Greater participation of the people in government.
- A stronger government machinery.
- Unequivocal and unswerving commitment to the national development.
- Continued efforts to promote the country's standing in the community of nations.

BATAC Ilocos Norte, June 16—President Marcos said here today that he will 'consult the opposition, including those abroad, to help bring about national unity following the election he is expected to win.

The President disclosed this move after casting his vote at Voting Center No. 1 at the Mariano Marcos Memorial Elementary School in barangay Lacup.

“We should ask all our friends, including those abroad to now come and submit their recommendations as to how we should bring about not only a reunification but also a reconciliation,” the President said.

The President said there are only two alternatives open to him— either he does it with a soft hand or does it with a tough hand.

“I intend to do it softly,” the President said. Although he did not mention names. It was understood that the “friends” he referred to are the opposition both here and abroad.

BATAC, Ilocos Norte, June 16—President Marcos said that Minister of Finance Cesar A. Virata, “right now is on top of the heap” in the race for the position of prime minister.

He said members of the cabinet standing committee would become members of the new executive committee which, under the constitutional amendments, is to be headed by the prime minister.

Since Virata is chairman of the cabinet standing committee now, he would be the acting chairman of the new executive committee, and hence, the acting prime minister.

President Marcos said Virata “has to watch his performance, because many of the cabinet members are after the same job.”

Among those in the cabinet standing committee are Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, Labor Minister Blas Ople, Local Governments Minister Jose. Roño, Industry Minister Roberto Ongpin, Economic Minister Gerardo Sicat, and Central Bank Governor Jaime Laya.

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared yesterday that the forthcoming United Nations conference on Kampuchea would effect the future of the region of Southeast Asia and the peace of the world.

Keynoting the opening session of the fourth-day 14th annual meeting of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) foreign ministers at the Philippine International Convention Center, the President called for greater cooperation among ASEAN countries in the face of world economic crises and recent international events.

"I consider it an urgent need that we adopt new and innovative approaches to economic cooperation," the President said.

"Greater economic cooperation is an attractive option among ASEAN members because of recent developments characterized by world economic crises, rising protectionism among many major ASEAN markets, and the statements in the North-South dialogue," he added.

June 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, citing the new American administration's pragmatic and forthright approach to foreign affairs, said he was gratified over the statement of visiting Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Jr. that "the first offense against human rights is terrorism."

In a toast during luncheon given by himself and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, in Malacañang for Secretary and Mrs. Haig, the President said that US decision makers in the past, depending on their media for the facts, would consider any opposition in a regime fighting for survival as legitimate opposition even if it uses "violence, intimidation, and terrorism and spouts the Marxist or leftist line."

Thus, Haig's statement that "the first offense against human rights is terrorism" has strengthened the will and morale of "all freedom-loving men and leaders throughout the world," Mr. Marcos said.

The President said that after Vietnam, Afghanistan, Yemen, Somalia and other areas of US debacles, plus repeated statements of influential US figures that the US would never again fight on Asian soil, Asian leaders took it to mean that Asia was to be abandoned.

He added that this was not helped by the fact that America could not seem to distinguish between political or democratic dialogue and terrorism.

He said that the Reagan administration, with its pragmatic approach to foreign affairs, has changed all this.

June 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the United States government has agreed to consider the terms of an extradition agreement with the Philippines.

The President told newsmen this information was given him by US Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Jr. Details of the agreement between the President and Haig were not disclosed but it was understood that the classification of the crimes to be covered by the agreement will be a main consideration.

An extradition treaty will allow both countries to effect the returns of fugitives seeking refuge in the other country.

The Philippines has extradition treaties with Indonesia and. Thailand.

The President also said that Haig furnished him a letter informing him that the State Department is following up with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Department of Justice the prosecution of American-based terrorists operating in the Philippines.

The President, through the Ministry of Justice, sent documents to the US government tending to show that American-based terrorists were responsible for the series of bombing in Metro Manila last year.

The President said he expressed his thanks to Haig “for the interest that they (American authorities) have shown.”

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 22—

WITH A FRESH mandate and a six-year term ahead of him, President Marcos vowed to lead the nation toward the establishment "not only of a New Society, but of a New Republic."

The idea of a New Republic will dominate the government programs in the next six years, sources said, after President Marcos was proclaimed yesterday by the Batasang Pambansa as the winner in the June 16 elections.

In his brief remarks after his proclamation, President Marcos talked of the partnership among the Batasan, the Presidency, the Prime Ministership and the Cabinet which, he said, "will now organize a renewed structure of government."

He cited two general goals of the government and the people working together:

1. The true national liberation of the people, which presumably will attempt to erase all vestiges of colonialism.
2. The establishment of a New Republic, to be built on the gains of the New Society which was ushered in with the proclamation of martial law in September 1972.

PRESIDENT MARCOS disclosed yesterday that several attempts to assassinate him were made during the last presidential campaign.

In an interview with newsmen after his proclamation by the Batasang Pambansa, the President said "so many miracles have been wrought in these elections which perhaps more than anybody else I appreciate."

For instance, the President said, very few people know that he was supposed to have been ambushed in Baguio City during a public rally at the Baguio Convention Center last May 24.

"For some reason or other it didn't turn out very well" for the supposed assassins, the President said.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, who at one time said that he would welcome qualified opposition men to become members of the executive committee—the new constitutional body in charge of day-to-day operations of government—probably will start” looking for candidates closer to home.

Although the executive committee can have a maximum of 14 members—not including the prime minister who heads it—the President has repeatedly said it would start with seven members.

Considering that five members would come from the Cabinet Standing committee, only two slots would be open.

Informed sources said that two leading candidates for these slots could be Assemblymen Emmanuel Pelaez and Arturo Tolentino.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the clearing of clogged esteros and drainage mains and laterals. He also wanted the road excavation problem in Metro Manila solved before the opening of classes on July 6.

Ordered to act on the flood and road problems were the Ministries of Public Works and of Public Highways and the metropolitan waterworks and sewerage, system (MWSS).

The President directed MPW Minister Alfredo L. Juinio and his deputy, Abes P. Canlas to hasten the clearing of waterways to prevent inundation of streets in the event of more rains.

The President, it was said, attributed recent “flash floods” to clogged drainage and laterals.

June 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered yesterday the suspension of Pasig Mayor Emiliano Caruncho Jr. for one month during which an investigation on the charges against him will be conducted.

The President issued the order upon the recommendation of the First Lady and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda R. Marcos.

Caruncho has been accused of manhandling radio news reporter Salvador Reyes, 46, on election day (June 16) inside a voting center in Pasig.

THE PRIVATE sector will play a bigger role in the self-reliance defense programs of the armed forces to enable the government to shift resources to other priorities.

President Marcos announced the shift of producing military equipment to the private sector in a speech during the 83rd anniversary celebration of the Philippine Navy at Fort Bonifacio.

Noting that the government has been spending to keep the momentum of the self-reliance defense program, the President said the AFP should now look towards the private sector to pursue such projects.

“It must be a Partnership where the initiative for the impetus of growth is equally: shared by both the government and the private sector.” he said.

June 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS is scheduled to convene the Cabinet at 11:30 a.m. today to discuss plans for the New Republic which will be ushered in on June 30 with the inauguration of the President. The agenda was not announced.

The President will discuss his immediate plans under the new government structure.

The members of the Cabinet are expected to tender their courtesy resignations to give the President a free hand in forming his new Cabinet under the modified parliamentary system of government.

Labor Minister Blas F. Ople wired in his resignation two days ago from Geneva where he is attending a conference of the International Labor Organization.

The President is also expected to get a consensus of the Cabinet members on possible appointments to the Executive Committee to expand the present five-man Cabinet Standing Committee.

As indicated by the President, the present five members of the Cabinet Standing Committee will automatically be appointed to the Executive Committee. The President is expected to add more members to make it a 14-man body.

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, last night called on writers from the member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations to feel, not just know, what they are writing about.

She also expressed disappointment that most books written on the 14-year-old regional alliance were written by Westerners who “rarely show sensitivity.”

In remarks at a reception honoring delegates to a four-day ASEAN writers conference here, Mrs. Marcos asked ASEAN writers to not only know but also feel what they are writing about “to make their creation complete and total.”

She also endorsed the establishment of a writers’ village in Metro Manila and in Baguio City.

June 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, presented yesterday with the courtesy resignation letters of all his Cabinet ministers in the Cabinet meeting, decided to keep them all as caretakers of their respective ministries until his inauguration on June 30.

In a talk with Malacañang newsmen after the meeting the President said that he would take his oath of office before noon next Tuesday, June 30, then appoint the new Cabinet.

Informed sources indicated that reappointments might turn out to be the rule.

It was pointed out that the Constitution provides that the majority of the Cabinet members must be elected members of the legislature.

But of the 22 Cabinet ministers with portfolios, half are elected and the other half appointed as Batasang Pambansa members.

The President was thinking of reducing the ministries to 21 in order to increase the preponderance of elected Batasan members in the Cabinet.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 29—

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, did a diplomatic balancing act of sorts yesterday as she welcomed ranking officials of China and the Soviet Union, the estranged leaders of the Communist world.

The officials came, within one hour of each other for the inauguration tomorrow of President Marcos.

Yang Shangkun, vice chairman of the standing committee of the National People's Congress of China, arrived on a regular flight from Peking on Philippine Airlines at 3:10 p.m.

Ivan Kalin, president of the Moldavian Republic and vice president of the presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet, arrived on board a Malaysian Airlines System at 4:10 p.m.

June 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS is expected today to stress national unity and non-partisanship in his address during his inauguration as the first President of the Fourth Republic at the Quirino grandstand at the Luneta.

Some two million people, including 26 foreign dignitaries, are expected to attend the ceremonies starting at 7 a.m., that will usher in a new government structure under a modified parliamentary system.

The President will proclaim the birth of a New Republic which he calls a turning point in the country's history.

July 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday set the tone for the New Republic by calling on the people to unite to achieve national liberation.

The President issued the call in his 30-minute inaugural address shortly after sunrise yesterday before some two million people at the Quirino grandstand.

In proclaiming the birth of the New Republic which, he said, is a turning point as the country ventures into the future, the President stressed:

"It shall be our task as a people to break with the force of our will and our energies, the tradition of discord and suspicion that characterized our efforts in the past to build one nation."

He spoke on an extended red-carpeted platform of the grandstand with a 20-by-40-feet Philippine flag in the background.

PRESIDENT MARCOS agreed in his meeting yesterday with Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew to push hard for a vigorous trade cooperation scheme within the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

The two men met privately for 30 minutes after a three-way meeting among them and Thai Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda.

Mr. Bee said that a trade cooperation scheme would bring the Asean countries closer to one another, that investments would come in and exports would increase.

Mr. Marcos and Mr. Lee also discussed the Kampuchean problem, the European Economic Community, and the Mexico conference next October to break the logjam in the North-South dialogue.

July 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the New Republic will seek to further strengthen Philippine relations with other countries during his six-year term.

The President made this pledge to several foreign dignitaries who called to bid goodbye after attending his inauguration as the first President under the modified parliamentary system of government the other day.

“I shall endeavor to devote my time as President of the New Republic to strengthening the ties between the Philippines and your country,” the President told each of the visiting dignitaries.

July 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered yesterday the suspension of all military action in Regions 9 and 12 for 30 days starting today to allow Muslim Filipinos to observe the 30-day Feast of Ramadan, as quietly and freely as possible.

The President emphasized in his order that even members of families of known rebels should not be hindered by the military in the observance of the Ramadan.

Mrs. Marcos drove to barangay Magsaysay at 10:30 a.m. to inaugurate the two-story concrete building called the People’s Technology Center.

News of her visit spread like wildfire among the residents who quickly gathered at the center to greet her.

Mrs. Marcos expressed her thanks that the inauguration of the center and the graduation of the first batch of 60 trainees on garment-making coincided with her birthday.

July 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, holding fast to his campaign promise not to appoint the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, to the post of Prime Minister, turned down yesterday a popular draft for her, accepting instead the nomination of Minister of Finance Cesar Virata for the position.

At the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan caucus in Malacañang, Negros Oriental Gov. Lorenzo Teves made an impassioned nominating speech for the First Lady, pleading with the President not to “shut the door” on the nomination just because she was the First Lady.

“The First Lady and I acknowledge your noble intention,” Mr. Marcos said. “But remember, the people’s mandate was based on credibility, honesty and faithfulness.”

He recalled that “twice I said I would not appoint the First Lady, so how will you now make me an honest man? I believe we may lose our credibility.”

The First Lady thanked the KBL leaders for their show of “confidence, esteem and affection” for her, then proposed that Virata be made Prime Minister.

PRESIDENT MARCOS created the special presidential reorganization committee to trim the fat off bureaucracy, channeling the savings to livelihood centers to be called Kilusang Bayanihan.

On duplication, he cited the case of one family which was asked the same question 21 times in one year by various government agencies.

Savings to be realized from this move would come to between P500 million and P1 billion, he said.

This money would finance economic enterprises in every barangay in the country, converting each into a productive economic unit.

The President said local executives would take part in the active implementation of the development programs, particularly in the reorganization plan and in the Kilusang Bayanihan.

July 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS enjoined yesterday Kilusang Bagong Lipunan leaders to adhere to the parliamentary practice of “working together” as a party government and supporting party-sponsored bills.

The President issued the call as the Batasang Pambansa prepares for its fourth regular session starting on July 27.

“The party (KBL) must now operate as a party and survive as a party,” the President said.

While there will be freedom of debate in caucuses—either in chamber or outside, the Batasan—party decisions arrived at during such caucuses should be fully supported on the floor, the President said.

The President cited the need for a united party position on such vital pending legislation as the bills on strikes, education and the local government.

Information officer-in-charge Gregorio S. Cendaña, meanwhile told newsmen that the Cabinet standing committee, which will soon become the Executive Committee under the chairmanship of the Prime Minister, is preparing an economic development program for the next five years.

The program will be presented to the Batasan by the President when it opens its session on July 27.

The President is also expected to present the reorganizational plan of the government and the national budget for the next calendar year.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the presidential reorganization committee would submit to him a study on whether to keep the regional offices in the 13 regions of the country or to abolish them.

He said there were criticisms against the regional set-up. Governors and mayors complained that they have no say in the planning of projects, expenditures of funds and even appointment of personnel within their jurisdiction.

The committee will take up the question of the regional offices and their relations with the various ministries and local governments.

At the same time, the President told the cabinet standing committee to prepare an economic development program for submission to the Batasang Pambansa at its opening session July 27.

President's Week in Review: July 6-12, 1981

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS listed down legislative priorities for the Batasang Pambansa to tackle in its Fourth Regular Session starting July 27.

Measures the President wants to be given top attention by the Batasan are bills on strike, local government code, education code, judiciary and government reorganization.

With the exception of the government reorganization, all the other measures are already pending actions by the legislative body.

The President asked the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan assemblymen to adhere to the parliamentary practice of working together and support all party measures when they are brought to the floor for deliberation.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday asked all ministries and other government offices to coordinate their news releases with the Ministry of Public Information under Officer-in-Charge Gdegorio S. Cendaña.

The directive is aimed at implementing smoother, well-knit information dissemination under the New Republic and in pursuit of the intensified development goals of the administration under the party government system of parliament.

The President stressed he would not tolerate image-building by individual government officials at the expense of the overall development thrusts of the government.

Cendaña said he would call a meeting of all government information officers at 1 p.m. tomorrow at the MBS Channel 4 offices in Quezon City to draw up the guidelines on information coordination focused on national development efforts.

July 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and South Korean President Chun Doo Hwan agreed yesterday to broaden cooperation between their two countries and to pursue the "search for freedom, peace and prosperity in East Asia."

The need for more effective cooperation among Asian nations was stressed by the two leaders in their speeches during the state dinner in Malacañang.

Chun, the first South Korean head of government to visit the ASEAN member states, arrived yesterday for a four-day state visit. Manila is the last stop in his ASEAN tour.

July 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the New Republic will pursue a system of party government, as mandated by the electorate.

“The mandate that we received is based principally on credibility, honesty, forthrightness, straight-forwardness,” he said, pledging these would be the touchstones of the programs and policies of his government.

“We are converting our country into a politics of development—a politics of honesty and integrity,” he added.

THE PHILIPPINES and South Korea yesterday concluded a scientific and technological cooperation agreement. The Presidents of both countries also pledged to strengthen their nations’ ties of friendship.

The agreement was signed on the second day of the state visit of South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan, who held private talks with President Marcos for one hour and a half yesterday while the agreement was being hammered out by their Cabinet ministers.

The agreement was signed for the Philippines by acting Foreign Minister Manuel Collantes and for Korea by Foreign Minister Lho Shin Yong.

It calls, for an exchange of professionals, experts and research workers, fellowship grants and scientific and technological information.

July 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and South Korean President Chun Doo Hwan agreed to further expand and diversify trade and economic cooperation between their countries.

This agreement is contained in a joint communique issued by Malacañang on the third day of Chun’s visit.

The two Presidents also agreed to cooperate in various areas under “a new framework of cooperation.”

Recognizing that there exist complementary economic relations between the Philippines and South Korea, the President and his Korean guest expressed hope for an early conclusion of an agreement in economic and technical cooperation.

PRESIDENT MARCOS will meet today members of the Cabinet Standing Committee and the Special Presidential Reorganization Committee to lay the basis for the projected top-to-bottom reorganization of the government.

The top-level meeting is scheduled at 11:30 a.m. at Malacañang immediately after the departure of visiting Korean President Chun Doo Hwan.

Invited to the meeting were members of the Cabinet Standing Committee, led by Finance Minister Cesar Virata. The others are Industry Minister Roberto Ongpin, Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, Local Government Minister Jose Roño, and Budget Minister Manuel Alba.

The reorganization committee is chaired by Ongpin with Chairman Armand Fabella of the Government Reorganization Commission as executive director. The members are Solicitor General and Pampanga Gov. Estelito Mendoza, representing local officials; Presidential Adviser Jacobo C. Clave, Commissioner on Audit Francisco Tantuico, two representatives from the Batasang Pambansa and one from the private sector who still has to be designated.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared his support for the proposal of Korean President Chun Doo Hwan to admit South and North Korea into the United Nations “as an ad interim measure pending the peaceful reunification” of the two Koreas.

In a joint communique, the two leaders agreed that this “would contribute to easing tensions and consolidating peace on the Korean peninsula, and help create an international atmosphere conducive to national reconciliation and peaceful reunification”

The day before, President Chun told reporters that although his offers to sit down with North Korean President Kim Il Sung were rebuffed, he would not stop knocking at the doors of North Korea.

July 10—

SOME of the government ministries will be merged to reduce the number of Cabinet positions with portfolio from 26 to 16 or 18.

The Cabinet members without portfolio will be limited to only four or five.

The reduction of the number of ministers with portfolio was mentioned yesterday by President Marcos in an interview after his meeting in Malacañang with the Cabinet Standing Committee and the special reorganization committee.

The President said his new Cabinet and the members of the Executive, Committee will be announced in his address during the opening July 27 of the fourth regular session of the Batasang Pambansa.

The nomination of Finance Minister Cesar E. A. Virata as Prime Minister will also be made by the President on the same day after forming his Cabinet.

The President took over the chairmanship of the Special Reorganization Committee, which laid down the basic guidelines of what he called a “no nonsense” top-to-bottom reorganization of the entire government machinery.

The Guidelines include:

Cross-assignments of the ministers to train them to handle any of the ministries at any given time.

Effecting closer coordination between the Office of the President and that of the Prime Minister.

Priorities will be set in accordance with the reorientation of the national budget. Deficits will be cut down and there will be a review of proposals to improve collection of taxes.

Reassessment of the jurisdictions of local governments and national offices.

Giving priority to the energy program, food and livelihood under the Kilusang Bayanihan.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the Philippines gained more than the Koreans in the four-day state visit of South Korean President Chun Doq Hwan.

This assessment of Chun's visit was made by the President in an interview with newsmen in Malacañang after the departure of the South Korean President.

"We gained more advantage from it than the Koreans provided we really work hard," the President said.

The President was apparently referring to the agreement on scientific and technological cooperation signed during the visit which will allow exchanges of technicians by both countries.

July 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered securities and exchange commission Chairman Angel Limjoco yesterday to go into a full investigation of reports that an SEC official was involved in irregularities of the Philippine Underwriters Finance Corp. (Philfinance).

He told the SEC chairman to give a report as soon as possible so that he could take appropriate action.

At the same time, Mr. Marcos ordered Central Bank Gov. Jaime Lava to find out why Philfinance was allowed to engage in quasi-banking activities—and who had authorized these activities.

Lava was instructed to give an immediate report on this.

The President would also have the SEC explain why Philfinance was allowed to engage in quasi-banking activities without it taking any action to stop it.

Limjoco and the other SEC commissioners were also asked to explain why Philfinance was allowed to sell spurious commercial papers.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the national livelihood centers under the Kilusang Bayanihan would be implemented on a massive scale and would receive the same priority as energy development.

All government resources would be harnessed to ensure maximum motivation and participation in this project to make each barangay a productive economic unit, he told newsmen.

These units will produce products not only for domestic use but also for export. The ministries of human settlements and trade have already made feasibility studies here.

“The success of all these depend on motivation and this will be done by the local governments,” he said. “The project must be visible so that they will attract widespread participation.”

July 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has called to a meeting at Malacañang tomorrow the contending parties in the Cagayan de Oro electoral contest to ease tension while the case is pending in court.

Invited to the conference were Gov. Homobono A. Adaza of Misamis Oriental, chairman of the Mindanao Alliance; Aquilino Pimentel Jr., who was disqualified as mayor by the Commission on Elections; Francisco Velez, the KBL mayoral candidate; Assemblymen Emmanuel Pelaez and Concordio Diel, and acting Mayor Pablo Magtajas.

Pimentel, who was visiting in the United States when the Comelec issued a ruling disqualifying him from office, is reportedly cutting short his trip and is scheduled to return today.

The President called the conference under his supervisory powers over local governments as provided for in the Constitution.

Malacañang said the meeting is intended to prevent any violence arising from the conflict and to thresh out questions involving the administration of the city while the case is in court.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered yesterday that procedures on bidding, procurement of supplies and awarding of contracts be simplified.

Malacañang said the objectives are to reduce paperwork, simplify operations and speed up projects which get bogged down in red tape.

It is also common knowledge that red tape and complicated procedures have contributed to graft.

July 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered yesterday the Ministry of Human Settlements to check reports that some subdivisions have been opened in agricultural areas, chiefly rice lands, within or near Metro Manila.

The law prohibits the conversion of agricultural lands into subdivisions, or their use for industrial or commercial purposes unless allowed by the Ministry of Human Settlements.

This idea is to effect rational use of land and prevent the rapid depletion of agricultural sites which constitute a major resource of the economy.

The President cited Letter of Instructions No. 713, dated June 22, 1977, which prohibits such conversion, and Presidential Decree No. 814, dated Oct. 21, 1975, which prescribes penalties for landowners or landholders who convert their tenanted land primarily devoted to rice and corn into any non-agricultural use.

LOI 729 requires that land use plans be approved by the MHS, which shall issue development permits related to subdivision and zoning based on the approved land use plans.

The law and MHS regulations also require that location clearances be issued by the MHS regulatory commission before any subdivision can be developed in Metro Manila, which was proclaimed as an urban land reform zone on Sept. 11, 1979.

July 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said one of the objectives of the ongoing government reorganization is to streamline the bureaucratic support to facilitate and encourage export-oriented entrepreneurs.

Keynoting the opening of the three-day International Conference-Workshop on Export Development Strategies for the 80's at the Philippine International Convention Center, the President said the revamp will not spare sacred cows, and will not tolerate ineptness, inefficiency and corruption.

But the President stressed that although the government has laid the groundwork for economic development, the private sector must carry the brunt of implementation.

Speaking for developing countries, the President expressed interest in three basic factors for their export development programs:

— —Learning the techniques and strategies of developed nations which, in a short period of time, have successfully opened up new world markets for their products.

— —Learning how these countries have been able to mobilize and organize their human resources for an aggressive export thrust.

— —Knowing how a judicious balance can be achieved between meeting the requirements of home markets and satisfying overseas demands.

THE FIRST LADY and Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos called for a massive tree-planting program to improve the oxygen content of the air.

Added benefits here would be the beautification of the metropolis and the earning of added income by the people, she said.

Her plan calls for the planting of 64 million trees in Metro Manila, creating forests out of idle government land and surrounding the metropolis with an “oxygen belt” of forest farms.

Metro Manila could then be a model for the rest of the country to follow.

THE BATASANG Pambansa and the cabinet will coordinate closely in the framing of policies and implementation of government programs in the coming sessions.

Assemblymen Frisco F. San Juan (KBL, Southern Tagalog), chairman of the subcommittee on revision of Batasan rules, said this is now possible with the holding of the question hour every Thursday.

He said members of the steering committee, the Batasan’s ruling body, have endorsed favorably his proposal to amend the rules so that the question hour can be held each week.

The Constitution provides that the Prime Minister, the deputy Prime Minister or any minister may be required to appear and answer questions and interpellations by members of the Batasang Pambansa at least once a month or as often as the rules of the Batasan provide.

CABANATUAN CITY, July 15—Justice Minister Ricardo C. Puno has ordered a performance audit of all provincial and city fiscals and their assistants in a move to strengthen the country’s national prosecution service.

This was learned here today from Provincial Fiscal Benjamin Cabie who said the performance audit for the national prosecution service will make the government prosecution arm “more effective and efficient.”

There are about 3,000 provincial and city fiscals and their assistants and lawyers of the Ministry of Justice and its offices in the country.

Puno said the performance audit will be carried out by a board which was created in view of the pronouncement of President Marcos to re-organize the government in all levels and echelons to achieve “maximum efficiency in public service.”

July 17—

OPPOSITION Mayor Aquilino Pimentel, earlier disqualified by the Commission on Elections for “turncoatism,” will continue as mayor of Cagayan de Oro until a final decision is reached by the Supreme Court.

This decision was arrived at by the contending parties in a meeting at Malacañang presided over by President Marcos.

Francisco Velez, the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan candidate in the last local elections who was ordered proclaimed by the Comelec after Pimentel was disqualified by the poll body, volunteered to withdraw from the mayorship pending final court action on the electoral case.

Velez informed the President that he took his oath as mayor on a conditional basis while the case is being heard before the court.

The contending parties agreed before the President to dismantle all offensive propaganda displayed in the city, refrain from any demonstrations and desist from issuing any inflammatory statements.

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed customs authorities to open for inspection all incoming container vans.

The order was issued by the President after receiving reports from customs authorities that smuggling has been increasing and that vans were being used to evade duties on goods coming from abroad.

In a directive to Customs Commissioner Ramon J. Farolan, the President said that all containers unloaded from vessels calling at Manila “must be opened and thoroughly inspected” without exception.

The President said stricter inspection of incoming cargo container vans will ensure that goods are correctly declared and the corresponding taxes and duties collected.

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, called yesterday on Metro Manila officials to start projects to give the unemployed opportunities to earn an income.

"I know I am already sounding like a broken record about this, but I have to keep on following you up on it to make you realize the urgency of the matter," the First Lady said in a meeting at Malacañang with Metro Manila officials.

She reminded them that the government has seen the importance of bringing livelihood opportunities to the remotest barangays in the countryside.

The President, she said, has formed a reorganization commission to trim government expenses and channel the savings to establishing livelihood centers in the countryside.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered last night government financial institutions and other offices concerned to extend financial support to small businesses all over the country.

The President issued the order after his dinner meeting with the government's economic managers in Malacañang during which the entire financial package available to small businessmen was reviewed.

The move to develop small enterprises is intended to boost economic activity, particularly small scale, medium-scale and export-oriented industries.

By helping small enterprises, the government hopes to generate more jobs, encourage the establishment of new industries, enlarge the nation's export capabilities and intensify production.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called yesterday on the people to join the government and other concerned sectors in eliminating causes of physical and mental disability.

In a speech highlighting the 3rd National Disability Prevention and Rehabilitation Week, the President identified underdevelopment as "the true root cause of disability," with malnutrition and the non-availability of safety devices as corollary causes.

The speech was read for him by Dr. Pacifico Marcos, chairman of the Philippine Medicare Commission, in ceremonies held at the Mabini Shrine at Nagtahan.

Among the highlights of the NDPR Week ceremonies was the formal presentation by Mrs. Julita C. Benedicto, chairman of the National Commission Concerning Disabled Persons, of the Philippine Plan for Disability Prevention and Rehabilitation.

The plan embodies a comprehensive socio-economic approach to the problem of disability in the Philippines.

July 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed yesterday the reorientation of some 40,000 government field men to prepare them for the launching of a nationwide livelihood movement under the Kilusang Bayanihan sa Kabuhayan.

The President reiterated his directive during a meeting in Malacañang with some members of the Cabinet during which he also called on the private sector to participate actively in the movement.

The President directed that all the 40,000 field men be given retraining and reorientation seminars. Those who do not make it should be bud off, he said.

CHAIRMAN Angel Limjoco and two associate commissioners of the Securities and Exchange Commission resigned yesterday.

The SEC chairman submitted his resignation to President Marcos "for reasons of ill health" during meeting in Malacañang.

The resignations of Associate Commissioners Julio Sulit and Sixto de Guzman were also submitted to the President by Limjoco.

Pending the completion of the review of the SEC law, the President withheld action on the resignations of the SEC officials.

July 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS deplored yesterday too much television watching and too much use of the calculator and other gadgets that, he said, have made children neglect their studies and forget the fundamentals of addition and subtraction.

The President said this implies a retrogression which has compelled the government to promote health, physical education and recreation not only in urban areas but all the way down to the smallest village.

The President made the remarks in his keynote address at the opening of the five-day 24th World Congress on Health, Physical Education, and Recreation at the Philippine Convention Center.

July 24—

THE RULING Kilusang Bagong Lipunan approved yesterday the reduction of the number of Cabinet line ministries to 18 and the establishment of six other "support ministries."

The reduction of the size of the Cabinet was done by merging six ministries and reclassifying some other ministries.

The caucus meeting for the second time since the inauguration of President Marcos last June 30, acted on the recommendation by the special committee on government reorganization,

Also approved in the three-hour caucus were:

The nomination of Local Government Minister Jose D. Roño as Deputy Prime Minister.

The appointment of the initial seven members of the Executive Committee, which will assist the President in running the government.

The confirmation of the nomination of Finance Minister Cesar E.A. Virata as Prime Minister.

The retention of other Batasan officials, except the committee chairmen, including Speaker Querube Makalintal and Secretary Antonio de Guzman.

The Batasan Steering Committee (formerly headed by the President) will now be headed by the Prime Minister.

The posts of prime minister and deputy prime minister as well as membership in the executive committee will be rotated to give potential leaders a rounded and extensive training.

July 25—

MALACAÑANG said the government will continue to help all industries, from small ventures to big enterprises, during difficult times.

This commitment will remain a major policy cornerstone, according to President Marcos in his meetings with his economic managers as they drew up the administration’s five-year development program.

Malacañang released a study detailing government assistance to local industries amounting to several billion pesos dating back to mid-1960s.

The list of enterprises assisted by the government included gold and copper mining companies, textile manufacturers, cement plants, and the entire sugar industry which met difficulties caused by depressed market prices and foreign exchange problems.

There were also countless smaller ventures which obtained their financing from various government financial outlets.

In banking the Central Bank has helped financial institutions over the years. One of them Allied Bank (formerly Genbank), is now one of the largest in the country.

The study showed that no major industrial project had ever gotten off the ground without a financial guarantee from either the Development Bank of the Philippines or the Philippine National Bank, government's main financial institution.

AT LEAST six incumbent Cabinet members will be removed from office because of mergers and rectification of ministries, retirements and replacements as President Marcos completes today the reorganization of the government with the announcement of the new members of his cabinet.

As approved by the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan last Thursday, the Cabinet has been streamlined with the reduction of line ministries to 18 and the establishment of seven "support ministries."

Sixteen Cabinet members with line ministries are expected to retain their positions.

The President will name a total of 25 members of the Cabinet, including the seven who will head the support ministries.

The 18 line ministries are agriculture, agrarian reform, education and culture (which absorbs the Ministry of Youth and Sports Development), energy, finance, health, foreign affairs, human settlements, industry, trade and investment, labor and employment, justice, local governments, natural resources, public works and highways, tourism, transportation and communications, and social services and development.

The support ministries are vital in lending assistance to the President and the Batasan and as such their heads will also hold the rank of ministers and will sit in Cabinet meetings.

As the President explained in last Thursday's caucus, the heads of these ministries are "Cabinet members per se and they will attend Cabinet meetings."

Batasan leaders agreed in caucus yesterday to study further proposed amendments to the Batasan rules, particularly those on impeachment.

THE KBL caucus, presided over by Prime Minister-designate Cesar Virata saw the need to define the manner of impeachment of the President and members of the Supreme Court and constitutional commissions.

Assemblyman Arturo M. Tolentino observed that impeachment was so important in legislative proceedings that it must be deliberated upon more judiciously.

Tolentino said the rules must specify who will initiate the impeachment proceedings, the number of Batasan members required to take cognizance and recommend such proceedings, and the procedure to be adopted.

Under the proposal submitted by the Batasan sub-committee on rules headed by Assemblyman Frisco F. San Juan (KBL CR-4), the President and members of the Supreme Court and such constitutional bodies as 'the Civil Service Commission, Commission on Elections and Commission on Audit may be impeached for violation of the Constitution, treason, bribery and other high crimes, and graft and corruption.

Acquittal or conviction requires two-thirds vote of all the Batasan members. The judgment shall be limited to removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of honor, trust or profit under the Republic.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos approved the construction of dormitories good for 2,000 students to ease the housing shortage at the University of the Philippines campus in Diliman, Quezon City.

Mrs. Marcos also set aside for the UP faculty and other personnel 352 apartment units in 11 four-story buildings of the BLISS project in Sikatuna Village, Quezon City.

The First Lady inspected the P27-million housing project which is expected to be finished in September. With her were UP president Edgardo Angara and Human Settlements Deputy Minister Jose Conrado Benitez.

The student dormitories will be built near the BLISS project on a 10-hectare land owned by the university. It will have individual rooms for 2,000 students to give them privacy.

July 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS announced yesterday the members of the Cabinet and other top officials of the New Republic in accordance with the government reorganizational plan.

The appointees, announced by the President in a press conference, included 18 Cabinet members with line ministries, eight heads of the support offices and agencies with Cabinet rank, seven presidential advisers and assistants, four deputy ministers and 45 ministers of state.

The President also named Placido Mapa, Jr., former chairman of the Development Bank of the Philippines and former alternate delegate to the World Bank, as the new director-general of the National Economic and Development Authority. Mapa will be appointed as member of the Batasan and minister of state for finance.

PRESIDENT MARCOS also announced the appointment of 45 ministers of state who will serve as liaison between the ministries they are appointed to and the Batasan.

According to the President, the ministers of state were named "to balance off the technocrats in the Cabinet."

They will be given specific missions and functions as the operations of the different ministries may require.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called last night on the Batasang Pambansa to support the government's agenda for development to give "long life and vitality" to the New Republic.

Addressing the opening session of the fourth regular session of the Batasan as the first President of the New Republic, Mr. Marcos presented his government program.

"In this period of beginning for our New Republic, the business of development must be the agenda of our nation now," the President said.

Stressing the need for "enterprise and daring" in the face of general pessimism in the world economy, the President said that the times call for decisive action.

"We shall maintain and sustain this close collaboration and unity of mind and action between us until our goals have been fulfilled and until the burdens shall have been lifted from us by the sovereign will of our people," he said.

July 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, as head of state and chief executive, will concern himself mainly with major policy and decision-making processes, while Prime Minister Cesar Virata, as head of the cabinet and the executive committee, will take charge of the day-to-day supervision and details of administration of the government.

This was the underlying principle in Executive Order No. 708 defining the powers and duties of the President and prime minister signed by Mr. Marcos last Monday and released by Malacañang yesterday.

The President retained control over the ministries while the prime minister supervises them.

August 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS appointed yesterday Maj. Gen. Fabian Ver as chief of staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, replacing Gen. Romeo Espino, who asked to be retired.

Minister of Information Gregorio S. Cendaña said the President also promoted General Ver to the four-star rank, making him the first to hold this rank.

Minister Cendaña said General Ver will continue to head in a concurrent capacity the Presidential Security Command and the National Intelligence and Security Authority until his formal take-over as chief of staff.

The President also announced the appointment of Maj. Gen. Fidel Ramos as vice chief of staff and promoted him to three-star general.

Ramos will be concurrently chief of the Philippine Constabulary and director general of the integrated national police.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the regulation of the manufacture, sale and possession of air rifles and pistols.

In Executive Order No. 712 which the President issued last July 28, the Chief Executive ordered:

1. The chief of Constabulary to prescribe the criteria for determining whether an air rifle or air pistol be considered a firearm or toy under Section 877 of the Revised Administrative Code.
2. The licensing requirements for the manufacture, sale or possession of, and/or dealership in firearms as prescribed in the RAC, shall apply to air rifles or pistols which are considered firearms.
3. The PC chief to prescribe, subject to the approval of the minister of defense, regulations to implement Order No. 712.
4. The PC chief to act dispositively on all applications to manufacture, sell and/or possess and/or otherwise deal in air rifles and pistols, whether considered as firearms or toys.

The President issued Order 712 in the wake of the proliferation and indiscriminate use of air rifles and pistols which, he said, could pose a grave menace to society and impair the maintenance of peace and order.

August 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has appealed to alumni of the University of the Philippines for assistance to the UP college of law in order to maintain its standard of excellence.

His appeal followed observations that the quality of teaching in the college of law had deteriorated.

He sounded the appeal at a luncheon given in Malacañang Saturday for faculty members of the UP college of law and the newly inducted officers of the UP Law Alumni association.

The President said: "The college has been retrogressing but no one ever lifted a finger to help it. It's about time the alumni did something about it."

August 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS asked oil-rich countries yesterday to make available petro-dollars as direct investment instead of loans to Third World countries.

The President made this proposal when he received Shiekh Ebrahim Al-Ebrahim, chairman of the Al Bahrain Arab-African bank.

At the same time, the President renewed his appeal for greater economic cooperations among developing countries.

* * * * *

PRIME MINISTER Cesar E.A. Virata said he would present to President Marcos for approval the cabinet draft of an executive order to implement the P3-billion "Kilusang Kabuhayan" livelihood program.

Virata was optimistic that the program, which is expected to affect ordinary citizens, specially those in the rural areas, would be successful because of the government's financial and physical support.

August 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS created an agency to implement a P1-billion priority economic program called Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK).

The new agency is called the National Council on Livelihood or the Pambansang Lupon ng Kilusang Kabuhayan.

The President formed the council through an executive order after a lengthy meeting with the Cabinet Tuesday evening that lasted up to early Wednesday morning.

The council is headed by the President as chairman with prime minister as vice chairman. Members include the ministers of agriculture, agrarian reform, human settlements, local government, trade and industry, and natural resources; and the directors-general for budget and management, for economic planning, and for media affairs, the governor of the Central Bank, the president of the National Bank and the chairman of the Development Bank of the Philippines.

August 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS is expected to seek trade and economic concessions from China when he meets visiting Premier Zhao Ziyang in a series of meeting starting this morning.

Zhao arrived at 3:15 p.m. yesterday to a rousing, though rainy, welcome at the Manila International Airport and along the motorcade route leading to the Malacañang guesthouse where he will stay during his four-day visit to the Philippines.

The Chinese Premier was met at the airport by a crowd led by President Marcos, the First Lady and Prime Minister Cesar E.A. Virata.

Zhao flew in from Peking with a small party that included China's Foreign Trade Minister Lin Qiang.

* * * * *

August 8—

VISITING Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang assured President Marcos yesterday that China will continue to supply the Philippines with crude oil at concessional prices.

The oil accommodation was secured during their initial talks which dealt mainly with how to expand trade and economic cooperation between their countries.

They are scheduled to resume discussions this morning while cruising in Manila Bay aboard the presidential yacht Ang Pangulo.

During a state dinner he gave for Zhao the other evening, the President said that the Philippines had been buying oil from China at "friendship prices."

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos spurred yesterday the "Greening of Metro Manila" program by planting a tree in Makati.

It was one of 10 million trees that were to have been planted in the metropolis.

Mrs. Marcos planted the tree along Epifanio de los Santos, ave. near the Guadalupe bridge, witnessed by a crowd of government officials and volunteers.

Thousands of private citizens and government employees were mobilized for the planting.

* * * * *

August 9—

CHINESE Premier Zhao Ziyang told President Marcos yesterday that China won't interfere in the internal affairs of other countries and neither would it seek to impose its policies in Asia.

In a two-hour closed-door conference aboard the Presidential yacht off the Manila South Harbor, the visiting Chinese official assured the President that "China has no intention of seeking hegemonism or creating spheres of influence in Southeast Asia."

Instead, Zhao said that China wants the presence of a “strong and united” ASEAN to preserve peace and stability in the region.

Zhao’s assurance was held significant in view of what appears to be an organized terrorism campaign by the New People’s Army in some areas of the country.

Official Week in Review: August 10 – August 16, 1981

August 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday he favored a dialogue among Third World countries before holding the North-South dialogue scheduled in Cancun, Mexico in October.

Speaking at a news conference at the Manila International Airport minutes after the departure of Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang, the President said he was “frustrated by the intransigence of the North or developed countries” in extending assistance to the South or Third World nations.

He said the North-South dialogue has “almost reduced to mendicancy the Third World countries in appealing for aid from the developed countries.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS is expected to announce major promotions in the PC as the first step in a revamp of the armed services.

The President will be guest of honor this morning during the celebration of PC Day in Camp Crame.

Yesterday, the President swore in General Fabian Ver as AFP chief of staff and Lt. Gen. Fidel Ramos as vice chief of staff in rites held at Malacañang. He also promoted Philippine Army commander Brig. Gen. Josephus Ramas to major general.

Ver replaces Gen. Romeo Espino, who has retired.

* * * * *

August 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ruled out the return of local policemen to the control or supervision of city and municipal governments.

Addressing a joint anniversary celebration of the PC-INP at Camp Crame, the President said that he finds “no compelling reason for the revival of the old and fragmented police structure.”

With the lifting of martial rule, politicians have been agitating to have police forces returned to the control of local officials.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered a specially-created presidential committee to review the qualifications and performance of middle-line government executives.

The review starts the second phase of a government reorganization involving bureau directors, assistant directors and regional directors of various government agencies.

The committee was formed through Executive Order No. 716. It is composed of Minister Jacobo Clave, presidential adviser on civil service and government reorganization; Civil Service Commissioner Albina Manalo Dans, who is in charge of career development in the Civil Service Commission; Executive Director Jose de Jesus of the Career Executive Service Board, also a vice president of the Development Academy of the Philippines; the dean of the UP

College of Public Administration or his representative, and Deputy Budget Minister Luis Baltazar, president of the Career Executive Service Organization.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos is scheduled to leave today for Nairobi, Kenya, where she will present the Philippine energy program before the United Nations conference on new and renewable energy which opened yesterday.

Mrs. Marcos, head of the Philippine delegation, will also talk on the development of gasifiers for motor vehicles, boats, electric generators and irrigation system.

The conference, to be attended by some 5,000 experts until Aug. 21, will have the growing shortage of firewood in developing countries as one of its central themes.

* * * * *

August 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the rehabilitation of Philippine Underwriters Finance Corp. (Philfinance) so it can pay about 700 creditors and investors who had put in an estimated P600 million as money market placements in the company.

The President asked the principal owners of Philfinance to put up P400 million in new capital to satisfy the claims of creditors.

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos will sign a $145-million loan agreement when she visits Washington, D.C., after attending a United Nations energy conference in Nairobi, Kenya.

The First Lady arrived yesterday in Nairobi at the head of a Philippine delegation to the energy conference.

The loan which she will obtain for the Philippine government includes $100 million for education and $45 million to help finance a national livelihood program called the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK).

The KKK is a top economic priority project initially funded at P1 billion to provide employment and livelihood opportunities to people especially those in poor areas.

* * * * *

THE CABINET and the Executive Committee agreed yesterday to adopt a two-year national budget starting in 1983 to improve budgeting procedures, Prime Minister Cesar E.A. Virata said.

Virata, who is also finance minister and head of the Cabinet and the Executive Committee, said the new budget scheme—described as “unique” by some assemblymen—would enable planners to integrate development programs of the government.

He said he hoped the two-year budget would meet the requirements of the national government and the country’s 13 regions.

* * * * *

August 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed the Supreme Court and the minister of justice yesterday to submit recommendations for the immediate implementation of the judicial reorganization plan.

The recommendations are expected to contain two lists—a purge list and an appointment list.

It was reported that the President will sign into law tomorrow Cabinet Bill 42 which calls for the revamp of the judiciary, except for the Supreme Court and the Sandiganbayan.

The bill has passed the Batasang Pambansa’s third reading and has been submitted to the President for signature.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS, moving to solve the thorny problem of extending the terms of military retirees, declared yesterday that from now on, there will be no more extensions.

In a talk with Malacañang newsmen, he said that generals in the armed forces are going to be retired by attrition, natural attrition, which means that, since they have a termination date, they will not be extended anymore.

There are 24 retireable generals serving extended terms.

August 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has prohibited the courts from interfering with any government infrastructure, mining, fishery, forestry, and natural resources projects.

Presidential Decree No. 1818 dated Jan. 16 but released only yesterday, also stops courts from interfering with government public utility projects, including transportation, stevedoring and arrastre contracts.

Under the decree, courts are prohibited from issuing a restraining order, preliminary injunction, or preliminary mandatory injunction.

Courts are enjoined from ‘prohibiting any person or persons, entity or government official from proceeding with, or continuing the execution or implementation of any such project, or the operation of such public utility, or pursuing any lawful activity necessary for such execution, implementation, and operation.’

PRESIDENT MARCOS inducted eight new generals of the Armed Forces and the integrated national police yesterday, triggering off a revamp and the retirement of generals who had been given extended tours of duty.

Inducting the new generals, the President said that their promotions had been “recommended by your achievements, merit, and professionalism.”

Inducted by the President yesterday were:

1. Maj. General Prospero Olivas, commanding general of the PC Metropolitan command (Metrocom). He is also deputy chief of the Philippine Constabulary, deputy director of the Integrated National Police, deputy general manager for program and evaluation and management of the Ministry of Human Settlements, and coordinator in the inter-agency action group against pollution.

2. Brigadier Generals Edgardo A. Alfabeto, commander, PC Brigade in Bicutan; Victorino T. Azada, Region XII commander; Pedrito de Guzman, Region XI deputy regional commander; Alfonso C. Trance; PC Security Force commander; and Cesar G. Villarin, Region VIII commander.

3. Police Brigadier Generals Arcadio S. Lozada, INP training command superintendent, and Ruben P. Escarcha, southern police district superintendent.

August 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday abolished all existing civilian courts in the country with the exception of the Supreme Court and the Sandiganbayan.

The abolished courts will be replaced by the new trial courts as provided for in the Judiciary Act of 1980 which was passed by the Batasang Pambansa last Aug. 10 and signed into law by the President yesterday.

Courts that were phased out included the Court of Appeals, courts of first instance, criminal circuit courts, city and municipal courts.

Their functions and duties will be taken over by the Intermediate Appellate Court (IAC) in the case of the Court of Appeals; regional trial courts in the case of the courts of first instance; and the metropolitan trial courts and municipal circuit trial courts in the case of all other lower courts.

* * * * *

August 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS announced that the courts that are to be abolished and their personnel shall continue to function and discharge their duties as usual until he issues an executive order implementing the provisions of the Judiciary Act of 1981.

The President issued the clarification in order to prevent disruption of judicial proceedings and confusion arising from news items regarding the abolition of all courts, except the Supreme Court and the Sandiganbayan.

The Judiciary Act provides that the Court of Appeals, court of first instance, criminal circuit courts, courts of agrarian relations, juvenile and domestic relations courts, city courts, municipal courts, and municipal circuit courts shall continue to function as presently constituted and organized until completion of the reorganization.

August 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday ordered key government agencies to cut down operating costs and generate savings but without sacrificing efficiency.

No specific figures were given, but last year government offices were ordered to trim costs by at least 10 percent.

The President issued the directive during a three-hour meeting of the Executive Committee in Malacañang.

Government offices ordered to cut costs were those engaged in the energy program, agriculture, education, financing and procurement of supplies.

August 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday scrapped the fertilizer subsidy, curtailed the pumping of government funds into private firms, and stopped direct purchases of supplies at pre-fixed prices.

The President's action followed his earlier directives to government agencies to cut costs to help raise money for the nationwide livelihood program and infrastructure.

At the Batasang Pambansa, meanwhile, two bills were filed seeking a legislative inquiry into the channeling of government money, some of it trust funds, to financially distressed firms. The bills were referred to the proper committees.

The directives of the President included:

—The promotion of the use of biomass, dendro-thermal and mini-hydropower sources instead of huge and costly power installations, and the allocation of funds from the energy program to the manufacture of gasifiers.

—The elimination of the fertilizer subsidy which amounts to P350–P550 million annually and the development instead of natural fertilizer through the intercropping of leguminous nitrogen-fixing plants and the extensive use of nitrogen-rich blue-green algae or azolla.

—The setting aside of savings of about P7 billion for 1981 and P8.5 billion next year in intended government equity for corporations by curtailing the participation of the government private industry.

—The reorganization of the general services office, particularly the handling of the direct order purchase system (DOPS) setting the prices for government supplies which are sometimes even higher than current market prices.

August 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS lifted his ban yesterday on government payments to the Silverio companies, headed by Delta Motors, assemblers of Toyota cars and trucks.

On July 19, the President issued a memorandum suspending all government payments to the Silverio companies.

The main reason for this was the Silverio group's actions in the Philfinance company.

The President lifted the ban after Ricardo Silverio, head of the Silverio group of companies, signed a promissory note answering payment of the P60 million of PAG-IBIG funds the Ministry of Human Settlements placed with Philfinance.

This promissory note is covered by real property collateral.

The law imposing death penalty on any person who tries to kill the President or any member of his cabinet has been widened to cover other ranking officials of the government.

Ranking officials of the government were identified in Presidential Decree No. 1811 as the prime minister, and members of the Batasang Pambansa, Supreme Court, constitutional commissions, and officers of the Armed Forces with at least the rank of a brigadier general, and immediate members of their families.

Although the decree was signed last Jan. 16, it was released just recently.

The decree was an amendment to PD No. 9 which was further amended by PD 1728.

PD No. 9 issued in October, 1972, stipulated penalties for violations of General Order Nos. 6 and 7 (the firearms ban).

August 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the Philippines may have to attend the North-South dialogue in Cancun, Mexico, on Sept. 22-23 although he said he was skeptical that the meeting would result in tangible steps to help developing countries (the "South") uplift their economic and social conditions.

The President cited the failures of similar meetings in the past to resolve the North-South problem and the economic difficulties that even developed nations are encountering now.

It may be necessary to organize, instead, a long-range strategy which developed and developing nations will participate, he said.

August 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed into law yesterday Cabinet bill No. 45 restoring the worker's right to strike and of management's prerogative to declare a lockout.

The President signed the bill amending the Labor Code in the presence of some members of the Batasang Pambansa and the Cabinet as well as some representatives of labor and management.

He said that while it may not satisfy everybody, the amendment of the Labor Code "is a perfect example of a democratic piece of action and decision, something workable, acceptable and tolerable by both sides."

As passed by the Batasang Pambansa, the bill provides that a labor union may call a strike and management may declare a lockout when a dispute is not settled within a 30-day "cooling off" period.

August 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he was bound by the platform of the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan pledging to "initiate action to raise the minimum salary of public school teachers to P1,000 monthly within two years."

He also said the platform declared that "the welfare of teachers shall command increasing priority in the decade of the 80s."

Negotiations on the demands of the country's 350,000 public school teachers, mostly for salary and benefit increases, will be held in Malacañang.

Earlier, the President said he is on the side of the teachers in their demand for a basic salary of P1,200 a month.

This assurance was given by the President during a two hour dialogue with editors at the Malacañang gardens.

August 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS authorized yesterday the granting of a three-step or 15 percent increase in the salaries of public school teachers, principals and supervisors retroactive to July 1, for a basic salary of P774. He promised that in 1982 he will work towards a P1,000 basic salary, as a commitment of the KBL.

The President granted the increase during a meeting with members of the national ad hoc committee of the Philippine Public School Teachers Association, led by chairman Rodolfo Espino.

The salary increases will be given to some 285,000 teachers, principals and supervisors and will cost the government P446.8 million annually.

THE CABINET yesterday turned its sights on so-called “junk food”—which it said have contributed to the malnutrition being suffered by many Filipinos today.

To start with the Cabinet decided to launch a nationwide nutrition and food program with emphasis on the consumption of locally-made nutritious products.

“Junk food” are those which are classified as filling but without nutritive value. In this category would be what the people call “chicherias.”

Prime Minister Cesar E.A. Virata explained that Filipinos are still deficient in calories and should rely more on local food items, particularly coconut products which, he said, are plenty and cheap.

August 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he sees the participation of Sime Darby Berhad of Malaysia in the country’s development program as a manifestation of increasing economic cooperation among Asian nations.

“I feel that your investment in the Philippines augurs well for increasing economic cooperation between our two countries and a more meaningful manifestation of partnership among Asian nations,” the President told executives of the company, the biggest multinational in Malaysia, who called on him.

The corporation employs some 52,000 workers in its subsidiaries and associate companies in 25 countries. Recently, it bought B.F. Goodrich Philippines for US $17 million, and will continue to manufacture and market Goodrich tires and other products.

August 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday he was for giving local executives more authority to enable them to discharge their responsibilities more effectively.

The President said the granting of more powers to the mayors and governors, some of which were taken from them during the martial law years, would proceed from a basic policy of "balancing authority with responsibility."

He was speaking before some 200 mayors from Region 4 who called on him in connection with their two-day regional seminar on the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK). The seminar is sponsored by the League of Municipal Mayors of Region 4 and the Ministry of Agriculture.

August 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has extended the Aug. 31 deadline for the availment of the administrative tax amnesty to Oct. 15, the Bureau of Internal Revenue said yesterday.

Revenue Commissioner Ruben Ancheta said the 45-day extension was ordered by the President upon the request of numerous taxpayers, particularly the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

The extension was the fourth since the amnesty was declared a year ago.

Ancheta said he has, at the same time, extended the deadline for the filing of assets liabilities and net worth individuals from Aug. 31 to Oct. 15.

Under the amnesty, a minimum payment of P1,000 for each taxable year must be made by the taxpayer who wishes to avail himself of the amnesty.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that the firm policy of the United States of supporting allies against communist threat has bought time for members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations to pursue their economic development.

The President made the remark before a group of newspapermen from Chicago and a US trade representative who called on him separately at Malacañang.

“The present policy of the United States of firmness with respect to support for friends under attack from communist elements as well as those threatened by subversion has bought us time for economic development,” the President told the visiting newsmen led by Phil Ruskin, director of ABC’s Six and 10 O’Clock News.

Later, the President told US trade representative William E. Brock the same thing, adding that he had consulted with other ASEAN leaders and that “they all agree that this was the best that could happen to us.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS indicated yesterday he might after all decide to go to Cancun, Mexico, in October to attend a summit of 22 heads of state invited to discuss world economic issues.

Until lately, the President had expressed doubt as to his attendance unless there were concrete signs the conference would succeed in resolving long-pending issues between rich and poor nations.

Talking to members of the Chicago press club who called on him at Malacañang, the President held out the possibility of individual meeting with US President Ronald Reagan, Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang and Third World leaders who have signified their intention to attend.

August 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has stressed that economic growth will fall short of providing the minimum margin of security against internal unrest and subversion unless it benefits the majority.

In a talk with a group of American newsmen who called on him at Malacañang, the President said the most effective answer to subversion is not superior military force but economic development. He said this was the principle behind his policy of attraction and reconciliation in Mindanao.

He also explained that his administration would continue to measure its success less in terms of national gross products (GNP) and more on social and economic welfare.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has authorized the release of P197.9 million for the completion on schedule of three BLISS housing projects being undertaken by the Ministry of Human Settlements through the National Housing Authority.

Of this amount, P73.2 million will be for the completion of the Tondo Foreshore Development project. The other P87.7 million will be for the upgrading of 13 priority slum areas in Metro Manila and P37 million will be for the Dasmariñas Bagong Bayan project.

The President released the funds to prevent delay in the completion of the projects designed to help the low-income groups.

The completion of the housing project in Dasmariñas would mean new homes for the squatter families now occupying the International Port Area.

September 8—

The President presided over a seven hour joint meeting of the Cabinet, the National Economic & Development Authority, and the National Council of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran, and discussed:

- 1) The preliminary draft of the development plan for 1983-87;
- 2) The status of the sugar industry;
- 3) The rationalization of the government procurement system; and
- 4) The funding requirements and detailed implementation of the KKK guidelines with the view to eliminating red tape.

The President, anxious to get the KKK moving, said he will receive the views of local officials on the implementation of the KKK guidelines on the basis of one project per municipality, on Thursday, September 10, at the Maharlika Hall of Malacañang, at 3 p.m.

Expected to be present are: All governors and city mayors, all officers of the National Federation of Municipal Mayors, all officers of the Pambansang Katipunan ng Mga Barangay, all officers of the Pambansang Kabataan ng Mga Barangay, all KBL assemblymen, and all members of the Cabinet.

September 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS activated the national secretariat of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran to ensure the speedy and orderly implementation of the KKK livelihood program.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos was designated secretary-general, and Deputy Minister Jolly Benitez was named deputy secretary general.

The President also named three National KKK coordinators, 13 regional action officers, and 68 provincial managers, as he advanced his timetable for the take-off of the establishment of livelihood projects in the countryside.

The National KKK coordinators are: Gen. Rafael G. Zagala (ret.), assistant secretary general for Luzon; Gen. Vicente. E. Evidente (ret.), assistant secretary general for the Visayas; and Gen. Fortunato U. Abat (ret.), assistant secretary general for Mindanao.

The national secretariat was empowered by the President, as Chairman of the KKK, to call on any government agency in the national, regional, provincial and municipal level for any assistance. The secretary-general was authorized to appoint such personnel as may be necessary, subject to the approval of the Pambansang Lupon or the President.

The President launched two projects designed to hasten the development and progress of the teaching profession.

The President announced the projects during the opening ceremonies of the 1981 Education Week Celebration in connection with the 80th anniversary of the Philippine educational system, at the Maharlika Hall Malacañang.

They are:

- 1) The KKK Sa Paaralan, basically focused on teachers and their role in the local community, as part of the new KKK program, and
- 2) The Instructional Materials Development Corporation (IMDC) to take over the functions of the Textbook Board Secretariat, in keeping with the need for qualitative change, and in line with the policy to provide relevant, quality and creative textbooks to elementary students for free or at cost.

September 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS laid down the basic guidelines for the improvement of the Armed Forces of the Philippines under the New Republic.

In his speech at the traditional loyalty parade given him as Commander-in-Chief of the AFP, at Camp Aguinaldo, this morning, the President underscored three factors of paramount concern to the armed forces namely:

- 1) The health of the entire military organization, the vitality of its leadership, and the morale of the entire soldiery,
- 2) Intensification of the armed forces' involvement in the national development effort, particularly the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran and
- 3) Acceleration of the armed forces' program of self-reliance.

The President pointed out that the organizational reform and innovation of the armed forces will continue, to promote efficiency and responsiveness to problems and challenges.

* * * * *

The President enumerated two projects he wanted emphasized under the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) during his two-and-a-half-hour meeting with local officials at Malacañang. These are:

- 1) Presently non-existing enterprises or projects which can be organized and initiated by private individuals or associations; and
- 2) Private existing and small projects found to be viable, not already supported by any other agency, and need additional capital from the KKK.

He also said that the farmers can produce as much food as they can between now and December and assured them of ready markets.

The copper mine has a milling capacity of 3,000 metric tons and can produce 80 tons of copper concentrate a day.

The HMOI has blocked 13.5 million tons of positive ore reserves in the 431 hectares mining site in the town that is projected to last for 12 years at 300 tons a day in 330 days of operations per year.

The mineral ore in the mines was found to contain more than one percent copper and the copper concentrate would contain 25 percent copper with significant amounts of gold and silver.

September 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS flew by helicopter to Barangay Julugan, Tanza, Cavite, to start his 64th birthday with a poor man's breakfast with two fishermen and their families.

Arriving at 7:45 a.m. the President and the First Lady Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, sat down with Edgardo Abaci and Ernest Gozo and their families to breakfast at Abaci's nipa hut on the shoreline of Tanza.

Later, at a cabinet meeting held at the center of the fishing village, the President signed the P59.7-billion budget for 1982 and the P32-billion infrastructure bill before a cheering crowd.

And as his birthday gift to the people of Cavite, he released P8.4 million as the second installment of the P17-million fund for the national and farm-to-market roads of Cavite.

The President then kicked off the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood project by releasing nine loans totalling P532,000-the first check of P208,000 going to the Tanza fishermen's association to setup facilities to produce smoked fish and "bagoong."

The other checks went to eight Samahang nayons from Luzon to increase their capital for their projects.

September 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS reiterated his invitation to Filipino-American communities in the United States- to come home and see for themselves a country that has become the master of its own destiny.

“We have traveled far from the dark days of 1972. We have achieved much since then and we will achieve more,” the President told some 100 leaders of Filipino communities in California and Hawaii who called on him at Malacañang.

The majority of the “balikbayan” belong to the Confederation of Philippine-United States Organizations based in Los Angeles County.

In his extemporaneous remarks, the President said the Filipinos have “overcome themselves and their weaknesses.” Having mastered themselves, he said, they are now the master of their own country.

He said that the greatest achievement of the crisis government was to “transform potential weaklings and mendicants into vital, militant and self-confident people.”

September 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has prescribed interim procedures in the determination and funding of priority projects under the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran.

In a memorandum circular, the President said projects will be given priority and approval on the basis of the number and nature of beneficiaries, their contribution to the improvement of the country’s food production, and their role in the development of alternative sources of energy.

The circular formally constituted a Regional Secretariat for each of the 14 regions, with a Regional Action Officer as chairman. The primary function of the RAO is to approve KKK projects in the region endorsed by the municipal coordinators and lead support agencies.

Projects submitted for the approval of the Regional Secretariat will be classified either as KKK-financed or KKK-affiliated projects.

THE PRESIDENT has ordered a massive, nationwide industrial tree planting to hasten reforestation and promote the livelihood program under the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran.

He issued Executive Order 725 directing the establishment of Industrial Tree Plantations (ITP) in “open, denuded, brushland and inadequately stocked areas.”

The President designated the Ministry of Natural Resources through the Bureau of Forest Development as implementing agency. He directed that the program be coordinated with the private wood industry sector.

The President said establishment of ITPs not only will hasten reforestation and promote livelihood in the rural areas, but will also promote ecological balance and assure adequate wood supply for the country’s growing population.

Involved principally in the program are timber license holders, portions of whose areas need revegetation, or are outright denuded open or inadequately stocked.

September 14—

The Commission on Filipinos Overseas issued a reminder to emigrants holding passports to register with this office early to avoid inconvenience.

The CFO, formerly under the Ministry of Foreign Affairs but retained by the President as a “critical agency” under the Office of the President, said emigrants whose passports do not bear the CFO seal and stamp would not be allowed to leave the country.

Requirements for obtaining the CFO seal and stamp are the passport of the emigrant, copy of the visa (original must be presented), one passport-size photograph and P10 registration fee.

Meanwhile, CFO Executive Director Moises S. Millena said that the commission utilizes “feedback letters” which the emigrants fill out and mail back to the CFO three months after arrival in the country of destination. These letters provide the commission with first-hand information about problems affecting Filipino migrants.

September 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS placed all livelihood projects of the Ministry of Human Settlements’ slum improvement programs under the umbrella of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK).

At the same time, the President also announced that the KKK, which was initially intended for the rural areas, will now also cover urban livelihood projects.

The President made the twin announcements during the turnover rites for the 500 certificates of land transfer to former squatters in Bagong Baryo, Caloocan City.

“I hereby declare and proclaim all livelihood projects under the slum improvement program of the Ministry of Human Settlements now under the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran,” the President said.

“This is the beginning of a new dimension for the KKK because today we have just launched its urban coverage, instead of just limiting it to the rural areas. Now it covers all parts of the nation.”

September 16—

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos assured a delegation of over 90 Filipino leaders in the U.S. West Coast that the New Republic leadership is succeeding in its mission of promoting progress for the Filipino people.

At the same time, Mrs. Marcos, who is also governor of Metropolitan Manila, thanked the leaders for heeding a call she made almost two years ago to come and see for themselves the conditions obtaining in the country.

The First Lady made the assurance during a luncheon she tendered for the 85 presidents of associations belonging to the Los Angeles-based Confederation of Philippine-United States Organizations (CONPUSO) who called on her at Malacañang. The group was led by its chairman, Dr. Reynaldo Landero, and accompanied by Ambassador Armando C. Fernandez, consul general in Los Angeles.

September 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received Charles Z. Wick, director of the United States International Communication Agency (USICA) who called to pay his respects.

The U.S. official lauded the President for his wise leadership saying that after reading the President's biography, "I understand why your country progressed so much under your leadership."

The President replied that whatever progress the country has made is largely due to the patience and understanding of the Filipino people who are willing to make sacrifices for the good of the entire country.

A businessman-financier, Wick worked hard in the campaign of President Reagan and was co-chairman of the Committee on Festivities for the 1981 Presidential Inauguration, and member of the Executive Committee that worked out the smooth transfer of government from the Carter Administration.

He was accompanied by Minister James Rosenthal and Counselor Clifford Southard of the U.S. Embassy for Public Affairs.

PRIVATE INITIATIVE and dynamism will be the basic foundation of the livelihood projects under the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran.

Minister Gregorio S. Cendaña of the Office of Media Affairs stressed the pivotal role of the private citizens in the successful propagation of the nationwide livelihood program during a speech at the Dagupan Rotary Club.

"Local governments will be tasked with the responsibility of providing the administrative support," he said. "On the other hand, these projects and enterprises must be initiated and manned by private citizens."

Refuting criticisms that the program is socialistic and that through it, the government intends to take over certain economic areas, Cendaña said that on the contrary, "the KKK will be one of the best examples of the government and other sectors coming together to guarantee the continued health of private enterprise."

SEPTEMBER 21 National Thanksgiving Day, is a working special holiday. But there will be no classes in all levels throughout the country.

This means that only schools will be closed on that day, and government and private employees and workers will still have to report for work on Sept. 21.

Malacañang made the announcement in response to numerous inquiries from the public.

September 21 marks the date of the declaration of martial law in 1972, and the establishment of the New Society.

President Marcos lifted martial law on January 17 this year, but September 21 remains National Thanksgiving Day.

September 18—

MINISTER Gregorio S. Cendaña of the Office of Media Affairs said yesterday that the government is now intensifying its rural information campaign to enable the citizenry to know the various aspects of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) and how they can take part in the movement.

Minister Cendaña told a news conference at the Manila Hilton that a KKK information secretariat has been organized to service the information requirement of the livelihood movement nationwide.

The information minister also said the secretariat will tie up with the Kapisanan ng mga Brodkaster sa Pilipinas (KBP) on the nationwide dissemination of KKK news.

Other officials who attended the conference were Human Settlements Deputy Minister Jose Conrado Benitez, Minister Jesus Tanchanco of the National Food Authority and representatives of participating agencies.

September 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Presidential Decree No. 1840 granting a tax amnesty on previously untaxed income or wealth earned here or abroad between 1974 and 1980, upon payment of certain amounts in taxes.

The decree grants full tax amnesty to resident citizens or aliens provided they pay a 20 percent tax on such income.

In the case of non-resident citizens who derive income from abroad, the tax is two percent on such previously untaxed income, converted to U.S. dollars.

The same decree, which the President issued as a necessary legislation in view of the fact that the Batasang Pambansa is not in session, also requires the filing of statements of assets, liabilities and net worth.

Deadline for filing of the tax amnesty returns is November 30 this year.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister, Imelda Romualdez Marcos said that it is the people who will eventually determine the success or failure of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran.

Speaking before some 700 municipal, provincial, and regional action officers of the Ministry of Human Settlements, at the University of Life in Pasig, Mrs. Marcos said that the cooperation, dedication, and determination of the people, will be the very factors that will make the KKK program get off the ground.

With the First Lady was Henry Rogers, a visiting public relations experts from California here to observe the development programs of the country. Earlier, the First Lady showed Rogers around the university campus and briefed him on how education at the institution is geared to community development.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran was the social development aspect of the “revolution from the center” initiated by the New Society nine years ago.

He declared that the livelihood program launched by the New Republic is for everybody and that it was intended to benefit all the Filipinos in all levels of Philippine society.

The President emphasized that this is a “people’s movement” which will involve every citizen, and that it was not a movement of the government.

“This program of ours (the KKK) will succeed or fail because of the dedication or lack of dedication of the motivators. That means you,” he told the KKK action officers.

* * * * *

The First Lady Imelda Romualdez Marcos gave regional action officers of the Ministry of Human Settlements until December 17 this year to come up with viable livelihood programs in their regions for the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran.

Mrs. Marcos set the target date during the closing session of the seven-day KKK management and orientation seminar at the University of Life where she was the guest speaker.

The First Lady stressed that even if the KKK is a partnership between the people and all government agencies, the action officers of the ministry should be the lead motivators as community developers.

As an incentive, the First Lady said that the ministry will give cash prizes of P100,000 to the most viable livelihood project that will benefit a big majority of the people in the region; P50,000 to the second; and P25,000 for the third.

Minister Gregorio S. Cendaña of the Office of Media Affairs called on the Third World media to fully harness and apply their resources to the solution of urgent problems.

Keynoting the three-day General Assembly of the Asia-Pacific Broadcasting Union at the Philippine International Convention Center, Cendaña declared:

“Media as catalyst for change can ill afford to stand apart from the development process. It must be part of the process.”

He recalled the “exciting and dramatic events” that had taken place in the Philippines and the role of private media in promoting national goals and objectives.

The President created the Kilusan sa Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran ng Kabataan as priority program, and set aside an initial sum of P5 million for the KKK ng Kabataang projects.

This was one of the steps the President took today as he and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos marked National Thanksgiving with a flurry of activities in Metro Manila.

The First Couple also took time to inaugurate the UP-Sikatuna Urban Bliss project in Barangay Botocan, Sikatuna Village, Quezon City and installed the KKK action officers in all levels in a program held at the University of Life in Pasig, Metro Manila.

With the local officials of the 13 towns and four cities of Metro Manila, the President and the First Lady each planted a Banaba tree along Buendia Avenue, in Pasay City, as part of the greening of Metro Manila.

September 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS marked another milestone in the quest for oil, by launching production of the Cadlao oil field, in ceremonies held at the Maharlika Hall of Malacañang.

The President opened the symbolic production valve of the Cadlao oil field which is expected to yield 9,000 barrels of crude oil daily.

While expressing satisfaction over the progress of the oil exploration program, and voicing hope in its future, the President warned that the search for oil must be pressed relentlessly.

The President pointed out that energy remains one of the most serious problems facing the country and that while it is moving toward hydroelectric, geothermal, nuclear, coal, minihydro dendio and other non-conventional sources, oil will continue to be the substantial component of the energy package.

September 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the full tax amnesty decree he issued September 19 was urgent and necessary and within the agreement of the President and the Batasang Pambansa in caucus.

The President also said Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata has nothing to do with it, and should not be the object of any criticism.

The Prime Minister had been criticized by Assemblyman Arturo M. Tolentino for allegedly relinquishing the law-making powers of the Batasang Pambansa by allowing the President to issue the tax amnesty decree. The President pointed out the decree was “urgent and necessary and within the agreement of the President and the Batasang Pambansa in caucus.”

Presidential Decree 1840 extends full tax amnesty for previously untaxed income or wealth earned here or abroad between 1971 and 1980, upon payment of 20 percent levy in the case of resident citizens or aliens, and two percent in the case of non-resident citizens.

It sought to reinforce the previous tax amnesty decree. P.D. 1740 by simplifying procedure in the computation of taxes to be paid, and also extended its effectivity from October 10 to November 30 this year.

Minister Manuel Alba of the Office of the Budget and Management said that the government's revised disbursement program had actually reduced expenditures and that estimated net borrowings were only slightly higher than the original target.

Minister Alba was reacting to an erroneous newspaper article which tended to show that the government was increasing expenditures beyond what has been approved.

He said the estimated gross borrowings of P9.3 billion was only four percent higher than the original target and not 153 percent as claimed in the article.

The President directed the Ministry of Agriculture to undertake the rehabilitation of areas in Ilocos Norte and the Cagayan Valley damaged by typhoon "Rubing."

He directed Agriculture Minister Arturo Tanco to facilitate the sale of seeds at subsidized prices to farmers in affected areas and to restructure Masagana 99 loans of the typhoon victims.

A report of the damage was submitted to the President by Minister Tanco and Agriculture Assistant Minister Domingo Panganiban who had made an ocular inspection of the damaged areas.

The President underscored the need to systematize the broadcast media to make it more instrumental in attaining development objectives.

The President spoke before officials of the Asia-Pacific Broadcasting Union who called on him at Malacañang.

The Chief Executive pointed out that broadcast media is a potent communication means since 88 percent of information is disseminated through it.

The President, however, decried the over-exposure of sex and violence on some radio and TV soap operas that could imbue "bad appetite and habit" particularly on growing children.

He said, "it's about time to impose a general systematization of the broadcast media" to make it more instrumental in development objectives."

The President exchanged assessments of the peace and security situation in Asia with visiting United States Deputy Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci.

During their one-hour exchange of views, the President said the security problem facing small developing countries particularly in ASEAN is internal subversion and possible infiltration in the next several years.

The President, however, said the small developing countries are thankful for the firm stand taken by President Reagan, which has given them time to develop economically as the answer to subversion.

The President said he was happy with the present security arrangements and gave assurance that "we will do our share in maintaining security."

The President said the activation of the military bases agreement is irking very well, and that there is a deep reservoir of goodwill here for America and Americans.

September 24—

The gasifier, a local invention which converts organic matter into combustible gases, has drawn the interest of the United States Agency for International Development (US-AID) in Washington, D.C.

The information was relayed to the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos during a call in Malacañang by a visiting US-AID mission headed by Bruce Gair.

According to Gair, US-AID has kept abreast with all the development programs of the Ministry of Human Settlements and the gasifier has drawn much interest.

The First Lady told the group that the gasifier is a good example of the efforts being exerted by the government towards economic self-reliance.

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday welcomed the support pledged by two nationwide organizations to the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) and asked them to assume the leadership in their respective communities.

The two organizations which are supporting the KKK are the Radio-TV Federation of the Philippines and the officials and coordinators of the Loyalists for Marcos, who came to greet the President belated happy birthday and to pledge their support to the KKK program.

“I am very glad to hear that” the President told the two delegations. “I now call on you to rise to the challenge and build for yourselves new names, new achievements that will add not only to the ennobling of the Filipino race but to the upliftment of the Filipino people.”

Associate Immigration Commissioner Victor Nituda, head of the Marcos Loyalists, also presented to the President a plaque of recognition for his “brilliant and outstanding achievements as congressman, senator, Senate president, and President of the Republic from 1949 to the present.”

Labor Minister Blas F. Ople warned that owners of construction and recruitment firms and Filipino workers who have persistently failed to remit home their foreign earnings will be criminally prosecuted.

Ople directed Director Jonathan dela Cruz of the Bureau of Employment Services to get the help of the Central Bank in ferreting out the firms and workers who have failed to send home their earnings through legitimate channels.

He said these contractors and workers may be charged with trafficking in foreign currencies in violation of both the Labor Code and CB circular No. 364.

Ople’s move followed allegations of the Philippine Contractors Association and the Overseas Placement Association of the Philippines that some of their members have not been sending home their foreign earnings.

Batasan members acted to restrengthen the country’s Torrens system proposing to incorporate the penalties provided in the original land registration act in the present property registration law.

The lawmakers noted that since the original penal provisions are no longer included in the present law, this omission may have encouraged issuance of fake land titles and the commission of other irregularities.

Assemblyman Felipe P. de Vera (KBL), Ilocos region, principal author of Parliamentary Bill 1696, observed that under the present law, frauds and falsification’ are no longer punishable with severe, penalties provided under Act No. 496 but will be considered as ordinary felony punishable under the Revised Penal Code.

The Ilocos lawmaker explained that the Torrens system of property registration is generally accepted in many countries as an effective means of making a land title absolute and imprescriptible even against the government.

President's Week in Review: September 28 - October 4, 1981

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he would review with the Cabinet the problem of coconut levy and the plunging prices of copra after three months, instead of waiting for six months.

In an interview with Malacañang newsmen, the President said such a reassessment would include the possibility of putting back the levy of P76 per 100 kilos of copra which was suspended by the Cabinet two weeks ago.

In the said review, the President said, he would also consider steps to prop up the prices of coconut oil by increasing government use of coconut oil, and the revival of programs supported by the coconut levy.

The Cabinet suspended the coconut levy to allow a free market access by anybody who wants to buy and sell copra.

September 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the Philippine foreign policy is based on mutual understanding, respect for sovereignty, non-interference in the internal affairs of other countries and peaceful co-existence.

The President made this statement in receiving the letters of credence of Ambassador Yuri Alekseevich Sholmov as the new envoy of the Soviet Union to the Philippines succeeding former Ambassador Valerian Mikhailov.

“The Philippines seeks closer diplomatic, economic and cultural ties with all countries which believe in the basic principles of mutual understanding, respect for each other's sovereignty, non-interference in internal affairs, and peaceful co-existence,” the President said.

The Soviet envoy said, in presenting his credentials, that the Soviet Union “follows the principles of peaceful co-existence, the tasks of ensuring peace on earth and internal security, and retention of the spirit of detente.”

September 30—

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda Romualdez Marcos flew this afternoon to Iraq in a move to strengthen trade and cultural ties with the Arab world.

Upon the invitation of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Mrs. Marcos will attend the opening of an international trade fair in the Iraq capital of Baghdad.

Hoping to find new markets for products of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK), the First Lady brought with her a collection of samples of various products, including handicrafts and high-fashion ladies shoes and bags, for display at the fair.

The President led a group of government officials and friends who saw off the First Lady at the Manila International Airport. She took off at 4:30 p.m. for an 11-hour flight to Baghdad aboard a special Philippine Airlines plane.

THE PRESIDENT expressed hope that the informal exchange of opinions among the world leaders at the Cancun summit conference would lead to better cooperation between the industrialized countries and the developing nations.

He told reporters covering Malacañang that there were many matters that could be taken-up at the North-South Dialogue in the Mexican resort city, although he ruled out any bilateral meetings.

Twenty-two leaders from the North, or developed countries, and the South, or developing nations, have been invited to the summit meeting. It was organized by Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo and Austrian Chancellor Kreisky inspired by West German stateman Willy Brandt's recommendation for a "summit for survival" to draw up a new international economic order.

The President, as a leader of the Third World, had been invited to attend this historic conference to articulate the aspirations- of the developing countries.

THE PRESIDENT enjoined officials and employees of the Ministry of Justice to seek fresh approaches to the promotion of human rights and the entrenchment of the law.

Speaking at the 83rd anniversary celebration of the Ministry of Justice at the Manila Hotel, the President said, "You must continually be open to fresh approaches to the promotion of human rights and the entrenchment of the law in all your institutions."

The President said this should always be the basis of all government action, the unifying element in society, and the anchor of stability, as well as the measure of the conduct of officials and officers in government.

October 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he might be compelled to order the arrest and detention of subversive elements similar to the roundups in 1972 to check the infiltration and sabotage operations within the labor union and student ranks.

The Chief Executive, however, pointed out that as of now these subversive personalities—who have already been identified by intelligence authorities—do not constitute a danger to the national stability and their activities do not warrant the exercise of emergency powers similar to those used in 1972 when martial law was imposed.

Referring to the renewed activities of subversives who have infiltrated labor and student groups and were creating agitation within their ranks, the President said: "They are few and ineffective but they are persistent and they may cause damage to property and cause injury to persons. The assessment of both the military and the government is that there is no necessity as yet for the exercise of any emergency powers similar to their exercise in 1972."

But, he emphasized that "I believe it is necessary that I warn them and their supporters that if they persist on these illicit and subversive activities, regretful as it may be, I may be compelled to issue commitment orders as I did in 1972."

THE ARMY RESERVE COMMAND has launched an information drive to promote the Kilusang, Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran program of the government in the provinces. The activity was started after a primer on the movement was published by the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Directives were issued to the different Regional Home Defense Units and Provincial Home Defense Centers of Arescom to conduct seminars on the program for military personnel and dependents as well as civilian employees of the command and for civilians in coordination with local governments and other agencies.

In the meetings with local officials and media during his inspection visit to Arescom units in Antique, Iloilo and Negros Occidental, Brig. Gen. Edon T. Yap, Arescom commanding general, emphasized the participation of everybody to insure the success of the movement.

The pulong-pulong was also attended by the governors and representatives from the PC and the AFP Reservists Association.

October 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS restored the coconut levy which he and his Cabinet suspended last Sept. 9 but reduced the amount from P76.00 to P50.00 per 100 kilos.

He said he was returning the levy although in a reduced amount to prop up the sagging prices of coconut products in both the foreign and local markets and to assure the continuation of the programs supported by it.

The President signed the decree restoring the levy during a meeting attended by some 10,000 coconut farmers at the Maharlika Hall in Malacañang. Although the new levy fell short of the old one by P26.00, the farmers, who had been adversely affected by its suspension, felt more than satisfied.

To be called the Coconut Industry Stabilization Fund, (CISF) the levy will now be broken down as follows:

P20.00 for the coconut replanting program; P4.00 for the scholarship program; P12½ for the life and accident insurance coverage of some 45,000 coconut farmers; P3 and ½ for the liquidation of the obligation of the United Coconut Millers for the mothballed coconut mills; P3.00 for the operation of the Coconut Planters Federation; and P2.00 for the Philippine Coconut Authority.

THE PRESIDENT received a proposal from the President of Mongolia to hold a Bandung-type conference of Asian states to discuss the peace and security of Asia and the Pacific. He said he was going to sound out the other ASEAN members on it.

The proposal was conveyed to the President by Mongolian Ambassador Denzenqiin Tsererdendov who came from Tokyo to Manila to pay his respects and to personally convey the message to the President.

It was in Bandung, one of the largest cities of Indonesia, that delegates from 23 Asian and African nations met in 1955 in the first conference of Asian and African states on world affairs.

The President explained that as a member of ASEAN, the Philippines cannot make commitments without first consulting the other members, especially on matters of peace and security in the region.

THE PRESIDENT urged all-out participation, including the private sector and the cultural minorities in the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood program. He said that he will step up the movement upon his return from the summit conference in Cancun, Mexico.

Meeting with newsmen, the President stressed that his main concern was to strengthen the domestic situation.

“Our problems are more domestic than anything else,” he declared. “Unless we strengthen our domestic situation, nobody will help us.”

He indicated that when the rainy season ends, he expected to travel more around the country to see the other sectors of the citizenry to explain to them that the KKK “is your program—you better participate in it.”

October 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS announced that the country enjoys adequate rice supplies and there is no need to fear any scarcity.

The President made the assurance after meeting with leaders of agricultural and rice producing sectors of the economy including Agriculture Minister Arturo Tanco, Industry, Trade and Investment Minister Roberto Ongpin, National Food Authority Administrator Jesus Tanchanco and Alfredo Montelibano, President of the Philippine Chamber of Agriculture.

The Chief Executive called an informal conference in the wake of the published statement of Tanco concerning the country’s current rice production levels which the President described as premature and merely precautionary.

Official figures from the Ministry of Agriculture showed that the country’s total rice reserves remained “comfortably high” at 1.1 million tons as of the end of June, 1981, which is equivalent to 104 days supply and which is far more than the 90 days reserve considered safe.

MALACANANG received reports of renewed and brisk copra trading at increased prices—after nearly a month of idle transactions in the domestic markets as—a result of the restoration of the coconut levy by President Marcos.

The upturn in the coconut industry was demonstrated in the increase in coconut oil prices in the international market to 23 U.S. cents a pound, up by two cents from a low of 23 cents registered after the levy was suspended last September 9.

The positive market reaction to the President’s move will favorably affect the country’s estimated 16 million coconut planters and their families who could not sell their copra for almost one month due to the lack of buyers.

THE PRESIDENT designated Brig. Gen. Petronio M. Lapeña as acting commander of the Philippine Air Force vice Maj. Gen. Samuel Sarmiento who has retired.

At the same time, the President designated Brig. Gen. Vicente Piccio Jr. as PAF acting vice commander to take over from Gen. Lapeña.

The turnover at the PAF was in line with the President’s policy of not extending the tenure of extendeé generals unless their services are extremely necessary and there are not qualified replacements.

Before his elevation to the PAF’s highest post, the 56-year-old Lapeña had been PAF’s vice commander for 14 months and commanding general of the First Air Division on concurrent capacity.

October 4—

BAGHDAD.—The Philippine and Iraq Saturday agreed in principle to step up a “protocol of agreement” to assure better labor exchanges and relations.

The agreement was discussed by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, and Iraq Minister of Labor and Social Affairs, Baker Mahmoud Rasoul Al-Beshdari.

Mrs. Marcos said the protocol of agreement would help avoid any potential labor problem and benefit the two countries.

The Philippine government, she added, would organize a mechanism to make sure that the labor force sent to Iraq is efficient and effective.

Recalling her conversation with Iraq President Saddam Hussein, Mrs. Marcos said Philippine construction work here would be in line with the culture, customs and traditions of the Iraqis.

PROVINCIAL CHAPTERS of the Philippine Coconut Producers Federation (COCOFED) sent telegrams to the President “thanking Kim for restoring the coconut levy, for his wisdom and concern for the coconut farmers and for once again coming to the rescue of the coconut industry.”

Ms. Maria Lobregat of the National Board of the COCOFED relayed to the Palace nine telegrams from the coconut-producing regions.

From Quezon province came a wire signed by chapter officers Raul Unson, president; Moises Escueta, secretary/treasurer, and directors Bienvenido Marquez and Judge Roman, expressing their gratitude for the restoration of the levy.

The province of Quezon is the largest coconut-producing province and counts with 90,000 to 100,000 workers who depend on coconut for their livelihood.

The President restored the coconut levy, but reduced it from P0.76 per kilo to P0.50 per kilo, last Friday before a large delegation of coconut farmers who converged at Malacañang.

OFFICIAL WEEKS IN REVIEW

October 12—

THE PRESIDENT was gratified by the turn of events in Mindanao when the Muslim population have thrown their support behind the government's programs.

He said he was happy over this development because it vindicated his policy of attraction and reconciliation, instead of pursuing a military solution to the secessionist problem

The President reported on this development during his talks, with Dr. Mana Saeed Al Otaiha, minister of petroleum and natural resources of the United Arab Emirates (UAE) who called on him and the First Lady Imelda Romualdez Marcos, at Malacañang.

Dr. Otaiha arrived here with a group of Arab businessmen for a four-day private visit to explore business climate in the country.

He expressed the desire of his government for the President and the First Lady to visit his country at some time in the future.

The President told Otaiha that it was the government's intention to develop Mindanao on the same level as the other parts of the country. He ported out that the biggest hydroelectric plants were located in the island where available energy has increased 600 per-cent since 1973.

The President has repeatedly encouraged Arab investments in the country, including joint ventures.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos has approved the land investment trust to allow property owners who cannot make improvements on their own to enter into joint ventures with the government to construct new buildings.

The First Lady designated Human Settlements Deputy Minister Jose Conrado Benitez as program action officer in a meeting with the mayors, vice mayors and officials of the Metro Manila Commission at Malacañang.

The land investment trust would enable 8-million people in Metro Manila to live more comfortably within a small area and near their places of work.

Mrs. Marcos said urban renewal is important because portions of the city are deteriorating and many properties have remained idle at a time when there is an acute housing shortage.

* * * * *

October 17—

THE PRESIDENT has ordered the government financing institutions to place in trust all acquired and foreclosed real estate assets. The move paves the way for the Ministry of Human Settlements to use these assets in its massive housing and land development projects.

By issuing Letter of Instruction 1170 today, October 17, the President created a Land Investment Trust (LIT). Under the program, the Development Bank of the Philippines, the Philippine National Bank and the Government Service Insurance System will transfer their acquired and foreclosed assets to support the government shelter program.

Through the LIT, the human settlements ministry hopes to make use of some P10 billion in frozen properties owned by the financing institutions to spur the urban renewal program initiated by the First Lady.

The ministry will determine whether these properties can be used for housing and land development. It will also see whatever those properties should be sold or exchanged for assets that could be used for housing and land development.

EDUCATION MINISTER ONOFRE D. CORPUS presided over a four-hour meeting with various student leaders, campus journalists, and heads of high institutions of learning, and agreed on:

- 1) The recognition of existing lawful student organizations;
- 2) The restoration of student publications and organizations, including student councils and fraternities in all universities and colleges.

Minister Corpus said student leaders can henceforth participate in the formulation of policies and decisions affecting the schools.

“This will erase all doubts regarding the imagined restrictions the government has imposed on the establishment of lawful student organizations,” Minister Corpus said.

In a memorandum circular, Minister Corpus laid down the requirements of constitutions and by laws governing campus organizations and periodicals, the election of officers, high academic standards for editors and other staff members, and disciplinary measures for those violating the policies.

Corpus said that in all cases the associations and publications will be supportive of the purposes and goals of the state’s educational program and the individual objectives of the institutions.

THE FIRST LADY and Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos took off on the regular Philippine Air Lines flight last night for New York where she will address the plenary session of the 156-nation body next Monday, reporting as chairman of the UN commission of human settlements.

President Marcos, daughter Imee and government officials as well as friends gave the First Lady a warm send-off at the airport. The plane took off at 9:35 p.m.

Mrs. Marcos said that the UN commission had accepted the projects of the Ministry of Human Settlements as models to be considered for adoption by whatever countries might be interested in them.

She said that for most countries, human settlements meant building homes for the underprivileged or putting up infrastructure.

“But in the Philippines, human settlements acquired new meaning principally that it should be aimed not only at providing housing, but also to provide services aimed at the whole man,” the First Lady said.

Hence, the Ministry of Human Settlements has been providing for what it has listed down as the 11 basic needs of man, including housing, water supply, electricity, means of livelihood, recreation, transport, and others.

The First Lady also said that she would look for new markets in the United States for products to be manufactured under the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) livelihood program.

October—31

FOREIGN MINISTER CARLOS P. ROMULO called for the establishment of a world security system developed by common consent and implemented in the common interest.

Speaking before the first political and security affairs committee of the UN, Romulo said that global arrangement is needed in which states will feel it both safe and feasible to consider disarmament.

Security can no longer be provided on a unilateral basis in this nuclear age because international efforts for disarmament is being in a “state of essential paralysis,” Romulo said.

“But logic and experience bring us to the same conclusion that absolute autonomy and self-interest are wholly at odds with the capacity of international community to develop the modalities for the maintenance of international peace and security,” Romulo said.

“This is truly a revolutionary precept in a world of semi-sovereign states,” Romulo said of his proposal for a global security system.

He stressed the importance of concrete steps for carrying out arms reductions and providing for positive instruments of security such as the UN satellite monitoring agency proposed by France.

ACTING MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS MANUEL COLLANTES said that the Third World countries were pressing for an early resolution of the conflicts between the rich and poor nations, especially the setting of commodity prices.

Many Third World countries complain that their products, such as coffee, tin, sugar and vegetable oil are underpriced in the world market.

On the other hand, the goods that they buy from industrialized nations keep going up in price, Collantes said.

Also up for discussion are the policies of specialized agencies such as the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, and the General Agreement on Trade and Tariff (GATT), which control the monetary system and trade.

Minister Collantes was optimistic that the issue of holding the global negotiations would be resolved shortly.

He said that he would give a copy of President Marcos' report to each of the other ASEAN members—Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, and Thailand.

November 1—

THE FIRST LADY, IMELDA R. MARCOS, has formally launched the Philippine General Hospital Foundation, Inc., to develop fully the PGH as a premier hospital for all kinds of people, rich and poor.

The organization of the PGH foundation is in line with the program of the government to provide the masses with basic hospital support, Mrs. Marcos said.

Those named to the board of trustees were Chief Justice Enrique M. Fernando, Governor Jaime Laya of the Central Bank, Social Security System Administrator Gilberto Teodoro, Chairman Cesar Zalamea of the Development Bank of the Philippines, and Edgardo J. Angara, President of the University of the Philippines.

There will be 1,000 charity beds and first class facilities are guaranteed to attract outstanding doctors in the country while providing training to UP medical students.

The First Lady said that the foundation will develop projects to insure the viability of the PGH and determine the financing requirements of the program.

The President was briefed on the P100.7-million anchor projects of the KKK in Region I.

The briefing was made at the Don Mariano Marcos Memorial State University where the President exhorted the educational institutions to work for the improvement of the life of the people.

The President was informed that the KKK projects will benefit 18,476 people.

November 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS reiterated his call for an opposition strong enough to prevent the ruling party from abusing its powers.

“I have always encouraged the growth of a strong opposition because it helps fiscalize the majority party,” the President said to the news people in Laoag City.

The President said that without an effective system of check and balance the tendency among people with power to abuse it will be especially strong in “the long term.”

Solicitor General Estelito P. Mendoza proposed a more effective system for going after misbehaving judges and malpractising lawyers.

Under present procedures no cases will ever reach the high court unless personally motivated complaints decide to go against a judge or lawyer, Mendoza said.

Earlier, the Integrated Bar of the Philippines proposed a grievance procedure under which it would receive, hear and decide all complaints against lawyers.

When the court sought Mendoza’s comment on the proposal, the solicitor general suggested that the IBP should merely prosecute the cases against the lawyers, but the court itself should decide them.

November 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS underscored the role of advertising in disseminating information about goods and services essential to economic development.

In this connection he issued Proclamation No. 2131 declaring November 2–8 as Advertising Week.

“By persuasion, by incentives and by force of law if necessary, we fully intend to keep Philippine advertising focus on its social purpose as much as on its commercial viability,” the President told the 7th Philippine Advertising Congress at the International Convention Center.

The participants included 100 advertising representatives from the United States, Japan, Hongkong, Papua New Guinea and the five member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

* * * * *

President Marcos warned against the exploitation of sex or the exaggering of violence in media advertising.

Instead, he urged the local advertising industry to take more interest in public service causes.

“I should be most pleased if Philippine advertising takes similar interest in these public service causes,” the President said.

The President was pleased at the support the Philippine advertising community extended to political and social reforms, especially the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran programs under the New Republic.

Prime Minister Cesar Virata said that the entire spectrum of Philippine policies is now being reviewed to make the Filipinos cope with “harder times in the coming year”.

He attributed the difficulties ahead to outside economic factors that are likely to affect the Philippines.

“For our country, the possibility of a new recession in the industrialized countries could set back government efforts to revitalize the economy,” Virata told the participants of the 7th Philippine Business Conference.

* * * * *

Prime Minister Cesar Virata considers the policy review to include government programs on energy, nutrition, science and technology.

Top priority is being given to science and technology.

“Development can only proceed faster if we have a sound technological base, strong research and development, and highly skilled manpower,” Virata said.

He said that, side by side with the policy review, the Cabinet was working on a plan to integrate government procurement programs to effect savings.

November 4—

THE FIRST LADY, IMELDA ROMUALDEZ MARCOS met with the members of the US Senate foreign relations committee and stressed the firm commitment of the Philippines as a strategic point in the global security projection of the United States.

Present during the two-hour luncheon meeting with Mrs. Marcos, who was guest of the committee, was Senator Charles Percy Chairman of the US Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Deputy Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci, Sen. Sam Hayakawa, Sen. Charles Matthias, Sen. John Glenn, Admiral James W. Nance and Deputy of White House National Security Adviser James Allen.

Mrs. Marcos stressed to the American officials that under the leadership of President Marcos, the Philippines will remain unflagging in its commitment to freedom and “to anchor its national development programs on the principle of free enterprise.”

She underlined the strategic importance of the Philippines where the American military facilities at Clark and Subic are vital to the maintenance of the balance of power in Asia.

November 5—

PRESIDENT MAPCOS laid down the basic guidelines for the improvement of the economy under the New Republic.

In his meeting with the businessmen during the 7th Philippine Business Conference at Philippine Plaza, the President underscored the need to eliminate price controls on basic commodities.

This move of the President came about because of the claims of some businessmen that the imposition of a ceiling on the prices of the basic commodities works against free enterprise and reduces the income of farmers and livestock producers.

* * * * *

The President told the participants that the government is now “deliberately trying to prime up the economy this year to further reduce inflation rate to a single digit figure.”

This includes the move to inject into the economy some P25 billion before the end of the month. The amount is earmarked for infrastructure projects in 1982.

The President said that the early release of the fund will not only help start work in the coming summer months but will also “enliven business activities.”

* * * * *

President Marcos also issued directives to reduce the production costs of farmers who avail themselves of bank loans through:

1. Elimination of the practice of rural banks and other lending institutions of deducting in advance their interest and other charges on loans they grant to farmers.
2. Possible removal of the barrio savings fund to which farmers are required to contribute.
3. Reduction of the rate of premium payments for crop insurance.

* * * * *

To reduce productions cost of the farmers who avail themselves of government-loanable funds, President Marcos directed the following:

1. The Ministry of Agriculture to study seriously the justification and the benefit of the barrio savings fund which is added to the interest rate the farmer's pay for the loans.
2. The crop insurance corporation to study the actuarial basis of the premium payments so as to reduce them at the lowest levels possible.
3. The Central Bank to convene rural bankers to assess the possibility of eliminating altogether the practice of discounting interest and of reducing transaction cost.

* * * * *

President Marcos said that the government's primary economic goals designed to establish an industrial sector that will be competitive world wide include the following thrusts:

1. Selectively in what sectors or projects to promote efficiently.
2. A new export-promotion program that will specify products to promote and markets to penetrate.
3. Making the presence of the Philippines felt in all major trading centers in the world through the setting up of an international network of overseas trading offices.
4. The active participation of the small and medium-scale firms in the export drive to encourage entrepreneurship among the people.

The President urged the business community to continue the dialogue with the government since their views are vital in the decision-making process.

November 6—

THE FIRST LADY, IMELDA R. MARCOS delivered the Philippine policy statement before the General Assembly as a special representative of President Marcos.

The First Lady urged the United Nations General Assembly to launch during its current session crucial global negotiations on the vital economic issues taken up during the Cancun summit.

“The people of the world who face starvation see that global negotiations is the only way to reform the inequities of the current international economic order,” the First Lady said.

* * * * *

The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos enumerated three Philippine proposals during her 20-minute speech at the United Nations General Assembly.

These are:

1. A broad consensus is essential for the negotiations to begin in view of the interdependent nature of the problems to be addressed.
2. Package agreements will have to be arrived at in order to accommodate the different priorities of the participants.
3. It may be desirable to assign specific agenda items to specialized bodies in order to reduce the subjects of the negotiations to manageable proportions while maintaining central guidance and coordination.

After her speech, nearly 100 top diplomats in the General Assembly hall congratulated the First Lady.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said that the Defense Ministry will continue to live up to the expectations of the people in promoting their safety and welfare, in defending their security and integrity, and in attaining their aspirations.

On the occasion of the 42nd anniversary celebration of the Defense Ministry held in Camp Aguinaldo, the Defense Minister said that the Armed Forces must continue to pit its strength, courage and determination against, the forces which persist in undermining the people's democratic ideals.

“The judgment of history shall place a high mark on the readiness, willingness and wholehearted support of the Filipino soldier in adjusting himself to the demands of the New Republic,” Enrile said.

Deputy Prime Minister Jose Roño, concurrently Local Government Minister, directed all barangay brigade coordinating councils at the regional, provincial, city, municipal, and barangay levels to convene immediately to formulate plans for direct involvement of brigade members in the livelihood program.

Some seven million members of barangay brigades and other existing barangay structures throughout the country were mobilized in support of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK).

“It is both timely and necessary that existing barangay institutions be tapped to generate a community-based awareness of KKK objectives and assist in the organization of livelihood activities at the barangay levels,” Roño said.

* * * * *

Education Minister Onofre D. Corpus urged the heads of universities and colleges to face the realities of changing times.

Corpus told some 50 presidents, owners and deans of institutions of higher learning from all over Region I in the second of a series of dialogues in Baguio City.

He fielded questions on MEC Order No. 57 which provides guidelines for the immediate organization of student associations and publication of campus organs.

Corpus was assisted by Assemblyman Felipe de Vera, minister of state for education; Deputy Minister Hermeneildo C. Dumlao; Director Bernardo Reyes of Region I; and City Superintendent Jose Olarte.

The Minister stressed the need to recognize peaceful assembly and publication as primordial rights of the nation’s studentry.

“But so transcendental are the rights that they impose heavy responsibilities and demand accountability from school authorities and students,” Corpus said.

November 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS reiterated the commitment of the Philippines to the principle of humanitarianism for which the Red Cross stands.

“As one of the 150 nations that are signatories to the Red Cross-initiated Geneva conventions, the Philippines is committed wholeheartedly to the principles for which your organization stand,” the President said to the participants of the 24th International Conference of the Red Cross at the Philippine International Convention Center.

Some 800 delegates from 128 Red Cross Societies, 149 countries, and 63 international organizations attended the six-day conference, the second to be held in Asia since 1934.

The President pointed out that the good work of the organization has taught the Filipino people to share what they have with all of mankind.

November 8—

THE FIRST LADY, IMELDA R. MARCOS urged press attaches and the government’s media representatives abroad to take a more aggressive and positive stand in their jobs.

“You must approach your work with a positive, broad outlook—on our people, the country and the other nations. You take the offensive and don’t be content yourself with being defensive,” she told them during a two-hour meeting in New York presided over by Media Affairs Minister Gregorio S. Cendaña.

Mrs. Marcos also briefed the participants on development programs of the government, particularly the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) livelihood programs.

November 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS awarded trophies to the “Outstanding Agrarian Reform Beneficiaries” in pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 27 or the Tenant Emancipation Act.

The beneficiaries were those who excelled in their respective fields of endeavor as agrarian reform farmers by intensifying livelihood projects.

The President gave the awards at the President’s office at the Batasang Pambansa in Quezon City.

Agrarian Reform Minister Conrado F. Estrella said the awarding ceremonies highlighted this year’s celebration of the signing of P.D. No. 27, which has emancipated more than one million tenants in rice and corn lands.

President Marcos has recommended to the Batasang Pambansa five measures to intensify efforts to build on the benefits of land reform.

Addressing the resumption of the fourth regular session of the Batasan, the President said that these measures would increase incomes and employment opportunities in the countryside.

The five recommendations by the President for the Batasan are the following:

1. Open more lands for production, by reclassifying all lands into their most economic use, including public lands classified as “forest” by laws.
2. Extend priority in the grant of leases and other similar dispositions to those who occupy lands which exceed 18 percent, as indicated in forestry and related laws, which they have occupied, farmed, and developed for a reasonable period of years, as determined by the Ministry of Agrarian Reform and the Ministry of Natural Resources.
3. Give priority to landless rural workers and upland farmers in the use of idle or abandoned agricultural, timber and marshlands.
4. Extend additional fiscal incentives to timber-license holders and corporations created to develop industrial tree plantations, which employ individually or collectively upland farmers and landless rural workers.
5. Give priority in the grant of loans to organized upland farmers and landless rural workers who implement viable KKK projects.

The President emphasized that land reform is the country’s declaration of self-reliance.

November 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered National Sugar Trading Corporation to distribute sugar more efficiently with retailers.

The order was prompted by mounting complaints of sugar shortage in Metro Manila.

“There seems to be something wrong with the distribution,” the President said.

President Marcos was apparently convinced that the shortage was artificial and that the commodity was being held up somewhere along the way, from the producers to the markets.

The artificial shortage was attributed to the suspension of operations of the Victorias refinery, the Balayan refinery and by the hitches in the shipment of sugar from the Visayas to Manila, Nasutra Vice President Jose A. Unson said.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile directed the heads of the four services of the armed forces to use their power of summary dismissal against abusive subordinates.

Enrile ordered that erring military men shall not be allowed to go scot free after their dismissal from service, but to be turned over to civilian authorities having jurisdiction over their cases or misbehavior.

“Serious indecorum and lapses in discipline among the AFP soldiery should be dealt with drastically in accordance with disciplinary procedures,” Enrile said.

He added that the principle of command responsibility should apply at all times in order that the AFP will continue to live up to the expectations of the people.

* * * * *

Deputy Prime Minister Jose Roño said that barangay elections would be held in April or May.

Roño explained that the local government code had to be approved first because it would provide that manner of electing barangay officials.

The KBL is choosing between two modes.

They are:

1. Direct election of the barangay council members for each position; and
2. Positions will be based on the number of votes the candidates get, so that the topnotcher becomes the barangay chairman.

Roño said the election would be held “because the people asked for it during the June 16 presidential elections and referendum.”

November 11—

THE BATASANG PAMBANSA gave President Marcos full support for his proposal at the Cancun summit on food, monetary and financial issues, as well as a new round of multilateral trade negotiations, and on the question of energy.

In a resolution authored by Minister of State Emmanuel Pelaez which the assembly passed unanimously, the President and all pertinent branches of government were asked to pursue active efforts to maintain the momentum of the spirit of Cancun.

The Batasan resolution also expressed the appreciation of the assembly for the efforts of the President and his participation at the Cancun summit.

PRESIDENT MARCOS stepped into the conflict-ridden coconut industry as he appealed to its leaders, particularly the United Coconut Mills to come up with a short-term solution to the immediate problem of the coconut farmers.

The President called the attention of the industry leaders to the plight of the small farmers who could not sell copra at reasonable prices.

The coconut levy of 76 centavos per kilo, suspended September 9, was restored by the President October 2 at 50 centavos per kilo.

The President explained that the levy feeds the coconut industry stabilization fund which is split as follows: 20 centavos for the replanting program, 4 centavos for the scholarship program, 12.5 centavos for the insurance program, 8.5 centavos for the mothballed coconut mills of the Unicom, 3 centavos for the operations of the Coconut Planters Federation, and 2 centavos for the Philippine Coconut Authority.

The President directed Majority Floorleader Jose Roño to recommend policies regarding problems of the coconut industry.

November 13—

United Nations, New York

THE SECOND COMMITTEE unanimously adopted the Philippine sponsored resolution calling for the implementation of the Manila Declaration on World Tourism.

Speaking on the passage of the resolution, Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo, who was head of the Philippine delegation to the 36th session of the General Assembly said, "This development is a recognition of the efforts and contributions of our government, particularly Tourism Minister Jose D. Aspiras, in the field of tourism."

The resolution urges states to give due attention to the principles of the Manila Declaration in the formulation of tourism policies and programs within the framework of the work of the World Tourism Organization and in accordance with their national priorities.

THE BATASAN steering committee has finally reported out for approval the proposed rules of procedure in impeachment proceedings, the first ever to be adopted by a Philippine legislative body.

Deputy Prime Minister Jose A. Roño, majority floor leader and committee vice chairman, presented the proposed rules in substitution of a resolution filed earlier by six KBL assemblymen.

The rules will apply in all proceedings for the impeachment of the President of the Philippines, members of the Supreme Court, the members of the Supreme Court, the members of constitutional commissions.

These officers may be removed from office on impeachment for and conviction of culpable violation of the Constitution, treason, bribery, other high crimes, or graft and corruption.

The rules will also apply to all public officers who, by special law, may be removed from office on the same ground.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on all government ministries with attaches abroad to coordinate and create an efficient information apparatus.

In a letter to the cabinet executive committee, the President deplored the expenditures allotted for the information drive abroad of various ministries and government agencies which show very little effect.

"I noticed that we are spending substantial amounts for representatives abroad of the Ministries of Public Information, Tourism, Trade, Defense, and Labor, as well as the bureau of internal revenue," the President said.

The President directed a review of all offices involved with the aim in view of coordinating their operations.

* * * * *

DEFENSE MINISTER Juan Ponce Enrile encouraged dialogues with any sector of society who feels aggrieved or oppressed.

"Dialogues are essential to the dynamic exchange of communication in the conduct of government," Enrile said.

In a speech before members of the Rotary club of Makati West at the Mandarin Hotel, Enrile said that the government has always adhered to the time-honored principle that reasonable men can always come together and peacefully resolve the issues that divided them.

A BILL making a recruiter and his foreign principal liable for the salaries of a recruited worker during the lifetime of his conduct was filed at the Batasang Pambansa.

Parliamentary Bill No. 1739 was authored by all the 16 assemblymen of Region 6 (Western Visayas) led by Teodoro U. Benedicto.

The authors said that unscrupulous recruiters have lured jobseekers to apply for overseas employment with promises of high-paying positions.

The Solons said the recruited laborers were often deceived because the terms and conditions of their contracts were superseded by different contracts with reduced benefits, and that some had to return home at their own expense, disappointed and poorer.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the Philippines is ready to demonstrate its determination to help feed the hungry people of the world.

The President said that the country could do this because it was already sufficient in food staples.

“We are actually an exporter of rice,” the President said.

The Philippines no longer expects food assistance from the United States under US Public Law 480 because it has become self-sufficient in food.

* * * * *

AGRICULTURE MINISTER Arturo R. Tanco spearheaded the move in following up the proposals to discuss and map out strategies to overcome world hunger during a current session of the Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome.

Other members of the Philippine delegation include Natural Resources Minister Teodoro Peña and National Food Administrator Jesus Tanchangco.

Addressing the FAO conference Friday, Tanco, two-time president of the World Food Council, called for preparatory meetings to pave the way for global negotiations on food issues.

“First, we must draw up a concrete and integrated global action program to be placed within the international development strategy for this decade and the next,” Tanco said.

Tanco urged the body to organize through FAO and other UN food bodies to draw up a global action program food.

November 15—

INFORMATION MINISTER GREGORIO S. CENDAÑA called on the broadcast industry to provide more public affairs and cultural programs.

“Broadcasting is a tremendous power and responsibility which can never be wholly addressed to commercial ends,” Cendaña said to the participants during the seventh-level management conference of the Kapisanan ng mga Brodcaster sa Pilipinas at the Philippine Plaza.

Cendaña stressed the concept of broadcasting as a public service to the nation. But he added that this should not mean that broadcasting should be the service tool of government interest and objectives.

* * * * *

SPEAKING FOR THE government broadcasting network, Cendaña stressed that “it is not the intent of government to compete with private broadcasting networks.”

He said the work of the government network is complementary to the services provided by the private sector.

Cendaña said that in the future, the government broadcasting network would direct the greater part of its attention to public affairs and cultural programs, and a little less to entertainment.

November 16—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos underscored the role of water in solving the problems of man.

Mrs. Marcos was guest of honor at the opening of the 3rd Asia Pacific Regional Water Supply conference at the Philippine International Convention Center which was being attended by delegates from 21 countries and representatives from allied professions.

“We must not treat water as a sectoral activity but as a starting point to solve various human problems like ecology, energy and mobility,” Mrs. Marcos, said.

Education Minister Onofre D. Corpuz and leaders of student militant organizations agreed on four items of their 5-point demand in a three-hour dialogue.

Corpuz and the students agreed on the following:

1. Students will draft their constitution and by-laws and determine policies and programs on students activities in accordance with the charter.
2. Student officers will be elected in popular elections to be called yearly or in accordance with usual frequency.
3. The student leaders will be consulted and will participate in the formulation of school policies affecting students.
4. The school administration, having the machinery, will collect student fees and hold the fund in trust for disbursement by the council.

President Marcos said that radio stations considered liabilities to society would lose their franchises Dec. 31, 1981.

At the same time, those which have not complied with technicalities of the law would be given one year to remedy their deficiencies, the President said.

The President made these announcements in a meeting with the Kapisanan ng Mga Brodcaster sa Pilipinas (KBP) and also with owners and managers of broadcast stations.

He also announced a revamp of the board of censors for motion pictures, renaming the body the Board of Standards, which would super vise and control moving pictures, television, and radio programs.

The President increased the membership of the board and required all to be appointed to it to work full time.

Gen. Fabian C. Ver, Armed Forces chief of staff, told some 60 defense experts from 16 countries in the Asia and Pacific that the Philippines has been successful in blending conventional and non-conventional war fare against insurgency.

“Our own experience in Mindanao is an example of a situation that effectively uses both conventional and non-conventional methods of combat operations,” Ver said to the participants of the five-day Fifth Pacific Armies Seminar at the Century Park Sheraton hotel.

Ver said that the nature and pattern of the conflicts that have emerged in Asia have implicitly set the requirements for a new orientation in defense operations.

Training is geared towards the development of the soldier as the most critical factor in our defense capabilities because the soldier remains the most important weapon in combat, Gen. Ver said.

A COMMITTEE has been formed to study proposals aimed at eliminating hazing at the Philippine Military Academy (PMA).

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile organized the committee and appointed as chairman of the committee Deputy Defense Minister Jose M. Crisol, a PMA alumnus and former faculty member at the academy.

Enrile said the committee will draw up policies that will rid the PMA of the malaise called hazing.

The formation of the committee came in the wake of the death of cadet Andres S. Ramos, Jr., son of the commanding general of PC-INP Recom 4, who was allegedly beaten up senior cadets.

Hazing, one of the initiation rites at the Philippine Military Academy, entails making plebes (first year cadets) to undergo physical hardships.

President Marcos named three more associate justices of the Supreme Court, leaving only one vacancy in the 15-member tribunal.

The President had pledged to fill up the high court vacancies to speed up the disposition of cases and ease the backlog of about half a million cases.

The new justices are former Tanodbayan Vicente Ericta and Justices Efren Plana and Vanicio Escolin of the Court of Appeals.

The President appointed former Sandiganbayan Associate Justice Bernardo Fernandez as new Tanodbayan.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile ordered an investigation of the alleged spying activities of the military and the police at the University of the Philippines in Diliman, Quezon City.

Enrile acted on request of UP president Edgardo J. Angara following the arrest of Pat. Francisco Basierto of the Northern Police District.

The incident, Enrile said, if verified to be true, is a violation of an agreement he had entered into with student leaders, and a serious violation of laws.

“No less than the credibility and sincerity of the ministry and of the government are at stake in this case and that, therefore, every effective measure must be instituted to insure that there will be no infraction whatsoever of the agreement,” Enrile said.

Enrile ordered Maj. Gen. Prospero A. Olivas, acting PC chief, to find out who are involved, including those who may have ordered the alleged spying activities. He said those found guilty would be dismissed and be criminally charged.

Prime Minister Cesar Virata decided to ask Meralco to increase its electricity service to an area with-in a 60-kilometer radius from Manila during a cabinet meeting.

While reviewing the energy program, the cabinet agreed also to rationalize the pricing system of electricity—noting that power companies servicing contiguous municipalities charge varying rates, resulting in popular dissatisfaction.

Increasing the coverage of Meralco, which charges the cheapest rates for consumption of up to 200 kilowatts per month would mean a better deal for more families.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue is coming out with new rules on the release of tax refunds to minimize irregularities in the processing and mailing of refund claims.

“The new procedure will come in the form of increasing the amount covered by the tax credit memos,” Revenue Commissioner Romulo M. Villa said.

Under existing rules, the BIR issues tax credit memos for refund claims of P30 and less and treasury warrants for higher refund claims.

Villa said that tax memos can only be encashed by taxpayers with their employees, while treasury warrants of refund checks can be encashed almost anywhere.

The Supreme Court has upheld the power of the military tribunals to try civilians charged with subversion and other crimes involving national security despite the lifting of martial law.

“Whatever skepticism may exist as to the continued suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus and the power of the military commission to try the petitioners in view of the lifting or martial law, should be dispelled by the clear mandate of Proclamation No. 2045 dated January 17, 1981,” the tribunal through Justice Hermogenes Concepcion, Jr. said.

With this ruling, the tribunal dismissed the habeas corpus petition tiled by former newspaperman Saturnino Ocampo, Antonio Liao, Ramon Isberto, and Evelyn Sarmiento—suspected leaders of the Communist Party of the Philippines.

The tribunal said that the proclamation mandated existing military courts to continue with the final determination of cases pending before them which may not be transferred to civilian courts because of double jeopardy.

The tribunal also cited previous rulings sustaining the jurisdiction of the military commissions to hear and determine cases of rebellion, subversion, and other crimes against national security filed against civilians.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER JOSE A. ROÑO, majority floor leader and chairman of an 11-man presidential committee on coconut policy, said that the assemblymen and Unicom officials will meet at 3 p.m. today to iron out minor details in the agreement.

Roño said the assemblymen had earlier proposed the following:

1. Daily prices of coconut oil in the world market must be published every day.
2. These prices should be translated in terms of copra, minus costs of handling, labor, oil extracting, etc.
3. Copra prices must be published daily in Manila, Cebu, Lucena, Legaspi, Tacloban, Davao, Cagayan de Oro, and other places where coconut is normally traded.
4. Unicom copra dealers should be the price leaders. They should buy copra at the quoted prices, minus production and handling costs.
5. Any individual trader may buy and compete with present dealers or Unicom buyers with assurance that Unicom will buy the copra bought from the localities.

The immediate need is to remedy the present deplorable condition of the coconut industry which must be saved for national interest.

President Marcos urged the free peoples of the Pacific to undergo sacrifices and discourage adventurism by predatory countries.

“All countries should now look into their own indigenous capability so that they can contribute whatever strength they may have to show that there is a will to sacrifice, which probably may not be enough to offset any adventurism. We should, perhaps, for the time being demonstrate our intention and willingness to sacrifice in the hope it may be sufficient to prevent a catastrophe,” the President sounded this call before participants of the Fifth Armies Management seminar, who called on him at Malacañang.

The seminar is being held in the Philippines for the first time. It is designed to enable participating countries to exchange information and views on the peace and security of the region.

The First Lady and Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos said that the first duty of educators would be to provide an environment of freedom, inspiration and motivation to the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran.

Mrs. Marcos said that educators should be sensitive to the needs of the people, instead of taking care of their own needs.

“You should put yourself always in the place of others so that you will have the right perspective in terms of values,” the First Lady said at the opening session of the Philippine Association of Schools’ Superintendents’ meeting.

Minister of Education Onofre D. Corpuz and Deputy Minister Hermenegildo Dumlao led the officials during a meeting at the University of Life in Pasig.

Metro Manila Gov. Imelda Romualdez Marcos said that the families of the victims in the film center tragedy will receive aid from both the government and the contractors of the project.

Mrs. Marcos said she has directed Human Settlements Deputy Minister Jose Conrado Benitez and Cultural Center authorities to extend the necessary support and assistance to the victims and their families.

She said the injured workers were being taken care of in hospitals.

The First Lady said that while accidents like this happen, especially in projects of the size of the Film Center building, steps are being taken to prevent its repetition in the future.

Mrs. Marcos directed Highways and Public Works Minister Jesus S. Hipolito and Human Settlements Deputy Minister Jose Conrado Benitez to probe into the cause of the tragedy.

The United Coconut Oil Mills (Unicom) agreed to buy copra in all its buying stations in accordance with the international price of coconut oil to the extent of its share in the market.

During a caucus of 56 assemblymen from the coconut-producing regions, the Unicom agreed to help perk up copra trading which has gone down to a record low for several months.

Unicom officials said that at the international price of 25 cents per pound of coconut oil, it would buy copra at the rate of P1.50 per kilo at the mill gate and at P1.71 per kilo if the international price is quoted at 27 cents.

The Unicom said it will post daily in all its buying stations throughout the country the international price of oil which will serve as basis for computing the local price of copra in the provinces.

PRESIDENT MARCOS banned video game machines and ordered the national police and the Metro Manila commission to enforce the ban strictly “without any exception.”

The President’s directive was in response to the widespread outcry against the proliferation of video game machines, the latest craze among students in amusements centers, mostly in Metro Manila.

The President enforced strictly the ban in accordance with Presidential Decree No. 519, which was issued on July 23, 1974.

Under Section 1 of PD 519, the operation, possession, use and importation of pinball and slot machines and other similar devices or paraphernalia used for their operation is unlawful and punishable by fine and imprisonment.

In a letter to the President, the Chamber of Filipino Retailers, the Barangay Ladies Auxiliary brigade and the Kalipunan ng Kababaihang Filipina said “the devilish contraption wreak havoc on the morals and discipline of our youth.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS hailed the growing stronger relations between the Philippines and Saudi Arabia.

During a luncheon tendered by the First Couple in honor of the visiting Jeddah Mayor Mohammed Said Al-Farsi and his party at Malacañang, the President expressed confidence that the visit of the mayor would further forged a lasting relationship between the Philippines and Saudi Arabia.

He cited the efforts of Saudi Arabian Ambassador Fawzi Ahdul-Majid Shobokshi in promoting friendship between the two countries.

The President also expressed gratitude to the people and government of Saudi Arabia for the hospitality extended to Filipinos—government officials, professionals, and pilgrims to Mecca—as well as to the visit of the First Lady to Jeddah.

The mayor of Jeddah said that it will be the continuing endeavor of his people to cultivate and promote strong friendly relations with the Filipino people.

A consortium of general contractors, specialty contractors, and engineering consultants has been formed as Kapisanan ng mga Kontratistang Pilipino, Inc. to get a bigger slice of the billion-dollar infrastructure projects in the Middle East.

The move is in line with a recommendation submitted by Public Works and Highways Minister Jesus S. Hipolito to the cabinet’s executive committee calling for increased government financial support and reorientation of the country’s banking system so that Filipino construction firms could get more contracts abroad.

Hipolito said that the domestic banking system should shift from its collateral orientation to contract orientation since big Filipino contractors have a hard time raising cash and guarantee bonds needed to win multi-million dollar contracts.

They eventually lose out and end up as project consultants, Hipolito said.

The Kapisanan ng mga Kontratistang Pilipino, Inc. stressed that prime contracts will not only increase employment opportunities for our people but will also invigorate our construction industry.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA, became the sister city of Metro Manila today as the First Lady, Metro Manila Gov. Imelda R. Marcos, and Jeddah Mayor Muhammed Said al-Farsi signed the Declaration of Relation and Sister City Affiliation.

The agreement was signed at the reception hall of the Philippine International Convention center.

Mrs. Marcos said that this was the first time that Metro Manila had forged a bond with another metropolis “which is no less than the great religious and cultural city of Jeddah.”

Mayor al-Farsi described the new relations between the two cities as a “milestone in the relations of the two cities, as well as between the Republic of the Philippines and the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.”

Both agreed to cooperate in strengthening ties of mutual understanding and international friendship, and to promote the welfare of the citizens of the two cities.

Economic Planning Minister Placido L. Mapa, Jr. said that the new five-year development plan for the year 1983-87 is being finalized by the government to give higher priority to low-cost housing programs to be implemented nationwide.

In an address before the 1981 Congress of the Philippine Institute of Environmental Planners, Minister Mapa said the increased emphasis on the housing program is intended to remedy the housing backlog that has piled up over the years.

To be led by the Ministry of Human Settlements, the housing program is expected to get more substantial government allocations and attention in the new development plan.

Minister Mapa called on environmental planners to support the housing program by helping plan and design housing units and projects that will meet the growing demand for low-cost housing in both urban and rural areas.

“The government will rely on your ingenuity, especially in designing houses with as high a local content as possible and a minimum of imported materials at the least cost,” Mapa said.

President Marcos urged all government agencies on the national and local levels to actively support the athletic development program of the country.

The president also assured his continued personal support to the program during a meeting with the 450 man Philippine delegation to the” 11th Southeast Asian Games who called on him at Malacañang.

With Rizal Gov. Isidro Rodriguez as head, the delegation was composed of 15 officials, 75 coaches, trainers and managers, 248 male athletes, and 113 female athletes, who will see action from Dec. 6-15 during the 11th Southeast Asian Games.

Michael Keon, executive vice president of the SEAG organization committee and Gintong Alay project chairman, presented the teams to the First Couple.

The President underscored the importance of athletics in bringing about the true dimensions of democracy, which are equalization and social mobility.

The First Lady, Imelda E. Marcos, conveyed her wishes for the triumph of the teams, saying that “your victory is the victory of the Filipino people.”

Labor Minister Blas F. Ople was worried about current job losses cresting towards 68,000 even before the year is over.

Ople asked Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata, chairman of the cabinet to assign top priority in the cabinet calendar to the unemployment situation and job creation plans to offset the economic slump.

He urged the prime minister to investigate the alleged sabotage of President Marcos’ call for new industrial investment.

Ople charged that prolonged inaction or careless veto of new enterprises by some government financial institutions were sabotaging national efforts to create jobs.

“The government should recognize and encourage the small minority of entrepreneurs who elect to risk their capital in new enterprises to counter the current economic and unemployment problems,” Ople said.

Minister Ople pointed out the case of a Bulacan businessman whose bid was rejected by the DBP had committed P40 million of his own funds to start a yarn factory.

The new factory would have created 3,000 jobs in a depressed municipality of San Ildefonso, Bulacan.

Ople urged government financial institutions to set the example of helping generate employment by supporting those who would like to put up new business ventures.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has declared Nov. 29 as “Bible Sunday” and the period from Nov. 29 to Dec. 5 as “National Bible Week.”

In issuing Proclamation No. 2134, the President said that “it is fitting and proper that national attention be focused on the important role played by the reading and study of the Bible in molding the moral fibre of our citizenry.”

The President encouraged radio stations throughout the country to air Bible readings everyday during the Bible Week.

“The Bible has been recognized by both Christians and non-Christians alike as an excellent source of principles for the development of moral character and personal discipline,” the President said.

Ricardo B. Jumawan, Philippine Bible Society general secretary, said that Catholic and Protestant congregations throughout the country will observe Bible Sunday in their respective churches.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called today on the 27th Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce to create a hospitable international environment that will favor the earnest efforts of the developing nations to modernize and develop.

Speaking before the business leaders from 75 countries whose organization convenes in Manila for the first time, the President said, “We really must pull together to reactivate again the world economy and create growth for all.”

He told the participants of the conference that in the wake of the recent summit of heads of state and government in Cancun, Mexico, there was more optimism about the world economic situation and about the overall prospects for economic enterprise as a whole.

The president said the Cancun summit has paved the way for concerted effort and cooperation, but that much hard work lies ahead for all the nations in regard to fulfilling the spirit of the summit.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the mobilization of all government agencies to provide immediate assistance to areas stricken by typhoon “Anding.”

The President also directed the Ministry of Trade and Industry and the National Food Authority to monitor the movement of prices of prime commodities in order to prevent unscrupulous traders from taking advantage of bad weather and increasing prices of such commodities.

In his speech at the “Unlad Bahay” award ceremonies in Malacañang, the President said that he ordered the immediate mobilization of government agencies not only to provide immediate assistance but also to help prevent losses.

“Forgive me for having these things in my mind. I am only thinking of the effects of the typhoon on lives, private property, including crops and government installations,” the President said.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos cancelled her appointment at the Philippine International Convention Center to help monitor the situation.

A group of assemblymen asked President Marcos to review the government position renouncing the Philippine claim to Sabah in view of recent developments in that country which, seriously threaten Philippine security.

In a resolution filed at the Batasan Pambansa, the group headed by Minority Floorleader Mariano R. Logarta said the Philippines has a historic right or legal title to the territory of Sabah and therefore the Philippine claim cannot be renounced unilaterally and without the consent of the Filipino people.

The authors said revival of the Philippine claim would give notice to the world of the displeasure of the Filipino nation over the reported acts of the Malaysian government in giving aid and comfort to foreign-based Filipino rebels subverting the Philippine government.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, noting the success of the self-employment assistance (SEA) program of the Ministry of Social Services and Development (MSS), urged the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) secretariat yesterday to consider it for the barangay livelihood development program.

The President congratulated the awardees for their success despite their handicaps during the SEA Unlad-Buhay awards at Malacañang's Maharlika Hall.

He also congratulated the officials and employees of the MSSD, particularly Minister Sylvia Monies, for being good stewards of the public trust.

"The awardees in fashioning a better future for themselves have set a model for all Filipinos to emulate," the President said.

The SEA program was conceived to develop self-reliance instead of giving outright doles to the needy.

Eligible for assistance are those whose families have not more than P300 per individual or P5, 000 per family.

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, who is going to the United Nations in New York city next month to speak on the disabled, said she was elated over the success of the SEA Unlad-Buhay program.

President Marcos, getting off from a helicopter which flew him over the path of destruction of typhoon "Anding," directed all provincial officials in stricken areas to submit to him estimates of losses to crops and property.

For two hours, the presidential helicopter flew above tree-tops in Bulacan, Pampanga, Nueva Ecija, and Tarlac. These were the provinces hardest-hit by the typhoon which hit Central Luzon Tuesday.

Before taking off, the President told newsmen in an interview that he had authorized the release of initial amounts needed to rehabilitate affected areas on the basis of first reports and requests for assistance from officials of the provinces affected by the typhoon.

After his aerial survey, the President directed all provincial officials of typhoon-ravaged areas to conduct estimates of losses to crops and property.

He issued the same directives to all ministries and government agencies involved in relief and rehabilitation.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said today that the 11th Southeast Asian Games would be held as scheduled from Dec. 6 to 15.

In an interview with sportwriters, the President said that with or without the problems besetting the organizers, the 10-day multi-nation sportsfest would push through.

The President made the announcement a day after Michael M. Keon, vice-chairman and treasurer of the SEAG organizing committee, said that unfinished facilities threatened to postpone the games.

“Aber Canlas and other contractors are there to meet this problem,” the President said.

Canlas is deputy minister of public works and highways.

“The Ministry of Public Works has assured us that their personnel will do everything possible to make the changes demanded by the Philippine Olympic committee,” Andolong said.

President Marcos ruled that government retirees would get credit for the years they worked as casual or temporary employes in the computation of their retirement pay.

Before this, the years spent as a casual worker were taken out in the computation of retirement pay.

This rule would apply as well to military reservists—who are not in the regular Armed Forces of the Philippines—who were called to active service and fought in World War II.

The President issued this directive to the Ministry of the Budget and other agencies concerned following an inquiry of this point from Malacañang newsmen.

Thousands of government workers retiring under Republic Act No. 1616 will benefit from the ruling of the President.

Education Minister Onofre R. Corpuz and student leaders agreed in a lengthy dialogue yesterday on policies that would govern student organizations and publications.

The policies are to be ratified in another conference on Dec. 7, and then embodied in a supplementary memorandum order to be issued by Corpuz immediately thereafter.

The meeting also covered protection against further tuition fee increases.

More than 30 campus leaders and journalists representing some 15 associations and universities and colleges in Metro Manila and other key cities and capital towns attended the dialogue.

In the conference, it was agreed that students may publish school organs independently, and that no individual who is not a staff member may determine the contents of student periodicals.

No student may be suspended or denied admission, except for cause and after due process. Students would determine whether to revive the campus constitution and by laws suspended by martial law, or to frame new ones.

Food Minister Jesus Tanchangco called yesterday for increased agricultural productivity through improved technology to boost farmers' income and bring down prices of food commodities.

Noting the high level of production costs at present, Tanchangco said that increased productivity is necessary to bring down production costs of farmers and reduce their reliance on price supports and government subsidies.

Tanchangco, administrator of the national food authority (NFA), said increasing productivity and bringing down production costs of farmers have become more imperative now with the promise of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran to help increase farmers' income and penetrate the export market.

Minister Tanchangco spoke at the productivity conference sponsored by the national productivity conference sponsored by the national productivity commission (NEC) at the FTI auditorium in Taguig, Metro Manila.

British-Philippine relations simmered over the issue of Filipinos eating dog meat as a delicacy. The British are appalled, and the Filipinos are even more appalled the British should be appalled.

The British embassy Wednesday informally approached the Philippine Foreign Ministry on the subject and ministry officials informed them just as informally that this Filipino culinary custom was none of England's business.

It all started when the Sunday Mirror of London two weeks ago front-paged photographs of dogs in the Philippines tied up, ready for slaughter, and eventually for the table as succulent dog stew, spiced with proper and garlic.

Mrs. Thatcher and the British Parliament were properly horrified and the Court of St. James were betokened to express to the Philippines “the abhorrence of the people of this country to the barbaric cruelty being practiced in the manner of preparation of dogs for slaughter for human consumption.”

Tim Dawes, information officer of the British embassy agreed in an interview with the. AFP that the whole thing was an internal affair and and that the government of Mrs. Thatcher certainly did not want the matter to get out of hand.

“The fuss was not really over the eating of dogs but the way they were trussed up and prepared for slaughter,” Dawes said.

Assemblyman Eddie Ilarde of the national capital region reacting sharply to the comment of Mrs. Thatcher said that the slaughter of dogs for food does happen in the Philippines, but it is not a daily affair and does not take place in any market in Manila where such act prohibited as it is in most part of the country.

The British people should be informed that Filipinos are as dog-loving as they are, Ilarde said.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that cinema arts in Southeast Asia must not be the mirror for Western culture and values; rather, they must uphold the Asian identity.

He pointed out that the cinema industry, being the most pervasive of media, must be the vehicle to protect true social dimensions.

The President spoke to delegates to the 11th Association of Southeast Asian Nations Film festival attended by luminaries in the film industry from Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand, Singapore, and the Philippines.

Last night, Minister of Information Gregorio Cendaña urged the the film makers to renew and reaffirm their dedication to common efforts in communications.

“For more than the commercial aspects of the cinema arts, there Ups in every film we bring forth a commitment of ourselves and with t the spirituality of Asia that is our heritage and the creativity of man that is inherent in us all,” Cendaña said speaking at the closing of the Southeast Asian Nation film festival.

The First Lady Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos underscored yesterday the importance of the participatory role women play today as they move to contribute solutions to problems plaguing a changing society.

Speaking before delegates to the 27th Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce at the Philippine International Convention center, the First Lady called for a greater participation of women in commerce and industry “to bring a human scale to the sometimes in personal business environment.”

She said that the primary role of women in society is still being the anchor of the home and the indispensable transmitter of values.

“I would suggest that in our free enterprise system’s present efforts at reform, the dimension that women can introduce to economic effort can be important and useful,” the First Lady said.

President Marcos said that he will stop the move in the Batasang Pambansa to review the government's position renouncing the claim to Sabah, formerly North Borneo.

The President told newsmen the Sabah claim is "a security matter" and should not be discussed in open session.

The President also said that there are agreements between him and the Prime Minister of Malaysia (apparently with former Malaysia Prime Minister Datuk Hussein Onn) and that public discussion of the matter would "cause complications which might abort all these efforts."

The Sabah issue emerged again last Tuesday when a group of assemblymen, led by Minority Floorleader Mariano Logarta, proposed a resolution urging the Batasan to petition the President to conduct a review of the claim in the face of developments in Sabah considered as threats to Philippine security.

The President said, however, he is willing to give a confidential briefing to anybody who wants to know the latest situation on the matter on condition that he will not say anything about matter later.

He explained that it would be irresponsible on our part if the Sabah claim will be discussed publicly.

President Marcos dispatched yesterday seven more helicopters and ordered the blasting of rocks blocking relief convoys to speed up the delivery of relief goods to areas in the Bicol region which were devastated last Tuesday by typhoon "Anding."

Latest figures at the relief centers place the number of those confirmed killed in Anding's wake at 259 while 79 others are still missing. Most of the casualties came from the Bicol region.

At the same time, the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, took to the field to personally expedite the airlifting of relief goods, medicines and other supplies to victims of typhoon "Anding."

Mrs. Marcos motored to the Imelda Relief Center in Paranaque where she inspected the progress of the loading of relief goods into giant C-130 transport planes.

The President directed Maj. Gen. Petronio Lapeña, PAF chief, to make sure that the pilots land on areas that had been isolated by the typhoon, so relief workers could establish relief centers there.

He also directed Highways and Public Works Minister Jesus Hipolito to make sure that highways held engineers cleared yesterday the highway along Jabo, Camarines Norte, which had been blocked by a giant pile of boulders.

President Marcos ordered yesterday automatic one-year extension of all provisional permits granted to jeepney operators, nipping in the bud an early morning transport strike that threatened to cripple Metro Manila.

The President fitted swiftly following the jeepney strike that started at 5 a.m. Thousands of commuters and office workers were stranded.

The drivers and operator reportedly wanted to express their displeasure over the fielding of 150 more buses in Metro Manila.

They also protested the slow processing of applications for jeepney franchises and indiscriminate impounding of jeepneys by some agents of the board of transportation.

The President settled the jeepney strike even as Transportation Minister Jose Dans, Col. Mariano Santiago of the bureau of land transportation, and Col. Amante Bueno of the Constabulary Highway patrol group sought a solution to the transport crisis.

Oscar Lazaro, president of the Pasang Masda, and organization of jeepney drivers, accompanied by 200 heads of various jeepney operators and drivers associations, met with the President to air their gripes.

After the President reassured them that he would act on their complaints, Lazaro and his group promised to call off the strike.

AMBASSADOR EDUARDO Z. ROMUALDEZ said in Washington Friday the formal signing of the extradition treaty between the Philippines and the United States “is proof of the firm and meaningful cooperation between our countries in the pursuit of justice and peace.”

Romualdez made the statement shortly after signing the treaty which was initialed at the state department last month. He represented the Philippines while state department deputy legal officer Dan McGovern signed for the US.

“Our respective shores shall no longer be a haven of criminals who misuse our or your hospitality and who would make a mockery of our or your system of law and justice,” Romualdez said.

The extradition treaty is the third such treaty ever signed by the Philippines with foreign governments. The first two were with Indonesia and Thailand.

The treaty will now go to the Senate and the Batasang Pambansa for ratification.

Romualdez stressed that beyond the ends of justice which it seeks the extradition treaty also emphasizes the friendship of the two countries whose relations have been enriched by history and common ideals.

President Marcos yesterday directed the foreign affairs ministry to inquire from the US state department on the status of the terrorism cases against US-based Filipino rebels and the alleged refusal of Victor Burns Lovely to testify.

Lovely was supposed to be the key witness but he has reportedly refused to testify before the US grand jury.

“We really don’t know what happened there; whether he really refused to testify or whether he has changed his mind,” the President said.

Something more categorical must be stated in an official document or report so that proper steps could be taken, the President said.

Lovely was seriously injured when a bomb he was rigging at the YMCA exploded over a year ago. He was arrested together with his two brothers.

The explosion brought into the open terrorist plot to bomb various places in Metro Manila last year.

THE FIRST LADY, MRS. IMELDA R. MARCOS, received a delegation of Chinese writers yesterday.

Headed by Yu Holding, a writer-critic and chairman of the Chinese Writers association in Henan province, the group called on the First Lady at Malacañang.

Mrs. Marcos said the Filipino people were highly honored by the presence in the country of famous Chinese writers whose works are sure to make an impact on contemporary times and in the future.

For this reason, the First Lady said, the visit has served to bring the Philippines and the People's Republic of China closer through cultural links.

Yu assured the First Lady that his people were also highly honored in being received personally by her.

The visiting delegation was hosted by the Writers Union of the Philippines under former Senator Maria Kalaw-Katigbak, Baguio Foundation college under Benjamin Salvosa, and the Association for Filipino-Chinese Understanding.

The delegation of Chinese writers is here to return a visit by a Writers Union of the Philippines delegation in Beijing last year. The group was led by Director Andres Cristobal Cruz of Region IV, Office of Media Affairs.

Official Week in Review: December 1 – December 6, 1981

December 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS reiterated yesterday that there would be no sudden or sweeping phase-out of passenger jeepneys as he announced rationalization of the city's commuter transportation system.

He announced the arrangements which he had just finalized in the wake of the sudden strike of jeepney operators and drivers early Friday. The President's intervention averted what would have been a crippling Metro Mania transport strike.

The President announced the new arrangements, namely:

1) Jeepney operators would be granted a longer period for renewal of their franchises. Temporary permits to operate expiring Dec. 31, 1981, would be given automatic extension.

2) Processing of provisional permits would now be simplified. A police clearance would suffice. The cumbersome board of transportation requirement that applicants must produce court clearances from every city along the jeepney's route was scrapped.

3) The Metro Manila Commission is now entrusted with over-all supervision over enforcement of an integrated system of compliance with general traffic regulations, the Public Service Act, and the Land Transportation Code.

The President also said that the jeepneymen have promised to cooperate with the government henceforth, not only in the matter of policing their own ranks to curb abuses but also in first taking up grievances with the President or the First Lady.

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared a state of calamity yesterday in 17 provinces affected by typhoon "Anding."

He signed the still unnumbered proclamation during a joint meeting of the cabinet and the Development Authority at the Malacañang state dining room.

The provinces placed under a state of calamity were Camarines Sur, Camarines Norte, Albay, Catanduanes, Sorsogon, Nueva Ecija, Quezon, Aurora, Pangasinan, Bulacan, Tarlac, Pampanga, Benguet, La Union, Marinduque, Batangas, and Bataan.

In his proclamation, the President said the sale of foodstuff, building and construction materials and other prime necessities of life would be at government controlled prices. Violators would be arrested, he said.

The President, during the cabinet-NEDA meeting, fired off the following instructions to the ministers and agencies concerned:

1. The price control council and the national integrated police were ordered to enforce the proclamation strictly to prevent hoarding and profiteering.
2. The Ministry of Agriculture will distribute palay seeds to farmers at subsidized prices.
3. The national food authority will give rice loans at very low interest to farmers.
4. The Ministry of Public Works and Highways to undertake immediate repair or damaged roads and bridges.
5. The Ministry of Transportation and Communications was ordered to ferry fuel supplies and basic commodities to the areas most in need.
6. The Ministry of Education was directed to make arrangements for the late resumption of classes in the storm-affected areas.

President Marcos announced yesterday the immediate launching of the P328-million Maisagana program to intensify corn production and wipe out last year's dollar loss of $42 million which went to corn importation.

The program, launched during the six-hour meeting of the cabinet and the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) in Malacañang, is aimed at making the Philippines a corn exporter in three years.

The President said that the Maisagana program is patterned after the Masagana 99 program, which turned the country around from the importer to rice exporter.

The program formally starts Dec. 15 when 37 provincial governments, 180 rural bankers, 78 managers of Philippine National Bank branches and other officials gather in Malacañang for the kick-off rites.

The Maisagana will cover 117,000 farmers working 210,000 hectares in 37 provinces and two cities in 12 regions.

A total of P328.5 million will be made available to farmers through supervised credit in the first year.

A World Bank loan of P500 million will be spent on farm extension services for the program, which involves the planting of high-yielding corn varieties called "Ginintuan".

December 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS approved yesterday the release of P5.7-million as additional fund for road repair of Metro Manila roads and the Carmona-Dasmariñas-Trece-Martires-Naic-Ternate road up to Puerto Azul in Cavite.

The maintenance fund was requested by Public Works and Highways Minister Jesus Hipolito.

Hipolito said the President also allowed the awarding of maintenance and repair works to private contractors through negotiation—instead of public bidding—to speed up road repair.

The money outlay, which will come from the Ministry's confident fund under Batas Pambansa Blg. 80, augments the P9-million requested by Hipolito last June for road repair.

The Philippine economy is expected to bounce back next year as a result of the similar recovery in the economies of industrial countries, government economists predicted yesterday.

An economic development program prepared by government planners projects a "dynamic and more equitable economic growth process" in the next five years and possibly beyond that period."

The country is experiencing a recession that has hit most major businesses. Government economists view 1982, however, as a jump-off period for recovery. Protectionism imposed by industrial nations is likely to ease and consequently trade with developing nations will improve, they said.

* * * * *

The five-year economic plan (1983–87) submitted to President Marcos is expected to ride on the world economic recovery predicted to get underway next year.

Prime Minister Cesar Virata and the cabinet, in presenting the plan to Mr. Marcos, said the country would achieve a dynamic and more equitable economic growth process in the next five years.

World economic recovery would bolster growth prospects for the Philippines and other developing countries, they said.

They said that projections show that as the industrial nations rebound from recession, protectionism would ease and trade with developing nations would expand.

This will help poor nations improve their ability to contract and repay external debts incurred for development purposes. It will also influence rich countries to increase financial commitments to the Third World.

Some 750,000 national government employees, excluding those in government-owned corporations, are expected this month to receive a one-week Christmas bonus.

It will be the second time that state workers will get the benefit after the bonus was first granted in December last year.

Labor Minister Blas F. Ople made the announcement during a dialogue with labor leaders of the Trade Union Congress of the Philippines at the Army and Navy Club.

Ople said he was given assurances by the Cabinet that the bonus will be granted anew to the national government employees before the end of the year.

He said the bonus will cost the government P49 million and the amount will be taken from reserves of ministries and various government agencies.

December 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS will be the guest of honor at the flag-raising ceremonies today at the University of Life in Pasig as the curtains to the XIth Southeast Asian Games, the biggest sporting event the country will host since the 1954 Asian Games, go up.

The national flags of the 10 member-countries of the SEAG federation will be raised at 9 a.m. with members of the diplomatic mission and heads and members of the delegations invited to the occasion.

The President will actually be standing in for the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, who should have graced the affair in her capacity as governor of Metro Manila, the host city.

The First Lady left for the United States the other day to attend two meetings sponsored by the United Nations.

The President will deliver an inspirational address. As he ends his speech, he will call on every delegation head who will be presented a symbolic key to the city of Manila.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has urged the mass media not to spare even the armed forces and the defense establishment in their job of exposing irregularities and abuses.

The defense chief assured journalists of his full backing in their search for truth.

"My office will be the first to protect you against intimidation from any quarters in the performance of your legitimate journalistic duties," he said.

Enrile stressed the need to keep the people informed of government doings or misdoings.

“Indeed, we shall only betray the cause of progress itself if the people are not properly informed of the problems we must overcome, the means of surmounting them and the directions we must take in the socio-economic and political fields,” he said.

The First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos said that the human settlements movement is the answer to the North-South dilemma when she presented this morning the Philippine statements before the United Nations General Assembly.

Mrs. Marcos pointed out that a better approach should be found to insure the future development from rich countries to poor countries shall become self-liquidating and achieve self-reliance.

The approach she suggested lies in the concept of human development in human settlements.

Mrs. Marcos also told the UN delegates that during the fourth session of the UN commission on human settlements, she had proposed that the various UN development agencies work together to transform depressed communities in Africa into authentic human settlements provided with basic needs.

“These projects will bring down from the conceptual to the operational place the meaning of human settlements by making it work in everyday terms among everyday people in everyday situations,” she said.

She also said human settlements are the cradles of humanity, the generators and repositories of the human body and the sanctuaries of the spirit of man.

December 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged the Ulama Council of the Philippines to play a major role in the efforts to unify the country in the face of the threat of a foreign, godless ideology and the world economic crisis.

The Ulama is headed by Sheikh Ahmad Bashir, whose influence and religious teachings in Islam have spurred the return to the folds of the law of thousands of Muslim rebels and contributed to the peace efforts in Mindanao.

Bashir accompanied the latest group of 205 rebel returnees who were granted amnesty by the President.

“You are the ones who understand the need for the Republic to be strong in order to meet the dangers from the outside,” the President told the Ulama during a meeting in Malacañang.

He said Filipinos, whether Christians or Muslims, must embrace each other as brothers. He noted that Muslim spiritual leaders were chief advocates of peace and unity.

“We must be together. We must be united. There is danger coming from outside,” the President said.

President Marcos announced yesterday he would convene a party caucus of the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan after the year end holidays to settle once and for all the conflicts involving the coconut industry and to draw up a long range policy for the industry.

To safeguard the interests of the 997,000 small coconut farmers, the President ordered the United Coconut Mills and other allied mills to publish the buying prices of copra and other coconut products at the different buying stations.

This will guide the farmers on the prevailing market prices and let them know at what price they should dispose of their copra, the President said.

President Marcos, placing himself squarely behind the parents of Metro Manila, refused yesterday to budge from his ban against video game machines.

In an interview at the University of Life where he presided at the flag-raising rites of the 11th Southeast Asia Games, he declared he cannot see any reason why he should change the decision already made.

Referring to the appeal of the federation of video games operators for him to reconsider his stand, the President said:

“Why don’t they send me a memorandum and tell me why they think that their video machines are not doing the youth any harm, and answer all those allegations by the parents who say that because of the video machines, their children are stealing money and cutting classes, and that they are losing control over these young kids who are becoming difficult to discipline.”

The President included the video machines within the purview of Presidential Decree No. 519 of July 23, 1974.

The decree, in response to petitions from parents and civic organizations, prohibits the operation, possession, use and importation of pinball and slot machines and similar devices.

President Marcos said yesterday it is the intention of the Philippines to host the 1990 Asian Games, nine years after the 1981 Southeast Asian Games which the country will hosting starting tomorrow.

“Yes, we will make a bid but I have to consult my cabinet first,” the President told reporters during a brief interview following the flag-raising rites at the University of Life in Pasig, Metro Manila.

The President also told local and foreign reports that the provision for permanent funding of the country’s sports development program is included in the appropriations act.

He left the UL grounds at 10 a.m. after personally greeting the some of the athletes and officials.

Minister Gregorio S. Cendaña of the Office of Media Affairs officially welcomed yesterday the foreign and local media who will cover the 11th Southeast Asian Games.

In brief remarks at the Tourism Pavilion, Cendaña assured sports-writers that all communication facilities for their use have all been installed with the said of several experienced personnel.

“We have provided you the most modern facilities needed for your craft backed by competent men and women who are not only familiar with your jobs but highly tested and competent as well,” Cendaña said

Cendaña said this event is nothing new to Filipinos because “we have hosted several international sports competitions in the pasts.”

He said that the hospitality of the Filipino they have now been familiar with are not put ons for the duration of the games, “but are gestures that come straight from our hearts.”

December 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS established a special stabilization fund yesterday to help distressed mining companies hit by dropping copper prices in the world market.

Current prices of copper in the world market are about 74 cents a pound, a level below break even point for most mining companies.

The fund is targeted for operation at the start of next year. The Central Bank monetary board will administer the fund.

Upon the President's instruction, Minister of Industry and Trade Roberto Ongpin conferred with executives of major copper mining companies to prepare estimates of the fund's requirements and set up the mechanics for drawing on the special fund.

Minister of Information Gregorio Cendaña said the fund "is a novel scheme involving the use of standby loans when metal prices are down and the replenishment of the money with additional deposits when prices go up."

Cendaña said that the President's move reflected his continuing concern for the stability of the country's industries, particularly those providing intensive employment.

It was made clear that once prices improve and the market recovers, the mining industry would accelerate payments on borrowings from the special fund.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that the government's sports development program is part of a determined effort to utilize athletics to combat juvenile delinquency.

Speaking at the awards ceremony at the conclusion of the President Marcos Invitational Golf Classic at Puerto Azul in Ternate, Cavite, the President said there was need to wean the youth from vulgar and adverse influences to their young lives.

Athletics, he said, can provide a wholesome and healthful alternative.

The Chief Executive said, the golf classic proceeds of which will go to the establishment of the Philippine Golf Foundation, is now a part of that effort.

He pointed out that the foundation will be the beginning of a strong and effective effort to utilize athletics in order to lessen the trend towards juvenile delinquency."

The President thanked the sponsors and participants for their support in facilitating the attainment of the foundation's objective of providing the alternative to juvenile delinquency.

December 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS formally opened the 11th Southeast Asean Games yesterday in simple rites at the Rizal Memorial Track stadium.

The President expressed the hope that the “spirit of cooperation and unity of purpose” of the various nations and athletes participating would guide the peoples of the region in their endeavors.

The Chief Executive congratulated the SEAG organizing committee and the officials and governments of the various national sports organizations for bringing together in Manila the finest athletes of Asia so that they can engage in friendly competition.

According to the President, “sports not only enhance the health of the citizenry but more than this, it imparts the attitudes and values that allows every citizen to make meaningful and substantial contributions to the many tasks at hand.”

The President stressed that this was the reason why the Philippine national leadership regards sports development as a national priority.

President Marcos ordered yesterday the Ministry of Public Works and Highways to draw up a program for the development of the port of Manila to make it a major international transshipment point like Hongkong and Singapore.

In a directive to Minister Jesus Hipolito, the President also ordered the decongestion of the port area of buildings and other structures erected on land leased from the government by private companies which are not engaged in port-related activities.

He said steps should be taken immediately to ensure that the decongestion could be undertaken with as little difficulty as possible, considering that the leases are of long-term duration.

In another move, the President directed the continuation of plans for the construction of Port Irene on the eastern coast of Cagayan along with the roads leading to it which will make it the first major port in Northern Luzon facing the Pacific.

December 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered yesterday the confiscation and destruction of video game machines and other prohibited and gambling devises, but gave operators a one-week grace period for inventory purposes.

Implementing Letters of Instructions No. 1176 signed earlier, the President directed Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Finance Minister Cesar E. A. Virata to:

1. “Forthwith take over or cause the taking over of the possession of said devices wherever they may be found and to completely destroy or cause the destruction of the same.”

2. Cancel or withdraw all permits and licenses for their operation.

3. Prevent the entry into the Philippines of any such devices.

The directive followed the President's directive several weeks ago banning video game machines along with pinball and slot machines and similar devices.

The one-week grace period will allow the inventory by a special team of all video machines throughout the country. Operators were warned of arrest if they do not submit lists within a week.

The President organized the special team to supervise strict implementation of the presidential order and authorized the team members to inspect the premises of all commercial video machine operators to ensure enforcement of the order.

December 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has announced to continue in his efforts to restructure the government through the reorganization of government corporations in order to effect savings.

Under the plan, some of the government corporations will either be abolished, merged or consolidated. There are 92 parent government corporations and 120 subsidiaries.

To hasten the reorganization of government corporations, the President directed yesterday the Special Presidential Reorganization Commission to immediately complete its recommendations so that he could act on them before Christmas.

It was pointed out that government corporations have become an increasingly more expensive form of government function, in terms of salaries alone, compared to the government proper where more workers are employed.

Sources said that the financial corporations will not be touched in the reorganization.

The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos urged United Nations members today to adopt a global program of action for disabled persons by giving them the opportunity for "full participation and equality in the world community."

Mrs. Marcos said that the initiatives started by the observance of the 1981 International Year of the Disabled Persons should be continued for the rest of the decade to help improve the lives of the world's 500 million disabled.

She suggested that the global program should be carried out at the national, regional and international levels to attain the IYDP goal—equality for the disabled.

The Philippines has established a national institute for the disabled, she said.

The First Lady cautioned during her speech at the 36th UN General Assembly that the global program should not be isolated from other objectives such as the common quest for peace and development because poverty, malnutrition and conflict abet the disability problem.

In the final analysis this is really to say that our sense of caring for the plight of the disabled is but another phase of the interlinking life of our planet: of nation with nation, of rich with poor, of privileged and the strong with the weak, Mrs. Marcos said.

* * * * *

She cited the UN system for giving more emphasis recently to the role of various groups in human society such as the children, the youth, the women, the workers and now, the disabled.

The First Lady's speech was applauded by the UN delegates. It was her third speech before the 36th UN General Assembly in observance of the 1981 International Year of Disabled Persons.

December 10—

Soviet Russia will buy from the Philippines 100,000 tons of coconut oil worth $56 million ($488 million) starting this month.

This was announced yesterday by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, after a meeting in New York with Soviet Ambassador to the United Nations Oleg Troyanovsky.

The ambassador expressed his gratitude to President Marcos and the Philippine government, through the First Lady, for the sale, saying there is a great demand for coconut oil in Russia.

The ambassador told Mrs. Marcos his country is ready to buy any surplus production of the oil.

The Philippines has an annual coconut oil production of 1.1 million tons. Its major markets are the United States and Europe.

December 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday the government would continue to hold down population growth using non-coersive approaches consistent with the country's social and religious values as a predominantly Catholic nation.

The aim is to achieve a two per cent growth by 1985, down significantly from the current 2.4 per cent, and to hit 1.6 per cent by the year 2000, the President told some 700 delegates to the 19th meeting of the International Union of Scientific Study of Population at the Philippine International Convention Center.

The President rejected abortion as a measure in family planning, although abortion has, in other countries, encouraged decreasing resistance.

Catholic church leaders have staunchly stood against abortion.

The President said the government policy reiterates the right of every couple to determine the size of the family and the right to choose family planning methods.

However, he said, the government's long term goal is not focused on numbers but on the quality of life of the people.

President Marcos cautioned Batasan members again yesterday on discussing: matters affecting national security during the question hour.”

In a letter to Speaker Querube C. Makalintal, the President mentioned a set of questions on the government’s energy programs and policies.

The President said that while the questions submitted may be answered, he was concerned about follow-up and supplementary questions that may require answers involving sensitive matters affecting the security of the state.

He referred to questions and answers involving strategies, pricing, and government-to-government crude supply contracts and arrangements.

The President suggested that in such cases, the Batasan should take up the matter in executive session, in accordance with its revised rules and Article VIII, Section 12 of the Constitution.

The First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, yesterday said the United Nations system should coordinate the work of its different agencies for more effective results.

Mrs. Marcos was responding to a comment of Dr. Mostafa Tolba, UN Environmental Program executive director, on the apparent lack of interest of world leaders in UN proposals and statements.

Speaking during the opening of the joint bureau meeting of the United Nations Commission on Human Settlements and the UNDP, the First Lady told 11 key members of the bureaus, all ranking officials in their respective countries, that the Philippine President receives files of UN documents on diverse subjects and frequently meets UN representatives working in different fields.

The world body, she suggested, should systematize its presentation to government leaders, who have several priorities for their own country and people.

The First Lady said that cooperation and collaboration between UNDP and the UNCHS is a major step forward in streamlining its functions.

The proposal of Mrs. Marcos to set up international models for human settlements is another step toward joint efforts among UN agencies, said Dr. Arcot Ramachandran, executive director of the UN Center for Human Settlements.

December 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday urged officials of the public works and public highways ministry to make good or face the consequences.

Hardly concealing his disappointment over the reputation of the former ministries of public works and public highways which he had ordered merged, the President warned that he would not tolerate the past practice of officials to pass the buck on public works and highways projects.

He was obviously referring to various reports of irregularities in the two ministries as well as of unfinished projects for which officials blame each other.

He also urged the ministry's personnel to stop depending on political backing.

The President pledged to protect all officials and employees in government as long as they perform their duties.

He issued five guidelines for the operation of the ministry.

These are:

1. Proper management and maintenance of equipment.
2. Conduct of scientific researches on construction and repair of roads.
3. Adoption of a control system in the issuance of treasury warrant.
4. Cooperation with local officials.
5. More performance and less publicity.

The President stressed these points during the induction of the ministry's deputy and assistant ministers, bureau directors and regional directors of the Ministries of Public Works and Highways at Malacañang.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has warned members of the integrated national police against wielding power with arrogance.

The defense minister issued the warning Thursday in a speech before members of the Bohol INP in Camp Dagohoy in Tagbilaran city.

Enrile spoke earlier at the 30th anniversary of the Bohol Jaycees whose new set of officers he inducted into office. They were led by Agustinus Gonzaga, president.

In his Camp Dagohoy speech, Enrile said arrogant policemen have no place in the INP because they are organizational liabilities rather than assets.

He said policemen should learn to be a good public relations man, adding that there is no need for an officer to shout at people while enforcing the law.

The Batasang Pambansa yesterday condemned the discourteous treatment of Filipino nationals in US port of entry as a violation of international law and a major irritant to Filipino-American relations.

Unanimously adopting a resolution introduced by the Batasan committee on foreign affairs, the assembly urged the foreign affairs ministry to lodge with the US government a formal protest against the continued indignities suffered by Filipinos, including diplomats at the hand of US immigration officers.

In reaction to the resolution, Foreign Affairs Minister Carlos P. Romulo said the foreign office will take up the matters with the US state department.

Romulo said a move was necessary to correct this insult to both our national dignity and to the individual self-respect of those mistreated.

December 16—

THE FIRST LADY, MRS. IMELDA R. MARCOS, challenged American industrialists today to tap Asia's great economic potential and strategic security location to contribute to the progress and advancement of all mankind.

In a speech during a dinner hosted by General Telephone Electric International president Robert Dressens, Mrs. Marcos said that the last frontier for the advancement of mankind, according to economists, lies in the Pacific where progress will be made at an ever accelerating pace.

In the past, America's ties with the world revolved around the Atlantic and Europe. Today, it has begun to look to the Pacific, she said.

Mrs. Marcos said the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) has drawn world interest by the fact alone that it is populated by a quarter of a million people.

She said that America's link with Asia is magnified by its ties with the Philippines, the Philippines performs a strategic role in the maintenance of regional security and the work of economic cooperation.

December 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS launched the “Maisagana” program yesterday to increase corn yields by as much as five times to boost the country self-reliance in food.

He unveiled the program on the 80th anniversary of the Ministry of Agriculture.

The President directed the Budget Ministry to release P100 million immediately to the Philippine National Bank for lending to corn farmers.

At the same time, he raised the loan ceiling for corn farmers from P300 under the previous “corn” program to P1,450 per hectare for every crop season.

The President, at the launching ceremonies at the Maharlika hall in Malacañang, paid tribute to Filipino scientists who had developed high-yielding corn varieties that could withstand downy mildew as well as corn borers.

He directed the Central Bank to liberalize regulations concerning rural banks, including rediscounting of maturing obligations. He also ordered the Land Bank and the Agricultural Credit Administration to grant incentives to corn farmers.

December 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS will hold a party caucus with Kilusang Bagong Lipunan assemblymen today to discuss priority bills in the administration’s 1982 legislative calendar.

The caucus—the last before the Batasang Pambansa adjourns for the Christmas and New Year holidays—will consider strategies to ensure enactment of such administration measures as bills on education, labor, and local governments still pending in the Batasan.

The President will brief the majority party solons on the “Maisagana” program he launched Wednesday. This program is aimed at increasing by as much as five times the corn yield per hectare.

The KBL legislators are expected to brief the President on problems in their regions.

The President has indicated that he would discuss today with the assemblymen areas of increased cooperation in the implementation of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood program.

Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo said last night he would file a strong and vigorous protest with the US State Department against the reported discrimination of Filipinos at American ports of entry.

Romulo said people who are victims of American discourtesies are entitled to self-respect, adding that he will not allow anybody “to downgrade our national identity.”

He said he will study the Batasang Pambansa resolution condemning the indignities and discourtesies on Filipinos at US ports of entry, particularly Honolulu, Los Angeles, San Francisco and New York.

The resolution said that such incidents are in violation of international diplomatic practices and could lead to the deterioration of Philippines-US relationship.

President Marcos inducted yesterday former Senator Maria Kalaw Katigbak as new chairman of the revamped Board of Review for Motion Pictures and Television.

He also appointed three vice-chairmen—former Judge Francisco Ma. Chanco, Daisy Hontiveros Avellana, and Naty Crame Rogers—to assist Mrs. Katigbak in reviewing all films and television programs.

The President had earlier told Malacañang reporters that membership in the new board would be increased to “a little over 40”. In the old board there were only 22 members divided into four divisions.

The increased membership would be split into three committees who will work full-time and avoid instances in the past when some members were there on part-time basis, according to the President.

The President saw the need to immediately organize the new board due to the proliferation of sex and violence in films and television programs.

He also ordered an honest-to-goodness study of problems in both industries and a rationalization of their roles in the national life.

President Marcos meeting with bureau directors at Malacañang yesterday, called on all officials and employees of the government to act quickly on people’s grievances.

He issued the call in his remarks before officers of the Bureau Directors Association (Budiras), after inducting the 1981-82 team headed by Customs Commissioner Ramon J. Farolan.

The President said all officials and employees of the government should constitute themselves into an “informal grievance machinery of government.”

At the start of the ceremonies, the President presented awards to former Budiras officers and members who had been elevated to higher positions in the government.

The awardees were led by Information Minister Gregorio S. Cendaña, Health Minister Jesus C. Azurin, Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Fabian C. Ver, AFP Vice Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, Minister Jesus T. Tanchanco of the National Food Authority, and Civil Service Commissioner Felimon V. Fernandez, Jr.

In his remarks, the President pointed up the role of officials and employees and their responsibility in acting immediately on complaints and grievances of the people.

December 20—

President Marcos has signed into law Cabinet Bill No. 34 which introduces the modified gross income tax system in the country starting next year.

The new law, signed by the President last Friday replaces the present tax scheme based on net income.

The new tax system takes effect Jan. 1, which means that taxpayers will file their individual income tax returns under the new scheme in 1983.

Income tax returns to be filed next year for 1981 income will still be under the old system.

* * * * *

Under the new law, personal exemptions have been increased from P1.800 to P3, 000 for single individuals, P3.000 to P6, 000 for married heads of family and P3.000 to P4.500 for single heads of family and additional exemptions for dependents (children) from P1, 000 to P2, 000.

The new system imposes gross income tax on two principal categories income—compensation income or employment income and business income or taxable net income.

Compensation or employment income is derived from salaries, wages, honoraria, bonuses, pensions, allowances, fees (including director's fee) and other income or similar nature, including compensation in kind.

Business or taxable net income, on the other hand, includes gains profits and income derived from professions, vocations, trades, business, commerce, sales' or from dealings in property, interest, net dividends or securities.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, in keeping with the Christmas season's spirit of love and goodwill, called on all Filipinos abroad yesterday to join in a mass reaffirmation of faith in their countrymen.

In a special Christmas message to all Filipinos overseas, the President expressed the wish that the mass reaffirmation would be coupled with the "Filipino determination to meet 1982 with courage, hope and trust."

The President said: "The misa de gallo at dawn—the visits to the ninongs and ninangs, the media noche, the family reunions. All these have made the Filipinos stand out as they are—glorious as one race proud in their own destiny and dignity as an emerging nation in the developing world."

President Marcos authorized yesterday the limited exportation of logs up to April of next year.

He temporarily lifted the log export ban imposed last December 4 on recommendation of Natural Resources Minister Teodoro Q. Peña.

In recommending the limited exportation, Pena told the President that the ban had prejudiced several logging companies who had commitments abroad and who had previously obtained authorization to export from the Ministry of Natural Resources.

According to him, many logging firms in Mindanao were not able to export during the repair of their infrastructures.

Peña emphasized that to enable these firms to recoup their losses he favorably endorsed to the President the extension of their log export authority.

President Marcos has restated the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan's policy to encourage internal debates on issues and even on matters involving individual party members.

Such debates, he said, must be raised and resolved within party ranks.

Speaking at the year end caucus of the ruling KBL party, the President said party discussions must always adhere to established parliamentary procedures and must not revert to the old congressional system whose members acted like individual political kingpins.

The President stressed that within party ruling everybody has the right to question any policy any decision, any actuation of the party.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that any group that uses violence to seize political power will meet the force and strength of the armed forces.

This warning was issued by the President in a speech during the 46th anniversary celebration of the Armed Forces of the Philippines at Camp Aguinaldo.

In warning against abuses, the President said: "To tolerate these few in their ways would be to mock the noble work of the majority and, in the long term, to wreck irreparable harm on the organization and destroy popular faith and confidence in the AFP."

The President announced the following during his speech at Camp Aguinaldo:

- 1) Approved in principle a plan submitted by the general staff to enable the AFP to deal more effectively with internal threat and to take part more productively in national development.
- 2) Authorized the increase of the quarters allowance of officers and men of the AFP effective Jan. 1, 1982 and the grant of additional clothing allowances with units in combat operations.
- 3) Directed the implementation of the original housing program for AFP personnel, both active and inactive, particularly the development of a subdivision along the main thoroughfares close to Manila.
- 4) Promised to look into the feasibility of investing funds of the Philippine Veterans Investment and Development Corporation in KKK projects of AFP dependents.
- 5) Directed the Philippine Veterans Bank, Philippine National Bank and other government financing institutions holding KKK funds, to give priority to KKK projects of the AFP personnel and dependents.
- 6) Requested the KKK Secretariat, through the First Lady, to list down the projects of AFP dependents eligible for KKK loans and funding.

The First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, came home yesterday after a 20-day mission to the United States.

She announced $742 million worth of contracts and investments as her Christmass gift to the people, broken down as follows:

- 1) Sale of 100,000 tons of coconut oil to Russia valued at $56 million.
- 2) Sale of 50,000 tons of sugar worth $20.9 million at 19 cents a pound.
- 3) An initial investment of $15 million in the manufacture of prefabricated housing materials.
- 4) A $50 million investment project to develop the tobacco industry.
- 5) Equivalent worth $150,000 for the Eye Referral Center of the Philippines.
- 6) An Austrian $600 million offer for a joint venture for the establishment of a railroad system in the Middle East.

Mrs. Marcos who is secretary general of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood movement said that “all these businesses mean more jobs for our people.”

December 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared yesterday that the New Republic was a “basic and fundamental restructuring not only of the political institutions but also of the economic and social institutions” of the country.

In an interview with members of the Malacañang press corps, the President reviewed the events of the year and declared that the country compared to others “is doubly blessed.”

“This past year has been marked by several fundamental changes in our society,” he said. He cited the lifting of martial law, termination of the crisis government, and the setting up of the New Republic in place of the New Society.

The President pointed out changes which had occurred during the year, such as the restructuring of the educational system, the new freedom given to campus organizations and school publications, and the lifting of the limitation on the right to strike.

Speaking of this “new era,” the President declared that “we now return to normalcy because the Old Society was not a normal society.”

“We return to a new freedom . . . a new freedom under the New Republic,” the President said.

President and Mrs. Marcos presided yesterday at kick-off ceremonies for “Maligayang Pasko ’82”, sending off a convoy of truck loaded with thousands of bags for indigent families.

The trucks, manned by wives of Armed Forces officers and Metro Manila mayors, were sent to 26 destinations. Each truck carried 1, 000 bags of goods. ‘

With the First Couple at Malacañang park were their children daughters Imee and Irene and son, Bongbong.

President Marcos has set a P72-billion ceiling on the 1983 government budget.

Convening the cabinet yesterday. Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata disclosed that of the amount of P30-billion would be for ordinary operating expenses of the government.

The planned 1983 budget is higher than the P59.7-billion national budget for 1982 which was signed into law by the President last September 11, on his 64th birth anniversary.

Of the 1982 budget, P32.74 billion for public works to provide for the five-year infrastructure development program.

The cabinet did not release a tentative figure for 1983 infrastructures.

Virata said another factor that would influence the preparation of the 1983 budget is the current review of all retirement schemes, inasmuch as retirement payments and benefits eat up a substantial portion of government expenditures.

The President has already ruled that in the computation of service in the government for retiring personnel, as a matter of justice, the service of contractuels, temporary employees, and military reservists must be covered by the government service insurance system.

The President has already directed the Budget Ministry to change its policy on this matter of retirees, which has brought heartaches and disillusionment to many.

President Marcos urged opposition groups yesterday to strengthen themselves and unite for the common good of the people.

He made the statement in an interview with members of the Malacañang Press Corps, where he discussed the state of political opposition in the Philippines.

The President said that for the opposition to be successful, its members should not only sacrifice their individual ambitions, but should organize the party and start in the local areas.

Asked to comment on the activities of persistent oppositionists, the President condemned ideologues who use legitimate opposition as cover but actually are poised to take over political power through violence.

December 25—

President Marcos, assessing the global situation in an interview with reporters covering Malacañang, categorically stated yesterday there would be no armed conflict in the next five years.

The President said that while the two super powers may not want to fight, “they are not going to be caught napping either, or to be caught on the weaker side of bargaining—in the event that there is bargaining.”

He also said that in the present situation, “the Philippines becomes more important in the sense that we are in a strategic place.”

The President emphatically declared: “I am inclined to believe that both superpowers have decided not to fight the war.”

December 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS predicted yesterday an economic turnabout in 1982 and consequently, a further improvement of the Philippine economy.

Meeting with members of the Malacañang press corps, the President gave an optimistic appraisal of the economic situation worldwide next year.

He noted that the present tense world situation had resulted in an increase of defense budgets of most of the capitalist countries.

“The fact is, most of the capitalist countries are geared to a war situation. And they are more prosperous in a tense world situation. This has always been so. Korea, Vietnam, the liberation,” the President said.

The President predicted that defense spending will push the American economy forward. “It is the biggest market, the biggest producer in the whole world,” he declared.

The Philippines will profit from this activity, the President said. Specially, he cited metal exports which will be needed by the American defense production effort.

The President was emphatic when he said that the economic situation will further improve in 1982.

December 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS praised the media yesterday for broadening the perspective of the people and changing their attitude.

The President had great praise for the media, including the broadcast people, for making the ordinary people in the streets aware of the political and social changes which had occurred in the country and in the world during the year.

He assessed the performance of the media since the lifting of martial law in an unscheduled meeting with the Malacañang press corps.

The President decried the tendency of some newspapers toward sensationalism, whose “headlines are all violence and things like that which pander to the baser instincts.”

The President further underscored the vital contribution of the media both newspaper and broadcast in effecting the much needed social and political changes on the people.

Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo yesterday said developments that have taken place recently are beginning to change the world situation.

Interviewed on MBS Channel 4’s “Face the Nation,” Romulo said that the forthcoming US-USSR arms reduction talk provide a basis for hope, for “as long as there is a dialogue and the will on both sides to reach agreement, there is a chance that positive elements will emerge in the course of the negotiations.”

However, the foreign minister stressed that there is still a need to initiate a process that should lead to general and complete disarmament through the development of detente and confidence-building measures and the strengthening of institutions for the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

Asked about the prospects for peace in 1982, he said that the uneasy peace that prevails in the world today will continue, “for no power on earth, no leader of any nations will be willing to plunge the world into a nuclear holocaust.”

Romulo stressed that the UN Experts Group on Disarmament was able to assess the armory of the superpowers and concluded that they have attained the apogee of their technological expertise and armaments, making them capable of incinerating ail of humanity if a conflagration should break out. But he predicted there will be no global confrontation.

December 28—

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said yesterday that outgoing year 1981 has been very fruitful and rewarding.

In a year-end report to President Marcos, Enrile cited Defense Ministry successes and accomplishments under the new dispensation brought about by the lifting of martial law last January.

He stated that with normalization, the ministry, particularly the Armed Forces, maintained its peacekeeping and law-enforcing functions, with the Constabulary assuming a primary role, and other units providing support and assistance.

The Armed Forces, he said, were able to contain criminality within manageable levels despite unfavorable socio-economic conditions primarily generated by increased oil prices.

Agriculture Minister Arturo R. Tanco Jr. ordered yesterday the immediate recall of 8,413 infant-weighing scales delivered by the Philippine Nutrition Foods Corporation to the National Nutrition Council, following reports that they were defective.

Tanco who is chairman of the NNC, also ordered an investigation of the purchase of the scales amounting to P1, 049,942.40 to pinpoint responsibility and to punish the guilty parties.

Earlier, audit commission' Chairman Francisco S. Tantuico Jr. informed Tanco that "there is clearly an attempt to defraud the government through the delivery of the grossly defective and substandard scales."

The baby-weighing scales were delivered to the NNC for distribution to the various barangays for the use of nutrition workers in the government's nutrition drive.

The nation needs to solve at least eight major problems in the next five years before development goals can be attained.

This was noted yesterday in a cabinet resolution endorsing Batasan approval of government's development plan for 1983-87, goals, strategies and policies.

Although performance in the last five years has been considered by the cabinet as satisfactory, the economy has to grapple with the remaining and foreseen problems, namely:

- 1) Unemployment and underemployment.
- 2) Low agricultural and industrial productivity.
- 3) Rural and regional growth disparities.
- 4) High dependence on imported oil.
- 5) Inadequate infrastructure.
- 6) Inadequate domestic source mobilization.
- 7) Growing needs of population.
- 8) Institutional bottlenecks.

December 29—

Deputy Prime Minister Jose A. Roño and several Batasan members are in favor of the barangay election in reaction to a statement of Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata that the elections for barangay officials may be scrapped.

Roño and some Batasan members emphasized that the will of the people who opted for barangay elections must be respected.

Roño explained, however, that the Batasan has to approve first the proposed Local Government Code before holding barangay elections.

He stressed the need for-laying down the structure of the local government which include the barangays, before any election of the officials of the smallest political unit of the country.

Roño said that the proposed code shall determine the number of barangay officials to be elected and councils to be formed to insure effective and efficient government operation at the barangay level.

President Marcos declared yesterday a state of calamity in Northern Samar, Masbate, Oriental Mindoro, and Romblon which suffered from typhoon “Didang.”

He issued proclamation No. 2150 after getting detailed reports on the great damage and destruction to life and property wrought by the typhoon which hit these areas Dec. 25 and 26.

The President released P15 million from his contingency fund for the repair of damaged roads, bridges, and school houses.

The typhoon spared Metro Manila but its accompanying rains caused flash floods in low sections and stranded hundreds of cars in the metropolis. “Dinang ” exited to the South China sea at a point 120 kilometers south of Manila.

The President declared the existence of a state of calamity in the “most severely affected areas” to prevent excessive increase in the prices of prime commodities due to profiteering by those who control the supply of these goods.

The presidential proclamation is to enable government, as well as civic, relief, and welfare agencies, to carry out functions during emergency.

December 31—

President Marcos declared yesterday that barangay elections would be held as approved in the June 16, 1981 referendum.

“The people’s wishes to hold barangay elections, expressed during the referendum accompanying the June 16 presidential elections will be followed,” he told reporters at Malacañang.

The President’s statement doused speculations in some quarters that the barangay election might be shelved indefinitely.

The President said that there is no such move to postpone or delay the barangay election.

The 45,000 barangays throughout the country have been eagerly awaiting an official pronouncement on this matter ever since there was a newspaper report that the elections might be put off indefinitely.

The President made it clear yesterday that the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan favored holding the elections at a proper time “yet to be determined and after deciding on the manner of the elections.”

In discussing the manner in which the barangay elections is to be conducted, the President said there is a choice between an “adversary election” and “election by consensus conducted in the barangay.”

* * * * *

Minister of Information Gregorio S. Cendaña said the President made the clarification in view of unofficial reports that the barangay elections might be shelved for a number of reasons.

Cendaña said one of these reports said that barangay elections, aside from being expensive, could be divisive at a time when national unity is called for.

He stated that another reason mentioned that the result of the referendum endorsing the barangay elections was only advisory in nature which the national leadership may or may not follow.

President Marcos today authorized the release of P10 million for the immediate reconstruction of Manila’s City Hall which was damaged by a big fire last November 19.

The President said that he also authorized Mayor Ramon D. Bagatsing to tap other sources of funds, including the city government’s share of the national budget, for the repairs.

The city government needs P30 million for the repair of the City Hall’s fourth floor and the construction of an additional floor, Bagatsing said.

A total of 15 salas of Manila’s Court of First Instance (CFI), the sheriff’s office of the clerk of court, the sheriff’s office, the CFI cashier’s office, and the archives section—all on the fourth floor of the City Hall were damaged.

The President said that Bagatsing had asked for a loan from the Philippine National Bank (PNB) to finance reconstruction of the City Hall.

He said that he ordered the release of the P10 million from the 1981 appropriations of the Ministry of Public Works.

President's Week in Review: January 1-10, 1982

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stopped government agencies yesterday from entering into negotiated contracts.

He noted the propensity of many ministries and instrumentalities of government going into negotiated contracts, instead of the time-honored practice of public bidding, even if these are not of an emergency nature.

The President said he was disturbed by the number and frequency of negotiated contracts being concluded by government agencies.

To protect the interests of the government and get the most qualified contractor at the lowest possible cost, the accepted practice is for public bidding for certain projects.

The President stressed that to effect savings local leaders should undertake repairs of roads, school buildings and other infrastructure damaged during calamities.

Gen. Fabian C. Ver, Armed Forces chief of staff, exhorted the Filipino soldiers Wednesday to scale greater heights in their role as defenders of the weak and oppressed and protectors of the country.

Ver spoke at the Kawal Awards rites hosted by the Presidential Guard battalion at Malacañang park.

The Kawal awards, which General Ver initiated eight years ago, are aimed at raising the morale of enlisted men and enlisted soldiery in the country. Twelve enlisted men who have distinguished themselves in non-combat duties and engaged actively in nation-building were chosen for the awards.

General Ver and Bliss Imee Marcos, who acted as chairman of the board of judges, were also presented special citations.

The awardees received citations and gold medallion for their nation-building and civic relations activities.

PRESIDENT MARCOS denounced certain people yesterday for exploiting cultural minorities and violating sacred tribal grounds.

The President found out that the culprits were using the name of a foundation. The investigation showed that tribesmen were made, to pose in various stages of undress or forced to perform in strange or erotic ways.

Unless a person or entity is allowed by the Office of the President to enter unexplored tribal sanctuary, they would be violating Presidential Decree No. 1017, he said.

The decree issued in 1976, penalizes violators, including unauthorized scientists or scholars who wish to study these tribes.

Unexplored tribal grounds include:

1. Communities of isolated tribes in the remote parts of T'boli, South Cotabato. This extends from the forests of Mt. Malibato, Mt Parker and the entire mountain range through Mt. Busa to the Manobo Blit-Tasaday reservation.
2. Habitat of tribes in the Daguma mountain range and the forests of Kulaman valley in Mindanao.
3. Forests between Ransang and Candawaga, Quezon; the towns of Bataza, Palawan in which tribesmen under Ambilan Antal live.
4. Other areas where isolated tribes live as isolated the President may declare covered by PD 1017, on recommendation of the Panamin Minister Manuel Elizalde, Jr.

The President stressed that it is unlawful for any person or group, without permission of his office, to enter unexplored tribal sanctuaries and subject the cultural minorities in those area to study.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that the board of review for motion pictures and television, in addition to its work as censor, will assist, in uplifting the quality and standards of the two industries.

The President told newsmen that the board, now headed by former Senator Maria Kalaw Katigbak, will help implement the provision of Executive Order 640-A issued Jan. 5, 1981, which prescribes guidelines to “promote and enhance the preservation, growth, and development of the motion picture art and science.”

He said he would announce more appointments to the Katigbak board shortly. He is also planning to increase the membership of the Board of Review for Motion Pictures & Televisions from 24 to a little over 40.

The new board will be divided into three divisions and its members will work full-time.

According to the President, the operations of the board will be funded from income being derived from authorized casino operations.

PRESIDENT MARCOS took yesterday a direct hand in the investigation of the kidnapping of sportsman Tomas Manotoc and ordered all military regional commanders and police officials to use underground contacts to secure his safe release.

The President took these steps after the disclosure of the demands, requiring top-level consideration, contained in the ransom note received from the kidnapers.

The demands included the release of imprisoned top subversives leaders and amnesty for the kidnapers.

A Malacañang statement said the President was "very concerned" about the safety of Manotoc and said this should be the primary concern of all military and police elements assigned to the case.

Malacañang also called on the Manotoc family as well as the media to cooperate in efforts to solve the case and cautioned against the circulation of wild and false speculations insinuating the involvement of the President and his family in the matter.

The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos called on leaders and members of the movie industry to present the best of the Filipino people and culture in the coming Manila International Festival and asked them to set aside whatever tribal differences that exist in the industry.

Speaking before representatives of the movie industry at Malacañang's Heroes Hall, Mrs. Marcos said the primary aim of the film festival, dated Jan. 18-19, is to established Filipino identity and his capacity to relate with the rest of the world as a human being.

Mrs. Marcos also expressed the hope that the festival would not only bring material rewards to the country but also peace and understanding among countries of varied ideology through the medium of films.

She asked the movie people to come to the film festival not as guests but as hosts to the representatives of 48 nations.

In turn the movie people, the members of the Film Academy of the Philippines, pledged their support for the coming International Film Festival.

January 5—

THE FIRST LADY, IMELDA R. MARCOS, yesterday appealed to all sectors to concentrate their efforts in saving the life of sportsman Tommy Manotoc, who was reportedly kidnapped last week for P20-million ransom and the release of political detainees.

“My personal sentiments about aspects of this shocking incident are irrelevant. For the moment, we must all concentrate our prayers and efforts on saving a human life, whatever his political affiliations. As a mother I am always careful not to transmit my prejudices to my children, especially my political biases. In a world of conflicting values, beliefs, and political ideologies, the vulnerable and the inexperienced young are the easy targets, the sacrificial lambs. It is all too clear that leaders and parents who address themselves to the poor and to poverty must give priority to the children because they are the future,” the First Lady said.

THE CUTOFF SCORE for the education courses in the National College Entrance Examination (NCEE) may be raised to improve the quality and social standing of teachers.

Education Minister Onofre D. Corpuz will present this proposal to the NCEE advisory board in a meeting this morning.

Last year's cutoff was 35 percentile for all courses, which means that the upper 65 per cent of all NCEE takers were qualified to go to college. The cutoff for those intending to take up education, however, was set higher, at 45 percentile.

This year, Corpuz wanted to raise the cutoff score to 50 percentile.

Corpuz said people will regard teachers better if they know these have gone through a more rigorous screening and training.

The Batasang Pambansa's committee on agriculture will file a Cabinet bill aimed at hastening the growth and development of the abaca industry next Monday.

Agriculture Minister Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., committee chairman will introduce the proposed measure.

The bill seeks to create an abaca investment and development fund to be administered by an Abaca Investment and Development Company.

Tanco said the measure seeks to solve some of the basic problems plaguing the abaca industry as identified by the Fiber Development Authority.

Some of these problems, Tanco said, are the disorganization of the small abaca farmers who are producing fiber mostly by hand, lack of knowledge of the grade of fiber they produce and sell and the absence of a cohesive national organization of abaca farmers.

The consensus called for the setting up of a necessary fund so that the farmers could help finance their private development projects, Tanco said.

The agenda will be topped by a review of the 11 major industrial projects. The Cabinet will discuss the viability and funding of the $4-billion projects.

The industrial projects are:

1. Cooper smelter in Isabel, Leyte, to process locally produced concentrates into cooper metal.
2. Phosphatic fertilizer project in Isabel, Leyte.
3. Aluminum smelter in Tagoloan, Misamis Oriental.
4. Diesel engine manufacturing project.
5. Cement industry rationalization.
6. Coconut industry rationalization.
7. Integrated pulp and paper project.
8. Petrochemical complex in Limay, Bataan.
9. Heavy engineering industries project.
10. The expansion and modernization of the National Steel Corporation.
11. The expansion of the Alcogas program.

The President said he wanted an updated costing of each project and determine which of the projects could be inaugurated this year.

The Cabinet will also take up the possibility of increasing the seed capital for the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood program and the participation of local governments in building rural infrastructure.

January 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, presided over his first meeting with the cabinet this year, tackled a heavy economic agenda which stresses industrial production, generation of export goods and employment opportunities, and food production.

The meeting took place at the Malacañang state dining hall, with three major items topping the agenda.

These are:

1. Stepping up food production in conjunction with the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKIC) livelihood program. Toward this end, it might be necessary to increase the P1-million seed capital originally allocated.
2. Accelerate implementation of 11 major industrial projects and calendar the inauguration this year of top priority projects.
3. Involvement of local governments to lessen the cost of constructing feeder roads, schoolhouses, and provincial roads and bridges.

The President has indicated the need to increase the seed capital for the KKK in view of the good response in the rural areas and the long list of programmed projects to be financed by the KKK livelihood program.

The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos enjoined yesterday the 150 young Filipinas chosen as usherettes for the forthcoming Manila international film festival to show the foreign visitors the true nature of the country's culture.

Addressing the young girls upon her instructions by the Ministry of Tourism for the festival which starts Jan. 18, the First Lady said, "the only way we can show the true Filipino culture is to emphasize, the good, the true, and the beautiful."

She urged them to bring out the best in themselves as Filipinas and "act graciously and with a thinking heart and a feeling mind.

Mrs. Marcos pointed out that unlike other film festivals the MIFF is truly universal in perspective because even countries which had not participated in similar activities in the past will send representatives.

President Marcos has endorsed the First Manila International Marathon and Running Expo slated January 28-31.

The President said that this event is a most gratifying development, coming as it does in the wake of his solemn pledge to the nation at the opening ceremonies of the 11th Southeast Asian Games in Manila in December, 1981, to give top priority to physical fitness and sports development beginning 1982.

The International Marathon and Running Expo is an excellent way to give sports top priority in the government programs.

Meanwhile, the organizing committee, headed by Siglakas executive director Elpidio S. Dorotheo, decided to reduce the registration fee from P40 to P30.

The Manila Marathon sponsors include Lagerlite Beer, Coca-Cola, Adidas, Milo, and PAL.

January 9—

A SHADOW CABINET designed to be the nucleus of a strong and enlightened opposition is now being organized by opposition leaders composed of a president, prime minister and ministers, follows closely the organization last Dec. 19 of a coalition of the fragmented minority groups in the Batasang Pambansa.

These twin moves of the opposition groups were apparently in response to the challenge of President Marcos to the opposition to forge a united stand to fiscalize the majority party on matters affecting national interest.

To further encourage the formation of a strong opposition, a bill authored by Political Affairs Minister Leonardo B. Perez and Assemblyman Ronaldo B. Zamora entitled, "The 1981 Assistance and Incentives Act for the Political Opposition" is now being readied for filing in the Batasan.

This is in line with the objectives of building a strong, enlightened, and dedicated political opposition under the modified parliamentary system of government.

The government has identified 1,687 Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood projects which will receive financial help.

This was disclosed yesterday by President Marcos after receiving a report from the KKK national secretariat under the Ministry of Human Settlements.

In the Cabinet meeting the other day, the President and his economic advisers discussed the possibility of increasing the funding of KKK because of the demand for more seed capital.

Emphasizing that the KKK is a total commitment of the government and all the ministries, the President said no effort must be spared to meet the KKK succeed.

January 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared yesterday his policy to develop socially, economically, politically, and culturally every town and barangay "before they deteriorate into slums."

The President, accompanied by the First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda Imelda R. Marcos, spoke at the town plaza of San Pedro, Laguna, during the "Kaganapan ng Pangarap" awarding of land titles to 1,323 families.

The President also announced he would expand the scope of agrarian reform to include the awarding of home lots to rightful occupants.

He recalled that under the Agrarian Reform Law, which he promulgated Oct. 21, 1972, tenants became owners of farms fixed at three hectares of rice and corn lands if irrigated and five hectares if not irrigated.

He later extended the program to include tenanted lands of more than 25 hectares planted to sugar, coconut, making the tenants co-owners through corporations.

The First Lady said the need for homes was the root of the problems she encountered as Metro Manila governor and minister of human settlements.

Now that the people of the town have received their homes, they must now be provided with adequate means of livelihood, she said. The First Lady pledged to provide this through the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood program.

The President said that the government policy now would be not only the proper allocation of home lots in the towns, but also the improvement of the towns under the Ministry of Human Settlements.

January 18—

THE PRESIDENT spoke at ceremonies commemorating Constitution Day under the auspices of the Philippine Constitution association at the Maharlika hall of Malacañang.

He emphasized the futility of violence and that the people have seen the results of internecine strifes, the sufferings of the people in the South, and what terrorism can do in Manila.

The President lamented that the opposition, once prepared to provide the nation with parliamentary balance, was now more concerned with parroting issues and slogans of the rebels.

President Marcos warned the opposition yesterday not to compel him to use his extraordinary powers all over again, by joining the opposition who propose violence and terrorism.

The President said: "We mark this day as a moment of reaffirmation of our common faith in the fundamental law of the land", during the Constitution Day.

January 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS told the US congressional delegation headed by Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo that the return of peace and order in the South had made it possible to implement an economic development program in the area with the aid of the World Bank.

The President briefed the delegation on the Philippine situation during the one-hour meeting.

The President told the members of the US delegation the following developments.

These are:

- 1) There would be elections this year and the next two—this year for barangay officials, next year for the regional legislative assemblies and executive councils of Regions IX and XII, and in 1984 for the Batasang Pambansa.
- 2) The peace and order situation in the South had been established.
- 3) The Communist party and any party, which utilizes violence to attain political power is outlawed in the country.
- 4) The country is now developing its geothermal energy which will replace some of the most costly hydroelectric projects.
- 5) The Philippines has adopted a program of self-reliance in providing for the basic requirements for fighting insurgency.

The President Marcos opened the First Manila International Film Festival (MIFF) last night with the hope "that the cinema might help us to understand our world together."

The President said that no medium more powerful or immediate in its impact on human society as the cinema.

His audience included illustrious names in the film industry, international box-office crowd drawers and other movie dignitaries from all over the world.

The President said that the discovery of the motion picture is among the highlights of human achievement and he also challenged the film makers of the world to provide insight on the culture of our time.

He stressed the relevance and meaning to film festivals like the MIFF because of the need of film makers and craftsmen for some sign of recognition that their work touches the life around them.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos welcomed film industry luminaries from all over the world to the First Manila International Film Festival.

Some 1,000 foreign guests, including some of the world's biggest producers, best directors, and famous film stars, were present.

Discussing the rationale behind the 12-day film festival, the First Lady said the primary concern is to make film, the most democratic of the arts, help man achieve peace and understanding.

The First Lady said that the Manila Film Center, built in 170 days at a cost of P170 million, is the evidence of art as a commitment to cultural progress.

PRESIDENT MARCOS laid down several measures to increase the amount of loanable funds for private business and also to sustain the country's economic growth.

The President instructed the Central Bank to set aside funds for long-and medium-term loans to hard pressed but viable industries during his address before the Batasang Pambansa.

He emphasized that the new measures are designed to place industries in a position to take full advantage of the projected recovery of the international market in the latter part of 1982.

The President also announced the following:

- 1) The relaxation of credit and the increase in the amount of loanable bank funds through the reduction of reserve requirements on bank deposits.
- 2) The abolition of the P5-million industrial fund and the P70-million stock market fund. The funds set aside for the two financing schemes will utilize a new lending program of the CB.
- 3) That banks will be allowed to write off for income tax purposes reasonable reserves for loan losses. However, any recovery of such loan reserves shall be subsequently considered as income.
- 4) A review of banking laws so that more loanable funds will be made available for housing and the livelihood programs.

The President, anxious for the continuous growth of the country's economy, said that the government will continue to keep viable companies afloat and ensure continued employment by providing capital funding, both for loans and equity investments, to viable enterprises.

President Marcos submitted to the Batasang Pambansa a seven-point program to help sustain and promote the country's growth and stability.

The President stressed that only Filipinos themselves can shape the destiny of the nation and that it is still necessary for the Batasan to deliberate anew on legislation required for the fulfillment of the development program.

The seven-point program submitted to the Batasan includes:

- 1) The five-year development plan (1983-87) designed to meet variabilities in global conditions and domestic needs.
- 2) Adoption of monetary policies to further expand credit facilities and the reduction of borrowings from the Central Bank.
- 3) Providing for food needs of population by exploiting the country's agricultural potential.
- 4) Greater efficiency and prudence, in management of natural resources, including an integrated social forestry program for Kaingineros and proclamation of remaining unsurveyed and unclassified public lands as forest lands.
- 5) Development of non-conventional sources of energy such as geothermal and dentrothermal to attain greater self-reliance and lesser dependence on oil imports.
- 6) Achievement of a balanced growth in the national economy through the implementation of an industrial development strategy centering on the 11 major industrial projects.
- 7) Deployment of resources in less developed areas, thereby expanding access to the fruits of development.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has assured some 17,000 displaced Vietnamese, Laotian, and Cambodian refugees at the Philippine Refugee Processing center of the continued support of the Filipino people.

The President expressed his gratitude to the 11 participating embassies and 18 international organizations who have contributed to the success of the human rehabilitation project.

The President said that he approved the project because “this commitment is an opportunity to serve you (the refugees) even without the advice and approval of the cabinet and the legislative.”

The President’s go signal to put up the Philippine Refugee Processing center hastened the signing of the Geneva Agreement on International Evacuees.

The President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, led a large group of international movie personalities, foreign media members, and other Filipino officials to the 380-hectares resettlement area.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday he is ready to fill up vacancies in the judiciary but said he felt it best to wait for the decision of the Supreme Court concerning the resolution of the question on Judicial Revamp Law.

The constitutionality of the Judicial Revamp Law under Batas Pambansa Blg. 129 has been questioned before the tribunal by a judge and seven lawyers.

They claimed that the law will destroy the independence of the judiciary and violate the constitutional provision on the security of tenure of members of the judiciary.

BP 129 calls for a complete overhaul of the judiciary—from municipal courts to the appellate court, excluding the Sandiganbayan.

The tribunal has not ruled on the petition, although Supreme Court sources said there is already a consensus among the justices.

Records show there are 487 vacancies in the judiciary composed of 1,690 salas all over the country. The backlog of cases in the court dockets was reported to be about 450,000 as of December last year.

The judicial revamp law seeks to create 230 more judicial salas, thus bringing the total vacancies to 717 positions.

February 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged all government executives yesterday to help implement the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) livelihood program by identifying projects and working for their approval.

In his speech before the Career Executive Service Officers Alumni association at Malacañang's Maharlika hall, the President emphasized that the KKK is not merely a timely response to the problems and anxieties of the hour, but a long-term answer to the underdevelopment of the rural sector.

The President said the leadership of the career executives counted a lot for the success of the KKK.

He pointed out that the KKK is critical to the creation of employment opportunities and the promotion of productive economic activities in the local community level.

The President challenge all the participants to:

- 1) Take care of a particular project in his field, from project identification, through feasibility study, development and promotion, to implementation.
- 2) Evaluate a major and significant project of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran in his field or sector.

February 6—

THE KILUSANG KABUHAYAN AT KAUNLARAN livelihood program took a great leap forward yesterday when it reached an agreement with 16 private and government banks to identify and finance projects with a total cost of P250 million.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos, KKK secretary general, signed the agreement for the government with representatives of the banks' venture capital corporations at the University of Life in Pasig.

The agreement signalled a breakthrough in the unceasing efforts of President Marcos and the First Lady to generate greater participation and more funding from private sources for the national livelihood program.

The First Lady said the agreement would hasten the implementation of the KKK with the use of the funds and expertise of the private banks.

The agreement with the banks created the Livelihood Venture Program designed to mobilize private and public resources to support the KKK projects.

The Office of Media Affairs has decided to reduce the number of information attaches in the United States. But it proposed the creation of information centers in three major US cities.

Information Minister Gregorio S. Cendaña told the Batasang Pambansa's public information committee that a stepped-up drive will be launched beginning this year to correct the adverse effects of anti-government propaganda abroad.

Cendaña said that anti-government elements have distorted the truth, and spread black malicious lies about the country which should be immediately corrected.

February 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed yesterday for the diversifying of exports and reducing the country's dependence on imported oil in an all-out effort to break out of the grip of world recession.

In a talk with Malacañang newsmen, the President blamed the vicious process of recessions, protectionism, low prices of raw materials exports, and high prices of imported finished products for the country's trade imbalances.

He emphasized that by diversifying exports, the country can offset the barrier of protectionism thrown up by industrialized countries, including the reduction of dependence on foreign oil by up to 50 per cent in 1985.

The President said that half the country's dollar earnings now go to pay for energy needs.

He called for concerted efforts to implement long-standing agreements designed to bring down protectionist barriers put up by various nations.

THE FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos called for higher nutrition levels in developing countries at the opening yesterday of the International Conference on Better Nutrition for Mother and Child in the Third World at the Silahis hotel.

Noting that millions of children die yearly from malnutrition and disease, the First Lady, founding chairman of the Nutrition Center of the Philippines, called the nutrition campaign a "great and a beautiful cause."

She emphasized that money is not enough to solve the problems of malnutrition, rather a rational approach to the solution of the problem by developing and motivating the manpower potentials of every country.

The international meet, sponsored by the Nutrition Planners Forum and the National Nutrition Council, seeks to improve maternal and infant nutrition in the Third World, particularly Africa whose poor countries suffer most from malnutrition.

The First Lady said that national leaders must back up nutrition efforts with a strong political will.

PRESIDENT MARCOS congratulated bureau of customs men yesterday for stopping the entry of prohibited items such as guns, bombs, explosives, and harmful drugs at the Manila international airport and the post office.

Addressing customs officials on the 80th anniversary of the bureau at Malacañang's Maharlika hall, the President said: "This is one area where I urged every man and woman in the service to exercise extreme vigilance and expect all of you to join in the campaign to stop importation of these dangerous items."

At the same time, he noted that customs collections for the last ten years exceeded the total for the earlier 70 years.

Before 1971, the President said that the bureau could never collect P1 billion in taxes in a single year, but since then the dedication of the men and women in the Bureau of Customs have increased that figure ten times over with collections of P11.45 billion in 1980 and P10.79 billion in 1981.

During the ceremonies, the President presented four organizational and unit awards and 20 individual awards for outstanding performance in 1981.

February 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS approved the signing of a $325 million loan to the Philippines from a consortium of 21 banks which will help reduce the country's dependence on foreign oil to 50 per cent by 1985.

In ceremonies at Malacañang, Central Bank Gov. Jaime Laya signed for the government while representatives signed on behalf of the 21 banks.

The loans would be used to establish a balance agro-industrial economy through projects such as sea farms, energy program and others.

Mainly, the loans will go to the financing of:

- 1) Blue farming for the development of marine resources;
- 2) Food crops which can be grown only in the Philippines and are therefore, exportable:
- 3) Research into areas such as genetic engineering, transfer of nitrogen-fixing qualities of legumes to rice, corn and other staples crops, etc.
- 4) Energy development projects, such as geothermal, dendro and hydroelectric as well as the locally-developed gasifier, which produces gases from wood to fuel engines.

The President said that by the loan, the banks not only emphasized they have faith in the political stability and economic viability of the country, but also in the competence of the people who will implement the socio-economic and political development plans of the country.

The BATASANG PAMBANSA has passed a law into a bill which would require the government to publish periodically a list of all disposable public lands throughout the country.

The bill provides that the Ministry of Natural Resources shall publish disposable lands in newspapers of general circulation in the province or city where the lands are situated.

Assemblymen Medardo L. Tumagay and Luis M. Taruc, co-author, said the measure would give all citizens equal chances to get hold of disposable public lands.

He also provides that no disposition or concession will be valid unless the required posting and publication have been complied with.

This bill will benefit millions of landless citizens who could not acquire public lands in their localities mainly because of lack of knowledge that such lands are available.

A 32-MAN DELEGATION of World War II veterans presented President Marcos yesterday with a plaque of appreciation from the Disabled American Veterans and a certificate of appreciation from the Disabled American Veterans Charity of Los Angeles for his interest and concern for the disabled.

“I am certainly personally interested in the disabled,” the President said, “because were it not for the doctors and nurses, we veterans would probably be dead too. So every time I see the disabled, I think of the grace of God.”

The American war veterans were here on a sentimental journey under the “Reunion for Peace” program of the Ministry of Tourism.

The group were headed by Donald Russell, national commander of the American Veterans, and Gordon Elliott, former manager of the United States Veterans administration in the Philippines.

February 17—

METRO MANILA GOVERNOR, Imelda R. Marcos has approved the Manila government plan to scrap the “land-for-the landless,” program.

The approval came following reports that families who received parcels of land from the city have simply put up shanties which defeats the beautification program of the government.

Instead of giving homelots, Mrs. Marcos has approved a plan to put up BLISS-type buildings all over the city for resale at low cost to poor families and city government employees.

Bagatsing said that the city government would soon embark on a mass housing program which will come from government and private banks.

The First Lady and Human Settlements, Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos called on the country's educators to focus their expertise and know-how on the problems of society and abandon the belief that politics and education do not support each other.

At the National Conference on the Open University System in the Context of Philippine Education held at the University of Life in Pasig, the First Lady said that education can no longer remain apolitical in the face of a changing national society.

Mrs. Marcos noted that in the past, universities have been more concerned with increasing efficiency of operations and upgrading the quality of instructions.

Although this has been a good strategy, she said, it does not address the problems of a changing society and is a slow process in narrowing the gap between the rich and the poor.

This bias for internal efficiency stems from a traditional belief that education is a separate world from politics.

Mrs. Marcos called on the educators whose expertise and manpower resources have the potential authority to reshape a new political culture and to fashion a deeper understanding of the directions the nation is taking.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on for vigilance due to resurging agitation and rebellion in areas where insurgents were taking advantage of political normalization.

The President spoke before the alumni of the Philippine Military academy on their 77th Foundation anniversary at the Philippine International Convention center.

He stressed that insurgency and rebellion are the malaise that afflict developing countries like ours everywhere, and this phenomenon do not disappear even after democratic political orders succeed in meeting their attempts to overthrow government.

The President said that the success in counter-insurgency depends not only on pacification campaigns but also for progressive development and judicious socio-economic programs.

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, issued guidelines for the restoration of Intramuros, the old Spanish Wall City.

In a meeting with the Intramuros committee headed by Central Bank Gov. Jaime Laya, the First Lady stressed that the restoration project is to link development with the city's living past.

She emphasized that no new structures should be built along the walls.

Any improvement within the 63-hectare enclave, the First Lady said, must adhere to the basic period design of the Walled City. Otherwise, she said, it would lose its mystery and charm.

She wanted the place to be the home of the National Museum, and probably of the National Archives and the library.

The FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, received a citation from the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) yesterday for her humanitarian efforts for the Indochinese refugees.

Commissioner Paul Hartling, who won a Nobel Prize for his work on refugees, signed the citation.

His deputy, R. Sampatkumar, presented the plaque to Mrs. Marcos in Malacañang. National Housing Authority Chairman Gaudencio Tobias witnessed the presentation.

Mrs. Marcos was cited for her work as chairperson of the task force on international refugee assistance and administration that worked for the opening two years ago of a refugee processing center in Morong, Bataan.

Fifty thousand refugees have been trained at the center for permanent settlement in other countries.

“It is our privilege to serve our fellow human beings; as long as they are here, we will treat them like they are our own people,” the First Lady said.

Mrs. Marcos expressed hopes the refugees when they settle down to their permanent homes will serve as ambassadors of goodwill and peace for all mankind.

February 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday he would officially ask former Sen. Benigno Aquino, Jr., now in the US, to come home and face the court cases against him.

Marcos said that if Aquino “is any man worth his salt who maintains his word of honor, I think he should therefore come back and face the Supreme Court.”

Aquino, whose conviction for murder and subversion is being reviewed, was given permission by the Supreme Court to depart May 9, 1980 for Texas for a heart by-pass operation.

It was President Marcos who referred Aquino for permission to go to Texas to the Supreme Court.

The First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, conveyed the President’s approval to Aquino at his hospital room in the Heart Center.

Aquino had promised to come home after recuperating from his operation. But he never return.

In a letter before he left the country, Aquino promised the President not only to come home after his operation but also to desist from commenting on the domestic political situation or engage in partisan political activity abroad.

February 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday opposition groups should get organized into one strong, single opposition party.

The President stressed the need for unity of the opposition because there will be three elections during the next two years, namely, the autonomous governments in the South, barangay elections, and the Batasang Pambansa polls.

However, the President warned the opposition elements not to join the “illegitimate opposition” encouraging violence and terrorism.

He said that it would be all right for the opposition to fiscalize the party in power, but not to fight it with violence.

The state visit of President Marcos to Saudi Arabia set for next month is significant not only for the willingness of Saudi Arabia to invite for the first time a president of a Catholic country, but also to help resolve the nine-year Mindanao conflict.

The visit of President Marcos would generate goodwill, understanding and strengthen further the bilateral relations between the two countries.

The Mindanao conflict, whose death toll has now reached 50,000, would probably rank high on the agenda for discussions between President Marcos and King Khaled, Crown Prince Fahd, and other Saudi leaders.

Pendatun, President of the Muslim Association of the Philippines (Musaphil) said Saudi Arabia is in the best position to help put an end to the Mindanao problem.

OFFICIAL WEEKS IN REVIEW

February 22—

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos stressed yesterday that the Philippines welcomes foreign investments in the field of high technology, but it will not allow itself to become a dumping ground of obsolete technology.

She emphasized this yesterday in talks with Takayoshi Shiina, president of Sord, Japan's most advanced micro-computers in the market.

Shiina's visit is connected with the plan to establish operations here, noting the skills of the local manpower and a long-standing trade relations with Japan.

The First Lady said that this relationship should be long-lasting and mutually beneficial because technology can build or destroy.

She added that the Philippines also had the sad experience of paying so much for certain industries and barely getting anything in return.

She also said that President Marcos is more keen on Filipinos developing their technology rather than buying them at high costs.

February 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday he would propose the holdings of a summit of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations to discuss the sluggish implementation of the economic projects assigned to the five member states.

The President told the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to report on the status of the delayed Asean projects.

In March, 1976, the Asean economic ministers agreed on the following projects:

- 1) Urea project, where construction is going on with completion expected late 1983 or early 1984.
- 2) Ammonium sulfate project, for Malaysia, now under construction.
- 3) Diesel engine project, for Singapore.
- 4) Soda project for Thailand, now under construction.
- 5) Cooper fabrication plant, for the Philippines, whose feasibility study has just been approved by the Asean economic ministries. The original project assigned to the Philippines was the superphosphate fertilizer plant.

February 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed into law yesterday a tougher Securities and Exchange Act designated to curb the indiscriminate issuance of commercial papers and stop get-rich-quick schemers.

The President signed into law Parliamentary Bill No. 1674, the Securities and Exchange Act, in Canlubang, Laguna.

The new law was designed to plug loopholes and remedy weaknesses of the old Securities and Exchange Act. The measure is also intended to correct errors or disparities in the distribution of power and jurisdiction between the monetary board and the SEC.

The President noted that with a reorganized securities and exchanged commission and a more alert and informed public, no get-rich-quick schemer can commit any of the malpractices which resulted in the financial crisis which hit some government financing institutions the past years.

February 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that subversive groups operating independently of each other in Metro Manila should not be cause for alarm because the Armed Forces, especially the intelligence community, were on top of the situation.

The President said that there are different subversive groups operating independently in Metro Manila and they are all under surveillance.

“They are all tied to the underground organization of the New People’s Army or the Communist Party of the Philippines,” he said.

He said that there are battles raging in the hinterland and these battles are between the NPA and the MNLF.

AGRICULTURE MINISTER Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., lauded Andres Soriano, Jr. and San Miguel corporation yesterday for developing a high-yield corn seed variety which promises unprecedented harvests.

Minister Tanco said SMC’s investment of P50 million in developing the high-yield corn seed was an example of what the private sector can do in partnership with government to bolster the economy and increase the livelihood of the people.

Tanco commended SMC and its chairman during the inauguration yesterday of SMC’s research center for corn seed in barrio Balayhangin, Calauan, Laguna.

Soriano said that the private sector’s performance is also inspired by the policy of the government.

February 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that there would be no increases in the buying of palay and the retail price of rice at the present time until the executive committee finishes its studies on the matter.

He told newsmen that farmers have been agitating for an upward adjustment in the buying price of palay.

There was immediate opposition to the palay price increase. Other quarters informed the President that to grant this increase would trigger an increase in the price of rice from the present P2.85 a kilo to at least P3.40 per kilo.

Consumers would be the first to oppose any increase in the price of palay and rice on the grounds that prices of other commodities would consequently go up.

The President said he asked the cabinet and the executive committee to submit to him as soon as possible a study on the effects of an increase in palay and rice prices on other prime commodities.

President Marcos said yesterday to the participants in a meeting of the Stanford Research Institute that the government and the people welcome foreign investments in areas and in ways consistent with the priorities and interests of the Filipino people.

The President cited that ground rules devised for foreign investments attracted $250 million yearly for the last two years—as against an average of a piddling $63 million in the previous ten years.

He said that the country is committed to free enterprise and a private sector economy.

But, he emphasized that the most serious obstacle to development of the export trade is the protectionism of the advanced countries which affects not only exports but almost every sector of the economy.

“I find it remarkable and encouraging that in spite of the recent skepticism and anxiety that have lately shadowed the work of multinational companies in developing countries, here in the Philippines we have managed to forge a relationship and a climate for enterprise that are favorable to the growth of both the multi-national enterprises and our own national economy,” the President said.

The President saw in the multi-nationals an effective vehicle for the development of science and technology in this part of the world.

February 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS welcomed yesterday the entry of another foreign investor who had tied up with the Uy family in putting up a P200-million venture to manufacture roofing materials.

The President received the officials of the Philippine Steel Coating corporation who paid a courtesy call at Malacañang.

He also reiterated the policy of the government of welcoming foreign investors who wish to participate in the economic development of the country.

The joint venture was between two big Australian companies and the Uy family which established the corporation in Cabuyao, Laguna.

The Philippine Steel Coating corporation was organized with the Filipino family owing 60 per cent. The remaining 40 per cent were divided equally by the Australian Mining and Shipping, a subsidiary of Conzinc Riotinto and John Lysaght, another subsidiary of Broken Hill Pty., both of Australia.

The joint venture, which employs 250 daily workers and another 250 on contract basis, produces 4,000 tons of pre-painted roofing materials for local and foreign markets.

The roofing materials are manufactured with a four-stage finished system.

The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos opened yesterday the KKK sa Philtrade on Roxas boulevard before a huge crowd.

Launched seven months ago by President Marcos, as the centerpiece program of the New Republic, the KKK livelihood program has taken a giant leap towards becoming a reality with the opening of the KKK sa Philtrade.

The KKK sa Philtrade is not only an exhibit area but also an information center and a trading house for KKK products.

“We offer not our words or promises, but our selfless service to bring about a better quality of life for our people,” the First Lady said.

Before her speech, the First Lady opened the exhibits of KKK products from the 12 regions. They included handicrafts, embroideries, furniture, ceramics and metal works, including food items.

February 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS decreed yesterday that owners of landed estates may not evict tenants and their families from homelots this now occupy without the approval of the Ministry of Human Settlements and the National Housing Authority.

The President issued an order to this effect in a ceremony at the Malacañang grounds where he launched the national BLISS program for communities in landed estates and distributed land titles to the first 259 beneficiaries, all residents of barrio Maimpis, San Fernando, Pampanga.

He turned over the letter of instructions to the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos for implementation.

Speaking before a crowd from Manila and Pampanga who witnessed the launching of the national BLISS program for communities in landed estates, the President said: “I have faith in the little man. I have faith in the poor and the downtrodden. I have more faith in the poor and the weak than in the rich and the powerful.”

The First Lady, who also addressed the throng, said that it was the program of the government to distribute not only land but happiness and dignity to every Filipino.

Minister Gregorio S. Cendaña said that President Marcos has committed the government to support the multi-billion-peso private book publishing industry.

Minister Cendaña said that this policy would help boost the industry which is vital to the nation’s intellectual growth.

He said that the government will yield to the private sector areas where it cannot do a better job. Book production is one such area, the Minister told the Association of Southeast Asian Publishers.

The meeting strengthen the resolve of both the government and the private sector to further their cooperation in the book publishing industry.

President's Week in Review: March 1-7, 1982

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS decided to give recommendatory powers to the mayors in the selection of local treasurers and assessors but rejected their demand for control and supervision over the police.

The President spoke before the second national convention of the Municipal Mayors' League at the University of Life.

In the same speech, the President said citizens can freely organize political parties and contest the political leadership of the country via elections.

The President stressed that even Communists may seek political power by parliamentary and democratic means, explaining that the new law does not specifically ban the Communist party, but only organizations that seek to overthrow the government.

Speaking on the mayor's demand for control and supervision over the police forces, the President said that to grant this demand would violate the Constitution.

He quoted the following constitutional provision: "The state shall establish and maintain an integrated national police force whose organization, and operation shall be provided by law."

President Marcos designated all municipal mayors as action officers of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) in their respective municipalities.

The President made the designation in response to the offer of the League of Municipal Mayors of the Philippines to fully implement the KKK program.

The mayors accepted the challenge made by the First Lady and Minister of Human Settlements to rally behind the KKK and actively assist in its implementation.

The President announced that he had assigned an executive order accelerating implementation of the KKK program through the mobilization of all local governments and the utilization of various local development funds as KKK capital.

The President said each municipality will be provided with seed capital of P100,000, while each province will have P500,000.

President Marcos announced yesterday the reorganization of the Ministries of Local Governments and Community Development and of Human Settlements.

The President made the announcement in a speech at the national convention of the Municipal Mayors League of the Philippines held at the University of Life in Pasig, Metro Manila.

He later signed an executive order to effect the revamp of the two ministries.

As reorganized, the President transferred the community development functions of the Ministry of Local Governments and Community Development to the Ministry of Human Settlements. Henceforth, the MLGCD will be simply the Ministry of Local Governments.

With its transfer to the MHS, the bureau of community development under the MLGCD was renamed bureau of local government development.

The MLGCD's bureau of local government was renamed bureau of local government supervision.

In his executive order, the President said the Local Government Ministry would be more effective if it specializes in local government development and supervision.

The President said that with the adoption by the government of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran as a priority program, there is need for an integrated approach to community development. Hence, the need to transfer the MLGCD's community development arm to the Ministry of Human Settlements.

March 2—

THE FIRST LADY, Imelda R. Marcos, called for concerted action among the developing nations in securing more favorable trade terms from the industrial nations.

Mrs. Marcos made this call in her talk with a goodwill delegation from the People's Bank of China which called on her at Malacañang toward the end of their one-week tour of the country.

The group was accompanied by Central Bank Governor Jaime C. Laya, who has been invited to visit the People's Republic of China.

Mrs. Marcos bewailed the low price developing nations like the Philippines are getting for their raw material exports compared with the high price they have to pay for finished goods from the industrial nations of the West and Japan.

The Philippines exported more goods in 1981 than in 1980, but get less income, she observed.

Philippine traditional exports such as sugar, coconut oil, and cooper have all gone down in the world market, it was noted.

President Marcos called for the revitalization of the scouting movement to develop the young into patriotic citizens with strong character.

He sounded the call after signing Proclamation No. 2167 declaring the period Feb. 22, 1982, to July 14, 1983, the "Year of the Scout" in connection with the observance of the 75th anniversary of world scouting and the 125th anniversary of its founder, Robert Baden-Powell.

The President cited the "young achievers" who were selected by the Philippine-Jaycees for its Outstanding Young Men awards.

He expressed hope that the number of boy and girl scouts would increase further the scouting movement in the country and that there should be intense interest on scouting in the community.

March 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered a thorough revamp of the management of the Manila International Airport.

Adopting draconian measures, the President:

- 1) Ordered the apprehension and imprisonment for 24 hours of anybody found loitering in restricted areas, specifically the passenger boarding or disembarking areas.
- 2) Banned from the MIA premises, which he delineated as “five hundred yards of the MIA terminal building,” all municipal policemen of Parañaque, Makati, Pasay, or any other city or municipality.
- 3) Directed the organization, through the Aviation Security command (Avescom), of a Manila international airport police organization in lieu of these policemen.
- 4) Specified that taxis and other vehicles authorized to carry airplane passengers shall be given special passes to enter the premises. All other vehicles which do not carry a special authority shall be banned.
- 5) Limited portage service to those against whom there are no adverse reports.
- 6) Directed the setting up of checkpoints periodically at the entrance and exit points.

President Marcos warned party mates yesterday against turning the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran into a “pork barrel” and decreed that all qualified entrepreneurs, including those in the opposition, should be provided seed capital to help finance livelihood projects.

The President stressed that the KKK is non-partisan project under the New Republic.

He emphasized that the KKK assistance is being extended in the form of loans that have to be paid back by the borrowers.

The President said he discouraged the giving of KKK funds solely to those identified with the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan.

He said he had asked mayors throughout the country to identify at least one project for every municipality not to exceed P100,000 in cost.

March 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS acted yesterday to improve the management and corporate setup of government corporations by issuing a letter of instructions separating the positions of chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

He directed cabinet ministers and all heads of government firms to take this step “in order to clearly define responsibilities in the policy formulation and implementation aspects of corporate management.”

The President stated that in the event that the two positions are presently held by one person, steps shall be taken within three days to separate them and the Office of the President will be notified of the resolution of the governing board to this effect in order that the President may order the election or appointment of either the chief executive or the chairman.

President Marcos, moving to save the country's marine reserves and tourist attractions from ecological destruction, ordered yesterday the arrest or deportation of Filipinos and foreigners making unauthorized and unregulated developments.

The presidential action was prompted by an urgent plea from the University of the Philippines Puerto Galera committee to stop the unregulated activities of an American businessman and a French inside the rich marine cove.

The President was informed by marine biologists of the UP that the destruction of marine and mangrove eco-system was endangering the life of mud-dwelling clams, corals and other marine reserves in the area.

The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, cited yesterday the need to imbue youths with a strong work ethic to make them productive citizens of tomorrow.

Mrs. Marcos said it is vital that the youths develop early in life a healthy attitude towards work.

Mrs. Marcos spoke before the 1982 officers of the Children Museum and Library, Inc. and the "Ang mga Lingkod ng Bayan" who took their oath of office before her at Malacañang.

The CMLI organized primarily to help gifted children, is observing its silver jubilee. "Ang mga Lingkod ng Bayan" is composed of cabinet ladies engaged in charity work.

The First Lady enlisted the two groups and in giving the youths a headstart in developing their skills, imagination, and creativity.

She said this can be done within the framework of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran by giving the youths activities that will keep them busy and productive.

March 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered yesterday strict control of government accountable forms after he received reports of malversed forms and fake residence certificates in several municipalities.

The President ordered the national bureau of investigation to trace the source of fake certificates.

He directed the bureau of internal revenue to institute effective controls in the requisition, issuance, and handling of accountable forms.

Accountable forms are pre-numbered official documents issued by the government in the payment of taxes and other obligations by residents.

Other accountable forms are treasury warrants, cash receipts issued to market vendors, and documentary stamps.

The commission on audit told the President preliminary investigation indicated that malversed funds from fake residence certificates could run into millions of pesos.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos signed yesterday in behalf of the Philippine government a $5-million grant agreement with Norway to finance a 5,000-kilowatt mini-hydro-electric plant for the province of Bohol.

The First Lady signed the agreement in a ceremony at Malacañang in her capacity as chairman of the national electrification administration. Norwegian embassy charge d' affairs John Grieg signed for Norway.

The power plant will be ready in the town of Janopol in 1984. It will supplement two wood-burning (dendro-thermal) plants of 3,000 KW each which the NEA is developing in Bohol.

The Janopol mini-hydro plant is expected to hasten the electrification of Bohol island, which has all but six of Bohol island, which has all but six of its 47 towns now electrified.

The First Lady said that hydroelectric power is one of the cheapest of the non-oil energy sources and tapping its potentials could help accelerate the implementation of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran national livelihood program.

The immediate beneficiaries of this $5-million grant agreement with Norway will be thirty-one thousand of the province's 133,000 households.

President Marcos closed yesterday the festering land dispute in two former haciendas of Tabacalera in Isabela when he ordered expropriation of the 11, 448 hectare property for distribution and resales to 5,000 farmer occupants.

He signed Executive Order No. 778 before truckloads of Isabela farmers who had converged at Malacañang. After the signing, the grateful farmers thanked the President.

Speaking in Ilocano, the President promised the farmers that he would fix the lot price by Sunday so that the beneficiaries could immediately take over their lands.

He lashed out at agitators who had been fomenting social unrest among the farmers in the two estates, Hacienda San Antonio and Hacienda Sta. Isabel.

Expropriation of the haciendas, the President declared, will disprove the words of the agitators who "are trying to lead you astray, misleading you to fight those in authority."

The President advised the farmers not to permit communist ideology to mislead them.

March 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, adopting a retrenchment program, ordered yesterday all government firms to stop remodelling their offices and to suspend repair of buildings.

He issued Letter of Instructions No. 1198 directing all government corporations to submit detailed expenditures of their funds for the construction, repair, improvement, rehabilitation and modernization of their buildings and offices one month from receipt of the LOI.

The LOI also stopped the acquisition of furniture and the purchase of equipment.

The President said expenditures under the new LOI incurred without public bidding as provided by law should be explained in writing if they are presented.

Miss Imee Marcos, chairman of the board of the Music Foundation of the Philippines, announced last night the staging of the First Philippine Music Industry Awards to be known as the “Cecil Awards” on April 24 at the Cultural Center of the Philippines.

Miss Marcos, who is also chairman and director general of the Experimental Cinema of the Philippines, made the announcement in ceremonies at the Manila hotel.

Miss Marcos said the launching of the music awards is part of the continuing efforts of the music foundation in the promotion and growth of Filipino pop music.

The “Cecil Awards” is named after Cecil Lloyd, the Filipino “Mystery Singer” of the forties and fifties, who became founder and president of the first Filipino-owned recording company—the Philippine Recording System in 1948.

Lloyd was present during the affair and expressed his thanks to the music foundation for the honor and recognition accorded him.

The First Philippine Music Industry Awards is under the auspices of the Popular Music Foundation of the Philippines in cooperation with the Philippine Association of the Records Industry, Kapisanan ng Mga Mang-aawit sa Pilipinas, Kapisanan ng mga May akda ng Tugtuging Atin, Kapisanan ng mga Broadcaster sa Pilipinas and the National Media Production Center.

March 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the Communist party is no longer outlawed and could participate in the coming elections, including the capability to contest political leadership via the electoral process.

However, the President emphasized that any organization whether it is communist or not, which utilizes violence or subversion or any means of deceit to overthrow and undermine the government is illegal.

The president said he decided to amend the Anti-Subversion Law after the country normalized diplomatic relations with the two leading communist countries, the People’s Republic of China in 1975 and the Soviet Union in 1976.

He said that like any other group seeking political power through peaceful means, the CPP will have to go through the routine of organizing, participating in nationwide elections, and capturing a certain Percentage of the votes before it can be accredited as a political party

Under present laws, the President pointed out, a political grouping must get at least 10 per cent of the votes in a national election before it can be accredited by the commission on elections.

March 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS laid down the basic guidelines to preserve the natural and scenic beauty as well as the marine resources of Oriental Mindoro's Puerto Galera and to prevent its use as haven of drug addicts and smugglers, namely:

1. Directed a seven-man inter-agency committee to enforce the provisions of existing presidential decrees and all pertinent laws, decrees, orders, and regulations to protect and preserve Puerto Galera;
2. Named to the inter-agency the minister of tourism, the minister of human settlements, the minister of local governments, the commissioner of immigration and deportation, the chief of the constabulary, the commandant of the Philippine Coast Guard, and the president of the University of the Philippines.

Puerto Galera took the spotlight three weeks ago when the UP biological station in the area called the attention of the President to what it called the destruction of Puerto Galera's ecology by foreigners.

March 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on local officials yesterday to devote their time and energy to the economic liberation of the people and stop thinking about politics and self-aggrandizement.

The President stressed that the prime purpose of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran is the economic emancipation of the Filipino people.

He also emphasized that the KKK is but a part of the series of steps being undertaken by the KBL under a strong political leadership.

The President stated that among the steps initiated to free the people from the exploitation of their fellowmen are the following:

1. The land reform program, where the landowners were also encouraged to go into industry.
2. Establishment of small-and-medium-scale industries, and the initiatives offered to build these up.
3. Assistance to liberated tenants.
4. Encouragements given the Samahang Nayons to put up cooperative associations, and factories in order to produce.
5. The Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK).

All these and others, the President pointed out, make one package aimed at the liberation of the Filipino people from economic problems and difficulties of a developing society.

March 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared yesterday Prime Minister Cesar Virata would remain in office indefinitely.

This would do away with the earlier proposals to rotate the position of prime minister.

The President stressed that there will be no rotation for the post of prime minister because of the economic crisis and that the present crisis does not allow the changing of horses in midstream.

Previous announcements of the President justified rotation of the prime minister's post as a way of giving opportunity to deserving officials to take a crack at the No. 2 government post.

The executive committee headed by Virata which handles day-to-day government operations is known as the training ground for future leaders.

The President emphasized that anyone could have a chance at the post if he thought he could do better.

"All of us are in agreement that one cannot be selfish in this thing, because nobody knows what will happen to the prime minister," the President said.

March 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS assailed yesterday the protectionist policies of the developed countries and reiterated the quest of Third World countries for more equitable sharing of the world's wealth not through aid but through trade.

The President addressed his message to the 1082 Asia Pacific International Finance Seminar held at the Manila hotel. The speech, which was read by Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata, dwelt on the issue of protectionism.

He blamed the developed countries for the low prices of many Philippine products, from raw material exports to garments to light manufacture.

The President said these products "have been placed at a competitive disadvantage because of excessive tariffs, stringent quotas, and other trade barriers imposed by the developed countries of the West."

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 22—

CROWN PRINCE Fahd met the President at the ramp of his Boeing 747, stood with him during military honors, and escorted him and Mrs. Marcos to the Royal pavilion where the king received them.

After offering his visitors Arabic coffee and engaging in light conversation, the king escorted President Marcos and his party to the guest palace, a huge modern structure also known as the Conference palace.

At 4 p.m. there were 14 simultaneous ministerial conversations in various function rooms of the palace. The talks could result in increased employment of Filipino workers in this desert kingdom where they are right now 150,000 of them.

There is also a proposal to increase the supply of Arabian crude oil-by 60,000 barels a day. The kingdom at the moment supplies more than 40 per cent of Philippine oil requirements.

In Jeddah yesterday, the President visited the giant desalination plant in the Al Amra district on the Red Sea Coast. It is one of the four such plants in Mecca province. There are ten in the country.

In another meeting, Minister of Industry and Trade Roberto Ongpin discussed joint ventures in food processing, cement production, housing materials, furniture and others.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos discussed provision of consultancy services in town planning, urban rural policies and programming, land use planning, sites and services development, urban design, and others.

Minister of Labor Blas F. Ople took up development of workers, welfare services and training schemes, insurance coverage and availment.

Minister Ople and his Saudi counterpart reached a four-point summary of understanding as follows:

1. Availment of each country's expertise in development objectives.
2. Enhancement of the welfare and protection of the rights of their nationals in accordance with the best possible treatment by their governments under their respective labor laws.
3. Exchange of information on relevant studies, technical expertise, and other matters enhancing employment promotion, manpower training, and labor administration.
4. Development of workers welfare services and training schemes.

March 23—

KING KHALED told President Marcos that following the state visit, things would improve between the two countries and the welfare of all minorities, including the Muslims, would grow in brotherly-harmony and friendship.

King Khaled added he would rely on Mr. Marcos' "great wisdom" to make the lot of Muslim Filipinos happier and better.

President Marcos traced the advances made by Saudi Arabia and said that for the first time in history, a center of religion has become a center of development and of power, as well as affluence.

He formally invited the king, the crown prince, and members of the royal family to visit Manila.

The President disclosed development plans for Muslim communities. He cited on-going programs to establish Muslim courts and to upgrade the 200 Madrasha schools in Mindanao.

President Marcos ordered the Budget Ministry and the commission on audit to release immediately the payment of the cost-of-living allowances of public school teachers.

The meeting was prompted by a threat of hundreds of school teachers in Makati to go on mass leave if their allowances are not released immediately.

The teachers said the grant of allowances authorized under Republic Act 5447 was stopped by the Budget Ministry.

Metro Manila commissioner for finance Mauro Calaguio, who is acting Metro Manila governor, said last night that he was informed of the order by the First Lady and Metro Manila Governor Imelda R. Marcos in an overseas call from Riyadh, Saudi Arabia.

March 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS took off this morning (4 p.m. Manila time) from Riyadh ending his three-day state visit to this center of Islam.

The President took off for Jeddah on his way home, having accomplished the economic and diplomatic objectives of his trip.

He stressed that his meeting with the highest officials of Saudi Arabia forged greater understanding and better appreciation of the problems that confront the two countries.

The President said that new and common grounds for mutually beneficial relations and cooperative actions have been strengthened.

"We have different needs and different resources. To achieve our common goals and satisfy our diverse needs, we are most determined to share the use of our different resources, which often complement each other," the President said.

The President took the opportunity to greet the over 150,000 Filipino workers, in Saudi Arabia, declaring that he was proud of them and their Arabian employers were also proud of them.

He praised the hospitality extended to him and his party by the rulers of Saudi Arabia.

March 24—

President Marcos issued a proclamation calling for the election of members of the sangguniang pampook (regional assembly) of the two autonomous regional governments of Central and Western Mindanao.

This was reported by Deputy Prime Minister Jose A. Roño, majority floor leader and local governments minister, who said there is no need for the Batasan to enact a special law calling for elections in those areas.

According to him, the presidential authority is embodied in the pro vision of Batas Pambansa Blg. 20 which created the sanggunian pampook in each of the two autonomous regions.

The three-year term of the regional assemblymen expires on May 8.

Roño said the date of the regional elections has not yet been determined, although he appeared certain it will be held certain on or before the end of April.

HABIB CHATTI, secretary general of the powerful Islamic Conference, told President Marcos that he had informed Nur Misuari, chairman of the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLP), that he should stop promoting the idea of creating a separate state of Mindanao.

Chatti told the President at a press conference that the rebel leaders gave him his written position to make Mindanao a separate and independent state.

He told the President that he informed Misuari that this was against the position taken by the Islamic Conference and he should convince his fellow rebels to change their position or the Islamic Conference cannot support them.

Sheikh Muhammad Ali Al-Harakan, secretary general of the World Muslim league (Rabeta) told President Marcos: "I'm not concerned with Misuari or any other individual claiming to be the representative of the Muslims in Southern Philippines. Our concern extends to all Muslims in the Southern Philippines."

Harakan said Rabeta will put up a Islamic center in Manila to attend to the needs of Muslims in the Philippines and those in the Southeast Asian region as well.

The President said this center would be set up on Buendia and Ayala avenues in Makati, the Philippines' financial center.

Harakan told the President his group will send representatives to the Philippines to train Filipino Muslim scholars to run the Shariah courts.

The President said that he would attend to the Rabeta experts himself.

March 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, arrived at 1:30 p.m. told welcomers at the Manila International airport that his three-day state visit; to Riyadh enhanced economic ties with the Saudi government while strengthening unity in Mindanao.

The President said that he would attend to the Rabeta experts himself and daughter Imee, took off from Jeddah's Abdul Aziz airport at 3:50 a.m. yesterday, ending the first trip by a Philippine President to the Middle East.

High point of the visit was the agreement in principle of an economic and technical cooperation agreement to be finalized in the next several days.

The President said this would be the umbrella agreement for all economic and technical arrangements and cooperative ventures between the Philippine and Saudi Arabia.

He reported that the Philippines secured a $500-million loan under favorable terms from the Saudis.

The President cited King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd for their kindness and consideration during his talks with them. He called the talks fruitful.

He cited the following proposals which were agreed on:

1. To set up a Philippine Labor center in the kingdom to promote employment while protecting the interests of Filipino workers in the Middle East.
2. The approval of the air agreement between the Philippines and Saudi Arabia for the Philippine Air Lines to operate three flights a week to Dhahran out of Manila.
3. The immediate settlement of the Mindanao conflicts within the context of the resolutions of the Organization of the Islamic Conference, which has since 1974 has called for solving the problem under the principle of sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Philippines.

March 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has signed into law the barangay elections bill and the revised capital gains tax measure.

The President signed the two measures during the cabinet meeting he called shortly after his arrival from Saudi Arabia the other day.

With the signing of the special elections law, the campaign period for the posts of barangay captain (punong barangay) and councilmen (kagawad ng sangguniang barangay) officially begins on May 1 and ends on May 15, two days before the actual voting on May 17.

The revised Capital Gains Tax Law provides that a stockholder who sells shares of stock listed and traded through the stock exchange will be subject only to one-fourth of one percent tax on selling price. The stockholder will no longer be required to pay a 10 percent capital gains tax on any net gains that he may realize from the sale.

The sale of shares of stock which is not done through the stock exchange, although stocks are listed and traded in the exchange, will be subject to the 10 per cent capital gains tax if the net gain does not exceed P100,000 and to a maximum of 20 per cent if over P100,000.

The revision had removed the distinction between close corporation and other corporations and that the term "net capital gains" implies offsetting of losses from other sales of share in the same or any other corporation.

Generally, there is a move to make the barangay elections non-partisan so that the people will be able to choose their officials in a free, orderly and honest election.

* * * * *

March 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged the people to participate fully in the coming barangay elections.

The forthcoming barangay elections will be conducted in a free and non-partisan manner.

The elections will enhance the cause of participatory democracy in the countryside, the President said. They will provide an opportunity for the people to choose the leaders to run the affairs of the country's basic political units.

The barangay elections bill which the President signed into law provides for the election of a barangay captain and six councilmen in each of the 45,000 barangays throughout the country.

The special elections law or Batas Pambansa Blg. 222, provides for a direct, non-partisan election of the local officials who will constitute the barangay council or sangguniang barangay.

The law provides for a campaign period to start on May 1 and end on May 15, two days before the voting on May 17.

President Marcos pledged to appoint Muslims to high diplomatic, judiciary, and executive government posts.

The President on his arrival from a five-day trip to Saudi Arabia said he has ordered Muslim leaders to submit a list of recommendations for ambassadorial positions, the Supreme Court, and other executive departments.

The commitment of President Marcos to appoint Muslims to important positions is a soothing balm to the Muslim's age-old wounds stemming from grievances about lack of representation, Dr. Alunan Glang said.

This will also provide a good opportunity for the Filipino Muslims to contribute greatly in steering the course of the New Republic.

March 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that elections of the regional assembly in regions 9 and 11 will be held possibly on May 27 after the May 17 barangay elections, instead of next month as earlier reported.

He told Malacañang newsmen that the two regions which currently have an executive council each will, under the new setup, have only one executive council whose members will be coming from both regions.

The President said he would call a caucus of the KBL anytime after the Holy Week to define the powers of the regional assemblies and the executive council for both.

He also stressed that he will be issuing the necessary executive order to the effect as the Batasan will not be in session by then.

On the composition of the single executive council for the two regional assemblies, Mr. Marcos said he would have to consult with local leaders in the ruling party on the powers of each of the bodies and the membership.

The President said that the holding of the regional assembly is made upon the recommendation of the Batasan and the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan party.

President Marcos has signed into law three more bills approved by the Batasang Pambansa during its last session, including amendments to the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act, the stock transfer tax bill, and a third measure allowing balikbayans to own land here for residential purposes.

Earlier, the President also signed a special election law providing for the election on May 17 of barangay captains and barangay councilmen in the 45,000 barangays all over the country.

The new anti-graft law gives more teeth to the government's campaign against dishonesty in the public service.

The new statute subjects to dismissal or removal from office any public officials who is found to have acquired during his incumbency, whether in his name or in the name of other persons, an amount of property or money manifestly out of proportion to his salary and other lawful income.

The new law considers as evidence of graft activities in any club or association, ostentatious display of wealth, including frequent travels abroad of a non-official character, when such activities entail expenses evidently out of proportion to legitimate income.

These circumstances now constitute valid ground for administrative suspension from office for an indefinite period, until the investigation of the unexplained wealth is completed.

Properties in the name of the spouse and dependents of the official may be taken into consideration when their acquisition through legitimate means cannot be satisfactorily shown.

Bank deposits in the name of, or manifestly excessive expenditures incurred by, the officials, Ids spouse, or any of their dependents, will all be taken into consideration.

All crimes committed under the new law, particularly unexplained wealth, will prescribe in 15 years.

The stock of transactions law calls for the imposition of a one-fourth of one per cent tax for stocks traded within a year, and a 10 per cent capital gains tax for stocks traded after the one-year holding: period.

It also imposes a 10 per cent tax on net capital gains for traded stocks below P100, 000 but sets a maximum of 20 per cent for similar transactions exceeding P100.000.

The new balikbayan law allows former natural-born Filipino citizens to acquire land in the Philippines for residential purposes.

Acquisition is limited to not more than 1,000 square meters of residential land in urban areas and not more than one hectare in rural areas.

March 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS pressed for the removal of the remaining “irritants and inequities” in the Philippine-United States military bases agreement.

The President will take up with US Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger a wide range of defense and security developments in the region.

Weinberger is visiting three Far East allies to review mutual defense and modernization plans.

President Marcos said that Secretary Weinberger will hold top-level talks with him and senior Philippine officials in Malacañang.

When the bases agreement was amended in 1979, jurisdiction was turned over from American to Filipino hands. Gen Fabian Ver, armed forces chief of staff, is now commander of both bases.

The agenda to be discussed are the following:

1. Customs, immigration and quarantine matters.
2. Internal revenue
3. The question of perimeter security around the American military installation.

Government sources said renegotiation was deemed imperative in view of ambiguities and inequities of the agreement. But the most crucial part of the visit of Secretary Caspar Weinberger will be role of the Philippines in the security of alliance in Southeast Asia.

March 31—

THE CABINET, presided by Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata, had earlier received reports on the extensive damage suffered by the provinces of Surigao del Norte, Leyte, Bohol, Cebu, and Southern Samar.

After the session, the cabinet asked President Marcos to declare a state of calamity in six provinces hit hardest by typhoon “Bising.”

The death toll stood at 38 yesterday as reports continued to filter from the stricken areas. Some 10,600 families were reported to have lost their homes.

Earlier, Minister of Social Services Sylvia Montes and Cebu Gov. Eduardo Gullas, member of the executive committee, briefed the members of the cabinet. They said typhoon Bising affected Regions VI, VII, VIII, and X. Damage to public and private property was estimated at P35 million.

Just a week before typhoon “Bising” hit the Philippines typhoon “Akang” struck Regions X, XI, and XII.

Minister Montes said that because of the two typhoons which struck one after the other, her ministry have given relief to a total of 58,297 families consisting of 339,782 persons.

President's Month in Review: April 1-30, 1982

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the twin tasks of reforming the machinery of justice and the creation of a competent corps of judges depend upon the competence, probity, knowledge and honesty of those who will be appointed to the bench.

The seminar was the first step in the work of filling up judicial vacancies in accordance with the Judiciary Reorganization Act of 1980.

The President cited other institutional reforms he would undertake.

They are:

- 1) Amend the rules of court for faster decision on cases.
- 2) Decrease substantially the number of cases filed with court.
- 3) Streamline systems for settling disputes out of court.
- 4) Revitalize the prosecution process.

* * * * *

President Marcos opened wide-ranging talks with United States Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger on mutual defense and security matters.

Topping the agenda of the discussion was the US-Philippine military bases agreement which the government wants renegotiated.

Weinberger is on the final leg of a three-country tour to review mutual defense and modernization plans with American allies in the Pacific.

The President has urged for the removal of remaining irritants and inequities in the treaty which was amended Jan. 7, 1979 and pushed for an early renegotiation of the agreement.

April 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that subversives no longer pose a danger or threat to the nation's internal security.

The President also minimized the reported infiltration of labor and groups by subversives, saying that only about five or six labor leaders were under surveillance.

Concerning the strength of the subversives, the President said that it varies every now and then.

The President pointed out that the casualty ratio was about five or four to one in favor of the government.

On the labor front, the President declared that he was not opposed to the desire of labor leaders to improve, the situation of their members but only if there is an attempt by union leaders to paralyze industry.

April 6—

THE FIRST LADY Minister Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, stressed that the problems of national security depends on the success of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunalaran (KKK) program.

The First Lady said that the people and the military officials should coordinate their efforts to improve the delivery of basic services, particularly in the rural areas.

She said this should counteract efforts of subversives to build up a mass base.

The First Lady said that in areas where the subversives could not discredit the KKK program, they would take advantage of its incentives.

She called on the Ministry of Local Governments to keep local officials on their toes. Failure of the local leadership usually create conditions for discontent.

The First Lady said that in this struggle, the most potent weapon is still love and compassion.

April 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was concerned about the problem posed, by the overlapping of the elections in the two autonomous regions in Mindanao and the non-partisan barangay polls.

The President asked Deputy Prime Minister Jose Roño to fly down to Zamboanga city to meet with the political leaders there to discuss the problem.

He stressed that the May 27 elections in Mindanao may have to be deferred anew to safeguard the non-partisan character of the nationwide barangay elections set by law on May 17.

The President said it would pose extreme difficulty to maintain the non-partisan nature of the barangay polls, since two sets of candidates—one partisan and the other non-partisan—would be campaigning in the regions simultaneously.

A special election law for barangay officials, passed by the Batasang Pambansa, on the other hand set barangay polls on May 17.

April 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS spoke in Malacañang before veterans who fought in the last war during the 40th anniversary of the defense of Bataan.

The President called on the nations who fought in the country during the last war to avoid the tragic lessons taught by war.

Leading the veterans who called on the President in Malacañang were Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor under National Commander Ramon Bagatsing, the mayor of Manila, including Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Edward King.

From among the crowd, the President mentioned with sadness the absence of the, top guerilla leader in Northern Luzon, Gen. Russel Volckmann, who was reported to be ill with a tumor in the lungs.

Volckmann was one of the few American soldiers who, together with Filipinos, escaped from the Japanese carnage in Bataan and Corregidor and organized a resistance movement in Northern Luzon.

The President expressed the hope the commemoration will bring back the hopes for mankind and the attainment of peace for all the world.

April 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS hinted at the need of amending certain provisions of the film censorship law, particularly the prohibition on 15-year-olds seeing adult movies.

The President stressed that this would be part of the incentive package recommended by film makers to help the ailing movie industry.

Industry leaders had asked earlier for the elimination of the term “censorship” in the law, thereby allowing youngsters 15 years old and above to watch adult movies.

The present provision prohibits persons under 21 years old from seeing such movies.

The President, however, reiterated that these recommendations were being seriously studied, together with the on-going reorganization of the board of review for motion pictures and television.

April 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has announced his determination to restore the seventh grade in public elementary schools as he pointed out the need to review the primary and elementary grades curriculum.

The President directed the presidential committee on education headed by Education Minister Onofre D. Corpuz to give priority to the plan to revive the seventh grade during his commencement address before the graduating classes of the Mariano Marcos University in Batac Ilocos Norte.

In his commencement address, the President also:

- 1) Reiterated the objective of the national government to establish one university in each region of the country.
- 2) Disclosed plans to implement transfer of the study of liberal arts subjects—the first two years of college work—from Manila to the provinces to decongest the national capital region.

The President pointed out, however, that the restoration of grade seven does not mean abandonment of the national language, Filipino.

April 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has called on the opposition groups to help observe the non-partisan character of the barangay elections scheduled on May 17.

The President said that he realized the right of every political leader, whether belonging to the majority party or, the opposition, to campaign for candidates of their choice in their individual capacity.

Concerning the political leaders of the opposition who want to strengthen their rural organization as a means of attaining national political power, the President emphasized that they should respect the basic non-partisan character of the barangay polls.

President Marcos warned that partisanship could divide the people in the countryside and spoil the essential fabric of unity which they need for their participation in vital programs like the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran.

April 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has stressed the government would ask for the maximum penalty for persons found guilty of manufacturing, distributing, and selling adulterated food and fake drugs and cosmetics.

He directed Justice Minister Ricardo C. Puno to institute legal proceedings immediately against persons or institution suspected of violating the country's food and drug laws.

The President had earlier issued Letter of Instructions No. 1223 putting more teeth in the government's campaign against the manufacture and sale of adulterated food and substandard drugs and cosmetics.

The LOI authorized outright seizure condemnation of such food, drugs, and cosmetics. Manufacturers, distributors, and sellers would be prosecuted without delay.

Maximum penalty for offenders is imprisonment of not less than six months and one day but not more than five years.

It also carries a fine of not less than P1,000 or both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

The President emphasized that all food, drug, and cosmetic, products must carry the compulsory ingredient labelling requirements, including lot or batch number and expiry date.

The President said that the claims of the two suburban governments have no legal basis.

He stepped into the case by virtue of his powers to fix boundaries of local political subdivisions under the 1939 Administrative Code.

The decision of the President stopped the quarrel between the suburban officials and restore harmony between Pasay city and Parañaque.

President Marcos has directed all ministries and agencies to cut down on their spending and vowed to cut the government deficit in the face of a slumping world economy.

The President issued a memorandum to Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virita and all cabinet members to maintain the ratio of 60 per cent operating expenses by means of the following measures.

They are:

- 1) Control of undue expenses for the personnel complement of government offices, agencies, and corporations.
- 2) Government reorganization to effect further efficiency.
- 3) Rationalization of regional operations of national agencies to control the growth of operating expenses and of low-priority capital projects, such as public office facilities.
- 4) Continue rationalization of foreign-assisted development projects, since these compel a mandatory budgetary peso obligation resulting in additional deficits.
- 5) Review operations of government corporations which duplicates the function of another government agency.
- 6) Delays in the implementation of public works project is more costly than they have been estimated.

April 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has imposed a total ban on log exports effective May 1.

Spurred into action by atrocious and horrendous smuggling of logs, the President issued two directives:

- 1) Ordered the bureau of internal revenue (BIR) to examine the books of suspected log smugglers from 1978 through 1982 to determine their tax liabilities.
- 2) Directed the national bureau of investigation (NBI) to determine criminal liabilities to log exporters and to assist the BIR in obtaining from Japan the volume of smuggled logs.

The President directed the prosecution for criminal as well as tax liabilities of unscrupulous log exporters.

He said a recent issue of the authoritative Japan Lumber Journal indicated wide disparities in log export figures, as obtained from the bureau of customs and from Tokyo.

The President said the figures clearly show that many log exporters had been shipping more logs than their log export quotas.

The total log export ban ends the grace period authorized by the President earlier for exporters to fill their unused quotas.

THE KILUSANG BAGONG Lipinan (KBL) has decided to call the Batasang Pambansa to a special session on May 19 to pass a new measure that would cope with labor problems and preserve industrial pace.

In deciding to call the Batasan to a special session to tackle labor problems, the majority party agreed to expand the picketing and anti-scab bill pending with the Batasan to include the following:

- 1) A proposal to expand the list of critical industries whose disruption by strikes or lockouts would affect the national interest.
- 2) A move to resolve questions of jurisdiction over illegal strikes and the power of the labor minister to certify labor cases for compulsory arbitration that have been put in doubt by recent decisions of the Supreme Court.
- 3) A resolution clarifying ambiguities resulting from a Supreme Court decision on the 13th month pay involved in the Marcoper case.

The President urged the Cabinet to relate the study with the overall problems of the economy, wage and income policies and the general situation of industrial pace.

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the general military council reassessed the influence of the overall peace and order situation on the May 17 barangay elections.

The President and the council members met behind closed doors at Malacañang for over four hours.

The general military council meeting was the first of a series of such meetings called by the President to reassess the peace and order situation of the country.

The military commanders reportedly tagged the Kalinga-Apayao area, the Bicol region, the three Samar provinces, and the Davao provinces as the possible critical areas.

The reported NPA threats notwithstanding, Enrile and Ver was prepared to meet the threat.

President Marcos stressed that fishermen who operate fishpens in Laguna de Bay without authority have to get licenses or get out of the place.

The President said he intended to give the illegal operators a certain period of time to either legalize their position or pull out.

The President's action was spurred by complaints of small fishermen against illegal fishpens in the lake.

Small fishermen of Rizal and Laguna lake towns have complained that big fishpens some guarded by armed security men, have restricted their access to the lake and limited fishing areas.

April 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed a public hearing of Cabinet Bill No. 49 pending before the Batasang Pambansa designed to cope with labor problems and preserve industrial productivity.

The President said there has been a study conducted by the presidential committee as well as the Batasan committee on labor, manpower and employment in the face of a rash of strikes in some business establishments.

Cabinet Bill No. 49 seeks to remove ambiguities in the labor code to help protect the interest of labor while insuring industrial productivity and stability.

The President has observed that management and citizenry were alarmed by the irresponsible manner in which the strikers have attempted to stop economic activity, production of exports, and production of domestic goods.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on the Armed Forces to be always vigilant in coping with both external and internal threats to national security.

The President and commander-in-chief of the Armed Forces was guest of honor and speaker at the celebration of the 85th anniversary of the Philippine Army at Fort Bonifacio.

He listed four characteristics which the Armed Forces must acquire for it to help in turning present conditions of peace and order into a time for growth and change.

The Armed Forces must:

- 1) Be developed into an ever prepared force that can cope with both external and internal threats.
- 2) Be development oriented.

3) Be people-oriented.

4) Have a kind of discipline that bears the imprints of compassion, justice, humanism, and integrity, making it truly the Army of the people.

The President emphasized the loyalty of the Armed Forces to the Constitution and the New Republic.

April 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS underscored the importance of the Asian Development Bank in promoting international development.

Addressing the 15th annual meeting of the ADB board of governors at the Philippine International Convention Center, the President noted that the ADB has made a significant difference in the economic growth of the Asian region.

The President, speaking as a leader of a developing country, outlined some of the challenges which confront the Asian region in the coming years.

He said that since its inauguration 15 years ago, the Asian Development Bank had come to recognize that international development depends on the willingness and ability of countries to cooperate with one another and that peace and prosperity for any nation cannot be secured with the world starkly divided between rich and poor.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos arrived from the US to foster closer ties between American society and the Philippines.

The trip of the First Lady was principally aimed at giving national livelihood program—the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran—an international dimension.

The President together with daughter Imee and son Bongbong welcomed the First Lady at the Manila International Airport,

The First Lady said that interest in Philippine products in the US and in Europe had been spurred following the opening of the Bloomingdale's promotional blitz where sales of KKK products reached 88 per cent of goals.

April 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the insistence of Nur Misuari in dismembering Philippine territory to form a separate state in the south has shunted him off from the Islamic Conference.

The President also said that he no longer recognized Misuari as leader of the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF).

He said Misuari is no longer the Muslim leader the Philippine government would deal with in the solution of the Mindanao problem.

The President said he was told by ranking MNLF leaders that Misuari has already been deposed as chairman and secretary general of the MNLF.

The President said that by insisting on his demand for a separate Bangsa Moro republic with its own flag and armed force, Nur Misuari had defied the many resolutions of the 43-member Islamic conference that urged the resolution of the Mindanao conflict within the framework of Philippine sovereignty and territorial integrity.

His talks with King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd during his three-day visit to Saudi Arabia also ended Misuari's hope of forming a separate Bangsa Moro republic.

May 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS minimized the threat posed by leftist revolutionaries.

The President stressed that most of the members of the communist New People's Army are merely hoodlums and extortionists, and are no longer the ideologues that they used to be.

He said that the people are now aware of the effects of a leftist movement as they are aware of the fact that the leftist offers sterile slogans.

The President did not think that there was a substantial number of armed men ready to fight. Admitting some rebels carried arms, he doubted whether the leftist revolutionaries could pit their strength against the Armed Forces.

PRESIDENT MARCOS effected a total revamp of the Ministry of Labor and Employment that saw the appointment of the 160 key officials including three assistant ministers.

The overhaul involved a change of leadership in six bureaus, all staff services, and the 13 regional offices of the ministry.

The appointment of key officials, which took effect yesterday, was the start of the ministry's two-phase reorganization. The second phase which pertains to structuring and staffing second level offices was expected to take effect in at least three months.

In the shakeup, the positions of 28 labor arbiters were left vacant while 95 new arbiters were appointed to ensure the speedy and fair disposition of labor cases.

The President stressed that the reorganization was the start of the administration's effort to promote employment, preserve industrial peace, and protect the welfare of the Filipino worker.

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged the representatives of labor and management to participate in public hearings on the picketing and anti-scab provisions of an expanded labor code.

The President called on the labor leaders to air their views on the bill, Cabinet Bill No. 49, so that the debate "may become free, thorough and comprehensive."

The Cabinet and the labor committee of the Batasang Pambansa on instructions of the President, conducted a public hearing on the bill in the cabinet room of the Executive House.

Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata presided over the hearing

The hearing was expected to iron out differences between labor and management on certain amendments to the Labor Code pending before the Batasan meets on May 19 to pass the bill into law.

Cabinet bill No. 49 seeks to clarify certain provisions of Batasang Pambansa Blg. 130 especially on the jurisdiction of labor arbiters on questions of illegal strikes and prohibited acts during strikes.

PRESIDENT MARCOS placed May 17 as the date for holding plebiscites to decide on the creation of seven municipalities and two barangays.

The President issued Proclamation No. 2188 for the holding of plebiscite in specific areas at the same time as the barangay elections and also to minimize government expenses.

Several laws were recently enacted by the Batasang Pambansa creating new municipalities and barangays. The proposed municipalities are Dodod, Bacungan, and Vincenzo Sagun, all in Zamboanga del Norte; Kapatagan, Lanao del Sur; Roseller Lim, Zamboanga del Sur; Don Mariano Marcos, Misamis Occidental; and Aleosan, North Cotabato.

The proposed barangays are Industrial Valley in Marikina, and New Alabang Village in Muntinlupa, both in Metro Manila.

The Commission on Elections had announced that voters have only until tomorrow to register for the May 17 barangay elections.

May 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged members of media to segregate themselves from prejudices and passions in the performance of their work.

Speaking before newsmen after inducting the new officers of the National Press Club led by Bulletin Today editor Ben F. Rodriguez, President Marcos expressed regret that some sectors in media sometimes get involved in conflicts when actually, both government and the media should not belong to any group, sector, or level of society.

He stressed that lack of objectivity defeats the real interpreter of contemporary times, the writer of contemporary times, as well as would-be leader and reformer.

The President started off his monthly chat on radio and TV with a press conference last night with the new NPC officers and members of the Malacañang Press Corps led by Vicente Tañedo, president.

May 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on all concerned, particularly the candidates, to make the May 17 barangay elections “a clean and honest election.”

The President underscored the importance of the elections, saying that its success will mean the triumph of a free citizenry.

He also appealed to leaders, especially those who are with the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan, that they should not use the party.

The law expressly forbids the participation of the party in this election, he added.

“Let us permit our countrymen to participate on their own merits so we might know whom our countrymen wish to choose,” the President said.

He stressed however that “there is something the ordinary person should know to be efficient in serving the country: he should at least know where barangay funds come from, whom to approach to ensure that these funds reach the barangays.”

May 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has reconstituted the Supreme Court by reappointing 12 of the 14 resigned justices and appointed three new ones that gave the High Tribunal its full complement of 15 members.

The three new appointees are Associate Justices Conrado Vasquez, Hugo Gutierrez, Jr. and Lorenzo Relova, all former justices of the Court of Appeals.

Two of the three newly filled vacancies were left open by the resignations of Associate Justices Vicente G. Ericta and Ramon Fernandez, while the third position had long been vacant.

Those reappointed aside from Chief Justice Fernando were:

Associate Justices Claudio O. Teehankee, Antonio P. Barredo, Felix V. Makasiar, Ramon C. Aquino, Juvenal K. Guerrero, Pacifico P. de Castro, Ameurfina A. Melencio-Herrera, Efren I. Plana, Venicio T. Escolin, Vicente Abaci Santos and Hermogenes Concepcion, Jr.

Except for Justice Abad Santos who is on a mission in the United States all 14 magistrates took their oath at the ceremonial hall of Malacañang at 1:30 p.m. before President Marcos.

Reconstitution of the High Tribunal resolved a crisis that arose from the 1981 bar examination scandal involving Gustavo Erieta, a son of Justice Erieta.

Their non-reappointment was on recommendation of retired justices of the Supreme Court with whom the President had continued consultations.

“PRESIDENT MARCOS has urged on all 28.2 million registered voters to exercise their right of suffrage in the coming barangay elections—the first to be held since 1972.

To be elected in each of the 41,492 barangays throughout the country are one barangay captain and six council members.

He pointed out the presence of divisiveness and factionalism among the barangay members.

The President said that the non-partisan election is a redirection towards a more responsible exercise of suffrage.

The barangay election is a change for the better for it eliminates the old vices of election fever such as politicking, overspending, and terrorism.

The President reminded the citizenry that the barangay is the very foundation of the whole Republic and that the political exercise strengthens freedom and democracy at the grassroots level.

The First Lady and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda R. Marcos described the heavy voter's turnout as confirming the success of the political orientation of the Marcos administration.

She said that the election was important because there are more people involved and the barangay election shows the dynamism of democracy at the grassroots level.

She said that the President and herself were happy over the number of candidates who filed their certificates of candidacy considering that the barangay posts of chairman and councilmen carry no salary.

The First Lady said the barangay election shows that more people would like to be involved and commit themselves to the service of the country without monetary or financial reward.

PRESIDENT MARCOS suggested the holding of a Third Asean Summit Conference to integrate various schemes and agreements entered into since Asean was organized on Aug. 8, 1967.

The President made the suggestion in a keynote address before the 13th meeting of Asean economic ministers which opened at the Philippine International Convention Center.

In his speech, the President said that Asean has not had a summit since 1967.

The President stressed the positive role of historically played in the development of Asean solidarity by Asean heads of governments through understanding and cooperation.

The Asean was organized on Aug. 8, 1967. Since then, there had been only two summit meetings, the first in Bali, Indonesia in 1976 and the second was at Kuala Lumpur in 1977.

President Marcos made particular emphasis on the establishment of free trade and the promotion of greater economic cooperation.

May 22—

LABOR MINISTER Blas F. Ople urged certain labor extremists critical of Cabinet Bill 49 to stop playing politics with national stability at a time when the persistent global economic crisis is wreaking havoc on national economies, particularly employment.

Ople said that there is no country in Asia, outside Japan where the industrial relations law, supplemented by Cabinet Bill 49, grants more social and economic rights to workers, or permits under certain safeguards the resort to the ultimate bargaining weapons of strikes and lockouts.

He emphasized that certain labor quarters are demanding a free-fight situation in labor relations which they could exploit to destabilize the economy and the State.

Ople said that Cabinet Bill 49 protects the right to picket and prohibits the use of strike-bearers but it also defines the obligations of striking workers especially to the general public.

May 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has defended the P35-billion foreign borrowings by the Central Bank for the country's industrialization program.

The President also told newsmen the administration will review the government's 11 major industrial projects and present a balanced agro-industrial program.

He said that the P35-billion borrowings of the Central Bank were needed to prime the economy, enable the Filipinos to control their economic destiny and prevent foreign domination.

The President pointed out that if private firms were to borrow on their own, they would be paying interest rates ranging from 21 to 25 per cent.

According to the President, if the government borrows from abroad, the interest is only about nine to 10 per cent.

Mr. Marcos also chide the opposition for harping on the country's borrowings and the dominance of the economy by the industrialized countries.

May 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the 11 major industrial projects of the government will be reviewed to bring about a balanced agro-industrial program.

The President said that some of the projects may have to be modified or scrapped.

He also said that many of the bigger countries are preventing industrialization to preserve their own foreign markets.

The President said that in the case of the sulphur phosphate project, the government of Nauru had already invested 40 percent equity totalling $40 million. The balance will be provided by the National Development Company.

He said that he had his own doubts about the viability and profitability of many oil-based factories listed among the 11 major industrial projects.

May 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has called for increased economic activity within the Asean region to offset the protectionist trade policies of the West.

The President said that the present trade development within the Asean was not satisfactory because of deficiencies in some agreements.

He said that among these were the lowering of tariff items that matter and “there are thousands of items that can be eliminated from the tariff list.”

The President said that trading between the member countries—Philippines, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand and Indonesia—has to be improved to spur greater economic activity.

He stressed, however, that the investment climate in the region was safe despite several weaknesses.

The President cited the investment by the World Bank on a copper smelter plant and other offers to put up aluminum smelter and fertilizer facilities.

May 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata met the special presidential committee on reorganization at Malacañang.

Trade and Industry Minister Roberto Ongpin briefed the President and the prime minister on the studies and recommendations of the committee to effect economy and promote efficiency in government operations.

The President was determined to impress upon the committee the need to reduce the expected P10-billion deficit to only CS-billion this year, without resorting to mass lay-offs.

The Chairman of the committee is Minister Ongpin with Armand Fabella of the government reorganization commission as executive director.

May 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has abolished 10 government corporations, merged six others, approved the sale to the private sector of another five and converted three into regular government offices.

The President also merged the Ministry of Youth and Sports with the Ministry of Education and Culture.

The 10 corporations were abolished because they had been a drain on government coffers and had been inactive.

The President said that aside from the savings to be realized, he wanted a more efficient government, pointing out that he would not sacrifice efficiency for economy.

But the government must reduce the expected P10-billion budget deficit this year to P5-billion, he said.

The reorganization moves were approved by the President in an effort to streamline government operations and funnel more resources into food production, energy development, and environmental protection.

May 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the government would study the possibility of the Philippines becoming a member of the association of copper producing and exporting countries.

This was the response made by the President to an invitation made by Zambia President Kenneth David Kaunda.

The invitation was delivered by Zambian Minister of Mines Mufaya Mumbuna, Chairman of the intergovernmental council of copper-producing countries, when he called on the President in Malacañang.

So far there are only five members of the association known as CIPEC. These are: Chile, Peru, Zambia, Zaire and Indonesia.

The President stressed that a new initiative has become necessary to set up a strong mechanism to ensure the survival of the country's copper industry and assure better prices for copper in the world market.

May 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has abolished the textbook board and three other allied offices and created two new offices to take over their functions.

The offices abolished were the textbook production division of the Ministry of Education and Culture, the education development project implementing task force (EDPITAF), and the standing committee on the procurement of school books.

The two new offices are the “Textbook Council” and the “Instructional Materials Corporation.”

The move was embodied in Executive Order No. 806 which defined the powers and functions of the newly created offices, their compositions and tenure of office of their personnel.

The President emphasized that the creation of the new offices was necessary to broaden and enhance the educational system and be responsive to national development goals.

May 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has appointed 15 judges to fill “crowded salas” of the courts of first instance in Metro Manila and six provinces.

The judges were named to three salas in Manila, six in Eizal, and one each in Bulacan, Nueva Ecija, Isabela, Camarines Sur, Aldan, and Lanao del Norte.

Minister Juan C. Tuvera, presidential executive assistant, said the appointments preceded the judiciary revamp and set the ground for it.

Tuvera said the appointments involved existing salas in the old judiciary system and were still subject to the forthcoming reorganization of the judiciary.

Justice Minister Ricardo Puno recommended the appointments, which were cleared by the integrity council.

The newly appointed Manila CFI judges were Florentino Villanueva, branch XV; Antonio Martinez, branch XX; and Rosalio de Leon, branch II.

The Rizal judges, who will have jurisdiction over Quezon, Pasay, and Caloocan cities, were Vicente Campos for branch XXV; Eutropio Migrino, branch I; Eduardo Abaya, branch XIV; Josue Bellosillo, branch II; Perpetua Cloma, branch VII; and Oscar Herrera, branch XXXII.

Herrera will be based in Caloocan city, Cloma in Pasay city, and the rest in Pasig, Metro Manila.

The other appointees:

1. Constantino Consigna, Isabela, CFI branch III with station at Cabagan.
2. Lilia C. Lopez, Nueva Ecija CFI branch I covering Cabanatuan, Palayan and San Jose cities, with station at Cabanatuan city.
3. Elsie Telan, Bulacan CFI branch I, with station at Malolos.
4. Ignacio S. Calleja, Jr., Camarines CFI branch V covering Naga and Iriga cities, with station at Naga city.
3. Elsie Telan, Bulacan CFI branch I, with station at Malolos.
4. Tenacio S Calleja, Jr., Camarines CFI branch V covering Naga and Iriga cities, with station at Naga city.
5. Rafael Declaro, Aklan CFI branch II, with station in Kalibo.

6. Magadapa Rasuman, Lanao del Norte and Iligan city CFI branch III with station in Iligan city.

May 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the challenge of peace has become so complicated that it requires the resolution and solidarity among freedom-loving nations.

He spoke at the observance of American Memorial Day at Fort Bonifacio.

In his speech, the President said the present international instability is a test not only of American resolve, but of the determination of the entire world.

The President stressed that the situation summoned all to work for peace, freedom, for justice in international affairs.

The President, the most bemedalled Filipino soldier of World War II, paid tribute to Filipino-American friendship which, he said, has been enriched by the comingled blood of Filipino and American soldiers during the Pacific war.

Honoring the American dead, the President said “that in the truest sense, it can be said that there is in these grounds and in many other nameless corners islands, a piece of earth that will forever be America.”

President's Week in Review: June 1-15, 1982

OFFICIAL WEEKS IN REVIEW

June 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the government will pursue vigorously its 11 major industrial projects, except the proposed petrochemical complex which is under review.

Malacañang restated this policy in accordance with the goal set by the administration of a balanced agro-industrial economy.

According to the clarification, only the petrochemical complex is being restudied because of the principal raw material, petroleum, as well as the fact that other partners of the Philippines in Asean are also embarking on similar projects.

The major industrial projects aside from the petrochemical complex are a copper smelter, a phosphatic fertilizer plant, cement industry expansion, a diesel engine plant, a heavy engineering plant, an integrated steel mill, coconut industry rationalization, an aluminum smelter, an integrated pulp and paper plant, and alcohol production.

The President has discussed the implementation of these projects during his inaugural nationwide monthly radio chat two weeks ago.

PRESIDENT MARCOS received an official report that people in Regions XII favor the merger of the two executive councils of the two regional assemblies.

The report was submitted by Chairman Vicente Santiago, Jr., of the Commission on Elections.

The plebiscite was held simultaneously with barangay elections last May 17.

The people were asked in the plebiscite whether they "approve of the merger of the Lupong Tagapagpaganap ng Pook of Regions IX and XII into one executive body, as provided in Presidential Decree No. 1843, as amended."

The Comelec had gone en banc to Mindanao to canvass results of the plebiscite.

June 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered a study of proposals submitted by a Soviet economic delegation for increased RP-USSR trade relations.

The President received the proposals from Deputy Chairman V.I. Litvinenko of the state committee on foreign relations in the Soviet council of ministries.

Litvinenko told the President that his country is interested in:

1. Establishment of a cement factory here to produce one million tons annually.
2. Participation in the construction of pre-fabricated low-cost housing components.
3. Establishment of a fruit canning factory, the products of which may be exported to the Soviet Union.

4. Participation in a pharmaceutical factory, whose products are to sold to the Soviet Union.

5. Participation in oil exploration.

The chief of the Soviet economic delegation told the President that his country could purchase Philippine commodities, including coconut oil, sugar, and non-traditional export products.

PRESIDENT MARCOS assured Litvinenko that he will look personally at the matter because “this is the first time I have received concrete proposals from Russia.”

The proposals could be the first step towards increased RP-USSR trade relations and Soviet participation in the economic development of the country.

June 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has released the list of 10 government corporations that have been abolished, six that have been merged, two that have been converted into regular government agencies, and two that are to be sold.

The abolition, merger, conversion, and sale of the corporations were effected in an executive order issued by the President on recommendation of a special presidential reorganization committee as part of the revamp of government agencies.

The abolished corporations for reasons of “overlapping functions ‘and’ for being unproductive” were the Catanduanes Development Authority, Ilocos Sur Development Authority, Mindoro Development Board, Northern Samar Development Authority, Southern Samar Development Authority, Panay Development Authority, Sulu Development Authority, Bicol Development Co., Coconut Investment Co., and the Philippine Iron and Steel Authority.

Of the 10 abolished, the first seven, although established by special laws, were never actually organized and made operational.

The corporations that were merged are the Agricultural Credit Administration with the Land Bank, the Museum of Philippine Costumes and Music Promotion Foundation of the Philippines with the Cultural Center of the Philippines, and Export Credit Corp. with the Philippine Export and Foreign Loan Guaranty.

June 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has signed two laws, one calling for the election on June 7 of members of assemblies of Regions IX and XII, the other merging the executive councils of the two regions.

The President signed the bills at a ceremony marking the first anniversary of the Ministry of Muslim Affairs at the Unity and Friendship Hall of Malacañang.

The Ministry of Muslim Affairs will coordinate the efforts of all the other ministries on agricultural and other projects in Muslim Mindanao.

The President directed the Ministry of Education and Culture to coordinate with the Ministry of Muslim Affairs on the grant of scholarships to Muslim students.

The Ministries of Justice and Budget were told to start establishing the administrative and budgetary systems for the shariah or Muslim courts.

The Central Bank and the Ministries of Finance and Budget were directed to increase the paid-up capital of the Amanah bank in connection with the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran.

In his speech, the President urged both Christian and Muslim Filipinos to strengthen their contributions to nation-building.

June 5—

THE FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos has arrived from a two-week visit to the United States, highlighted by a speech before energy scientists from 22 countries and the opening of a Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) office in the Empire State building in New York city.

PRESIDENT MARCOS and daughter Imee led welcomers as the First Lady's plane touched down at the Manila International airport at 8:30 a.m.

The KKK office at the Empire State building will handle inquiries on Philippine products, particularly those manufactured under the KKK program, including the placement of Filipino nurses and doctors.

THE FIRST LADY delivered her keynote address at the Third International Energy Symposium held in connection with the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tennessee.

June 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the refugee problem is worsening and that efforts to cope with it deserves a higher level of international support.

Ambassador H. Eugene Douglas called on the President and the First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, to thank the Philippine government for its efforts in helping the Indochina refugees.

Douglas also sought the agreement of the President for the expansion of the facilities in Morong to accommodate more refugees from Indochina.

However, the President told Douglas that while the Philippines relishes its role as a country of first refuge for thousands of refugees, it may be time for this project to be duplicated in other Southeast Asian countries.

The Philippines became the country of first refuge for Indochinese refugees fleeing communist rule in Vietnam with the establishment of refugee processing center in Morong, Bataan, two years ago.

June 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS appealed to the people of Region IX and XII to go out today and cast their votes to elect members of the regional assemblies in Central and Western Mindanao.

The President had earlier declared June 7 a special non-working public holiday in the two regions to enable the people to vote for representatives in the regional assemblies.

Voting took place in Zamboanga del Norte, Zamboanga del Sur, Basilan, Sulu, and Tawi-Tawi in Region IX; and Lanao del Norte, North Cotabato, Maguindanao, and Sultan Kudarat in Region XII.

The setting up of the autonomous regional government, the holding elections, as well as the holding of previous elections and plebiscites in the two regions, are in accordance with the Tripoli agreement designed to end the conflict in southern Philippines.

* * * * *

THE FIRST LADY and Minister of Human Settlement, Imelda R. Marcos arrived in Peking on an official four-day visit to China.

In talks held with Mrs. Marcos on her first day of the four-day official visit, Premier Zhao Zhang said the Chinese government was satisfied with Sino-Philippines relations since ties were established in 1975.

Zhao gave a state banquet in honor of the First Lady in Peking's famous Great Hall of the People.

Mrs. Marcos stressed in her speech that bilateral relations between the Philippines and China could further be strengthened through the venues of diplomacy, trade, and culture.

June 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he liked the idea of letting leaders of the Kabataang Barangay sit on rotation basis as observers in the executive committee which runs the government on a day-to-day-basis.

The Kabataang Barangay, in its national congress held in Malacañang's Maharlika Hall, had asked for permanent representation in the seven-man executive committee, proposing that KB Chairman Imee Marcos be the representative.

The President replied that this could not be done because he would be accused of setting up a dynasty.

He countered with the Kabataang Barangay for its assertiveness and involvement in matters affecting the national interest.

He said that youth leaders should convince the misguided who wanted to impose a foreign ideology on the country to join the majority in efforts to bring about progress and prosperity among the people.

June 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Executive Order No. 804 creating positions of assistants to the prime minister to help him supervise the ministries, particularly the implementation of major development programs.

With the new positions, the President said the position of the presidential regional officer for development, was no longer necessary. Hence, he abolished it.

Under the 1973 Constitution, Prime Minister Cesar Virata has the duty of supervising the ministries.

At the same time, the President has authorized Virata to make sure that the ministries are run economically, efficiently, and effectively.

Under the new executive order, the assistants would report to Virata on the status of development programs, citing areas needing his attention.

The ministries, including the office of budget and management, would designate liaison officers to coordinate with these assistants.

June 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered all ministries and government agencies, including government corporations, to submit before Friday reports on systems and procedures and progress on operations.

The President stressed the reports submitted be the accomplishments covering the period 1972 to 1980, the period of martial law government.

He said the reports must contain achievements of development programs and projects. These must be supported by statistics and success indicators on a provincial basis.

The President ordered government offices to appoint officials to coordinate with the presidential management stall in the improvement of existing systems and procedures.

This has to do with eliminating red tape, thereby reducing processing time for transactions with the public.

* * * * *

June 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that regardless of the heavy budgetary expense, he was determined to reorganize the judiciary and clear the 450,000 cases clogging the court dockets.

He said the Supreme Court had already submitted to him the staffing pattern for a reorganized judiciary

The President stressed the staffing pattern must be carefully reviewed because it means an increase of about P140 million in outlays.

The reorganization was temporarily stopped when a judge filed an injunction against the implementation of the reorganization act.

The Supreme Court, in a recent decision, ruled in favor of the act.

The reorganization deals in great part with the removal of incompetent and dishonest judges apart from streamlining court procedures.

The First Lady arrived at 8:35 p.m. from Shanghai, ending a five-day Chinese visit.

The First Lady was met by a large group of welcomers led by President Marcos, who went up to the ramp to greet her.

She said that four traditional exports, which had long hit the skids in the world market, would now get a boost from the China market.

The First Lady met Chairman Yao Bang and Vice Chairman Deng Kiaopeng and discussed the a number of issues, particularly the strengthening of trade relations between the Philippines and China.

June 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady Minister Imelda R. Marcos led the nationwide observance of the 84th Independence Day anniversary.

The First Couple led in the hoisting of the Philippine flag at Rizal Park at 8 a.m. amid the blowing of sirens and the pealing of church bells.

At the same time, Prime Minister-Cesar Virata, Speaker Querube Makalintal and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile hoisted the flag at the Aguinaldo shrine in Kawit, Cavite, at the Bonifacio Monument in Balintawak, Quezon City, and at Fort Bonifacio, respectively.

Floral offering followed at the Rizal monument, Aguinaldo shrine, Bonifacio monument, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the Libingan ng mga Bayani, Fort Bonifacio, and at the monuments of national heroes all over the country.

The First Couple proceed to the Quirino grandstand where the President delivered the Independence Day address and view of civic-military parade.

* * * * *

June 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS warned that violence is not the only danger to a nation but also indifference which can just easily squander what has been accumulated over the years and disfigure a nation's destiny.

Before his speech at the Quirino grandstand, the President and Mrs. Marcos raised the Philippine flag at the Luneta. With them were the President's mother, Mrs. Josefa Edralin Marcos, and their young wand, Aimee.

The President said that the struggle for freedom was not achieved by a single act, but through innumerable crises and struggles in the three centuries of Spanish rule and the next 84 years.

Hence, the commemoration of the 84th anniversary of independence would be meaningless if it does not refresh and reawaken the exertion of will and effort to meet the perils and challenges of the nation, the President said.

The President said that free enterprise and democratic politics were the keys of the nation's future.

* * * * *

June 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered an upward adjustment of salaries teaching personnel and the upgrading of salary ranges of teaching positions at the Philippine Science High School.

Under Executive Order 810 signed by the President on Independence Day, the pay adjustment will take effect Dec. 1, 1981.

Salaries of PSHS teachers were raised by four steps while their ranges were moved up to six. The adjustment represent a 22 to 35 per cent increase in salaries of the science teachers.

The salary increases for the 137 teachers entailed a total cost of about P274,000 a year to be charged against salary lapses and other personnel services of the agency.

To be benefited by the order are 137 teachers in the state-supported secondary school and its director.

June 15—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos, and Prime Minister Cesar Virata took off for Riyadh to represent President Marcos on the occasion of the death of Saudi Arabian King Khaled.

The President directed them to hand his personal letter to condolence to the royal family and the people of Saudi Arabia through new King Fahd Ibn Abdul Aziz.

He said he would have gone himself except that the facilities might not be enough for the so many heads of state converging on Riyadh.

The President said that the death of King Khaled was a tragic and incalculable loss not only to his kingdom and the Muslim world but also to all nations believing in the brotherhood of men.

He said also that Saudi Arabia has lost a leader and the world a peacemaker, citing the king for using the wealth of his country to modernize his nation and to enrich the lives of his people without betraying their culture and religious heritage.

President's Week in Review: June 16-29, 1982

OFFICIAL WEEKS IN REVIEW

June 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS discussed with a United States team led by Deputy Secretary of State Walter J. Stoessel a wide range of subjects, including Philippine-US trade and investments, in a meeting of more than two hours in Malacañang yesterday.

With Stoessel were Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs John Holdridge, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Armitage, and US Ambassador Michael Armacost.

The President's panel included Minister of Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Solicitor General Estelito Mendoza, and acting Minister of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes.

The American officials told the President of America's optimism about the global situation in the coming months. This was the key issue in the seven-nation western economic summit in Versailles, France.

Stoessel conveyed to the President messages from Mr. Reagan on the results of the Versailles talks as well as those of the 16-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization conference on Bonn.

They also took up the latest reports on the Middle East situation.

President Marcos said that he took up with his visitors some of the outstanding bilateral problems between the two countries which he would like to settle before going on his state visit to Washington, D.C., this autumn.

The Philippines has had a trade deficit with America in the last three years. America remains the Philippines No. 1 trading partner, with Japan a close second.

June 17—

THE FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, has arrived from Saudi Arabia where she paid her respects to the royal Saudi family on the death of King Khaled.

Mrs. Marcos, who left for Riyadh Monday afternoon, also called on the new sovereign, King Fahd, who talked to her for half an hour. Most of the world leaders who also called received an audience of five to ten minutes.

Upon her arrival, Mrs. Marcos said that relations between the two countries would reach new peaks.

King Fahd said he appreciated that the First Lady and her party took the long and tiring trip from Manila to Riyadh to condole with Mm and the royal family.

The First Lady handed the king a letter from President Marcos which conveyed his sympathy, renewed assurances of friendship and his confidence that the King's wise leadership would work well for peace and stability in the Middle East.

June 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has issued Executive Orders No. 808 and 809, increasing from 14 to 21 days the length of stay here of temporary visitors holding passports of the People's Republic of China and Taiwan.

The President said it is the policy of government to make the tourist industry a positive instrument for national development.

Tourism allows people from other lands to visit and appreciate the country. Hence, he said, it is necessary to give full support to government policies designed to promote tourism.

The President said revision of the rules to make visitors stay longer to appreciate the scenery and the hospitality of the people would enhance the goals of the tourist industry.

Those granted 21-day stay will not be required to post any cash bond, as an exception to the cabinet policy issued March 10, 1954.

The President said the maximum period of stay fixed by the order may be extended for very compelling reasons and under exceptional circumstances by the ministry of justice.

June 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, accompanied by the First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, presented the order Order of Mabini to ailing Ambassador Leon Ma. Guerrero.

"I have come not only to wish him well in his sickbed, but to perform a task for the Filipino people, that is to award him overdue recognition of his services as a man whose genius and talent have been forged in the service of his fellow Filipinos," Mr. Marcos said.

"The President cited the ambassador's unparalleled services as a lawyer, writer, diplomat, and nationalist.

He called Guerrero one of the best journalist of the country, a master of prose in two languages whose ruling passion was nationalism—a theme which colors his every undertaking.

Prime Minister Virata read the citation.

Ambassador Guerrero thanked the President for the decoration in the name of the other career ambassadors in the foreign service. He said:

"I gratefully accept the Third Mabini Award in the name of all the career ambassadors of the foreign service of the Philippines, past, present, and to come. We have often been neglected, forgotten, and persecuted by the mean megalomania of our superiors, but we shall always remember that only you remembered us these many years, and we shall not—I for one—shall not forget."

The President said that it is the mark of his prescience that today many of his beliefs have become part and parcel of the foreign policy of the Republic under the government's direction.

The President and Guerrero offered a toast to the country and the future of the Republic.

June 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has expressed satisfaction over the success of Alay Lakad in the past 10 years in providing opportunities for the out-of-school youth to engage in activities to promote social and economic development.

His message was conveyed by Ms. Imee Marcos, national chairman of the Kabataang Barangay, during the 10th anniversary of Alay Lakad at the Luneta.

Since 1972, the Alay Lakad walk-for-a-cause movement has raised funds to finance 2,376 projects, including skills training, income-generating ventures, community scouting, leadership training, and cultural activities, benefitting 231,555 youths.

The President said that the success of Alay Lakad lies in the transformation of the lives of our youth from wasteful idleness to productive participation in the task of nation-building.

* * * * *

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, called to an end to harassment of businessmen by government inspectors and agents.

Mrs. Marcos stressed that government inspectors must help create the correct atmosphere for the advancement of entrepreneurs, which is the core of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood program.

He said that harassment of businessmen goes against that kind of atmosphere and would be tantamount to killing private enterprise.

Mrs. Marcos said it is important for the government to provide the right atmosphere for entrepreneurs to expand and to feel that, as long as they pay the proper taxes, they are safe from abusive inspectors.

June 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady and Metro Manila Gov. led welcomers at the Manila International Airport during the arrival of Hungarian President Pal Losonezi.

The Hungarian president heads a six-man delegation and nine others for a five-day state visit.

With President Losonezi are Jeno Vanoza, minister of agriculture-and food; Zsolt Bajnok, president of the council of ministers' information office; Dr. Vencel Hazi, deputy minister of foreign affairs; Dr. Tibor Melega, deputy minister of foreign trade; Dr. Istvan Kovacs, adviser to the minister of trade; and Dr. Peter Kos, Hungarian ambassador to the Philippines.

Following his arrival, President Losonezi led the laying of a ceremonial wreath at the Rizal monument at the Luneta before proceeding to the Malacañang Guest House.

President Pal Losonezi of Hungary is on a five-day visit to strengthen economic, scientific and cultural relations with the Philippines.

June 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said in a nationwide broadcast that construction of barangay roads and school buildings will be placed under the control of the barangays.

The President said that a top-level meeting will soon be called to discuss major barangay problems, headed by those of crime, squatting, and drug addiction.

He said that these problems have grown too big for barangays to handle, for even city officials, with all the resources at their command, can hardly contain them.

The President said that because squatters have abused the government's compassionate policy, there is a need to restudy the policy on squatting and to clarify our stand on the matter.

The President stressed that the problems will be taken up in a meeting involving the Ministries of Justice, Defense, Health, and the Metro Manila Commission plus other agencies like the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System.

* * * * *

June 23—

THE FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements and Metro Manila Gov. Imelda R. Marcos, has directed the mayors of Metro Manila to push relentlessly the greening program of the metropolis.

She said that the planting of trees and flowering plants must be stepped up to keep the landscape green, thereby increasing oxygen in the atmosphere.

The First Lady during a meeting with the mayors announced that Rico Tantoco, president of the Manila Seedling Bank, would be head of the greening program.

Tantoco will supply the mayors with seedlings for the program.

Noting the many vacant lots in the metropolis, the First Lady suggested that their owners clean up the lots and plant trees on them.

The First Lady stressed that trees are needed more than ever, with congestion becoming worse in Metro Manila, to make it a wholesome place to live in Metro Manila has 8.2 million people.

* * * * *

June 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the 1978-1982 Plan—cited for its program on self-sufficiency in grain and its energy program by the World Bank—will be the basis for the structural transformation of the economy in the next five years.

The President told Business Week that political stability characterized his first year following his election as President of the New Republic.

He said that a main feature of the past five-year plan was that the nation became self-sufficient in rice and corn, while building up overhead capital and carrying out an energy development program.

The President cited the diversification of trade, both in new products and markets. Non-traditional exports now make up half of all exports.

In the coming years, the President said that the export program will concentrate on handicrafts, electronics, garments and textile, footwear, construction material, processed food, and furniture.

The President said that he expects international business to help the country achieve more efficiency and higher productivity.

* * * * *

President Marcos said that the tradition started by Apolinario Mabini in enhancing freedom and other national values in the conduct of foreign policies will always be followed.

Speaking at the 84th anniversary of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at Mabini Hall, the President said that through diplomacy, a vigilant defense policy, cooperation and partnership with other peoples, and the participation of the people, the continued existence of Philippine sovereignty will be assured.

The President congratulated past secretaries of foreign affairs starting with the first secretary, Mabini. He also congratulated the staff of the ministry for the successful conduct of the nation's foreign affairs.

He said that the fact this ministry has survived to this day and continues to fulfill its vital role as the articulator and implementor of the foreign policies of the New Republic attest to the authenticity and vitality of the sovereign state.

* * * * *

The First Lady, Metro Manila Governor, has expressed her disappointment over the lack of initiative and creativity on the part of some Metro Manila mayors, urged them to develop new programs promoting the welfare of their constituents.

In a meeting at Malacañang with the mayors of the four cities and 13 towns of the metropolis, the First Lady deplored the habit of some mayors to wait for the national leadership to all the thinking and planning.

Mrs. Marcos stressed that if all the programs that are presented to her are well studied and viable, she emphasized that these projects could be funded even if she had to borrow from the World Bank.

She said that since the mayors are in the best position to know the needs and potentialities of their communities, they should be able to come up with new ideas and programs while the Metro Manila Commission sets the guidelines.

June 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, acceding to pleas of hard times from property owners, froze real estate taxes at their current levels until Jan. 1, 1985.

This would mean a two-year grace period for property owners.

Property owners have been bracing for a sharp upward revision of real estate assessment this year.

Reports said that some cities and towns would raise the assessment by 100 per cent.

In his Executive Order No. 812, the President deferred the general revision of real estate assessments to June 30, 1984. Hence, the accrual of real estate tax based on this revision would be effective Jan. 1, 1985.

The President took cognizance of the representations of land owners to extend the general revision and defer the accrual.

* * * * *

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, called the attention of Metro Manila mayors to the general poor maintenance of public markets, resulting in poor sanitation, criminality and fire hazards.

She warned that unless maintenance is improved, these markets would no longer be viable.

The First Lady also noted the low market collections in some areas of the metropolis, citing reports of loss of government revenues due to under-the-table collection of market fees and rentals.

She urged the mayors to help increase the public market fees not only by discouraging under-the-table rentals, but also by giving enough time and effort to supervising market operations.

June 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the government would send a delegation to Hungary next August to learn from its agrarian reform program.

In an interview at the Manila International Airport where he saw off Hungarian President Pal Losonezi, the President said that the visit was highly successful, presaging strengthened relations between the two countries in the areas of economics, culture, arts, education, science and technology.

The President said that the visitor was impressed with the Philippines as a democratic state with order in the organization and operation of democratic institutions, without vestiges of dictatorship.

Mr. Marcos said that Filipinos and all others interested in land reform could look into the Hungarian experience, particularly in the area of farm cooperatives.

Hungary's President Pal Losonezi, here for a five-day state visit, thanked the President for the warm and cordial reception accorded him and his party.

June 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed Prime Minister Cesar Virata to head the executive committee to form a group to supervise the National Power Corp. to make its operations more efficient.

Reacting to the daily brown-outs plaguing Metro Manila, the President said the group must ensure the supply of electric power to industries.

It will also coordinate all government policies and projects on power.

The President said he wanted the brown-outs to end, having had enough of complaints from all sectors, particularly business and industry.

The President issued these other directives:

1. Immediately operation of the new Kalayaan pump storage facility in Caliraya Lake, Laguna, which could supply additional power whenever needed.
2. Dredging operations to be undertaken at the Ambuklao and Binga dams in the Mountain Province to remove the silt, thereby increasing the output of the hydroelectric generators.
3. Listing by the NPC of specific hours at night when surplus power is available so that factories can schedule their operations at these times to catch up on production contracts.
4. Maximize efficiency in the transmittal of electricity to Metro Manila from the geothermal power plants in Tiwi, Albay, and Mak-Ban Laguna.

June 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has reaffirmed the approval of a major tin can manufacturing project between the American Can Co. (UPCC) and the United Coconut Planters Bank.

The President said the project is a key to (increased domestic food production and help boost the development of a food export market.

Against objections from local manufacturers, the President stressed that the project will help increase the income of farmers by encouraging greater production, bring food products to consumers at cheaper prices yeararound through the canning of seasonal fruits and vegetables, and develop a potentially huge export market.

The operationalization of the tin can manufacturing project strengthens the country's food production program under the New Republic.

June 29—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos flicked on two ceremonial switches today to provide electricity for 53 towns of Leyte and 20 others in Samar.

In a ceremony at the People's Center shortly after her arrival, Mrs. Marcos also announced a reduction in electric rates for Leyte and Samar from P1.95 to P1.36/kwh effective today.

She said that the region deserves a lower power rate, being the source of geothermal power at Tongonan, Leyte.

The First Lady said that more towns in Samar and the outlying islands are due to get electricity before the President's birth anniversary on September 11 and the whole of Region VIII will have power by July next year.

Rural electrification has become one of the basic policies of the government since the establishment of the New Society in 1972.

June 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS cited the country's development efforts in a statement released by the Philippine delegation to the World Bank consultative group meeting on Tokyo.

Prime Minister Cesar Virata is leading the Philippine delegation to the meeting which opened yesterday.

The President said that the Philippines has made substantial gains in its development efforts within the framework of a new and more dynamic political system.

The development of a responsive and popular political framework has hastened the normalization process which started with the lifting of martial law last year, the President said.

He said that the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) program is now involving the people in productive projects in the country side.

The President said that the government investments in infrastructure projects, communications, industrial estates, and electrification have improved the viability of economic undertakings in the various regions.

The President stressed with confidence that the investments could provide a good financial and social returns.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered a nationwide census of disabled persons to provide decision makers with data for policy planning and to determine the disabled who can qualify for assistance under the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran.

The President gave the order to the National Commission for the Rehabilitation of the Disabled, through its chairman, Mrs. Julita C. Benedicto, who headed a delegation to submit a report of the activities of the commission, on the occasion of Fourth National Disability Prevention and Rehabilitation Week, July 18-24.

The commission also submitted to the President:

1. A five-year plan for disability prevention and rehabilitation and a national plan of action for the Decade of Disabled Persons.
2. Plans establishment of pilot community-based rehabilitation services in Bacolod and Antique and the establishment of rehabilitation centers in selected provinces with provincial hospitals.

President Marcos had directed the military and police authorities to spare no effort to tract down those who ambushed Assemblyman Emmanuel Pelaez in his car in front of his Quezon city home.

Two carloads of assassins sprayed Pelaez's car with gunfire, killing his driver and hitting the assemblyman, a former vice president of the Philippines.

The ambush scene was about 20 yards from Pelaez's house.

The driver, Arsenio Rogero, 55, died on the spot. Pelaez, on the other hand, was taken to the St. Luke's hospital in critical condition but doctors have since pronounced him out of danger.

Pelaez, in a press statement the other day, said people should refrain from making speculations on the parties responsible for the attempt on his life and slaying of his driver.

"I appeal to everyone to refrain from making statements until the authorities have gone to the bottom of the case," he said.

The President said he hoped Pelaez could recover in time to make it to the Asean Task Force, established at the instance of the Philippines to make a study of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

July 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the coalition government in Kampuchea has the moral support of the Philippine government.

The President gave this assurance during the call of Kampuchean Prime Minister Son Sann who arrived to follow up the request made some two weeks ago for assistance by Prince Norodom Sihanouk, president of the coalition government.

The Kampuchean coalition, is composed of the Moulinaka. of Prince Sihanouk, the Khmer People's National Liberation Front of Son Sann, and the Khmer Rouge of Khieu Sampan.

Regarding all other types of assistance which the coalition government is soliciting, the President said the matter will have to be the subject of consultation among the Asean leaders.

The President stressed, however, that the coalition government can count on continued Asean support for the retention of its seat in the United Nations.

PRESIDENT MARCOS delivered a state-of-the-nation address at the opening session of the Batasang Pambansa fifth regular session.

The P63.5-billion national budget for 1983 topped the Batasan agenda and the corresponding bills for raising public fees.

The public works (infrastructure) bill, a measure which could add teeth to the graft and corruption law, and some other economic measures, among others, were taken up.

The President stressed that the assembly should focus its vision to the pressing matters and problems confronting the nation.

However, he emphasized the need for the assembly to take decisive steps against adverse effects of incessant strife abroad and the continuing instability of the international economy.

The Kilusang Bagong Lipunan caucus, presided over by President Marcos in Malacañang took up a five-point agenda on strategy for early enactment of urgent legislation.

The five points are:

1. Proposed amendments to the Election Code, especially the election date for Batasan members and local officials, regulation of election expenses, and a provision on switching of political parties.
2. Amendments to the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Law, particularly provisions having to do with disqualification from public office.
3. Prime Minister Cesar Virata's report on his recent mission to America.
4. Central Bank Gov. Jaime Laya's report on the limit of amortization of foreign borrowings.
5. Other urgent administration bills pending in the Batasan.

The President said earlier he hoped the proposed amendments to the Election Code could be enacted in time for the 1984 Batasan election.

July 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS addressed the opening of the fifth session of the Batasang Pambansa.

The President called on the Batasan to support the government's five-year development plan for 1983-1987 so its social and economic objectives may be achieved.

The President also discussed the various aspects and requirements of the development program, and how the legislature could help carry it out.

The Batasan in its session enacted priority measures outlined in the legislative program drawn up by the ruling Kilusang Bagong Linunan (KBL) during its caucus.

The Batasan also acted on the report of Prime Minister Cesar Virata on his recent mission to the United States and the report of Central Bank Gov. Jaime Laya on the limit of amortization of foreign loans.

Also expected to be approved on third and final reading even before the budget is finalized, is the Education Act of 1982 which the assembly passed on second reading last April.

The five-year plan is actually the blueprint for Philippine economic development for the rest of the 1980's.

July 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS thumbed down a labor agitation for a major increase in the minimum wage at a time when business is struggling to stay afloat.

Mr. Marcos said that in other countries like America unions are voluntarily abandoning their wage demands and have even accepted wage cuts.

He said that the demand of some labor groups for a wage increase is unrealistic and stressed that the priority of the government is the employment of those without jobs.

The problem of unemployment was one of five main points in his agenda for government action.

The others concerned thrust of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran, the judicial reorganization, the legislative program, and the five-year economic program beginning 1983.

The President called the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) the centerpiece of the government program to give gainful employment to the labor force which increases by 643,000 yearly.

He said P1 billion was allocated for the first year of KKK operations, with another P1 billion scheduled for the coming year, plus P200 million for the local government support fund for the KKK.

THIS FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos said that the nation’s abundance in natural and human resources will spell the difference in the country’s development as the world reels in the face of a global economic recession.

Speaking extemporaneously before alumni of the career executive development program and of the National Defense College at the University of Life, the First Lady expressed optimism over the capacity of the Philippine economy to bounce back from the current recession because of its rich natural resources and a highly educated and skilled people.

At the same time, the First Lady said that the government's campaign against squatters will be relentless as it will be compassionate.

"We are doing it one step at a time—in all places and in all directions," Mrs. Marcos said.

The First Lady stressed that while authorities will treat squatters with compassion, they will be tough with professional squatters.

July 31—

THE FIRST LADY and Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos said that President Marcos' intensified crime drive does not mean that the crime situation is out of control.

Mrs. Marcos, who is also Metro Manila governor, said that Metro Manila's crime rate of 15.9 per cent 100,000 population is among the lowest in the world.

She declared that it is only with peace and order that the community could progress socially and economically.

Mrs. Marcos also gave a progress report on the P2 billion Light Rail Transit, which would run on elevated tracks from Bonifacio Monument in Caloocan city to Parañaque — along Avenida Rizal and Taft Ave.

Public transportation, she said, is one of the basic needs of the metropolis.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered public officials yesterday to leave their swivel chairs and their air-conditioned offices and go to the countryside to make the people feel the presence of government.

He urged them to go out to their barangays and counteract anti-government propaganda by subversives elements.

The President said: "I am ordering you as your superior in the civil government to participate in this light against the subversives actively. I do not want any neutral position."

The order was directed at national, regional and local officials all over the country, through their counterparts in Region II whom he met in Malacañang.

The President reminded the public officials particularly the governor and mayors, that they should not wait to be told what to do because it is their duty to maintain close contact with their constituents.

August 17—

THE FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, said yesterday, following a tour of the 120-hectare terminal food complex, that its facilities and food technology can now offer more efficient storage, processing, and marketing of farm products.

The First Lady, chairman of the terminal food complex since 1980, worked for the increase of the terminal's non-grain purchases from farmers—mainly poultry and livestock products—to a total of P1 billion in two years.

From 1974 to 1978, total purchases of such products had reached only P158 million.

Under her leadership, the use of the upgraded facilities of the terminal rose to 80 to 100 percent level. In the previous five years, these facilities were hardly used.

The terminal is now leasing another refrigerated warehouse in Navotas to increase purchases of livestock and fish products.

HUMAN SETTLEMENTS Minister Imelda R. Marcos yesterday asked the Cabinet to review the government's electric rates policy to be fair to areas producing the power.

Attending a Cabinet meeting at the Batasang Pambansa, Mrs. Marcos asked that the law be amended to allow the National Power Corp. to depart from a uniform price policy that the law requires for areas serviced under one grid.

The First Lady made this proposal during a discussion on the incentives to be given private investors in the development of the country's power source.

The Cabinet, presided over by Prime Minister Cesar Virata, agreed to grant foreign investors in geothermal plants an 18-percent return on investments by allowing them to deduct from ordinary cost interest rates payment on the basis of a fixed debt equity ratio.

August 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has suspended logging in Cagayan Valley and nearby provinces as a move against dissident activities in the North.

The President took this action on the basis of intelligence reports that dissidents were exploiting logging to raise funds.

The reports said some of the logging concessioners were contributing or were being coerced into contributing to the dissidents' kitty, although some others have resisted.

In some cases, the President was informed, the personnel of the logging firms—such as drivers, guards or laborers—were being supplied by the dissidents to ensure collection of contributions.

The Provinces affected by the presidential ban are the Cagayan Valley, Batanes, Kalinga-Apayao, Isabela, Quirino and Nueva Vizcaya, which comprise Region II.

The President has assured loggers in the area that the government would help them recover at least part of the losses they are expected to incur as a result of the imposition of the ban.

August 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that his trip to Washington DC, next month will be a friendly one, the fulfilling of a diplomatic obligation to visit President Ronald Reagan “because he visited with me sometime back.”

In his “Meet the Press” telecast the other night, he said some of to regional offices in line with the regionalization part of the reorganization and the updating of trade treaties.

The President said that before leaving for Washington, he will call a Cabinet meeting to firm up implementation of the government reorganization plan.

He had earlier directed the various ministries to start decentralizing some functions by delegating authority to regional offices and bureaus.

The President has issued a letter of instructions to Prime Minister Cesar Virata to determine which ministries should transfer authority to regional offices in line with the regionalization part of the reorganization.

August 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged the media yesterday to be specific in their stories against erring public officials as this would help the government eradicate graft and corruption.

He told newsmen they could name officials involved in shady transactions.

Or, they could specify details such as the time and place when such venalities were committed in cases where they are restrained by libel laws from openly naming corrupt officials.

Such details, the President said, would help authorities pinpoint the culprits.

The President stressed that the media should do this instead of making general statements that are not supported by facts.

August 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was admitted to the Veterans Memorial hospital yesterday afternoon because of chills, fever, and cough.

Dr. Eduardo Jamora a chest specialist, was called in consultation by his personal physicians who strongly advised hospitalization because of the possibility that the President had pneumonitis.

Doctors also believed that the current cough is due to chronic asthmatic bronchitis.

The President was advised to have complete rest without visitors until further medical advice.

August 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the suspension of deductions from the paychecks of public school teachers.

He directed Budget Minister Manuel S. Alba to confer with officials of the Ministry of Education and Culture and clarify the issues involved.

The President's suspension order will affect the teacher's paychecks for October and monthly thereafter because their paychecks for September have already been processed and issued.

The National Capital Regional School Teachers Association (NCRPSTA) led various teachers' groups in petitioning the President to stop the deduction.

The President issued the order Saturday before the Chief Executive entered the Veterans Memorial Hospital for treatment.

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, called yesterday for stronger political, economic and technical cooperation between Libya and the Philippines.

In a luncheon tendered by the First Lady in Malacañang for Jad Allah Azouz Altalhi, secretary general of the Libyan People's Committee who carried the rank of prime minister, Mrs. Marcos offered Libya closer and a more viable relationship between the two countries.

The Libyan visitor also expressed his country's desire for closer relationship and paid tribute to Filipino technicians and workers numbering about 20,000—now working in Libya—for assisting the country in the implementation of its development program.

August 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on the developing nations to stop depending on industrialized countries during the world recession, urging them to develop self-reliance to combat the global economic crisis.

In a speech read for him by Prime Minister Cesar Virata before the Inter-Governmental Follow-Up and Coordinating Committee for Economic Cooperation and Developing Countries (ECDC), the President noted that it was the industrialized nations which brought about the current crisis.

“It has become pathetically clear that we, developing countries, not only cannot depend on them, but also cannot rely on them refrain from adopting measures destructive of world trade, finance and growth,” he said.

The president said the problems Third World countries are encountering are aggravated by protectionist measures in trade, particularly against farm products and manufactured goods from developing nations.

He said the Philippines would make a strong stand for exempting developing countries from the application of minimum interest rates on export credits for capital goods.

PRESIDENT MARCOS assured Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Ha Van Lau yesterday that the conflict in Cambodia has not changed the close ties between the Philippines and Vietnam.

The President made the assurance during a call by Lau who is attending a Group 77 meeting in Manila.

The President received his first official visitors since his confinement at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Savetsila also called on the President.

The Vietnamese official delivered to the President a message from the Vietnamese prime minister stating his country’s policy on the peace and stability of the region.

“Please tell Prime Minister Pham Van Dong that whatever may be our disagreements in relation to Kampuchea (Cambodia) and to ASEAN, the relations between us as friends do not change,” the President Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Ha Van Lau.

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos has finalized the plan yesterday for the Institute for the Rehabilitation of Man (IRM), an integrated rehabilitation center for the mentally ill, physically handicapped, and criminals.

The first of its kind in the world, the IRM will use love, science and art as instruments to rehabilitate inmates from the National Mental Hospital, the National Orthopedic Hospital, and the prisons, Mrs. Marcos said.

The First Lady directed Metro Manila Vice Gov. Ismael A. Mathay, Jr. to draw up plans for IRM's resources. She told Deputy Minister of Human Settlements Jose Conrado Benitez to look for an appropriate site for the center.

The center can house 15,000 persons. Plans call for 5,000 inmates to come from the National Mental Hospital, 5,000 from the National Orthopedic Hospital, and 5,000 from various prisons.

In the single center, the inmates will undergo mental, physical, and spiritual treatment and rehabilitation Mrs. Marcos said.

August 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has announced yesterday the lifting of the coconut levy, citing the plunging world price of coconut oil.

Leaders of the industry as well as recipients of the levy themselves had recommended the move to the President.

Industry leaders told the President that the removal of the levy would help the industry. It would encourage productivity and make coconut oil more competitive in the world market.

Presidential Decree No. 1842 provides for the imposition of the levy on a graduated scale depending on the world price of coconut oil.

The decree also provides that when the world price drops to 20 U.S. cents a pound, the Philippine Coconut could suspend the levy.

Under the decree, funds from the levy are to be used to support socio-economic and development programs for the benefit of coconut farmers primarily, and also to the coconut industry in general.

Among these programs are the coconut hybrid replanting program, the coconut farmers insurance plan and the scholarship program for children of coconut farmers.

President Marcos lifted the levy because the price of coconut oil in the world market reached a new low of 17 US cents and also from the stiff competition from similar products such as palm oil.

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos told a Chinese delegation yesterday there should be a more vigorous exchange of programs between the People's Republic of China and the Philippines, particularly with regard to children's welfare.

She received at her office as the University of Life a five-man group headed by Mrs. Luo Ying, director of the department for children's culture and arts. The group is in the country on an eight-day visit to study government projects having to do with children's welfare.

Mrs. Marcos said that China, with its ancient civilization and experience, could help in the Philippine program to develop the youth into productive citizens of the future.

Mrs. Luo cited the Lungsod ng Kabataan Children's hospital, calling it not only an infirmary but also "a paradise for children."

PRESIDENT MARCOS has announced yesterday the capture of several persons led by Isagani Serrano, said to be a leading member of the central committee of the Communist Party of the Philippines in charge of mass action.

Others arrested, coming from the New People's Army, the Socdem United Democratic Front, and the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF), were described as key leaders of a conspiracy to launch a nationwide terrorist program next month.

Serrano, identified as an organizer of demonstrations, was arrested in Quezon City. There is a P150,000 price on his head. With him was Gocelyn de Guzman and two others.

The President assured the public that they and their property were now safe. He said that the authorities were prepared for any eventuality and that the situation was under control.

The President, after meeting with intelligence officials, agreed that they had practically aborted the terrorist plans of the subversives.

President Marcos took several more steps yesterday to save the distressed coconut industry, the most vital measure being the creation of the Coconut Investment Fund setting aside P100 million for the welfare of 61 hard-hit coconut farmers.

At the same time, he ordered acceleration of the coco-diesel program.

The President ordered the Coconut Investment Fund to support with its income the scholarship program started by the Cocofed. He directed the Cocofed, the Philippine Coconut Authority, and the Coconut Investment Fund to coordinate on this matter.

The President also ordered the implementation of the plan for intercropping the new varieties of high yielding peanuts, and high yielding mongo beans in coconut land as well as in sugar land.

He set aside P100 million for the propagation of new seeds.

The day before, in response to the plunging coconut oil, the President suspended the coconut levy.

PRESIDENT MARCOS led the nation yesterday in the observance of National Heroes Day.

The President motored to Fort Bonifacio at noon to fulfill his first outside engagement since leaving the hospital Monday to lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the Libingan ng mga Bayani.

In brief remarks at the ceremony, the President extolled the war dead whose names, he said, will remain forever unknown and whose tomb is marked by the simple words: "Here lies a soldier whose name is known only to God."

The President said: "History has marked this day on which we honor not one or two, or a few of the men to whom we owe not only the Republic of the Philippines but all the freedoms that we know."

"To these men," he continued, "we lay the wreath of remembrance, of memory, of rededication, and of fulfillment of all we had pledged in the past."

August 31—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos called yesterday for wider use of the nation's human resources through self-help programs to achieve self-reliance.

The First Lady made this call in a speech delivered for her by Mrs. Carmen Guerrero Nakpil, director general of the Technology Resource Center, during the 2nd graduation exercises of the home study program at the University of Life in Pasig.

A total of 295 graduates mostly young adults and professionals, completed the three-month program, learning five livelihood courses in support of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran.

Commending those who completed the livelihood courses, the First Lady said they now join the more than 3,000 others who have acquired "not only better discipline and management skills but are beneficiaries of livelihood projects in support of the movement for self-reliance."

September 1—

HUMAN SETTLEMENTS Minister Imelda R. Marcos has denounced certain anti-government elements for spreading rumors that jeepney and bus drivers will be displaced with the operation of the Light Rail Transit (LRT).

In her talk with some members of the Cabinet, the First Lady placed out that the LRT will in fact be a boon to jeepneys and buses in Metro Manila.

"An effective mass transport system would be a boon to business as more people are attracted to the city core by an effective transportation system," she said.

The First Lady stressed that jeepneys and buses will remain the backbone of the mass transportation system in Metro Manila, servicing areas linked to the LRT route.

Since movement in and around the city would be more efficient, public utility vehicles could have more trips, thus increasing their income, she said.

September 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, in an executive order defining the corporate structure of the new company, has ordered the Philippine Coconut Authority to immediately proceed with the incorporation and organization of the firm under the Corporation Code.

The newly-created Coconut Investment Company will be a private company owned by the coconut farmers themselves.

The company was set up during the weekend after the removal of the coconut levy to help boost the coconut industry on which some 10 million Filipinos depend.

All the shares of stock will be owned by the coconut farmers who have registered their Cocofund receipts under Republic Act 6260.

Coconut farmers who are registered holders of Cocofund receipts have expressed their wish, through the Cocofed, that the company now be organized as a private entity.

September 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received yesterday proposal from a New York company, Globus Resources, for the manufacture of a fuel mixture using 90 per cent coconut oil and 10 per cent diesel.

Under present plans, the coco-diesel mixture would have only three per cent coconut oil.

The Globus offer would revolutionize the fuel industry, cutting down on diesel import and giving new life to the heavily distressed coconut industry suffering from new loss in the world price for coconut oil.

“A five-man group, headed by Globus Chairman Alfred Globus, told President and the First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos that the mixture, called “Dieselite” would have 98 per cent of the energy content of standard diesel, running motor vehicles and power generators with efficiency.

September 4—

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, told track star Lydia de Vega and her father yesterday to cast aside their problems with Gintong Alay Executive Director Michael Keon.

In delicately stepping into the feud, the First Lady said that “everybody is correct here.”

“Keon has his problems, he was working in terms of budget and discipline,” she said.

“I fully understand his concern for discipline as head of the sports foundation, but I also fully appreciate the concerns and needs of a father,” the First Lady said.

Lydia and her father are scheduled to leave today for Nanking where the China Open Invitational Track and Field meet will be held starting tomorrow.

September 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS will start his state visit to the United States on Sept. 15 (Washington time; Sept. 16, Manila time.)

Accompanied by the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos, the President will be making his second state visit to the US in 16 years.

Announcement on the visit was issued jointly yesterday by Malacañang and the Western White House in Sta. Barbara, California.”

The visit will include talks with President Reagan on the 16th and meetings with Cabinet officers, members of Congress and representatives of the private sector.

The Reagan administration has cultivated good relations with the Marcos government, and a series of top US officials including Vice President George Bush and the Secretary of State Alexander Haig have paid visits to the Philippines.

President Marcos had described his trip to Washington as “a fulfillment of a diplomatic obligation” and is looking forward to meeting once more an old friend who was his guest in 1969 when US President Ronald Reagan was still governor of California.

September 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed yesterday that he would seek a clarification from President Reagan of US plans in the Philippines and Asia in the event of any contingency in this part of the world

Answering questions from newsmen in an interview in Malacañang which was broadcast nationwide over radio and television, the President said that Asia has been kept in the dark for so long.

“I would be happy to find out what the plans are for Asia,” the President said. “I think it is about time that partners told each other exactly what they plan about any possible contingencies.”

The President also said that his visit to Washington, D.C., which starts on Sept. 15 (Sept. 16 Manila time) would be an opportunity to assess Philippine-American relations in the light of significant events that have occurred since his last visit 16 years ago.

September 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday he intends to issue a decree “to avoid any conflict” in the event the Batasang Pambansa fails to act on an urgent measure clearly spelling out the rule of succession, particularly the exact role of the Executive Committee.

In an interview with foreign and local newsmen in Malacañang, the President said: “I told them (the Batasan), if you don’t amend PD 1514, the decree under the old Constitution, I am going to issue a decree. It is an urgent matter because I am going abroad and if anything happens to me, you are in trouble because the Supreme Court will decide for you.”

The President was referring to possible conflict if and when the Supreme Court asked to interpret provisions of PD 1514 and the Constitution on succession and the exact role of the Executive Committee.

According to the President, this necessitates passage of a law clarifying in detail legislative intent on succession to avoid conflicting interpretations.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged the United Nations General Assembly yesterday to quickly launch the global negotiations agreed upon in the North-South dialogue in Cancun, Mexico, last year.

President Marcos stressed that there is a particular need for progress in the control of armaments and conflicts, and the mobilization of efforts for international economic stability and development.

He said that the two go together, because only under fairly secure conditions, can nations, especially the developing ones, succeed in achieving development; and only where nations can have a measure of economic security, can there be an end to tension and conflict.

President Marcos said that the Philippine government hopes to reach agreement on the launching of the very much-delayed negotiations in the interest of strengthening international economic cooperation.

September 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that the Philippines is the only country with a Tanodbayan (ombudsman) to fight corruption in government.

The President, in an interview on the CBS Morning News program, told interviewer Dianne Sawyer that the Tanodbayan acts on tips, that even without evidence, he would investigate complaints of corruption.

He declared that government officials cannot afford to indulge in extravagance because there is strict accountability of government funds.

The President also affirmed that the country is politically stable. He said that in 1972, there was a danger of a revolution, but not anymore.

He also conceded that there are pockets of terrorism "which is usual in every country in Southeast Asia."

The President stressed that the America and the Philippines have the same degree of political freedom.

September 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS charged that Amnesty International, supposed watchdog of human rights violations, has become a tool of the Communists.

The President made the charge at a meeting with the editorial board of the New York Times, headed by Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, chairman and publisher, and Seymour Topping, manager editor.

In stressing that Amnesty International has been infiltrated by Communists elements, the President recalled a New York Times editorial sometime ago which questioned the appointment by the AI of an avowed member of the Communist Party of Australia as head of Amnesty International's research division.

The President also took note of the report of a Georgia congressman which also accused AI of following the double-standard of making sweeping allegations of human rights violations in free world countries fighting communists subversion.

He also stressed that all these follow a pattern aimed at destabilizing free world countries in Asia, particularly the Philippines and Indonesia.

This is why, the President added, whenever the government acts to protect its citizen from subversion and violence, Amnesty International and other leftist groups raise the question of human rights.

September 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that he was convinced of America's firm resolve and strength to stand four-square on its international obligations and commitments.

The President said the political leadership in Washington is formulating a viable and integrated foreign policy that is reestablishing American power and prestige.

He said that it was to assure myself of this development and of America's capacity to recover from the trauma of the Vietnam War that he is on a visit of the US, his second in 16 years.

President Marcos spoke at the Tennessee state amphitheatre at the 1982 World's Fair where the Philippines has a pavilion, along with 21 other countries.

The President was introduced to a Filipino-American audience by Senate majority leader Howard Baker, senior senator of Tennessee, who had repeatedly invited the President to visit Knoxville.

September 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS told senior editors of Time and Life magazines that the Western press, by and large, has been unfair in its reporting on the Philippines.

On the whole, the President said, reporting of conditions in the Philippines has been critical. "It's probably because they are not well-informed," he added.

"Or sometimes, it may be due to the lack of communication between the press and the government. Often, some programs are so urgent that there is hardly time to explain every detail to the media," he said.

Meeting the editors at the company's 47th floor executive suite, at Time-Life building, President Marcos answered all questions on the US military bases, the security of Southeast Asia, trade between the two countries, human rights and the persistent speculation on the First Lady succeeding him to the presidency.

September 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the greatest threat to the security of Asia comes from Vietnam.

The President made this statement in a meeting with the editorial board of the Los Angeles Times Coast.

He briefed the Los Angeles Times editors on the situation in Southeast Asia and the role of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). He said he favored the rearmament of Japan but only for defensive not aggressive, purposes.

The President said that he considered his state visit, his first to the US in 16 years, successful and one which exceeded his expectations. He also cited President Reagan's good leadership.

On alleged human rights violations, the President said it is the policy of the Philippine government to enhance and promote human rights. He admitted that there had been some cases of abuses by soldiers but added that those who committed such abuses had been court-martialed and severely punished.

September 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS told editors of the Honolulu Advertiser, and the Star-Bulletin that the Philippines enjoys a greater degree of democracy than America.

The President told the editors of the two papers that Philippine government is comparable to the French parliamentary system.

"We are, perhaps, more democratic than you are because a greater percentage of people vote than in your country," he said.

The President said that his purpose in coming to America was because he owed President Reagan a visit. "If somebody visits you, you must visit back," he said.

The President took advantage of the visit to discuss US plans for the Philippines with Mr. Reagan.

September 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS arrived Thursday after his state visit to the United States.

The President and his party, which includes the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos received a rousing welcome from the people upon their arrival at the Manila International Airport.

Scores of thousands were gathered at the MIA and along the route of their motorcade to Malacañang.

The welcome was led by Deputy Minister Jose Roño, head of the caretaker government during the state visit; other members of the Cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps, Metro Manila mayors, and other government officials.

The President made a report to the nation on the results of his trip. He was given full military honors.

President's Week in Review: October 1-7, 1982

OFFICIAL WEEKS IN REVIEW

October 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS returned yesterday from his two-week state visit to the United States which would have an important repercussions for the country for many years to come.

In his 25-minute remarks during the welcome ceremonies at the old Manila International Airport, the President stressed the phenomenal success of the state visit and the importance which America attaches to her relations with the Philippines.

Inderscoring the growing awareness in the US of the strategic importance of the Philippines and its contributions to global stability through the country's strivings for development, the President said the visit, among other things, resulted in:

- 1) Exchange of instruments of ratification for a tax treaty.
- 2) Completion of a civil aviation agreement which allows both countries to increase commercial air frequencies to 18 flights per week.
- 3) Conclusion of a tourism agreement to encourage reciprocal tourism.
- 4) Signing of an agricultural cooperation agreement involving cooperative programs for agricultural development and scientific and technological exchange.
- 5) Conclusion of an agreement with the Export-Import Bank of the United States, subject to congressional concurrence, whereby the bank will provide additional guarantees in the amount of $204.5 million for the Bataan nuclear plant.
- 6) Conclusions of an agreement to explore new cooperative measures for the reduction of losses to life and property due to typhoon through the utilization of advance tracking and warning technologies.
- 7) Provision for a sustained dialogue defense and finance ministries concerning defense and finance or related issues.
- 8) Organization by the US government of an investment mission of American businessmen to the Philippines and other Association of Southeast Asian countries in 1983.
- 9) Reaffirmation of the two countries' commitments under their mutual defense treaty and holding of regular strategic consultations at ministerial level.
- 10) Scheduling of the renegotiation of the military bases agreement in April next year in Manila.
- 11) Refurnishing of the country's image by correction the misinformation and misconception about the Philippines and its leadership in the American media.
- 12) Renewal of the nostalgic links with Filipinos in the US, who today constitute a significant community of more than one million people.

October 2—

THE COMPENSATION package being extended by the United States government will be the main issue to be discussed during the review next April of the military bases agreement for the period covering 1981-89.

During his state visit to the US, President Marcos and US President Reagan agreed to begin the review of the five-year military bases agreement next April.

Under the 1979 agreement, the US government extends to the Philippines a security assistance package consisting of grants, military sales credits and economic support funds totalling $500 million for a five-year-period.

Besides the compensation package, the features of the 1979 agreement include:

- 1) The US would have unhampered operational control over the bases which would be under a Filipino commander.
- 2) The Philippine flag would fly alone over the bases which would be under a Filipino commander.
- 3) The reduction in the area of the US facilities at Clark air base from 53,036 hectares to 6,303 hectares of land area with the water area remaining at 9,523 hectares.
- 4) The responsibility for the bases' perimeter defense would be in the hands of Filipino security forces; internal security essentially would be handled by the US force.
- 5) Provision for automatic review of the basis agreement after every five years before its expiration in 1991.

October 3—

PRIME MINISTER Cesar Virata stressed that the Philippines would come out stronger and ahead of other countries when the world recovers from the present economic crisis.

This assessment was made by the Prime Minister as the country's general approach and strategy to beat the current recession.

Virata said that while other countries are tarrying because of recession, the Philippines is continuously restructuring its economy.

He said that this general approach is a strategy to develop the Philippine economy even in the midst of a global economic crisis.

"Those countries that can only reform, and restructure themselves when things are going well, will of course, lag behind if they cannot do it when there is recession," the Prime Minister said.

Measures cited by Virata taken to develop the economy include the institution of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran, programs involving industries in the export processing zones, investments in energy projects such as exploitation, geothermal, hydroelectric, dendrothermal and coal, construction and agriculture.

October 4—

INFORMATION MINISTER Gregorio S. Cendaña was the keynote speaker during the three-day workshop which aims to explain to media the activities and policies of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) at the Philippine Plaza.

Cendaña was expected to speak on "Media Cooperation in the Third World".

Some 60 Asian-Pacific journalists, 20 of them from the Philippines, are participating in a workshop scheduled to open under the sponsorship of OPEC.

The workshop, the tenth since the series began in November 1979, presented the views of the OPEC to correct the misconceptions journalists may have about OPEC's activities, particularly in developing countries.

The misconceptions are partly explained by the Third World's dependence on Western news sources.

The first three workshops were held at the OPEC headquarters in Vienna. The fourth—in Jakarta, Indonesia, in December 1979—was first organized regionally.

October 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has requested yesterday the Japanese government to expedite action on pending issues between the Philippines and Japan.

The President conveyed the request through Ambassador Hideho Tanaka, who called to congratulate him on recent successful visit to the United States.

Tanaka said the President's visit will contribute greatly to the stability of Southeast Asia.

Among the problems cited by the President were:

- 1) The request of the Philippines for a $120-million advance for the copper mining industry.
- 2) The 20-cent reduction of the tariff on Philippine bananas and the question of Philippine made corrugated cardboard boxes.
- 3) The pending air agreement.

The President pointed out that it was to the advantage of Japan that the mining companies continue operations otherwise Japan would lose 40 percent of its copper ore sources.

The this fund, the Philippine government intends to hedge its risks by buying copper futures in the international market to cover losses in case the prices of copper improved in the coming months.

October 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed yesterday all ministries and government offices to launch the campaign to undertake a massive information campaign to acquaint the people of the various programs and projects of the government.

During a four-hour meeting, the President stressed the importance of direct communication between the government and the people.

During the meeting the President also ordered:

- 1) The lifting of the suspension of Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlan loans in Region 9 and 10, and the Philippine National Bank to participate as adviser in the approval of KKK loans.
- 2) The speedy implementation of all agreements concluded during his visit to the United States last month and Saudi Arabia last March.

In directing the launching of an information drive with the support of the Office of Media Affairs, the President said he wanted to ensure that citizens know what the government is doing for them.

October 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has lifted the ban on logging in Region II even as he directed that stricter security measures be taken to prevent the New People's Army from using it as a source of funds.

The President took this move on recommendation of Minister Teodoro Peña of natural resources.

Peña said that officials from the region, including governors and mayors, had presented numerous petitions for the lifting of the ban because it was adversely affecting the livelihood of the people.

The President approved Minister Peña's recommendation but directed that the military keep a close surveillance of logging operations.

The President imposed the logging ban in Region II last August after military intelligence confirmed reports that the NPA's were collecting funds for their operations from the loggers and sawmill operators.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that he will consider a proposal to form a Pacific Council and will consult other leaders of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) on it.

The proposal came from President Chun Doo Hwan of South Korea. It was personally presented to President Marcos by Dr. Pyong Choon Hahm, secretary-general to President Chun, who is on a tour of Southeast Asia to sound out Asean leaders on the proposal.

Pyong who called at Malacañang informed the President that the Pacific Council envisioned by President Chun will serve as a forum for consultation among the heads of government and of state in the Pacific region, to promote cooperation which will be beneficial to all.

President Marcos also received a delegation of Seventh Day Adventists, headed by Neal C. Wilson, president of the General Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists, who presented him and the First Lady with a resolution of appreciation.

The Seventh Day Adventists, during their annual council meeting in Manila, passed the resolution expressing appreciation to the First Couple "for the climate of religious freedom" which prevails in the country.

They also congratulated the First Couple for their "magnificent showing in the United States" the establishment and maintenance of the Refugee Center in Bataan, and the launching of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran which, they said, is giving everyone a chance to develop his God-given talents for the improvement of living conditions.

October 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that there are encouraging indicators pointing towards economic recovery.

He said that similar optimistic signs of an economic upturn have been reported in the United States, the world's lead economy.

As a result of the positive signs towards economic recovery, the President has arranged meetings with a broad section of the country's decision-makers starting next year.

The Philippines, like most countries in the world, has been encountering economic difficulties due to global recession and tight financial conditions.

Its deficit in balance of payments has been caused mainly by depressed world prices of commodities which constitute a major portion of its exports.

October 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged yesterday the strengthening of ties between Manila and Moscow.

He directed Deputy Prime Minister Jose D. Roño and acting Foreign Minister Manuel Collantes to meet with the staff of Mayor Vladimir Promyslov to discuss the proposals towards attaining this goals.

The President issued the directive during the call of the Moscow mayor, who arrived the other day for an eight-day visit.

* * * * *

Moscow and Manila became sister cities during the visit last July of the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos in Moscow.

“Our aim here is to strengthen the friendship between the two capital cities which are familiar in population,” Mayor Promyslov informed the First Couple during his call at Malacañang.

On the other hand, the President said: “Your visit is a symbol not only of the continuing mutual beneficial relations but of the warm affection existing between our two countries and I hope we will see the continued goodwill exchanges between our countries.”

The President expressed gratitude to Mayor Promyslov who went out his way to make the First Lady’s visit to Moscow memorable.

October 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS made it clear to the Batasang Pambansa to act immediately on urgent legislative measures pending after the last adjournment during his address in the body’s resumption of session.

The President made a detailed report on the achievement of his two-week state visit to the United States and on the optimistic sign towards the economic recovery of the country.

Among the measures the President considered was the asking of the Batasan to act on as soon as possible are those touching on the synchronization of forthcoming elections, the allocation of additional seats in the Batasan and the relaxation on the provision of turncoatism.

Other pending measures in the Batasan are the Local Government Code, the Crime Code and the Corporation Code.

The President also laid down the basic guidelines of the participation of the various ministries and agencies in the implementation of the agreements and in the broad development programs the government has adopted because of the encouraging indicators pointing towards the country’s economic recovery.

* * * * *

October 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has urged the Batasang Pambansa to immediately pass the Local Government Code and an amended Election Code.

The President told the Batasan in its opening session “the continued improvement of the political system and processes requires the urgent resolution of various issues governing elections.”

The President cited the need to review the allocation of representative seats in the assembly, as the election for members of the regular National Assembly in 1984 approaches and the rationalization of the accreditation of political parties, including the review of the constitutional provision on turncoatism.

Under this provision, accreditation is granted to those who obtained the first and second highest number of votes and at least 10 percent of the total number of votes in such elections.

On turncoatism, the President cited Article 12, Section 10 of the Constitution which explicitly prohibits turncoatism.

The President asked the Batasan to act with similar urgency on the pending Local Government Code so that law may provide:

- 1) Greater autonomy to local governments to improve delivery of basic services to local constituencies in addition to greater decentralization of authority.
- 2) A more rational system of creating cities and provinces to avoid proliferation of local units dependent on the national government.

* * * * *

President Marcos called for national unity and collective resolution in anticipation of an economic recovery expected towards the end of the year.

The President issued the call in his address before the Batasang Pambansa during the resumption of its fifth regular session.

“As we face the future, as we anticipate recovery, we must exert ourselves even more, for it is not enough to survive. We must, above all, prosper,” the President said.

While the President expressed optimism over the country’s future, he nevertheless urged the Batasan to develop the mechanism “for initiation and response that have been so far, on an ad hoc manner, the basis of survival in adversity.”

October 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered three communication centers set up to enable local officials to send urgent messages to the local governments minister, the prime minister or the Chief Executive himself.

The President suggested that the messages be coursed through Malacañang gate No. 4. Presidential Assistant Joaquin Venus, Jr. was assigned to receive the messages which the President promised to go over immediately.

During a three-hour meeting with Kilusang Bagong Lipunan local executives, the President once again stressed the importance of governors and city mayors working closely with the military in thwarting subversive activities.

* * * * *

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos yesterday urged the Executive Committee and Cabinet members to motivate the people into achieving greater heights of success through successful government projects.

Discussed during the joint meeting presided over by Prime Minister Cesar Virata were actions taken to implement the massive information campaign earlier ordered by President Marcos.

On ordering the drive, the President said the people should be kept informed of the different activities of the various ministries.

October 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed the Ministry of Energy and the national treasury to refund the foreign exchange losses of local oil companies estimated at P2 billion, arising from the importation of crude oil.

Oil imports are paid for in US dollars whose value has gradually been increasing in relation to the peso.

The reimbursement will be taken from the Consumer Price Equalization Fund (CPEF) which was built up to take care of future oil price increases.

Since oil prices have been declining, however, the CPEF is now being used instead to cover for foreign exchange losses of the oil companies.

The President's order was contained in Letter of Instructions 1271 issued on recommendation of Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata, Energy Minister Geronimo Z. Velasco, Board of Energy Chairman Ponciano Mathay and National Treasurer Victor Macalinog.

As of last June 30, the money available from the CPEF was P2.37 billion from total gross collections of P7.8 billion.

October 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and Moscow Mayor Vladymir Promyslov confirmed the trade between the Philippines and Russia to increase substantially during a separate press conferences in Malacañang yesterday.

The President said the increase in trade is due to the Soviet offer to buy more coconut oil, copper ore, garments, baby dresses, embroidered products, gloves, special fabrics and textiles.

The Moscow mayor, on the other hand, said his government had decided to discard the middlemen and deal directly with the Philippines to avoid added costs on Russian imports.

In his estimate, the President said, additional Soviet purchase of coconut oil and garments can mean $800 million in additional dollar earnings.

As the last year, he said, Philippine-Russian trade reached $172,816,346, with the Philippines enjoying a favorable balance of trade of $169,198,099.

October 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that he is willing to have his term shortened provided the opposition will participate in the elections.

The President said, however, that this is not an easy thing to do since it will require an amendment of the Constitution.

The President made this comment because of a bipartisan move in the Batasang Pambansa favoring simultaneous elections of all national, regional and local officials in 1984.

The option to hold a simultaneous election in 1984 would require the shortening of the term of the President, which ends in 1987, by three years and the local officials by two years.

October 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that apprehended leaders of the Communist Party of the Philippines and its military arm, the New People's Army, may still be directing operations of dissidents.

He told of the possible connection when asked about reports that Jaime Bernal, 45, a brother-in-law and co-accused of captured rebel leader Horacio "Boy" Morales, Jr., was killed by an NPA liquidation squad after Bernal manifested his desire to testify for the government against Morales.

Bernal was with two Constabulary escorts and his brother Tony in a car bound for his home in Sta. Maria, Bulacan, when ambushed.

He and Constable 1st Class Salvador Somera were killed while his brother and Pfc. Larry Fernando were wounded.

The President said military authorities will assess the incident, “but the connection is always there that the people who have been apprehended are still running things in the subversive groups.”

October 19—

The occasion will reunite Filipino, American, and Australian war veterans who participated in the Leyte landing operation under the overall command of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

Under the Ministry of Tourism’s “Reunion for Peace” program a contingent of Japanese veterans of World War II are expected to attend the celebration.

The President will speak on the need for continued vigilance among all nations to preserve peace and uphold the ideals that the veterans of World War II fought for.

The war veterans will visit the General MacArthur Landing Memorial at Imelda Park in Palo, which depicts the Allied commander-in-chief as he waded ashore with the third wave of troops, in fulfillment of his pledge—“I shall return,”

October 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has described as pure phantasy the demand of the opposition for so-called minimum electoral safeguards as a condition for participation in the proposed synchronized election of all national and local officials in 1984.

While giving less importance to the opposition demands, the President said that he would want to know if they are serious in participating in an election.

The President’s comments were made in response to questions from newsmen after he visited the Sto. Niño Shrine and Heritage Museum on Real st., Tacloban City.

The President accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, arrived in Tacloban on the presidential yacht “Ang Pangulo” to lead in the commemoration tomorrow of the 38th anniversary of the landing of allied forces in Palo, Leyte, on October 20, 1944.

October 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS warned today of another war and its dangers unless nations continue to struggle and vigil that 38 years ago summoned them to arms.

Speaking at the commemoration rites of the landing of allied forces of liberation on October 20, 1944, the President said that the world appears to be on the brink of yet another conflict and is tormented by many smaller conflicts in so many regions and contingent.

“For every nation that has learned from the terrible lessons of war, there appears to be many others that have not learned all the bitter fruits of conflict,” the President said.

Recalling the historic battles of Leyte in 1944, the President said the Leyte operations, the largest ever mounted by the Allied forces in the entire course of the Pacific war, paved the way for the liberation of the country and the defeat of the Japanese imperial army.

Thousands trooped to Red Beach for the commemoration of what the President called a glorious page in the annals of war and to do honors to our compatriots” who fought here.

The President spoke on a platform fronting the bronze monument of the landing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his party, including President Sergio Osmeña, Sr. and Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo.

October 22–

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the government will continue to give more autonomy to civilian administrations in the provinces.

He made this assurance yesterday during his talk with Leyte and Samar officials at the People’s Center in Tacloban City.

The President noted that in many instances, problems are better solved at the provincial level.

The President, together with the First Lady, and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos, conferred with officials of two Eastern Visayas provinces on local problems, including the peace and order situation.

He presided over the commemoration of the landing of the Allied forces 38 years ago last Wednesday, boarded the presidential yacht “Ang Pangulo” shortly after launch yesterday for a return trip to Manila.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS planned to invite US President Ronald Reagan to visit the Philippines when the American chief executive goes on an Asian tour next year.

The President told newsmen that he has not received any official report on President Reagan's projected trip and he is not disposed to comment on it.

He said, however, "we certainly would invite him (Reagan) to the Philippines."

Reagan's projected trip to Asia early next year was recently disclosed by a senior White House official.

It was also reported that the White House and US State Department are consulting with various Asian countries about the possible presidential trip which would take place in the second quarter of next year.

In his trip to Asia, US President Ronald Reagan would not go to Peking.

October 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, acting to speed up the industrialization and economic development of Eastern Visayas, offered incentives to attract industries to the area.

Visiting the town of Isabel to inspect the 430-hectare Leyte Industrial Estate, he also visited private and government projects there. He also made a two-hour trip to Biliran island.

The President envisioned the Leyte Industrial Estate to become the new industrial and export center of the Philippines. It is located at the western Leyte town, 40 kilometers from Ormoc city.

The incentives designed to attract industries to establish plants include cheap electricity.

The President announced a pricing policy for electricity, giving Leyte a 20 per cent price advantage per-kilowatt-hour over Manila.

Under this policy, the cost of electricity will remain at 42 centavos for Manila and about 35 centavos for Leyte. In Mindanao the rate will remain at 17 centavos because of abundant and cheaper energy from hydro electric power sources.

* * * * *

October 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, returning from a visit to Eastern Visayas said yesterday the $1-billion Leyte Industrial Estate will become the biggest industrial complex in the Philippines by 1984 and a primary source of export products.

The President also said the $402-million copper smelter and refinery plant going up in Isabel, Western Leyte, will be a model in the implementation of other major industrial projects of the government.

He said that the copper smelter as well as the fertilizer plant going up in the Leyte Industrial Estate is mostly funded by foreign financing. Only $25 million would come from Philippine budgetary resources.

The President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, had just returned from Leyte where they attended the festivities marking the 38th commemoration of the Leyte Landing of Allied forces of liberation.

Moreover, the President that hand in hand with the industrial development of Leyte would be a balanced agricultural development.

October 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday called for the establishment of a zone of peace, freedom, and neutrality in Southeast Asia to keep it free from superpower rivalry.

In a ceremony accepting the credentials of Nepal Ambassador Khelendra Prasad Panday and Cyprus Ambassador P. N. Vanezis, he restated the government opposition to war and its advocacy of a zone of peace as proposed by the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEANS).

“Our children will be deprived of the privilege to live in a world of peace and prosperity” if superpowers use the region as an arena of combat in the pursuit of their selfish interest, he said.

At the same time, the President deplored trade barriers put up by some countries to subvert the legitimate economic aspirations of developing nations.

President Marcos ordered yesterday further acceleration of the energy development program as he gave the green-light for the construction of Southeast Asia’s biggest multi-purpose dam in Pangasinan.

He took his move as he and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, prepared to inaugurate in Isabela tomorrow the Magat dam and reservoir complex, one of Asia’s biggest, which was built at a cost of P3.3 billion.

Meeting with Ministry of Energy officials at Malacañang, the President directed the immediate construction of the San Roque multi-purpose project in the towns of San Nicolas and San Miguel, Pangasinan.

The Magat dam in Ramon, Isabela, will increase energy resources in Luzon, boost irrigation, and push the country’s food production program.

October 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has authorized yesterday the release of P10 million from the Calamity Fund for the urgent reconstruction and repair of school buildings destroyed by the typhoons in Luzon and the Visayas.

A special committee to be headed by Education Minister Onofre D. Corpus took into the school building needs in affected areas has been formed by the President.

If some schoolbuildings cannot be immediately used, separate classes will be held in the morning and in the afternoon in the undamaged schools so that school children will not miss their studies during the period of repair and reconstruction, the President said.

The President directed Budget Minister Manuel Alba to allocate funds for the buildings, both for those that will be reconstructed and for those to be repaired, with the amount to be determined by the special group under Corpuz. Tentatively, the amount is estimated at P10 million.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos authorized yesterday the release of P18.7 million to finance livelihood projects of 1,700 barangays and beautification projects and other sports and cultural activities of the Women's Auxiliary Brigade in Metro Manila.

Each barangay will be given P10,000 to finance Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran projects. The amount will be placed under the responsibility of the barangay captains,

The Women's Auxiliary Brigade, on the other hand, will get P1,000 each for beautification projects in each of the Metro Manila barangays.

October 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, distributed 35,000 land titles to farmers from the country's 12 regions to mark the 10th anniversary of the signing of the Tenant Emancipation Act, also known as the land reform law.

The distribution of the land titles were made on the same platform where the President earlier inaugurated the P5.5-million Magat dam complex in barangay Aguinaldo before 80,000 people.

Land titles were distributed not only to those who have completed payments on their lands but also to those who have made two payments to enable them to use the titles as collaterals for loans to further develop their lands,

The President explained that the fact that the farmers were able to make two payments is a sign that they were capable of paying their lands.

Stressing the significance of the occasion, the President said land reform is not just a transfer of land from the landlords to the farmers, but is a package of economic benefits intended to make farmers self-reliant and productive.

October 29—

THE AWARDING of land titles to 20,000 squatter families in Metro Manila will cap the seventh anniversary celebration of the Metro Manila Commission on November 7.

President Marcos and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos will hand out the land titles at the Quirino grandstand in Rizal Park. The theme of the rite is "Lupa, Pabahay at KICK: Program Ng Maka-taong Pamahalaan."

Gaudencio V. Tobias, general manager of the National Housing Authority, said yesterday the ceremonies spotlight the massive housing program in different areas in Metro Manila of the Ministry of Human Settlements and the National Housing Authority.

October 30—

THE FIRST LADY, Human Settlements Minister Imelda U. Marcos has unveiled a low-cost functional flexihome which she herself designed.

The flexible may be financed through the flexihomes loan system of the Pagibig Fund.

The First Lady brought assemblymen with her to the Philtrade, where there is a flexihome model on display. It is a two-story house with three bedrooms at the upper floor.

With its 77 square meter floor space, the house could be constructed for only P77,000. The walls are made of cement boards made from waste materials.

The First Lady said the flexihome could be had at not more than P500 a month to workers, payable in 25 years.

She said that now that workers are allowed to borrow 48 times their monthly salary at only 9 per cent interest and the loan payable in 25 years, they could easily own a house of their own.

The Ministry of Human Settlements, the First Lady explained, had adopted liberal housing policies to encourage the private sector to go into housing to meet housing demands.

President's Week in Review: November 1-7, 1982

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS led the nationwide observance of All Saint's Day visited the grave of his father, the late Assemblyman Mariano Marcos.

The President continued his dialogue with provincial and municipal officials of the region. He looked into the progress of repair work on government infrastructure destroyed by the last typhoon.

On the way to the North, the President checked on the progress of KKK model projects set up at the Don Mariano Memorial State College in Bacnotan, La Union.

The three modules set up by the President as models of the KKK are:

1. Mountainside project, wherein reforestation and tree-planting activities are expanded.
2. Agriculture, which emphasizes agri-production projects such as cattle hog and poultry raising.
3. Aquamarine, which encourages sea farming, inland fishery and seaweed production.

The KKK models installed in Bacnotan are being copied in other places.

November 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has approved the financing of 629 additional Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran projects for the Ilocos scheduled to be undertaken next year.

The approval brought the total number of KKK projects for the region to 675. Covering 214 towns and 64,798 beneficiaries, the additional projects involve a total outlay of P379,575,314.

The new KKK project proposals were presented to the President by the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos, who is also KKK secretary-general, at the Don Mariano Marcos Memorial State University in Bacnotan, San Fernando, La Union.

* * * * *

The First Couple, together with President's mother, Dona Josefa, flew to La Union to visit the shrine of his father, the late Assemblyman Mariano Marcos, at the Bacnotan mountains where he established his guerillas during the war.

They also laid a wreath at the tomb of the unknown soldier at the Poro Point junction in Barangay Sevilla before flying to Laoag City.

Pangasinan Gov. Aguedo Agbayani submitted the new KKK Proposal for the region and briefed the First Couple on the progress of the KKK movement in the area.

The First Couple said they were impressed by information furnished by Mrs. Sylvia Muñoz, Ilocos region KKK action officer, that there was an 82 percent repayment of the KKK loans.

One project in Pidigian, Abra, Muñoz said, was already fully paid.

The President said this is the best answer to KKK critics who circulate rumors that the KKK loans would not be paid back.

The same critics, the President pointed out, were also responsible for criticizing the Masagana 99 and other agricultural loans which they claim could not be paid by farmers.

November 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged yesterday government officials and members of the Batasang Pambansa to eliminate bureaucratic red tape to accelerate economic progress and development.

“Why can they not practise less politics and devote attention to tin-nation’s economic problems?” the President asked in a brief talk with newsmen in Batac, Ilocos Norte.

The President deplored unnecessary committee hearings and urged the assemblymen to devote more time to pushing measures for economic progress.

The President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, went to Ilocos Norte Monday to visit government projects and discuss problems with local officials.

The President urged the legislators to review bureaucratic practices that block, he said, the expeditious enactment of measure in the Batasan.

The President also underscored the need to speed up processing of export papers and noted that “not a single office” attends to foreign investors.

The President and the First Lady are expected to return.

November 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS underscored yesterday the need to undertake a three-pronged economic thrust to enable the country to profit from the expected world economic recovery next year.

In an interview in Paoay, Ilocos Norte, the President said that the Philippines should be ready to cash in when the world economy improves.

The President cited indicators and developments that point he said to a strengthened economy next year.

The President said steps to be taken by the country should include:

- 1) The production of goods that will meet the requirements of new markets as a result of the incoming resurgence in the economy.

2) The replacement of old machinery at the right time by new ones.

3) The setting up of big industries that are basic to any industrialized economy.

The President also said that a market study be accelerated so that production priorities will be updated.

November 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS discussed government policies affecting the private business sector in his address before the 8th Philippine Business Conference at Philippine Plaza Hotel.

The President's address formally closed the conference, held each year to provide a forum for a dialogue between the private sector and the government on economic issues.

The President, discussed with the private sector steps to be taken to prepare it for the economic turnabout expected to start next year.

In yesterday's luncheon program, Labor Minister Blas F. Ople called on Philippine government and business "to design an environment that will effectively use all our national strengths" in forging ahead.

Ople called for "an environment that will harness and optimize our real strengths and that will make every Filipino feel lie is participating in the economic emancipation of his own country."

He said the environment should "derive strength and power from the commitment of every Filipino whether he is businessman, a worker or farmer."

First, "we must search for common purposes, define the future that we want and organize in order to achieve it," he said.

November 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS told business yesterday that government would continue strengthening their hand by providing "the kind of policy mix, incentives, adjustments, and whatever legislation is necessary to encourage private initiative."

In a speech closing the eight Philippine Business Conference at the Philippine Plaza hotel he declared: "We are committed to the sustained support and encouragement of the private sector in economic effort."

The businessmen, in the three-day dialogue with government officials, had repeatedly pointed out the high cost of money.

The President stressed the need to ensure that credit he used for truly developmental and business activities. Government credit has always been available to preferred areas such as farming and cottage industries, he said.

He admitted that the cost of credit "is quite high but this is also true elsewhere," adding some promise of a decline in interest rates.

He said the government does not have an absolute price setting policy, but a flexible system allowing for gradual adjustments.

On tariff, he said the tariff reform program was designed to increase the competitiveness and productivity of Philippine enterprises by “lowering the walls behind which so many of our industries have stagnated in efficiency.”

* * * * *

November 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that while broader powers will be given local officials, it is not time yet to return control of the police to the local executives.

Speaking at the 10th anniversary of the Ministry of Local Government, the President recalled “our sad experience in the past where the police were often converted into the core group of private armies of politicians.

The President also said he was against giving “local governments the unlimited power to spend all the money they can collect in any manner they please.”

He stressed that “it is essential that we retain the present system of sharing revenues and responsibilities if we are to sustain the gains we have made in the national economy.”

The President said it was mainly these two points—police powers and local finance powers—which had stalled approval of the Local Government Code.

President's Week in Review: November 8-15, 1982

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS highlighted the celebration of the seventh anniversary of the Metro Manila Commission (MMC) yesterday by announcing that the government will continue the expropriation of landed estates all over the country to support the housing program for the poor.

The commission marked its anniversary with a grand parade and the First Lady and Metro Manila Governor Imelda R. Marcos spread the joy by handing out 20,000 land titles to beneficiaries from 21 housing projects.

President Marcos, delivering the main speech at rites held at the Quirino Memorial Grandstand at the Luneta, cited the success of the Metro Manila experiment which he launched seven years ago, before a massive crowd estimated by police at close to a million people.

In the course of his speech the President:

- 1) Announced he will ask the Batasang Pambansa to float bonds to "finance the expropriation of landed estates all over the country to support the housing program for the landless poor.
- 2) Directed the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage Authority (MWSS) to review its rules governing illegal water connections and possibly condone eventually some outstanding debts without penalty.

* * * * *

November 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has issued Letter of Instruction No. 1276 yesterday, condoning bad debts of water users with illegal connections and giving them two months to report such unauthorized devices.

The President set the two-month period for all illegal water users to register with the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System and pay the corresponding fees to avoid penalty, during the anniversary celebration of the Metro Manila Commission Sunday.

The two-month period takes effect from the date of the publication by the MWSS of the LOI in the national dailies.

The LOI specified that the fees to be imposed after registration on the use of water through illegal connections should not exceed the amount for a six-month period.

The President directed the MWSS to conduct house-to-house verification of all water and sewer services and even excavate water mains to ferret out those not complying with the rules after the two-month period.

November 10—

THE FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, presented awards yesterday to the first 21 national winners of the Diwa ng KKK Achievement awards.

Mrs. Marcos, who is secretary general of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at kaunlaran, said the success of the KKK programs is the kind of “victories we hope to inspire in every Filipino to live a more productive and more fulfilling life.”

Mrs. Marcos also expressed Philippine support for the establishment of the United nations sponsored by the University of Peace in Costa Rica.

Former President Rodrigo Carazo of Costa Rica called on the First Lady in Malacañang to seek Philippine approval of the university proposed in a UN General Assembly resolution.

The university is slated to open next year to promote world understanding and goodwill.

November 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged the Samahang Nasyon or cooperative rural banks to join the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran program.

“The KKK is a dynamic and growing movement supported by government funds, managerial and economic talents of planners and bankers,” the President told the 24th Southeast Asian regional council meeting of the International Cooperative Alliance.

Hosted by the Cooperative Union of the Philippines and the Ministry of Agriculture, the meeting discussed plans for cooperative development in the region.

The President pointed out that the cooperative movement is part of the way of life of the Filipinos.

November 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady said that the death of Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev closed an 18-year period of leadership marked by stability in Russian political life.

The President also said it was under Brezhnev’s leadership that the relations between the Philippines and Soviet Union grew and which culminated in the establishment of diplomatic relations in 1976.

The President’s message of condolence follows:

“I am deeply saddened to learn of the passing of President Leonid Brezhnev of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

“This sad event closes an 18-year period of leadership that was marked by much stability in his country’s political life and distinguished by imaginative Soviet participation in international affairs. Not just the Soviet Union but the world has lost in President Brezhnev’s passing an able leader and statement.”

November 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS told the Soviet’ Ambassador that the death of President Leonid Brezhnev left a vacuum in the international scene.

Soviet Ambassador Yuri Sholmov, who received the President and the First Lady at the chancery in Dasmariñas Village, Makati, said their task is to continue Breshnev's noble efforts.

With the First Couple were Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile Labor Minister Blas Ople, Tourism Minister Jose Aspiras, Information Minister Gregorio Cendaña, Agriculture Minister Arturo Tanco, Education Minister Onofre Corpuz, Public Works Minister Jesus Hipolito Agrarian Reform Minister Conrado Estrella, Transportation Minister Jose Dans, Natural Resources Minister Teodoro Peña. Social Services Minister Sylvia Montes, and Metro Manila Deputy Governor Ismael Mathay.

Sholmov gave the President a copy of Brezhnev's book "Trilogy: Little Land, Rebirth and the Virgin Land."

The First Lady, who has been official guest of the Soviet Union four times, is the honorary chairman of the Philippine-Soviet Friendship Society.

November 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Bureau of Customs to crack down on private corporations with unpaid taxes in the hundreds of millions of pesos.

The President issued the directive after noting that big corporations have not declared their foreign exchange earnings for the past several years.

It is estimated that several billions of taxable dollar earnings are involved in the export earnings irregularity through misdeclaration of exports as well as rebates on sales and overpricing of purchases or imports of equipment and raw materials.

The President also asked the board of medical education, headed by the minister of education, to decide on how many students can be admitted.

November 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the customs bureau to explain why it had failed to collect the huge amount owed by more than 85 importers, some of them among the top 100 corporations of the Philippines.

A presidential directive issued Saturday could force the hand of the Bureau of Customs to pinpoint responsibility for the piling up of unpaid customs duties and other taxes amounting to P1.1 billion.

The huge bank accounts which hit a staggering P1.5 billion in June, came to light a few months ago after Customs Commissioner Ramon J. Farolan launched a stepped up campaign to collect the unpaid taxes.

However, customs sources said, this amount does not include the 50 per cent penalty on back taxes as required by the customs and tariff code.

The tax-collection drive led to the closure of a number of customs bonded warehouses, the reorganization of certain customs offices including the Manila port collector's and the suspension of some personnel.

November 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS convened the Cabinet on board the RPS Ang Pangulo to discuss measures pending before the Batasang Pambansa.

The President also took up with the Cabinet a report from Assemblymen Arturo M. Tolentino on the progress of the Conference on the Law of the Sea and the preparation of reports of ministries, agencies and other government offices for inclusion in the Presidents slate or the nation address before the Batasan when it resumes session in January.

In his address before the Batasan in its resumption of session last October 11 the President called for the passage of the amendment to the Election Code and the Local Government Code.

OFFICIAL WEEKS IN REVIEW

November 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS welcomed a Chinese agricultural mission led by Minister of Agriculture, Animal Husbandry, and Fishery Lin Hujia.

Minister Lin also cited the progress of the Southeast Asia Fisheries Development Center (SEAFDEC) project in Iloilo.

The Minister said his group learned much from the Philippine farm extension program and its unique credit system under the Masagana 99.

The President told the Minister that both countries have benefitted from the mutual learning experience. He said the Philippines also learned from China, recalling that both borrowed Chinese rice varieties were crossbred with other varieties.

November 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has signed Decree No. 1851 authorizing the issuance of special investors resident visas to foreigners willing to invest at least $200,000 in business anywhere in the Philippines.

This amends the foreign investments decree of 1979 (PD 1623) which required aliens to invest substantially in economically depressed areas in order to acquire special resident status.

The President announced this liberal foreign investment policy at a press conference aboard the RPS Ang Pangulo, stating he hoped this would attract more investors to the country, particularly Hong Kong businessmen.

To take advantage of the provisions of the new decree, an alien merely has to submit proof that he remitted the $200,000 in acceptable foreign currency to the Philippines.

The holder of this special resident visa may live in the country while his investment stays.

November 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has released P500 million to the National Food Authority yesterday to enable Food Minister Jesus Tanchanco to step up palay-buying operations as the bumper rice harvest starts coming in.

He disclosed this in a meeting with newsmen, citing fluctuating palay prices in the various regions, which are now harvesting the current crop which has exceeded the predictions of Ministry of Agriculture technocrats.

Moving to stabilize the price of palay, the President stressed:

1) Directed the NFA and private traders to meet and maintain the prices set by the government," with agriculture officials present.

2) Ordered the food minister to blacklist rice millers and traders who persist in buying from farmers at prices below government support prices.

The President told newsmen that with the P500 milion, the NFA can step up buying operations and buttress the prices.

November 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has announced he would call the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan leadership to a caucus shortly, to take up issues con fronting the ruling party and important bills pending before the Batasang Pambansa.

The President also told the press conference:

1) Government will reduce its investments in formerly distressed private corporations which have regained their viability.

2) The Philippine National Bank and the Development Bank of the Philippines will start selling back corporations they are holding to the private sector.

He said that questions on turncoatism, accreditation of political parties, expenditures and contributions during elections, and sychronization of elections will be discussed at the KBL caucus.

November 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System to submit to the Batasan Pambansa, after further technical studies, its finding on asbestos-fiber-reinforced cement water mains.

To safeguard public health and ease apprehension, the President created a five-man presidential advisory committee headed by health Minister Jesus Azurin to conduct an exhaustive scientific study and to submit within three months its recommendations for a policy that would best serve the interest' of all the citizenry.

The President in effect lifted the ban on the use of cement pipes reinforced by asbestos fibers.

In the presence of his staff and some callers at the front door of Malacañang, the President examined the pipes. He found that in the case of those made of cement, asbestos fibers was merely used as strengthening material and constituted a mere five per cent of the total pipe material.

He reportedly inquired whether the water actually touched the asbestos. MWSS officials replied in the negative.

November 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS speeded up the integrated steel mill project in Iligan City, one fo the government's 11 major industrial projects.

In Letter of Instructions No. 1277, he directed:

- 1) The Board of Investments to approve the $700-million integrated steel mill as a pioneer project.
- 2) The Central Bank to include the financing required credit budget for 1982-83.
- 3) The investment coordination committee of the National Economic and Development Authority to expedite approval of the steel mill.
- 4) The National Steel Corp. to buy the lands needed for the project.
- 5) The National Power Corp. to supply the steel mill with its power needs through 1990.

The integrated steel mill is an expansion of existing facilities of the defunct Iligan Integrated Steel Mill. It will have iron-making, steel-making, and rolling mills facilities.

November 23—

During the 18th Congress of the Medical Women's International Association, the President stressed that modern societies especially the developing nations, which are modernizing their health care programs should be more sensitive and knowledgeable in investing their programs with a greater degree of humanity.

The President said they can take a leaf from the practice of ancient physicians of treating the whole man, soul as well as body, to relieve or cure an ailment.

The President cited the history of Oriental medicine and how medicine rooted in tradition developed the art of healing such as Hindu surgery and Chinese acupuncture.

In the Philippines, he said, a long tradition of folk medicine endures to this day. The significant part of this tradition was the babaylan, which referred to the role of women in healing.

November 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the reorganization of the management boards of all Philippine Centers in the United States to expand trade between the Philippines and the United States.

Philippine Centers had been established in San Francisco, California, Los Angeles and New York in 1973 to enable the American people to have a glimpse of the Philippines, specially its export products, people and culture.

Samples of the country's main products, which other countries may buy any time, are displayed at the centers.

In an executive order signed yesterday, the President appointed Philippine envoy to Washington, Benjamin T. Romualdez, head of the Philippine Center's management boards.

Romualdez is currently the chairman of the Philippine-United States Business Development Council.

The council was created last September to expand further the Philippine presence in the US market.

The Presidential order centralizes the responsibility for the promotion of RP-US trade in the chairman, of the management board of the Philippine Center.

November 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the government would do everything to punish people involved in drug trafficking.

He issued the statement during the call of the participants to the ninth meeting of the heads of national narcotics law enforcement agencies in Malacañang.

The President assured them the Philippine government is exerting all efforts to stop the illicit drug trade which, he said, has become a grave domestic problem.

He recalled how Lim Seng, a heroin manufacturer and head of a drug syndicate, was executed by musketry to prove that the government meant business in stopping the menace.

He also disclosed that Virginia Espeleta de la Pena, tagged as the “queen of drug pushers,” is now being held incommunicado in the PC stockade in Camp Crame after being found to have continued to run her syndicate from her jail in Angeles City Pampanga.

November 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has urged sports leaders to propagate athletics in the barangay level and harness the youth’s participation to draw them away from the influence of dangerous drugs.

The President has expressed alarm over the continuing drug menace which, he said, has involved even some sons and daughters of well-known personalities.

He made the pronouncement during the courtesy call of the officials of the Little League Baseball Association in Malacañang.

The President told the sports leaders that the challenge of athletics is an alternative to combat drug addiction among the youth.

“Sports should give our children a good alternative and your work (Little League baseball) is God-sent,” the President said.

The President stressed that the problems of the modern world tend to be met by the use of drugs and one of the ways to fight it is through participation in sports.

November 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has banned the use of asbestos as lining for air-conditioning ducts.

The President cited medical and scientific studies, which; he said, indicated some relation between cancer and sustained contact with asbestos.

“The evidence that has become available so far shows, for instance, that asbestos fiber inhaled and deposited in the lungs is definitely carcinogenic,” the President said.

The President also directed that all buildings where airconditioners have been installed immediately and thoroughly inspected to find out if asbestos fiber has been used.

He ordered the removal and replacement of asbestos pipes and fibers with other materials to be determined by the Ministry of Health and the director general of the National Science and Technology Authority.

November 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has approved the purchase of 400 new trucks to boost garbage collection and disposal facilities in Metro Manila.

To cope with the mounting garbage problem in the area, the President also ordered the Metro Manila Commission to increase the number of garbage dumpsites and strengthen the administrative and technical capabilities of the Environmental Sanitation Center.

The Environmental Sanitation Center is responsible for providing an integrated garbage collection and sanitation system in Metro Manila.

The purchase of the new trucks partly implements a long-standing plan to modernize garbage collection and sanitation services in Metro Manila.

Malacañang said that the purchase of the trucks and other equipment will be financed by the Export-Import Bank of Japan under a five-year refinancing scheme.

November 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that he will use the “visitorial powers” of his office to safeguard the funds of the Philippine Veterans Bank.

The President sounded this warning during the eight regular meeting of the Supreme Council of the Veterans Federation of the Philippines at the Veterans Bank building on Bonifacio Drive.

The President expressed his disappointment over the failure of the bank which, under the past administration, had granted over P500-million on uncollectible debts.

The President said he had asked the former president of the bank as well as its board of directors to explain in writing how this happened.

He pointed out that a special group will be organized for the purpose of making a periodic reports of the bank’s performance.

The President recalled that the bank was organized with the $25-million, which was given by the United States government to Filipino veterans.

“From now on let us not allow money to be used by the few. Now we will have to watch over the shoulders of the bank’s president and the treasurer, and every resolution they approve,” the President said.

November 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Executive Order 849 which raised from 70 to 80 percent the loan value of grains to farmers.

The President said that the higher loan value should encourage grain businessmen “to procure more of the farmer’s produce at higher prices.”

The move was prompted by the clamor from the private sector for better access to government funds under the quedan financing program.

The immediate beneficiaries will be the grains businessmen who can now get higher loans from banks against their quedans or food stocks pledged under the Food Quedan Financing Program.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 1—

MY COUNTRYMEN: Today a new year begins and as you and I have done each year for longer than we can now perhaps remember, we have set apart a moment from our celebration to give full consideration to the meaning of this new beginning.

In spite of the difficulties that the past year has brought and the sobering prospects in the year ahead, there comes to most of us at this time of expectancy and hopefulness for the future.

I do believe that it is this very spirit of renewed optimism and hope that will see us through whatever rigors we still have to surmount in our journey towards the future.

Adversity is mi stranger to our people and our land. Many times in the past, in the face of perhaps greater uncertainties than those that confront us today, we have overcome and we have prospect.

With the help of Divine Providence and our resolute will, we shall do no less in the year now before us.

The past cast by the continuing global economic crisis shall pass and we must make ready to wrest the opportunities that will come with improving economic conditions.

Most important of all, we must not lose heart or let divisiveness draw us away from the unity and the resolve we need most critically at this time.

Let us therefore renew our resolve to prevail over these trying times. Let us begin by matching our feelings of buoyant hope and goodwill today with resolute action, each in our own respective labors.

Let self-discipline and industry regain their rightful places as the cornerstones of all our individual and collective endeavors.

While looking to the fulfillment of our needs, let us- also lift our sights to the needs of the larger community, our nation.

On this most hopeful day of the New Year, the First Lady and my children join me in extending to all of you and your families our best wishes for health, prosperity and the blessings of almighty God today and throughout the coming year.

January 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has authorized the granting of new incentives to petroleum service contractors to encourage, more oil drilling in the country.

The more is contained in a presidential decree amending certain sections of PD 87, known as the "Oil Exploration and Development Act of 1972," which started the service contract system in local oil and gas exploration.

Members of the Cabinet and the diplomatic corps and other foreign guests attending the traditional New Year's Eve Celebration at Malacañang witnessed the signing of the decree. It took effect, immediately.

Among other things, the amendatory decree provides that contractors be reimbursed for all operating expenses not over 70 percent of the gross proceeds from production in any year. Any expense beyond 70 percent can be recovered from the operations of succeeding years.

January 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and Dr. Aramd Hammer whose company, Occidental Petroleum, has one of the biggest coal mining concessions in China, have agreed to use Manila as a transshipping point for Chinese coal.

The use of Manila harbor, one of the finest deepwater ports in the world, would make up for China's lack of deepwater ports which has prevented loading of large ships.

Australia and Brazil are already using Manila as a stopping point in their trade with China, the President told the 84-year-old American industrialist during their talks on the presidential yacht the other night.

Hammer expressed hope that the Philippines engaging in coal operations on an equity basis in the United States would help ensure steady supply here of high grade coal and hasten the Philippines independence in energy.

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed yesterday that he will not allow politics to influence the selection of the justices and judges in the reorganization of the courts.

"This was stressed by the President in a consultation meeting with regional chairman of the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan in Malacañang.

"We cannot allow politics factor to be the principal determining factor in the assignment and choice of judges," the President said.

It is necessary, the President said that the recommendees, first of all are all beyond reproach and above suspicion.

The President had earlier said that he will first appoint 40 justices to the Intermediate Appellate Courts and around 680 judges to the regional trial courts.

Reorganization of the Judiciary is in compliance with Judiciary Reorganization Act of 1980.

January 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred the nation's most distinguished military awards on four American officers who were instrumental in beefing up the firepower and morale of the Northern Luzon guerillas during the darkest days of the Japanese occupation to hasten the liberation of the Philippines.

The President presented the decorations at the Maharlika Hall of Malacañang.

He was assisted by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and General Fabian C. Ver, AFP chief of staff.

Decorated were Capt. Maurice “Duke” Ferrara (US Navy, ret.) the Distinguished Conduct Star, the second highest military award in the Philippines: Maj. Fred Behan (US Army, ret.) the Bronze Cross, and Col. Donald Jamison and Lt. Larry Guzman (US Army, ret.), the Philippine Legion of Honor with degree of officer.

January 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has announced yesterday that the government will pursue a four-point thrust to improve the country’s economy in 1983.

Confident of an upturn in the economy, the President said that efforts will be accelerated in four areas—agriculture, industrialization, export drive and mass involvement of the people in the economic drive through medium and small-scale industries and the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaularan.

The government’s economic thrust this year was disclosed by the President in an interview with newsmen in Malacañang.

Besides the implementation of government programs, the President said he would like to see the complete normalization of political organizations.

The President pointed out that while the country is self-sufficient in food, there are still deficiencies in the four sectors he mentioned.

He pointed out that the establishment of a balanced agro-industrial economy is yet to be attained and that this can be done by setting up the 11 industrial project and small-and-medium-scale industries.

January 6—

THE PRESIDENT has given the judges involved until today to answer all the adverse findings and charges lodged against them with the Integrity Council.

After hearing the side of these judges, the President may refer the matter back to the Integrity Council for final resolution as to their inclusion in the filial listing of the new judiciary set up.

The President created the Integrity Council to assist him in the screening of the new list of members of the reorganized judiciary system.

With Justice Minister Ricardo Puno as chairman, the body is composed of retired Supreme Court Justice Felix Antonio, Antonio Lucero, Guillermo Santos, Jose Leuterio and Jose Bengson as members.

January 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the Philippines has submitted its defense requirements to the United States in connection with the initial round of talks for the renegotiation of the Military Bases Agreement covering the period of 1984-1989.

The President said the choice of military hardware, although part of the list, would not be discussed. Rather, he said, other matters understood to be bases rentals would be taken up.

Diplomatic and defense officials had earlier said that the security assistance package for the use of the bases by the Americans will top the agenda in the preliminary decisions this coming April in Washington, D.C., between defense ministries of two countries.

The President stressed that the meeting between Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and his American counterpart, US Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, would not involve questions of armaments.

“The matter of armaments comes under the Mutual Defense Pact as such other military arrangements are routinary basis,” and are handled on a routinary basis,” the President said.

President's Week in Review: January 8-15, 1983

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS held a meeting with the hierarchy of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) to discuss finalization of the judicial reorganization which he wanted announced on or before January 14.

Notices had been sent to KBL, leaders all over the country to consider the judiciary list prepared by the Ministry of Justice.

In the KBL caucus the other Sunday, the President declared that the successful reorganization of the judiciary, from the Court of Appeals down, is the responsibility of government, hence, of the KBL, which is the party in power.

The President stressed that: We cannot allow the political factor to be the principal factor to be the principal determining point on the assignment and choice of judges. So we have to see to it that, first of all the recommendations are all beyond reproach and above suspicion.”

January 9—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos distributed land titles, small business loans, and certificates of awards to more than 200 families and said the poor need not despair because they have so much to hope for.

Speaking at the inauguration of the Pambansang Bagong Nayon housing project in barrio Lahug, Ms. Marcos said government has put in place many programs to help the poor achieve a hotter life.

“I know that with greater efforts, they can find hope, beauty, and fulfillment in their lives,” she said.

Mrs. Marcos later pulled a switch at the Cebu Plaza Hotel to signal that electricity had been brought to all towns and cities, of Negros Oriental Cebu, and Bohol.

As chairman of the National Electrification Administration, she announced that work will begin tomorrow to bring electricity to all points of the nearby islands of Siquijor, Bantay, and Camotes.

January 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS discussed with the regional chairman of the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan to finalize the list of appointees to the judiciary under the Judiciary Reorganization Act of 1980 which he wanted implemented on or before January 14.

The Integrity Council headed by Justice Minister Ricard Puno had recommended to the President 1,661 incumbent justices and judges, government lawyers and private practitioners for appointment under the new judiciary systems.

The 1,661 recommendees had been thoroughly; screened for competence and honesty by the Integrity Council.

In his meeting with the KBL hierarchy last Dec. 26, the President pointed out that the reorganization of the judiciary is the responsibility of the government and, hence, of the KBL as the party in power.

He stressed, however, that the political factor will not be the principal determining point in the choice of judges.

“We have to see to it that, first of all, the recommendees are all beyond reproach and above suspicion,” he said.

January 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the on-going judicial reorganization is not a purging exercise.

In a meeting with regional chairman of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan, the President said that “what we are trying to do is to give those who will be removed from office or be transferred, a hearing in accordance with the stated principle that no man shall be denied his day in court’ or removed without being given a hearing and a chance to explain whatever charges there are.”

The President vigorously denied some reports that the KBL, was to decide the judicial line-up.

However, he consulted with KBL leaders on the records of incumbent judges and those proposed for appointment in the judiciary reorganization.

The President had summoned all the judges whose records were screened judges and those proposed for appointment in the judiciary reorganization by the Integrity Council and against whom there were adverse reports. He said they were given all the chance to explain the reports.

January 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has announced the release of P69.7 million to pay one-week year-end bonuses for about 300,000 public elementary school teachers all over the country.

This is expected to end the teacher’s discontent over delayed payment of-the bonus.

The bonuses would come not less than P250 and not more than P500 each, based on the salary scale stipulated in the President’s Executive Order No. 858.

The P69.7 million will be charged against the P169 million unused allotment earlier released to the Ministry of Education, Culture and Sports for 1982; which was not yet applied for salary adjustments. The cash payments will be charged against the 1983 program.

The President has approved two salary adjustments for teachers last year. These were a 15 to 20 per cent increase and a specific P98 adjustment to raise the minimum monthly pay of teachers to P1,000.

January 13—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Mrs. Imelda E. Marcos has announced that some 30 economists, sociologists, and humanists will meet in Manila next month to discuss various international development programs in a workshop.

The workshop is being sponsored by the United Nations following talks held between the First Lady and UN Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar in the UN sometime ago.

The First Lady said that among those invited are heads of states with their respective representatives from nations which participated in the last conference in the new international human order.

The First Lady made the announcement in the course of a briefing with the diplomatic corps from the foreign community at the University of Life in Pasig, Metro Manila.

Mrs. Marcos earlier invited the diplomatic corps to the UL to discuss with them the functions of the UL and the MHS, as well as the national livelihood program.

January 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stood pat yesterday on the issue of the three per cent ad valorem advance import tax, declaring that it was necessary in view of the recessionary situation.

The tax applicable to all importations since the latter part of last month, has drawn vigorous opposition from some business sectors.

Following a three-hour meeting with technical experts in Malacañang, the President has announced his assessment on the importance of the new tax.

Present at the meeting were Prime Minister Cesar Virata, Deputy Prime Minister Jose Roño, Minister of Trade and Industry Roberto Ongpin, Minister of Energy Geronimo Velasco, and Central Bank Gov. Jaime Laya.

The international recession, the President stressed, has compelled all countries to take proper measures to defend the integrity of their currencies.

These currencies have been eroded by falling commodity prices and the corresponding loss of foreign exchange earnings, particularly in developing countries, which include the Philippines, he said.

January 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has rejected last night the offer of Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo to resign, extending his services at least for one year to enable him to complete the reorganization of his ministry.

The President described Romulo as an indispensable servant of the Republic. "And although there are many young men who are qualified to take over his post, Romulo, at the moment, has no replacement," he said.

"You and I will choose your replacement," the President said in his speech during the annual dinner held in honor of the foreign minister speech during the annual dinner held in honor of the foreign minister who celebrated his 84th birthday at the Hotel Intercontinental.

In his speech proceeding that of the President's, Romulo offered to resign, saying that the time has come for him to give way to the younger generation.

He said that he had asked the President to leave the service last June 11 and while he believed it to be a difficult decision to make, he thought that it was the right decision.

President's Week in Review: January 16-22, 1983

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has agreed with Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau in their two-hour meeting that their governments should keep working for the development of trade and economic relations.

The two loaders discussed problems of mutual concern, exchanging views on world security, peace, and economic development.

Trudeau arrived in Manila Friday on the last leg of his Asean tour. Today, he leaves for Tokyo en route home.

The President thanked him for Canada's hospitality to 120, 000 Filipinos, who call that North American country their second home.

He also thanked Trudeau for his support for Third World countries during the 1981 Cancun summit.

Trudeau dressed that Canada's economic relations with Asean countries are growing faster than its relations with Europe.

January 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS delivered his state-of-the-nation address at the opening of the 5th session of the Batasang Pambansa.

The highlight of the President's address was the announcement of a partial list of justices and judges he appointed to the reorganized judiciary system.

The President stressed that he would press for immediate legislative action on priority measures still pending with the Batasan.

He said this include final action on the proposed Local Government Code, the Election Code, investment incentives and other economic development measures.

Of the 2, 604 the President said 34 or 35 will be appointed to the Intermediate Appellate Court (formerly Court of Appeals,) 129 as regional trial court judges in other areas.

According to the President, he intends to draw appointees to the Intermediate Appellate Court from the list of trial judges recommended for Promotion by the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals, and the Ministry of Justice.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has appointed 880 move judges—53 for the metropolitan trails courts for the national capital region and 827 municipal circuit trial courts all over the country.

The day before, he appointed 34 justices to the Intermediate Appellate Court (IAC) and 618 judges to the regional trial courts.

With these two waves of judicial appointments, the President has practically completed the reorganization of the judiciary, the first since 1902.

Yesterday morning, the President inducted the 34 IAC justices and many of the regional trial judges.

Under the new judicial system, the regional trial courts take the place of the courts of first instance, the metropolitan trial courts replace the city courts, while the municipal trial courts replace the municipal courts.

The 53 metropolitan trial judges are assigned in Manila, Quezon City, Pasay City, and 13 of the 14 towns constituting Metro Manila.

January 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that investigators are looking into the reports that workers in some export sectors, particularly garments manufacturing, have caused cancellation of overseas orders through defective products and general unreliability.

If the reports are true, “this means that those elements are destroying the jobs of the’ very workers they pretend to protect. This form of economic-sabotage cannot and will not be tolerated,” he declared.

The President called on both labor and management to refrain from actions aggravating the economic suffering of the people, to realize instead that cooperation between them is the only way for them to survive the world economic recession.

* * * * *

The President told delegates to the First Asean Editor’s Conference to help broaden and define relations among the peoples of the region with the rest of the world.

In an address before the editors in Malacañang, he said that conferences are “one way of reexamining the barriers that once walled in our peoples from each other, refining the bonds that we now are trying to build.

The President noted that although the peoples of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) member states now know more of one another, “their consciousness as neighbors is still overshadowed by the larger reality of our cultural links with the Western world.”

January 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that only through cooperation with the rest of the world can developing countries like the Philippines surmount the current economic crisis.

The President made the statement after accepting the letters of credence of two new ambassadors to the Philippines during separate ceremonies at Malacañang. They were Ambassadors Magdalena Filipas of Romania and Joayrton Martins Calm of Brazil.

In accepting the letters of Ambassadors Filipas, the President expressed appreciation for the desire of the Romanian government and people to promote closer ties and cooperation with the Philippines.

The President assured Romania that the Philippines will do its part to enhance economic cooperation and continue to strive for peace with dignity and national independence.

To the Brazilian envoy, the President pointed out that due to shared values and despite the great distance separating them, Brazil and the Philippines have steadily developed closer relations through the years.

January 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, noting the recent series of setbacks suffered by the military in fighting subversives and insurgents, took steps yesterday to improve combat capabilities of the Armed Forces.

The President met in Malacañang with members of the general military council, assessed the overall peace and order situation in the country, and reviewed the performance of the military in its counterinsurgency campaign.

The council is made up of Gen. Fabian C. Ver, AFP chief of staff; Ft Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, AFP vice chief of staff and concurrent Constabulary and integrated national police chief; Maj. Gen. Ignacio C. Paz AFP deputy chief of staff and chief of the AFP intelligence service (ISAFP) Maj Gen. Josephus Q. Ramas, Army commanding general; Maj. Gen. Vicente M. Piccio, Jr., Air Force chief, Admiral Simeon Alejandro, Navy chief; and members of Ver's general staff.

Also present in the meeting was Maj. Gen. Delfin C. Castro, commanding general of the Southern command (Southcom) based in Zamboanga city.

In the review of recent events, the President was visibly irked by military casualties in ambushes by the communist New People's Army, particularly where two battalion commanders and several junior officers were killed in about 12 days.

President's Week in Review: January 23-31, 1983

Official Week in Review: February 1 – February 8, 1983

February 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the cinema industry may solve the problem of integration and unification of the people in a developing country.

The President made the statement during a Malacañang dinner he hosted for film producers and actors attending the 1983 Manila International Film Festival (MIFF).

He said that the cinema has become so pervasive and so powerful as an art medium that it is probably the answer to the problem of integration and unity among peoples, the President said.

“With the improvement of its technology, the cinema can best be utilized for this noble purposes and as a weapon for Godliness,” the President said.

President Marcos has approved the bureau of internal revenue’s plan to spare honest taxpayers from unnecessary investigation and harassment, Revenue Commissioner Ruben B. Ancheta said.

Under the plan, the individual and corporate taxpayers paying taxes at least 25 per cent more than the preceding year will be accorded last priority in the BIR investigation of income and business returns.

Ancheta said “last priority” means that audit and tax investigation will only be conducted upon authority to the BIR commissioner.

The BIR chief said an investigation of tax returns paying 25 per cent or more may be conducted if there is strong documentary evidence of fraud.

February 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered court personnel in the reorganized judiciary to remain in their posts until relieved by him or by the Supreme Court.

The President was reacting to the reported uncertain status of stenographers, clerks of court, interpreters, stock clerks, janitors, and other in the reorganized courts.

He said that under an executive order he issued, all members of the courts, excluding judges, should remain in office until replaced by him or by the Supreme Court.

The President issued the “stay-put” order during the mass oath-taking of newly appointed regional and municipal trial court judges in Region I and the National Capital Region.

President Marcos sent to Deputy Prime Minister Jose S. Roño a prohibiting and penalizing the duplication or reproduction of motion pictures and video tapes and their distribution and sale for public viewing for commercial purposes.

The President asked the deputy prime minister to draft a Cabinet bill for consideration at caucus and presentation to the Batasang Pambansa.

The proposed law seeks to declare illegal and punishable the duplication or reproduction by any person of motion pictures, video tapes, television programs, and publicity materials of any kind for commercial purposes, for distribution or sale, or for public viewing.

For violation of the law, the penalty proposed is imprisonment from four years, two months, and one day, to six years, and a fine of P10,000.

February 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he had received assurances that Saudi Arabia is ready to extend help in upgrading the quality of Madrasah schools in Regions IX and XII.

Regions IX and XII are the Muslim-dominated provinces of Sulu, Basilan, Tawi-Tawi, Zamboanga del Sur, Zamboanga del Norte, the two Lanao provinces, Maguindanao, North Cotabato, and Sultan Kudarat.

Madrasahs are schools run by “Ustadz” or religious leaders, offering courses in Arabic.

The assurance, according to the President was given by a three-man Saudi delegation composed of Secretary General Mohammad Naswer Alboudi for the Islamic Dawah; Secretary Gener Ali Mohammed Moktar for the Supreme Council for the Mosque; and Director General Mohammad Abdurahman Al Bassam of the cultural department of the Saudi Foreign Ministry.

The President expressed gratitude for the assurance of assistance.

February 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that current economic trends can be indications of recovery for nations now reeling under recession.

However, he cautioned that the situation has to be watched despite the hopeful signs.

He said that among these developments is the projected shutdown of Anaconda, one of the biggest copper companies in the world.

The President said he expected the supply of copper to go down when the giant American firm closes, thus boosting the demand for the output of the Philippine copper industry.

The President said that at year’s end, the price of copper, one of the country’s traditional exports, was still below 75 cents a pound at the London Metal Exchange and about 67 cents a pound on the last trading day of 1982.

The price of copper may go up to one dollar per pound this year from a low of 65 cents, he said.

February 5—

UNITED NATIONS officials cited the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos for her key role in the establishment of the refugee processing center in Morong, Bataan, during the celebration of the third anniversary of the center.

The First Lady also received a citation from US President Ronald Reagan for her help to the “victims of the tragedy that engulfed Indochina since 1975.”

The US president said that the center has gained worldwide reputation for its human approach in caring for refugees and its innovative program of preparing refugees for settlement in the countries of destination.

The First Lady called for a renewal of the people’s commitment to the ideals of humanitarianism and the nobility of the human spirit.

February 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the Manila International Film Festival (MIFF) has proved that the cinema could transcend barriers between the peoples of the world.

Speaking at the closing rites of the MIFF at the Philippine International Convention Center, the President said that as an art, the cinema “remained us once more of the essential unity of human experience.”

“We crave today for an art than can harmonize as much as it illuminates our changing world, that can recover the intimacy with which art once spoke to our humanity, above the otherness of peoples and cultures,” he said.

The film festival, the President said, would have achieved its true purpose if artists have become more conscious than ever that they do not work in isolation but are a community which have much to share with one another.

February 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has donated his entire one-year salary this year to the Marcos Library in the University of the Philippines college of law.

Since he became president in 1965 and even as a leader in Congress, Mr. Marcos had been donating his salaries to worthy causes.

Last year, the President has donated his entire salary for the year for the benefit of the children of the Philippine Military Academy alumni.

Newsmen who covered the President in Congress can recall that as Senate President, Mr. Marcos was already donating his salaries.

February 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that he would transfer to Meralco the franchise of electric cooperatives in provinces surrounding Metro Manila.

This will enable families in these areas to save at least P400 to P500 annually in their electric bills, he said.

The President said the transfer would not only mean a decrease in the cost of electricity but also improve the income profile of these families.

The President’s action was in answer to requests by provincial residents to transfer their power to Meralco due to higher charges imposed by electric cooperatives.

He also allayed fears that the projected increased sought by Meralco would affect a wide segment of consumers in the Metropolitan area.

“I think they understand that these would affect only those in the higher brackets. And we have already done it,” the President said, referring to previous power rate increases by the electric company.

President's Week in Review: February 8-14, 1983

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the fielding of more military units in Northern and Eastern Mindanao to intensify the government's peace and order drive there.

At the same time, the Chief Executive directed the reassignment of battle-tested military commanders to these areas to supervise operations.

The President's order to beef up the troops included the ending of heavy armaments and helicopters to increase the military unit's fire power and combat capability.

The directive was issued to defense and military officials led by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Gen. Fabian C. Ver, Armed Forces Chief of Staff, during a meeting in Malacañang.

Present at the meeting were members of the general staff of Ver, the commanding generals of the four major services—Army, Constabulary, Air Force, and Navy—and commanders of the 13 regional commands.

February 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the seizure of all copies of the films "The Virgin People, Die Victim," and "Naiibang Hayop" for rescreening by the new board of review for motion pictures, television, and live entertainment to determine any violations of law.

The President's seizure order was prompted by numerous written complaints that some scenes were added to the original films approved for screening during the festival.

Operatives of the Constabulary Metrocom under Maj. Gen. Prospero A. Olivas, immediately took into custody 43 sets of the films after their final screening in Manila moviehouses Friday night at the end of the Manila International Film Festival.

The new board of review under its chairman, ex-Senator Maria Kalaw Katigbak, along with representatives of movie producers, theatre owners, and the office of the President, have started to rescreen and confiscate films.

February 10—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos has assured the country's low-income earners yesterday that the administration will give them a chance to own decent and affordable homes as the government steps up its national shelter program.

She cited President Marcos' target of 100,000 units to be built this year alone and expansion of the Ministry of Human Settlements' "PAG-IBIG" program.

Reaffirming her personal commitment to continue the President's housing program until every Filipino has a house of his own, Mrs. Marcos declared: "Until this is achieved, our task in government is not done."

The First Lady spoke at the inauguration of the Teacher's BLISS Condominium project near the Manila International Airport in Pasay city. She distributed certificates and awards for teachers coming from towns south of the Pasig river.

February 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has signed into law yesterday the Local Government Code, during the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan caucus in Malacañang.

The code defines the powers and functions of local elective officials, giving them autonomy while decentralizing powers, in barangays, towns, provinces, and cities.

It prescribes, among others, that in cases of temporary incapacity of the governor, mayor, or punong barangay, the vice governor, vice mayor, or sangguniang bayan member who received the highest number of votes cast will take over.

However, the temporary successor cannot appoint, suspend, or dismiss employees during the incumbent's period of incapacity.

February 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered yesterday the release of P10 million to buy hybrid seeds for distribution to corn farmers as he launched the Maisagana export drive which aims to make the country a net exporter of yellow corn by 1984.

Mr. Marcos also ordered the release of another P10 million out of the Philippine-Japan Food Production program to pay transportation allowances of extension workers.

The National Food Authority, with financing from the Land Bank, will set up driers and shelters in corn-growing areas, while the Central Bank will provide incentives to rural banks to cover programs like Masagana 99, Maisagana and others in the grant of credit.

The President has ordered the crop insurance program to support the Masagana 99. He asked various agencies to look into the feasibility of establishing corn export zones.

February 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, accompanied by the First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, inaugurated yesterday the People's Technology Renter and its star industry, the Gasifier and Equipment Manufacturing Corp. in its 52-hectare compound in Carmona Cavite

He signed two executive orders creating the gasifier company and providing Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran (KKK) financial assistance to industrial users of gasifiers.

He issued another order which would grant franchises to colorum jeepneys as long as they use gasifiers, which could be funded through KKK loans.

The gasifier is a local invention which uses charcoal or wood chips to produce gases to fuel gasoline or diesel engine. Widespread use of the gasifier would significantly reduce dependence on imported oil.

February 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed yesterday that the government will limit the effect of the 10 per cent increase in the National Power Corp. power rates by expanding the cheaper services of the Meralco to as many provinces as possible.

The increase in power rates of NPC took effect last Saturday.

The Meralco said it is increasing its rates by 7.2 centavos per kilowatt hour effective March 1 to offset the 10 per cent NPC power rate increase.

The electric firm has extended its power services to eight towns of Laguna and five barangays of Calamba, also in Laguna, and five towns in Quezon province in line with the President's move to reduce electricity costs in these areas.

Meralco's providing services to the eight Laguna towns and five barangays of Calamba followed its takeover from the Philippine Power and Development Company.

February 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has removed yesterday from the Board of Review for Motion Pictures and Television the power to license actors and actresses and jurisdiction over live entertainment.

He deleted these two provisions from an executive order broadening the powers of the board. Representatives from the entertainment and movie industries had appealed for the deletion of the provisions.

Under Executive Order No. 868, the body was renamed Board of Review for Motion Pictures, Television, and Live Entertainment.

In the reorganization, the board was to have a chairman, two vice chairmen, and 32 members, all to be appointed by the President.

The First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos filed four bills with the Batasang Pambansa yesterday.

Co-authored by Assemblywoman and former Senator Helena Benitez (KBL Southern Tagalog) and Assemblyman Gualberto Lumauig, (KBL, Cagayan Valley), the bill seeks to:

1. Establish a coastal zone management system to meet the country's socio-economic needs.
2. Provide for additional incentives for the installation and use of pollution control devices.
3. Exempt anti-pollution system from real property tax.
4. Promote soil conservation management.

The bills were immediately referred on first reading to the committees on human settlements, on appropriations, on finance, and on agriculture.

February 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had prevented yesterday what could have been a bloody confrontation between a group of Muslim vendors in Quiapo and the Manila police.

At the behest of the President, the Muslim Council of Elders, representing the 150 Muslims stallholders, met with Mayor Ramon D. Bagatsing and agreed to voluntarily dismantle their makeshift stalls on the streets of Elizondo, Norzagaray, and Globo de Oro.

The vendors also agreed to drop their case in court stopping City Hall from easing them out of the streets.

In exchange, Bagatsing promised to look for sites in the city where the vendors may continue their trade.

The controversy erupted two weeks ago when Bagatsing gave the Muslim vendors 10 days to vacate the area, or their stalls would be demolished.

The Muslim vendors were represented in the talks by former Senator Salipada Pendatun, Ambassador Liningding Pangandaman, Deputy Minister Michael Mustura, and former Justice Mama Busran.

February 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed Justice Minister Ricardo C. Puno and members of the integrity council yesterday to start working on the second phase of the judicial revamp.

Puno said the President had ordered him to give particular attention to municipal trial courts where many vacancies have to filled up.

In a meeting with members of the Justice and Court Reporters Association of the Philippines, Puno said about 40 programmed positions in the regional trial courts and some 200 vacancies in the municipal courts will be filled up in the second wave of appointments.

Since the judicial revamp started Jan. 17 this year, 1,501 justices and judges have been appointed by the President.

Under the judicial revamp law, Batas Pambansa Blg. 129, 1,893 judicial salas were created, from the intermediate appellate court down to municipal trial courts.

February 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile met yesterday and assessed the military situation in the country preparatory to the minister's departure for the United States for a meeting with US Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger in Washington.

The President said the talks centers on the periodic meetings agreed upon between the two governments during his state visit to the United States last year, and is not the review of military bases or facilities.

"This is preparatory to the review," the President said. "It is merely an exchange of how things are moving—defense policies, the implementation of our agreements."

The President said the Enrile-Weinberger meeting will be only for a few days but an advance party left yesterday to observe facilities of military bases there.

The President said that the formal review or negotiations will be held in Manila in April and preparations are practically worked out.

February 19—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos has reiterated to President Hauro Remeliik of Palau the assurance of President Marcos to look for areas of cooperation between the two countries.

Meeting with Remeliik at a luncheon tendered in his honor by Deputy Prime Minister Jose Roño at the Tahanang Filipino at the Cultural Center complex, Mrs. Marcos said that according to President Marcos, the Philippines would be “happy to extend to you the modest knowledge and expertise we have.”

Mrs. Marcos also assured Remeliik that as the President said, Palau has friends in the Philippines who understand the problems and aspirations of the island republic, the two countries being on the same level of development.

Earlier, President Marcos and Remeliik also decided on the need for the Philippines to send a trade mission to Palau to look into business opportunities for the two countries. They talked about the possibility of locating some Philippine garment factories to Palau.

President Remeliik informed the President of his country’s need for Philippine expertise in agriculture and aquaculture.

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared that the government has no quarrel whatsoever with the church, has invited church leaders to a more meaningful dialogue for the common welfare.

He said he would invite Archbishop Antonio Mabutas, president of the Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) and his colleagues to a meeting with the Cabinet, including the First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos.

Among the topics would be the participation of the religious sector in the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood program, small-scale industries, and vocational training for out-of-school youths.

The President said the religious sector could also help in the easing of tensions in agrarian conflicts, the national housing program, resettlement of squatters, and identification of settlement areas.

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos has unveiled the first Flexihome models in a ceremony at a former garbage dump on Mariano Marcos Ave. in Diliman, Q.C.

President Maruo Remeliik of Palau was among the guests at the early morning ceremony to see the Flexihomes, which would hasten the delivery of shelter to everybody.

Mrs. Marcos showed the visitors three basic prototypes with variations to suit individual tastes and paying capacity.

These are the FM-50.4, with a floor area of 50.4 square meters and two bedrooms; the FM-60.4, a three bedroom house with an area of 60.4 square meters, and the FM-77.7, which has four bedrooms and 77.7 square meters.

All prototypes can be adapted for single detached dwellings duplex, quadruples, rowhouse and multi-story condominium.

PRESIDENT MARCOS was the keynote speaker during the Ministerial Conference on National Food Policies and Strategies in Asia and the Pacific Region which started at the Philippine International Convention Center.

Some 30 agriculture ministers from Asia and Pacific countries are attending the three-day conference to map out food strategies and wage a “direct attack” on hunger in the region.

The conference focused on small farmers by seeking ways to close the gap between the average yields and those at agriculture research centers.

The ministerial meeting was sponsored by the World Food Council (WFC) and the German Development Foundation (DSF) as part of the “food strategy” approach adopted by the World Food Council in 1979.

Some of the countries represented in the meeting are the Philippines, China, India, Vietnam, Bangladesh, Iran, United Arab Emirates, Pakistan, Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Japan, and South Korea.

March 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the government notwithstanding its stepped-up military campaign against subversives, has kept its policy of democratic dialogue with them.

“The violence of the state is only the last recourse to quell violence done on public order,” he told the Philippine Military Academy Alumni Association at a fellowship lunch at the Philippine International Convention Center.

Declaring that the government has always believed in dialogue to conciliate and resolve tensions, he said: “Let no one misunderstand this resolve as abandonment of the policy of dialogue which we have always pursued.”

Meanwhile, the President asked Prime Minister Cesar Virata to help integrate all programs intended for armed forces men, veterans, and retirees.

March 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS vowed to put an end to communist reign terror in the south, but stressed that the intensified military campaign against the subversives.

He said that he has never overreacted to the passing dangers to the national life, not even at the time when rebel forces threatened to separate a portion of the national territory from the Republic.

The President stressed that a government that finally resorts to violence in order to resolve problems in effect faces also its shown failure.

“We are not about to break with this tradition of restraint,” the President said. “Violence, after all, is a confession that mutual relations of respect and goodwill have broken and the web of common life has been torn apart.”

The First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, donated P5 million yesterday to the University of the Philippines faculty development fund in brief ceremonies in Malacañang before UP deans and professors led by university President Edgardo J. Angara.

Also present were alumni led by Supreme Court Chief of Justice Enrique Fernando as well as student leaders. The money came from the Metro Manila Commission.

She declared that her goal is to make Manila the city of man and she will support anything to achieve this goal.

She said that the P5 million contribution will bring returns worth a hundred fold in the development of the nation’s human resources.

The UP faculty development fund is part of the university’s diamond jubilee celebration. Target for the fund is P75 million. UP President Angara has been asking all alumni, including those abroad, to help achieve this goal.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos formally turned over P5 million to the National Commission Concerning Disabled Persons and the Ministry of Social Services and Development during simple ceremonies at the Manila Film Center on Roxas Boulevard.

The amounts represented the proceeds generated by the successful 12-day Manila International Film Festival (MIFF) which was held recently for the benefit of the disabled.

Scheduled to receive the donation from the First Lady, who is also the founding chairman of the annual filmfest are Social Services Minister Sylvia Montes, president of the 1938 MIFF and Mrs. Julita C. Benedicto, vice president of the MIFF and chairman of the National Commission Concerning Disabled Persons.

The turnover rites highlighted a “barrio fiesta” for the disabled which started at 4 p.m. at the Manila Film Center.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, irked by reports of Mercedes-Benz cars being smuggled out of the waterfront, ordered the bureau of customs yesterday to temporarily stop the release of luxury cars.

Recent news reports had carried stories of expensive cars, particularly the Mercedes-Benz and the BMW from Germany, being released from customs on the strength of fake release papers and non-existing consignees.

The President said he was considering suspending privileges letting balikbayans (foreign-based returning to the Philippines) to bring in with them cars and others luxuries.

It was reported that some importers were using passports of balikbayans to bring in expensive cars.

March 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared all-out war against smuggling syndicates, stating the administration will be ruthless with fool-proof measures to plug loopholes in bureau of customs operations and policies.

The President said the government is determined to plug all the leaks in the customs operations which were being utilized by smuggling syndicates to ply their nefarious trade.

He said all existing customs policies and operations will be restudied to implement fool-proof measures to ensure an effective drive against irregularities in the bureau.

The President said the recent killing of an assistant chief of customs indicates that these alien syndicates have gone to a point where they can intimidate customs officials.

March 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS assured yesterday a fair hearing of producers and directors of controversial films previously approved by the Board of Review for Motion Pictures and Television which were shown during the recent Manila International Film Festival.

The President said he had ordered a review of these controversial films and stressed that there were some violations.

The President said government probers now have the same version of those who saw the films. "We are still trying to get the version of the directors and producers. And I want it in writing because I do not want it said later on that they were not given a hearing."

The President said that there are certain standards that must be maintained in film exhibitions. He said the showing of these disapproved films is a violation of the censorship laws, unless "this is part what they call experimental presentation," obviously referring to the Experimental Cinema of the Philippines.

SECURITY MATTERS between the Philippines and the United States will be discussed anew next month.

The talks, the second this year for the two countries, will take place in Manila.

They come close on the heels of negotiations held in Washington recently between panels headed by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and US Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

The President, indisposing next months' talks, declined to go into details. But he said the discussions must be completed next month because Japanese Premier Yahushiro Nakasone has set his Manila visit for May.

Mr. Marcos said he thought the Enrile—Weinberger talks were successful. The discussions were frank and were conducted within the framework discussed between me and President Reagan, Mr. Marcos said.

PRESIDENT MARCOS yesterday ordered Manila Fiscal Vivencio Dionido to reopen an investigation of the murder of opposition leader Adolfo Celera and Assistant Provincial Fiscal Jose Angustia in Masbate.

Dionido, presidential prober of the Masbate cases, was told to report to the justice ministry the results of his findings on the killing of Celera, former transport commissioner who was killed in 1981, and Angustia who was gunned down last year.

The President also directed military authorities and government prosecutors to pursue 1,717 pending criminal cases, including 20 believed to have political implications and 600 civil cases, and to reopen other cases dismissed for lack of evidence.

The President directed the PC inspectors general's office and the Criminal Investigation Service to give all-out support to the investigators.

March 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the reinvestigation of all criminal cases in Masbate, including those already dismissed.

The order was one of several measures taken by the President in a meeting with Masbate officials, attended by justice and military authorities, to cope with the deteriorating peace and order situation in that island province.

At the same time, the President issued Executive Order 856 creating provincial and city committees on justice to ensure the speedy disposition of cases of detainees, particularly the less privileged.

He said creation of the committees can also help solve the problem of jail congestion and alleviate local jail conditions. This could help improve the administration of justice, the President added.

March 12—

WITH THE FLICK of a switch, the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos started the power generators at the Kalayaan power plant and increased by 300 megawatts the electric power available for the Luzon grid.

Mrs. Marcos inaugurated the P1.98 billion first stage of the Kalayaan plant located some 60 aerial kilometers southeast of Manila.

This is a fully automated plant, the first of its kind in Southeast Asia. It has the potential to generate 1,800 megawatts of electricity.

The First Lady switched on the power generators that, within 10 minutes, started supplying electricity to the entire island of Luzon.

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged the Batasang Pambansa to regulate the importation of toxic elements as well as enact laws on the disposition of toxic wastes “to ensure the lives, health, and safety of our people.”

The President, in a letter to Majority Floor Leader Jose A. Roño, sought the passage of a law to regulate, or ban if necessary, the importation and use of bionodegradable substances. These are used in the manufacture of soap, detergents, fertilizers, and other consumer items.

He observed that the unregulate and indiscriminate importation and utilization of bionondegradabl substances or elements by persons, corporations, associations, or other entities engaged in the manufacture of soap, determents, and fertilizers pose a potential, if not present, hazard to public health and safety.

“Toxic wastes disposal is a matter of national concern—a life or death matter that affects everyone from conceived babies to the most elderly,” he declared.

PRESIDENT MARCOS cautioned the public yesterday against being taken in by speculations about projected decreases in the price of oil.

The President told the Malacañang newsmen that speculations on the drop in world oil prices based on newspaper reports should not be taken seriously until Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) reaches a final decision.

“This is something which is affecting everybody because we really don’t know where to go, but we should have a little more patience. The idea of trying to push anybody to make a decision on the basis of some speculative newspaper story just won’t work,” the President said.

Earlier, the President he said he was inclined to defer action on proposals to increase the price of gasoline and diesel fuel because of the uncertain situation with respect to the cost and supply of crude oil.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed yesterday the purging of Constabulary and Integrated National Police ranks of “scalawags” and “bad apples” and stressed the need for cooperation between men in uniform and local civil authorities to ensure peace and order.

“The Constabulary has lost its image of a good constable, the President told 800 participants in the three-day PC-INP national seminar-workshop which opened at the University of Life in Pasig, Metro Manila.

He said that in some areas, “the Constabulary men symbolize some questionable public officer who does not really think in terms of the welfare of the people in the community.”

The President stressed the need to purge PC and police ranks to ensure the success of the government’s anti-insurgency and the peace and order campaign.

PRESIDENT MARCOS moved yesterday to stabilize the price of liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) by temporarily exempting LPG importations from customs duties

He took this action in the face of the doubling of price of LPG during the past months because of supply shortage. Saudi Arabia, the principal supplier, has declared a condition of "force majeure" due to its inability to meet its supply requirements.

At the same time, the President directed the Ministry of Energy to maintain the present level of prices of all oil products following announcement by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) of a five-dollar reduction in the official price of its marker crude, from $34 to $29 per barrel.

The President said that the reduction of OPEC crude oil prices by five dollars per barrel will save the country "as much as $300 million for 1983."

THE FIRST LADY yesterday asked government officials to maintain a constant dialogue with the people and not to raise false hopes by making promises they cannot fulfill.

"What is important," she said, "is to show sincerity by helping the people solve their problems."

Mrs. Marcos gave this advice in a speech read for her by University of Life Vice President Ernesto Franco during the Ugnayan program of the PC-Metrocom and Metropolitan Police Force at the University of Life.

The First Lady said constant dialogue with the people would enable government officials to know the actual needs of the public.

She also suggested a system of priorities so that the more urgent problems, particularly on the administration of justice and the delivery of the 11 basic needs, could be given proper attention.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had directed the Lacuna Lake development Authority (LLDA), the Constabulary and the Ministry of Local Governments to look into the raging controversy between fishermen and fishpen operators at Laguna lake.

The President told newsmen in an interview, he decided to take a hand because of his concern for the small fishermen and due to reports that local officials have monopolized the fishpen.

The agency supposed to handle the fishpen operation is the Laguna “Lake Development Authority.

Because the small fishermen are charging the local executives with monopolizing the fishpens, I have directed the Constabulary to look into this with the participation of the director-general of the Laguna Lake Development Authority and the Ministry of Local Governments,” the President said.

The directives were addressed to Brig. Gen. Pacifico Lopez de Leon. LLDA director-general; Lt. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief; and Local Governments, Minister Jose A. Roño.

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed the government’s determination yesterday to prosecute those violating the law or disregarding his earlier orders in Laguna lake fishpens.

In an interview with newsmen, the President said those violating the laws on the construction of fishpens and possession of firearms or involved in killings, particularly with the use of illegally possessed firearms, will be prosecuted and punished.

The President said he has ordered investigators to:

1. Find out if his earlier letters of instruction on fishpens were strictly followed.

2. Study whether more fishpens were constructed even after order, were issued to suspend further constructions

3. Look into reports that unlicensed firearms are being used by fishpen operators to drive away persons engaged in fishing.

The President stressed that the proliferation of fishpens greatly reduced the fishing ground of the “survival” fishermen.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has declared yesterday that the Philippine government will see to it that no nuclear arms are installed in bases here without consultations with the administration.

The President, said that “the present administration is exerting all efforts to see to it that all existing agreements, including the one to the effect that no nuclear weapons will be established in our bases without consulting us, will be implemented.”

Asked about rentals for the use of the bases, he said he would not demean the government by haggling over money.” We do not think in terms of quantitative amounts, but in terms of requirements for specific purposes—defense,” he said.

He said that negotiations should be kept on a high plane. If there will be any disagreement, “it should be on principles, and not on money or amounts or quantities of funds, which would be degrading to both governments,” he said.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, while stating that the country has one of the lowest income tax rates in the world, said yesterday he would look into complaints that the gross income tax rates are too stiff for the middle income group.

The gross income tax rates, implemented for the first time for the calendar year 1982, have done away with deductions and allow only exemptions for single persons, heads of families married persons, and minor children.

This system was approved by the Batasang Pambansa. A provision in the law calls for withholding taxes from worker's pay checks.

The complaints cited the already huge withholding tax deductions middle-income earners must pay in addition to paying the additional taxes according to the new tax brackets.

Bureau of Internal Revenue officials have declared that they have no choice but to follow the law.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, acting on the recommendation of a special technical committee, authorized yesterday the continued use of asbestos-cement pipes in the expansion project of the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System (MWSS).

The technical committee, organized by Presidential Executive Assistant Juan C. Tuvera, was headed by Dr. Francisco Cassanova, director of the Malacañang clinic.

The President cited the committee's findings that in the 30 years that asbestos-cement pipes have been used in the metropolitan water system, an overlay of calcium and magnesium carbonates have been formed on the inner walls of the pipes, forming a protective coating over the asbestos.

The committee said that the natural quality of the water supplied by the Balara Filters is the kind that causes insignificant corrosion of the cement in the pipes.

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared yesterday that the United States and Philippine government have reaffirmed at every opportunity the term principle that no nuclear weapons would be sited in US facilities in Philippine bases without consultations with the host government.

This was his reply to an AFP story the other day quoting former Sen. Lorenzo Tañada as stating that America had installed nuclear arms in the bases here and "there is nothing the Philippine government can do about it.

Mr. Marcos warned against attempts to play politics with the international and external security of the country.

In an interview, he told newsmen that "we should ask the Americans to comment" on the Tañada statement, stating that agreement we me going to maintain, and that agreement requires that we be consulted."

The President added: "As far as we are concerned, we have not been consulted, and therefore, so far as we are concerned, there are no nuclear weapons."

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that the only answer to the opposition charges that nothing was being done about graft and corruption would be the thousands of graft cases pending in the Sandiganbayan.

"There are thousands of cases pending in the Sandiganbayan and there is no country which has a similar institution like the Sandiganbayan," he told newsmen in reply to a report that opposition Assemblymen asked for action against grafter.

The Sandiganbayan is a special court, while the Tanodbayan is its prosecution arm, both of which have jurisdiction over graft cases.

Earlier the President issued a decree defining the jurisdiction of the Sandiganbayan over graft cases.

His Decree No. 1861, signed over the weekend, amended Section 4 of Decree No. 1606 and Batas Pambansa No. 129 vesting the regular courts with jurisdiction over graft cases punishable by imprisonment of not more than six years or a fine of not more than P6,000.

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that he would tap the private sector to support the diplomatic service in the government's export drive.

The President told newsmen, before he boarded the RPS ANG PANGULO Friday, that the foreign service corps should be infused with diplomats who know about business and economics.

This view was supported by observations from Prime Minister Cesar Virata and Trade and Industry Minister Roberto Ongpin on current diplomatic trends.

They told the President that most of their callers from the diplomatic community were ambassadors who pursue business initiatives for their governments.

Virata said that the emphasis in foreign policy should shift from the political to the economic.

The President said that most of the members of the diplomatic service were public relations-oriented “but even on this score, some are weak.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered that all laws pertaining to land use be collated and strictly enforced to prevent its wasteful exploitation by private individuals.

He gave the order to all ministries and government agencies involved in implementing laws on land use and the conservation of the country’s flora and fauna.

His directive came in the wake of his observation that, despite a number of laws, decrees, and executive orders regulating and systematizing the use of land, unscrupulous quarters have succeeded in exploiting lands for their personal gain.

Citing a specific case, the President pointed to the proliferation of housing subdivisions along highways, which may result in the conversion of rice and into commercial sites, thus prejudicing staple crops.

The law requires land developers to get clearances from the Ministry of Agrarian Reform and the Ministry of Local Governments before converting agricultural land into other purposes.

THE FIRST LADY, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos stopped the demolition of fishpens in Laguna de Bay as she proposed a compromise formula to defuse the tension between illegal fishpen operators and small fishermen.

In a dialogue with fishpen operators and fishermen, Mrs. Marcos said it would be a sheer waste of millions of pesos to destroy all the existing fishpens in the lake.

The First Lady was also apparently concerned that any drastic action would trigger a rise in the price of fish. The steady supply of milkfish from the lake fishpens has been credited with the relatively low price of fish in Metro Manila markets. The price of bangus has been pegged at P8 to P12 a kilo.

“If we were to destroy one portion of the lake and then build another we’ll be starting from zero. More than that, we’d be destroying something for which huge amounts have been spent,” the First Lady said.

March 30–

PRESIDENT MARCOS gave the assurance yesterday that the government will pursue its case against illegal fishpens owners in Laguna de Bay.

He also disclosed a plan that appeared to have shelved, once and for all, demands for the abolition of the illegal structures.

The President said the government plans to convert the disputed fishpens into cooperatives that will be jointly operated by big and small fishermen under the Kilusang Kabuhuyau at Kaunluran.

The beleaguered Laguna de Bay Development Authority, signed by its inability to settle the fishpens row without presidential intervention, meanwhile started training its guns on a newly discovered irregularity in the lakeshore towns the titling of foreshorelands of the bay to cut off small fishermen's access to the lake.

The President said an aerial survey of the lake have been completed in a week's time and this will serve to determine the legitimate permit holders among the fishpen owners.

March 31–

PRESIDENT MARCOS discussed with Japanese Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone Japan's defense plans and pending bilateral economic issues during the latter's state visit.

The President also said he sought an adjusted project loan agreement with Japan to finance important government projects.

In a talk newsmen, the President said, the visit of Nakasone gave him a chance to discuss pending economic issues which, the President added, have served as irritants in the relationship between the two countries.

The President cited the pending Philippine requests for an advance loan to help finance the copper industry, for an air agreement that will allow the Philippine Airlines to carry passengers between Japan and the United States and for the reduction of tariff imposed on local bananas entering Japan.

Because of the difficulty of Philippine products to enter the Japanese market, the country's balance of trade deficit with Japan is increasing every year, the President said.

The country's trade deficit with Japan last year amounted to $386 million. It was $243-million in 1981.

THE FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, said yesterday that a “deep and abiding concern for human welfare” should temper the materialism of economic growth, in her speech key-noting the workshop on the New International Human Order at the University of Life.

She called for an uplifting type of development to enable a person to rise above conditions that degrade him.

The workshop, initiated by Mrs. Marcos at the 37th session of the United Nations assembly, was a two day affair. While opening ceremonies were held at the University of Life, the sessions were held at the Manila Hotel.

Mrs. Marcos, speaking to the 11 foreign and 14 Filipino social experts, stressed that true development “must render man in harmony with his environment . . . and should respect and reflect the interest of the people in that environment.” In other words, development must serve man.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the release of P75 million for drought victims in Mindanao and the Visayas—P35 million to buy rice and corn for food and P40 million to buy rice, corn, coffee, cacao, and vegetable seedlings to be loaned to farmers.

Victims are qualified for food loans upon certification by farm technicians, to be cross certified by the barangay captains—the certifications to be approve by the provincial governor or his representative.

The National Food Authority, upon being presented with the certificates gave one cavan of rice per month per family. This will be payable by the coming harvest or the second harvest.

In the case of sugar workers, like those in Negros and Iloilo, food loans was guaranteed by the sugar planters and were paid through salary deductions. The Philippine Sugar Commission assisted the NFA and the Ministry of Agriculture.

The President released the money after a meeting with 20 governors from Mindanao and the Visayas. Prime Minister Cesar Virata and members of the Cabinet attended the meeting.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the country will develop into a modern, prosperous agro-industrial economy; in a few years. He stressed that the Philippines is now taking advantage of the world economic upturn by increasing the momentum of its economic program.

“I can tell you that we are going to be prosperous and that we are going to increase the per capita income to a point where it may even threaten our spiritual values,” the President said.

Hence, he added, his insistence; on the new Philippine ideology, “because to me, the spiritual base of nationhood must always be maintained.”

Meanwhile, with the country achieving self-sufficiency in all agricultural levels, he warned against a relaxation of efforts, calling instead of increased momentum.

The President said that it is just a matter of acceleration of momentum than of any specific growth in any area, because the growth in most of the areas has been deliberately brought about by agriculture and industry.

President Marcos said that he looked forward to the May visit of Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone to take up vital trade issues, such as aid for the distressed copper industry and the Japanese tariff on Philippine bananas.

The President had a discussion with Japanese Ambassador Yoshio Okawa, who wanted to know the possible agenda to be taken up when his Prime Minister arrives.

Okawa said he would leave for Tokyo Saturday to report to Nakasone on his discussions with President Marcos.

The President has long pressed for some financing assistance from Japan for the copper industry, which supplies roughly 40 per cent of Japanese copper concentrate needs.

He is also interested in getting landing rights for Philippine Airlines, which now uses Honolulu as a stop-over in its Manila-West Coast flights.

April 13—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos approved in principle yesterday a seven year program aimed at installing half a million units of gasifiers in transportation and other industries by 1989.

The program also calls for the planting of about 750,000 hectares of fast growing trees to support the fuels needs of these gasifiers.

To convert wood to charcoal, 75,000 kilos requiring some 350 million bricks, would be needed.

Mrs. Marcos took this step during a meeting with officials of the National Dendro Development Corp. (NDDC), Gasifier and Equipment Manufacturing Corp. (Gencor), and the Federation of Electric Cooperatives of the Philippines (Fecophil) at Malacañang.

The First Lady is chairperson of NDDC and Gencor, the country's two manufacturers of gasifiers.

President Marcos, seeking to tightening government spending as well as the supply of foreign exchange, ordered all government offices yesterday to cut down importations, reduce foreign borrowing, and slash expenditures abroad.

In Letter of Instructions No. 1307, he said government agencies must maximize use of local products, limiting government purchases of motor vehicles only to those produced here.

Government offices must not make any investments, placements, or deposits with foreign enterprises without the approval of the Monetary Board of the Central Bank. The board would give due course to only extraordinary cases.

Officials must review membership in foreign associations, limiting such memberships only to those where direct benefit assures to the country.

The President reiterated a clampdown on foreign travel and attendance in seminars and training programs, limiting those to programs with substantial foreign counterpart and excepting scholarship programs leading to graduate degrees.

April 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS told a gathering of governors and mayors that local officials must not play politics with the administration's anti-subversion campaign.

Citing some local officials who would make politics out of purely internal security affairs, he said they should help and protect the people instead.

"If any local official should want to side with any of the rebels and subversives, that is all right by us," he said. "We will know what to do, but do not expect any support from me."

Noting that many anti-subversion laws were not enforced, he pinpointed the law penalizing the giving of aid and comfort to the enemy.

The President is expected to reiterate this point when he meets the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan leaders in a caucus.

President Marcos said that illegally built fishpens on Laguna Lake could be turned over to small fishermen, thereby democratizing the bounties of the lake as he had promised the fishermen.

Teodoro Rey, the new administrator of the Laguna Lake Development Authority, had reported to the President that all the fishpens in the lake were illegally constructed because they lacked valid permits.

Rey declared that the only legal fishpens were those under the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood program.

The plan calls for placing illegal fishpens under cooperatives composed of fishermen who are qualified under LLDA guidelines.

The President told Rey to set up a navigational and access lane opening up 5,000 hectares of communal fishing grounds.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed Justice Minister Ricardo C. Puno to oversee the settlement of land disputes arising on the barangay level in coordination with the government agencies.

Puno was also ordered to set up the mechanism and the procedure for the enforcement of land claims based on conciliation undertaken under the Katarungang Pambarangay Law.

Puno said he has invited the chief of the Constabulary, the director of lands, the representative from the Ministry of Local Governments and Community Development, and the commissioners of the Commission on the Settlement of Land Problems (COSLAP) to a meeting next week to carry out the presidential directives.

Under the presidential directives, Puno will establish an effective coordination link with government officials involved in the settlement of land disputes in the barangay level.

President's Week in Review: April 16-21, 1983

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has rescinded the order of the Philippine National Bank to stop the withdrawal of dollar deposits from the bank.

The President issued the order during the central committee meeting in Malacañang after receiving reports that the PNB had stopped the withdrawal of dollar deposits by its depositors.

"There is no basis for the issuance of such an order," the President said. "I did not authorize it. On the contrary, we have guaranteed the untouchability of all foreign exchange deposits in the Philippines under Republic Act No. 1405, as amended by an Executive Order."

The President explained that the Executive Order "makes it criminal for anyone to, in any way, look into the ownership and source of such funds."

"They are safeguards and this is the guarantee," the President emphasized.

President Marcos has ordered Budget Minister Manuel Alba to immediately release the additional funds allocated to KKK projects already programmed for P450 million for 1982 including those programmed for 1983 which amounts to P1 billion.

The President issued the order during the meeting of the central committee of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan in Malacañang, on request of the First Lady and Minister of Human Settlements, who is also secretary general of the KKK.

During the meeting, the First Lady suggested that assemblymen be encouraged to look for possible investors abroad.

She pointed out that their son, Gov. Ferdinand Marcos Jr. of Ilocos Norte, has been able to attract investors from Hongkong, Taiwan, Saudi Arabia and Japan to invest in some industrial projects in Currimao, Ilocos Norte.

The First Lady added that if assemblymen are encouraged to bring in investors from abroad, they will also feel good because they will be relevant to their district and regions.

April 17—

THE FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, told the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan central committee, led by President Marcos, that initial Flexihomes demonstrations will be held in the next six months.

The central committee had earlier endorsed construction of the low-cost homes all over the country.

The President ordered the demonstration in all regional and provincial capitals. The Flexihomes project is undertaken by the Ministry of Human Settlements through the Bagong Lipunan Improvement of Sites and Services (BLISS) program.

Flexihome demonstrations will include a livelihood scheme to help homeowners augment their incomes, Mrs. Marcos said. Small-and-medium-scale industries will be set up.

The amortization cost of a Flexihome model is P125 to P275 a month for non-pag-ibig members and P92 to P250 a month for Pag-ibig members. The monthly amortization will run for 25 years.

April 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with Paul Thayer, United States deputy defense secretary, who called at Malacañang, accompanied by Ambassador Michael Armacost.

During their discussion which lasted about 30 minutes, the President and the US defense official exchanged views on pending matters between the Philippines and the United States, particularly on the review of the military facilities agreement.

The President and Thayer expressed the hope that the review of the agreement would proceed smoothly and be finished ahead of schedule.

The President also asked Thayer to inform Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger that he approves of the request that the regular meetings between the defense secretaries of the Philippines and the United States is preceded by meetings on lower levels.

Secretary Thayer arrived last Saturday and is leaving tomorrow after visiting the military base facilities at Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base.

He was accompanied by his senior aide, Rear Admiral Donald S. Jones, and Lt. Col. James P. Martin and Donald Elrich of the Office of the International Security Affairs.

April 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that state auditing has become an indispensable tool of government as he underscored the role of auditors in protecting the people's money from corruption or mismanagement.

Keynoting the opening of the 10-day congress of the International Organization of Supreme Audit Institutions at the Philippine International Convention Center, the President said audit institutions can support national development by maintaining public confidence in government integrity in the spending of public funds.

In his 33-minute speech, the President cited constitutional reforms which provided for an independent Commission on Audit.

The President said that the creation of the COA was followed by the codification of audit laws through which all regulations on government accounting and auditing were consolidated under one title.

President Marcos yesterday stopped operations of all vessels plying the Zamboanga-Singapore route to curb smuggling in Mindanao.

The President also announced that a new system in the barter trade in Mindanao will soon be adopted to plug loopholes in the present system.

He ordered Customs Commissioner Ramon Farolan and Maj. Gen. Delfin Castro, Southcom commander, that "on account of infirmities that do not contribute to general welfare, operations of all vessels plying the Zamboanga-Singapore route must be stopped immediately."

The directive was issued on representation of Muslim Affairs Minister Romulo Espaldon.

Only a few powerful merchants are reportedly benefiting from the barter trade put by the government to help former Muslim rebels in the South.

April 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed his desire to discuss bilateral issues with Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone. This was disclosed by the President in his talk with former Japanese Ambassador Toshiro Urabe, who is here to pave the way for the visit.

The four issues which the President said he would like to be concluded are: Financial support for a subsidy for copper mining; and air agreement to allow the Philippine Air Lines to fly to the United States via Tokyo; the lowering of tariff on banana exports to Japan; and the financing of the San Roque multi-purpose project in Pangasinan.

It was understood that the President and Urabe talked about possible areas of agreement on the four areas mentioned to make the Nakasone visit "meaningful".

A highly industrialized country, Japan gets most of its raw materials from ASEAN. Japan is the Philippines No. 2 trading partner.

The Philippine government will press for the conclusion of negotiations with Japan on four major issues when Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone visits the country on May 6-8, 1983.

April 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS instructed the Ministry of Budget to release the full peso requirement to finish the expansion program and the first phase of the Metro Manila sewerage and sanitation program.

This was disclosed by the President during his speech at the inauguration of the new P250-million La Mesa Water Treatment Plant in Novaliches, Quezon City.

The President also directed all government agencies to give priority to the immediate requirements of potable water, including the use of the resources of Angat Dam for the purpose.

Although Angat Dam is used to generate electricity and for irrigation, the President said that “priority be given to the immediate human requirement of potable water.”

The President emphasized that of all the 11 requirements of man, water is number one because without water nothing can be produced.

He expressed hope that “there will be enough water for everyone” by 1990 when the MWSS expansion program shall have been completed.

In her remarks earlier, the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos enjoined Metro Manila residents “to reap, but not waste, the benefits of these labors.”

She asked them “to share the responsibility of the wise and efficient use of these gifts to extend the pleasure not only to your children . . . for raw water is not an inexhaustible resource but a gift to humanity.”

The President pushed the switch that activated the water treatment plant and later toured the plant with the First Lady.

April 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and Guam Governor Ricardo J. Bordallo will discuss matters of mutual interest to both countries when the latter makes his official call at Malacañang Tuesday.

Governor Bordallo is expected to arrive on that day with his wife, Madellene Z. Bordallo, for his three-day official visit.

Accompanying the governor are economic advisers Mark Pangilinan and Frank Chan, Director of Labor Loyd Umagat, Deputy Director of Agriculture Elizabeth Torres, Chief of Staff David Shimuzu and Special Assistant Angel Legaspi.

Their discussion will also touch on tourism, agriculture, development projects, human settlements, and labor. Some big construction projects in Guam reportedly need qualified manpower which the Philippines may very well fill.

President Marcos cancelled three big forest concessions and prohibited all logging activities in Mindoro as he started a crackdown on loggers whose concessions do not have reforestation projects.

The President said the government is now “ruthlessly listing down the forest concessionaires who have not engaged in reforestation and we will eliminate those who have not complied.”

In issuing a prohibition against all logging activities in Mindoro, the President said the policy is to cancel all forest concessions where there are no reforestation projects.

The President said that this policy is in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Bureau of Forest Development and the Ministry of Natural Resources.

April 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS pushed the government’s massive water impounding program to check the effects of periodic droughts by harnessing the 48,000 barangays and the local governments.

To oversee and coordinate the program, the President created a new agency—the Water Conservation and Development Administration—to be headed by Administrator Pedro Dumol of the National Electrification Administration as general manager.

Named chairman of the board is the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda E. Marcos. The other board members are the minister of Local Government, the head of the Katipunan ng mga Baranggay sa Pilipinas, the president of the League of City Mayor and Governors, the president of the League of Municipal Mayors, the minister of Public Works and Highways and the minister of Natural Resources.

April 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that he see no danger of external aggression against the Philippines between now and the end of the century.

“Right now, there is no threat. Not from Vietnam, China, Japan nor from the Soviet Union up to the end of the century,” the President told newsmen.

Assessing the security situation in Southeast Asia, the President said that “no matter what happens to Kampuchea, I don’t think there will be any threat against ASEAN countries, except possibly Thailand because of its boundary with Kampuchea.

The President also elaborated on his position on the global move for a nuclear freeze.

Saying that the government will support all efforts to avoid all kinds of war as a matter of policy, the President said: “If it merits that we be strong to do it, then we should be strong. If it is economic development that will prevent war, then let us have economic development.”

* * * * *

President Marcos said that changes in Western press reporting may lead to a fair presentation of the situation in the Philippines as well as Asia.

With this development, the President said “we would like to see a more enlightened in-depth understanding of what we are trying to do instead of, you know, the instant knowledge type of assessment which often is not accurate.”

He said the Western press should spend enough time to study the idiosyncrasies, culture and background of the Filipino people and the nuances of the evolution of Filipino traditions.

April 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS gave Administrator Pedro Dumol, general manager of the newly created Water Conservation and Development Administration, one week to come up with models of small water impounding dams.

The construction of small dams throughout the country is part of the government program to counteract periodic droughts, especially in the Mindanao area.

The President told Dumol that each of the 1,500 municipalities in the country should be allotted two or three of the water dams.

He directed Dumol to ask barangay chairmen to submit proposals for the building of small dams in their localities so that necessary funds and materials can be sent to them. Each dam is expected to cost P10,000.

A total of P500 million has been set aside for the construction of the dams.

The small dams, the President said, will keep water level steady, keep natural springs alive and the ground moist.

Under the plan, the barangays will build the dams which they will later own, maintain and operate.

April 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the forfeiture of all illegally constructed fishponds in the 2,965-hectare Bulacan communal fishing grounds in favor of the government.

The communal grounds, facing Manila Bay, was established as a reservation for four Bulacan towns in 1966 through Republic Act No. 4701: 600 hectares for Bulacan town, 150 hectares for Paombong, 90 for Malolos, and 255 for Hagonoy.

The President ordered that the reservation be granted to the four towns for their proprietary use.

He told the Ministry of Natural Resources to delineate boundaries indirating 300 meter strips running paralleled to the boundaries of the four towns. This must be done in six months.

The President also ordered the Ministry of Local Government to prepare a five-year development plan to maximize the productivity of the forfeited fishponds.

To keep the markers intack and prevent persons from destroying or removing such boundaries, the President ordered the Philippine Constabulary to file charges against those violating the instructions.

April 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered every barangay and municipality or city to develop and maintain tree parks to enhance the beauty and ecosystem of every community.

He said these forest or tree parks would also provide the people with a healthy and wholesome environment and places for rest and recreation.

In a letter of Instruction No. 1312, the President explained that there is need for the people to appreciate the importance of preserving our forests and restoring at the earliest possible time out denuded areas.

In the establishment of the parks, the President said that one park shall be put up for every barangay, municipality or city. In the case of urban areas, the municipality or city government shall provide forest or tree parks in suitable and accessible areas for several barangays who shall assist in the project.

President Marcos said the government can wipe out rebel forces in one month if it wanted to.

The President assessed the capacity of the armed forces in his address at the 86th anniversary of the Philippine Army.

The President made public declassified documents on victories of government troops in the battlefield.

He said the drive against insurgents is taking time because “the purpose of the armed forces is not to eliminate the rebels but to win them back.”

The President stressed it is time the people realized that the present conflict “is not a fight between the government and the rebels but on a way of life and ideology.”

April 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed into law Cabinet No. 54, also known as the investment Incentives Policy Act of 1983, granting more incentives to local and foreign firms which are export-oriented.

The first major revision of the government's incentive policies, the new law is designed to restructure the industrial sector and attract more foreign exchange earnings.

Under the new law the number of incentives was reduced to six from 15 under the old laws but two entirely new incentives were added granting tax credit on the net value earned and on the net local content of export-values.

Unlike in the past, Trade and Industry Minister Roberto Ongpin said that the new incentives system is performance-oriented.

The two new incentives entitled:

1. New projects and expansions registered with the Board of Investments to tax credits equivalent to five percent on net value earned for non-pioneer industries and the 10 percent for pioneer industries.
2. New projects and expansions to tax credits equivalent to 10 percent of net local content of export sales.

April 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the government has no intention of suppressing the people's basic human rights with the recent arrest of suspected subversive elements, including those in media.

This assurance was given by the President in answer to questions during the "Meet the Press" program on MBS Channel 4.

While stressing that it is his constitutional duty to uphold the law, including cases against persons accused of subversion, the President said "there is no intention to oppress our people."

According to the President, he does not intend to use the law against political enemies or against people who hold different views, whether they are political ideologies or economic beliefs.

In the same interview, the President said the Philippine panel will be guided by national interest and not by any other nation during the renegotiation of the RP-US Military Bases Agreement covering the 1984-89 period.

President Marcos said last night the country's economy has improved significantly in the last decade and is now ready to benefit from the upturn in world trade.

Speaking at the "Meet the Press" program, the President said there is marked evidence of the country's economic growth.

"It is not as dramatic as we had hoped it would be, but certainly it is more real and concrete than the prevailing prognosis at the beginning of the year," he said.

Citing statistics, the President pointed out that while the minimum wage was P8 and the laborers employed were only seven million, the floor wage is now P31.90 with 17.6 million members of the labor force.

The President also pointed out that the traditional annual income of P830 per hectare has now increased to P2,200.

The President said he was convinced that the economic recovery has begun, both for the country and the world, adding that the nation can now benefit from improved conditions in the world.

May 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and Metro Manila Governor Imelda R. Marcos distributed P10,000 checks to each of the 1,700 barangays in Metro Manila to finance projects of these barangays.

The checks were drawn from the Barangay Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood loan fund. They were distributed during a meeting with barangay captains in Metro Manila at the Ramada Hotel.

During the meeting, the First Lady:

1. Directed mayors and vice mayors in Metro Manila to meet with barangay captains at least once a month.
2. Called on the barangay captains to build at least 10 flexihomes in their barangays by November 7 this year.

The amount of P17 million granted to the Metro Manila barangays will be drawn from the Land Bank, without any collateral or interest. The barangays will pay the loan to the Metro Manila Commission, which will shoulder the payment of interests.

Under the plan, each project will be supervised by a Samahang Kabuhayan to be organized in each barangay. The Samahan will be composed of the barangay council members and the executive officer of the livelihood program.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has assured US Treasury Secretary Donald Regan that the Philippines encourages foreign investments, noting that the US was the Philippine's principal trading and investment partner.

In 1982, the US accounted for $3.28 billion or 25.9 percent of Philippine external trade. As of June last year, American investments in the country totalled $999.72 million or 58 percent of total foreign investments here.

At the same time, the President said that the country's foreign investments are much lower and that business incentives were better than those granted by other countries.

Other standing requests by the government include:

1. Liberalization of quotas on Philippine textiles through the merger of traditional and non-traditional categories under the RP-US textile agreement.
2. Resumption of the bilateral maritime consultations that could lead to a mutually acceptable agreement on cargo-sharing.
3. Renegotiation of the RP-US air agreement with the view of minimizing adverse effects to the Philippine flag carrier of the US policy to deregulate the airline industry.
4. Expression of serious concern over the adverse, effects of the proposed US countervailing duty on Philippine tuna exports and to the country's investment promotion programs.
5. Extension of the availment for the $204.5-million US Export-Import Bank loan guarantee to the Philippine nuclear plant to give the Philippines ample time to secure necessary loans for the completion of the project.

US Treasury Secretary Donald Reagan stressed that settlements could be worked out to resolve the nagging trade and economic issues between the Philippines and the United States.

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged developing nations, particularly Asia, to work out programs that would increase agricultural productivity to raise the incomes and buying power of their people.

The President spoke at the opening of the 16th annual meeting of the Asian Development Bank at the Philippine International Convention Center.

He stressed the need for the expansion of domestic market until the protectionist trade barriers by the developed nations are dismantled.

In his speech before 1,200 delegates and observers from 45 countries, including the United States and Japan, the President also:

1. Called upon rich nations to give more financial assistance to the poor nations of Asia to enable them to attain political stability and peace and better quality of life.
2. Urged the holding of dialogues to identify areas of mutual interest in markets, resources and investments.
3. Underscored the need for sincerity, and the will of the industrialized nations to "translate into reality the clamor of the Third World for a concerted effort to establish a New International Economic Order."

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed for a rearrangement of the relationship between the Philippines and Japan to give, he said, meaning and strength to the partnership.

Speaking during a toast at dinner in Malacañang in honor of the visiting Japanese prime minister, the President said that beneficial relationship would help avoid tensions and disagreements in the future.

The President also said that Japan has a leading role to play in bringing peace and prosperity in the region and express confidence its economic power, will not be utilized to dominate or exploit its smaller neighbor.

According to the President, at this particular junction in the history of the region, the political leadership in Japan, in cooperation with the Asean leaders, can help maintain not only security in Southeast Asia but also continuous prosperity and oneness of the human family.

Noting the economic dominance of Japan, the President said that it is in the, interest of Japan that the small nations of Southeast Asia should continue to prosper and, the relationship between her and its neighbors will remain mutually beneficial.

Nakasone, in his response, said that is essential that we promote enhanced relations upon mutual understanding, friendship and trust at the individual level, if Japan and the Philippines are to maintain mutually beneficial and stable relationship.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone extended a package of economic and cultural assistance amounting to $320.5 million in loans and grants to the Philippines and assured more access for RP products in the Japanese market.

The President disclosed the highlights of his two-hour talk with Nakasone, the President said that the personal diplomacy undertaken by the Japanese Prime Minister is the start of a new era of rationality in the relationships between the ASEAN countries and Japan to preserve security and hasten economic development in the region.

Broken down, the economic assistance to the Philippines includes a $280-million soft loan under the Overseas Economic Cooperation Fund to finance 10 impact projects and a $30 to $40 million outright grant in lieu of the request for funding for the cooper industry.

Nakasone also pledged to give preference to the study of the request for financial support in the construction of the P1.2 billion San Roque multipurpose dam in Pangasinan.

The President also said that he and Nakasone approved an air agreement allowing the Philippine Airlines to fly to the United States via TOKYO three times a week, subject to further study "as we move along" in the spirit of mutual reciprocity and friendship.

May 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was contented with the assurance of Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone that Japan has no intention of becoming a major military power.

This assurance was given by the Japanese Prime Minister before his departure that Japan has no intention of amending the Japanese Constitution, which renounces war as a national policy.

Assessing the visit of Nakasone, the President said that he was happy about the visit, noting the package of economic and cultural assistance in loans and grants amounting to $320.5 million which the Japanese government has extended to the Philippines.

But the President underscored the need for Japan to help in the development of primary industries in Southeast Asia while holding on to high technology industries to rationalize their relationship.

The two leaders hugged each other before the Prime Minister boarded a special Japan Air Lines plane which will take him to Kuala Lumpur, the fifth stop in his tour of the ASEAN region and the Sultanate of Brunei.

May 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS rejected a proposal of private business and financial leaders to postpone the government's remaining industrial projects because of current economic difficulties.

Out of the 11 industrial projects the government wanted to undertake nine are in various stages of implementation, construction or negotiation.

The industrial projects are: integrated steel, cooper smelter, fertilizer plant, coconut rationalization, integrated pulp and paper, diesel engine manufacturing, heavy engineering, cement industry expansion and alcogas program.

For economic reasons, the government has dropped the aluminum smelter and petrochemical projects.

Instead of pushing through with the remaining projects, the businessmen said, funds should be reallocated to "directly productive sectors."

In rejecting the proposal to shelve the remaining projects the President explained that the funding for these projects does not come from the government entirely but that the bulk comes from the supplier's credit.

Supplier's credit, he explained, is money advanced by parties selling equipment and all the technology for these industries so that there is no money coming out of our own pocket.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered high priority consideration of Canada's proposal for a railway linking Batangas with Metro Manila and Bulacan and offers from foreign groups for the transportation of coal to cement plants in the metropolis.

The President has directed the ministries of energy and transportation and communications to rush their studies on the Canadian proposal as well as on an Australian alternative on the construction of a slurry pipeline and similar offers from Japanese and Australian group.

He said the government- will decide soon which financial package is most acceptable and best suited to Philippine requirements.

The proposed railway between Batangas City, where coal piers are being completed, and Metro Manila was discussed during the visit of Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and was reiterated by Canadian Minister of State for International Trade Relations Gerald Regan during a call Monday on President Marcos.

President Marcos assured the private and financial sectors will get all the credit they need “as soon as everything settles down.”

Citing statistics, the President said that the government gets only one-fourth of the credit facilities, with the rest going to the private sector.

Leaders of business and financial sectors recently asked the Central Bank for “cheaper and more credit” and less government competition to enhance economic growth and stability in the financial system.

The President cited Central Bank figures showing that the first quarter ending March 31 this year, domestic credit rose by P22.2 billion compared to the same period last year.

Of the increase, only P6.6 billion was used by the government, while the private sector credits accounted for P15.6 billion.

PRESIDENT MARCOS reported yesterday that Philippine export products now enjoy higher prices and renewed demand in the world market.

In his keynote address at the 14th biennial convention of the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce at the Manila Hilton, the President said that this development offers tremendous opportunities for local enterprises.

The President also said that the arrival in the country of various investment and trade missions also augurs well to the growth and progress of the country in the years ahead.

With the global recession on the downward trend, the President said the country “can now begin to reap the fruits of our massive investments in development.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS and farmers will hold a dialogue in a nationwide Pulong-pulong on May 21 to climax this year's Farmer's Week celebration.

The President had earlier declared May 15-21 as Farmer's Week to emphasize the significant achievements in agriculture and in the efforts to uplift the lot of farmers.

The dialogue will be hold over MBS-Channel 4, GMA-Channel 7, RPN-Channel 9, and all affiliated broadcast networks starting 7 a.m. next Saturday.

The President has stressed that a new economic ideology is the rationale for the launching of the reforms under the New Society, stalling from land reform and ending with the political reform granting a barangay participatory democracy.

The Ministry of Agrarian Reform has reported that 3.9 million farmers and their families have benefited from the land reform.

May 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has announced that the Development Bank of the Philippines has beefed up its lending potentials with a $100-million long-term loan agreement concluded with a group of international banks.

The President said that he had authorized the DBP earlier to arrange the loan with financial institutions to ensure adequate funding for its lending operations.

He said that proceeds of the loan will help finance foreign exchange requirements of priority projects and support the planned expansion of DBP's operations after it is granted commercial banking powers.

After the loan negotiations, the DBP award a mandate to a syndicate of five banks which will underwrite and lead-manage the transaction. The lead managers include four American banks: Asia Pacific Capital Corp., a Citibank affiliate, Bankers Trust Asia Ltd., Chase Manhattan Asia Ltd., Chemical Asia Ltd., and a British bank, Standard Chartered Ltd.

Monetary authorities earlier announced that DBP will soon be granted commercial banking powers. It can then become commercial bank.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the lifting of a presidential commitment ordered issued last March 22 for the detention of one Vicente Lombres who was arrested in Surigao del Sur together with nine other members of the Communist Party of the Philippines and its military arm, the New People's Army.

Lt. Gen. Fidel Ramos, chief of the Philippine Constabulary, recommended Lombres' release. Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile endorsed the recommendation.

Ramos said records examined established that Lombres's involvement in the subversive movement in Surigao was minimal.

Ramos found Lombres cooperative and well-behaved during the latter's detention.

The Constabulary arrested Lombres and the nine others last Feb. 28 in Tandag wharf, Surigao del Sur aboard the m/v Loadstar while bound for Baganga, Davao Oriental.

May 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that there are no "secret decrees" as he announced plans to revise two decrees that he said had not been enforced and which need updating to reflect the present "liberal thinking" of the government.

Referring to a wire story about Decrees No. 1834 and 1835 dated Jan. 16, 1981 increasing penalties for rebellion, sedition and other crimes against security, he said that some sectors of foreign media contributed to the confusion by "making a mountain out of a molehill."

While declaring that there are no secret decrees, he added that the government would soon revive the two above-cited decrees, which have yet to be enforced.

The President said that these decrees had not been enforced because they have not been published as required by law.

The President also said that a study has been made as to what decrees that were published and what decrees that were not published. "And we came out and told the Bureau of Printing exactly where they, have failed and what they should do."

May 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said yesterday that the government could wipe out all subversives in the country within a month, but would be accused of genocide if it did so.

The President also said some opposition leaders had contacted communist rebels and Muslim secessionists to promise them support and favors.

Referring to subversives, Marcos told reporters: "We can finish them off in a month if we want to. The only problem is that they will cry genocide if we start killing all of them because it might involve some members of the opposition."

He said undercover agents had infiltrated the New People's Army and the Moro National Liberation Front.

The President said that some opposition members had offered independence to Mindanao, Sulu and Basilan, where the Muslim secessionists are active, "if ever they come out the winners."

"Considering they (the opposition) cannot get together, we have not taken this too seriously . . . The government has been very liberal and generous with these elements no matter how spiteful they have been," the President added.

May 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has urged the opposition leaders yesterday not to deal with subversives, declaring they should not compel the administration to utilize the same powers that had been utilized in the past.

Earlier, the President stated that despite oppositionists' cooperation with dissidents, the government would maintain its policy of liberality towards them.

The President made the appeal in a meeting with the League of Provincial Governors and City Mayors, led by Leyte Gov. Benjamin Romualdez, which was attended also by members of the Cabinet and the Executive Committee in Malacañang.

At the same time, the President said that in the 1984 elections for the Batasang Pambansa, under Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) rules, the choice of official candidates will be made by the leadership within the area where the candidacy is made.

A candidacy will be decided by the regional leaders in a caucus, confirmed by the central committee or the national committee of the KBL.

The President called on local executives to rise above their petty squabbling and unite behind the government effort to improve the quality of life for all Filipinos.

May 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS capped his “Pulong pulong” dialogue with farmers yesterday with an order that farmers in drought areas be given more time to pay off loans to banks, which in turn will be given to settle their obligations with the Central Bank.

In his radio-TV dialogue with farmers from all regions, the President said the Central Bank will let rural banks restructure for one year their rediscounting liabilities under short-term supervised credit programs secured by the restructured notes of their borrowers.

During the life of these restructured loans, the banks will have access to CB rediscounting.

The President said that the farmers being the lifeblood of the economy he will continue to concentrate development in the countryside, as he has been doing since the signing of the Agrarian Reform Act in 1972.

The dialogue was the highlight of Farmer’s Week.

The President ordered the Philippine Crop Insurance Corporation to settle at once claims on rice and corn loans covered by crop insurance.

May 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered yesterday intensified efforts to prevent wasteful utilization of agricultural land and its exploitation by unscrupulous persons.

He warned that the government will prosecute persons who convert prime agricultural purposes without the approval of proper authorities.

The Chief Executive issues the warning as he announced that the government will now enforce more rigorously its policy on the proper use of prime agricultural lands.

Penal sanctions, he said, will be applied against those violating a presidential decree prohibiting the conversion of agricultural lands into any other purpose without the approval of the Human Settlements Regulatory Commission (HSRC), the regulatory arm of the Ministry of Human Settlements headed by the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos, and the ministries of agriculture and local government.

May 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that gradual economic recovery is better for the country because abrupt changes might lead to rapid deflation.

The President said that while signs of global economic recovery have been confirmed by other world leaders, the nation's economic direction should not go toward a sudden and then burst, which had happened before.

The President would like to see a slow establishment of a firm and strong foundation so that any emergencies can be met with strength and stability.

In the light of this economic uptrend, the President said he expects the United States to move judiciously and prudently by maintaining a low inflation rate, then lowering of interest rate and deficits and seeing to it that no abrupt changes are made which might cause deflation.

May 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the government keeps its doors open to dissidents who would like to begin a new life under an atmosphere of peace and freedom.

He said government has always maintained its open-door, policy for rebels since both government and the rebels hold the same principles and ideologies, individual liberty and democracy.

However, the President stressed that these ideals are seen in different ways.

At the same time, the President said that massive socio-economic projects have kept Mindanao on a development level comparable to other regions.

He said the latest high-priority projects there are the construction of widespread irrigation system and the distribution of farm implements to boost farm production.

The President reiterated government's policy of not liquidating dissidents, but welcome them to pursue a peaceful and lawful way of life.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed the Laguna Lake Development Authority to hasten the dismantling of illegal and giant fishpens obstructing navigational lanes in Laguna de Bay.

The demolition of over-sized fishpens, the President said would restore the ecological balance in the lake, covering some 90,000 hectares to the benefit of both the fishpen operators and the small fishermen.

The President did not specify the size of the pens to be demolished but a previous letter of instructions had pegged those above 50 hectares as contrary to the maximum size allowed by law and may be dismantled by the proper authority.

The dismantling of giant fishpens will clear the passage to communal fishing grounds which has been increased from 5,000 hectares to 10,000 hectares.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the government is considering the reimposition of the log export ban as soon as possible.

The President said that the log export ban should be enforced in a year to two at the latest.

In the last "Pulong-pulong" with farmers, the President had expressed dissatisfaction over the inability of forest concessionaires to comply with the forestation program of the government.

Early this year, the President prohibited logs from being exported. Upon the lobby of the wood industry and upon recommendation of the Ministry of Natural Resources, the President allowed a limited quantity of timber to be exported.

The President allowed the further exportation of logs to provide relief for the adverse conditions under which the loggers have operated during the last year.

May 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the government's budgetary resources are underwriting the various socio-economic programs being implemented to uplift the living conditions of the masses.

The President was reacting to claims by his critics that the government has resorted to foreign borrowings to fund its massive socio-economic development projects.

According to the President, these critics still harbor the wrong impression that the government today borrows from foreign institutions as indiscriminately as the past administration before he assumed the Presidency.

The President stressed that as a policy, the government will not resort to foreign borrowings unless the project it intends to undertake is self-liquidating.

PRESIDENT MARCOS took steps yesterday to encourage farmers to return to the use of carabaos instead of using farm machines.

In a parallel move, the President issued an executive order prohibiting the transfer of carabaos from one province to another.

To support this move, the President ordered the release of P5 million to the Bureau of Animal Industry for the purchase of more carabaos to be distributed on credit to farmers throughout the country.

The President laid down the basic guidelines for this project because it is more practical for farmers not to buy farming machines but return to the use of carabaos to work in the farms.

Interested farmers will obtain loans under the project in accordance with guidelines promulgated by the Bureau of Animal Industry.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has broadened the powers and functions of the Committee on Transportation Cooperatives in order to streamline the public transport system.

At the same time, the President granted transport operators substantial tax income privileges as incentives for them to improve their service.

All transportation cooperatives from now on are exempted from payment of common carriers tax (in lieu of sales tax) for a period of five years from date of registration with the Committee on Transportation Cooperatives.

Meanwhile, the Cabinet recommended to Mr. Marcos the phasing out of the United States Food Assistance Program (under Public Law 480) not later than the end of 1984.

Under Public Law 480, America gave the Philippines millions of dollars worth of food, such as corn, soy beans, dried milk, dried eggs and flour to support the government's nutrition program.

The government spent P60 million last year to handle and haul the food to various parts of the country, to feed school children, malnutrition cases, convalescing patients, and disaster victims.

Recently, the US government told the Philippines it would stop its food assistance program in 1987, citing the decline in malnutrition cases, the Philippine's phenomenal growth in food production, and its per capita income of over $500.

PRESIDENT MARCOS broadened the powers and functions of the Committee on Transportation Cooperatives in order to streamline the public transport system.

At the same time, he granted transport operators substantial tax and income privileges as incentives for them to improve their service.

All transport cooperatives from now on are exempted from payment of common carriers tax (in lieu of sales tax) for a period of five years from date of registration with the Committee on Transportation Cooperatives.

Meanwhile, the Cabinet recommended to the President the phasing out of the United States Food Assistance Program (under Public Law 480) not later than the end of 1984.

Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata, presiding at the Cabinet meeting, said the government could implement its nutrition program using its own resources.

The Cabinet directed the Ministries of Health, Education, and Social Services—the three most affected by the phase out—to devise alternative programs using food resources of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran livelihood program.

PRESIDENT MARCOS pledge yesterday continued support for the Philippine Air Force in the effort to upgrade its potentials in deterring aggression.

Addressing the 47th anniversary of the PAF at Villamor Air Base, the President said it was the government's policy to make it a force that shall deter any thought or act of aggression against the Republic of the Philippines.

The President said that despite limited resources that prevent it from acquiring modern equipment and aircraft, the local air force can, within the framework of cooperation with its allies and other nations, effectively deter aggression or even the thought of aggression.

Consequently, the President said, first priority has been given to the PAF in the upgrading system among military commands.

President Marcos said that the new memorandum of agreement on military bases not only meets present requirements but also provides Filipinos with a stronger substance of security for the future.

Ambassador Benjamin R. Romualdez, head of the Philippine panel, and US Ambassador Michael H. Armacost, head of the US side, signed the agreement in rites witnessed by the President, and the First Lady, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos.

Earlier, the President had received a letter from US President Ronald Reagan pledging to seek congressional approval of a $900-million appropriation as compensation for use of the bases for the five-year term starting Oct. 1, 1984.

Larger by far than the present $500-million, Reagan stated in his letter, will be broken down as follows:

PRESIDENT MARCOS called for a reassessment of economic measures to put the house in order in anticipation of the world economic upturn.

The President cited the need to reduce the high balance of payments (BOP) deficit and to restrict foreign borrowings, pointing out that the international debt already exceeds $17 billion, while the debt service ratio stands close to the salutary limit of 20 per cent.

He directed government offices to design measures ensuring a comprehensive effort to attain BOP targets and to readjust the economy in line with the volatile and competitive world environment. These measures must also consider the realities of the world energy situation, he said.

The readjustment program should increase the export competitiveness of industry, improve energy self-reliance, and increase savings mobilization, efficiency, and investment project selection.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called the new elementary school curriculum a return to the basic skills in reading, writing, mathematics and computation.

The new curriculum would also stress analysis and integration as well as values, both universal and Filipino.

The President inaugurated the new curriculum, to start in the new school year, at the Philippine International Convention Center—calling this the first stage of a revolutionary educational reform program.

The President called the new elementary program the harbinger of a more changes in all levels of education in our country and it represents the authentic beginning of a truly Filipino educational system for the Filipino people.

The new curriculum was designed to improve pupil achievement, reduce the drop-out rate, improve retention and participation rates as well as the efficiency of the total elementary education system.

PRESIDENT MARCOS proposals to ease trade irritants between developing and developed countries was presented in the forthcoming session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

President Marcos has time and time again, pressed for conciliatory measures to eliminate trade barriers that hamper the growth of trade between rich and poor nations.

The Philippines, according to Prime Minister Cesar Virata, aside from pressing for the elimination of measures obstructing economic growth, also sought the implementation of other measures that would help developing countries recover from the current global economic recession.

It also pressed for measures to relate economic growth with social and human development.

The Philippines will be the convening chairman of UNCTAD-6 after hosting UNCTAD-6 in Manila in 1979, Virata said.

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda R. Marcos and Prime Minister Cesar E. A. Virata led government officials at the burial ceremonies in Cebu City of Julio R. Cardinal Rosales.

The body was interred at high noon at the Archdiocesan Mausoleum for bishops in Cebu City beside Msgr. Lino Gonzaga, former bishop of Zamboanga who died in 1981. Monsignor Gonzaga was a first-degree cousin of Cardinal Rosales.

Jaime L. Cardinal Sin, Manila archbishop and now the only living Filipino cardinal, officiated at the burial rites.

Mrs. Marcos' final homage to the late cardinal evokes a sentimental touch as it was from Cardinal Rosales, the second Filipino to be ordained Prince of the Church, from whom she received her first Holy Communion.

During the cardinal's last days at the hospital, the First Lady paid him a surprise visit. She offered to have him airlifted to the United States or to any part of the world for treatment by medical experts.

June 7—

THE FIRST LADY; Metro Manila Gov. Imelda R. Marcos, has ordered yesterday the suspension of tuition fees in all public high schools in the metropolis, thus ending a two-week debate on whether to collect tuition or not.

Under Ordinance No. 2 of the Metro Manila Commission, the 13 towns and four cities of Metro Manila were given the option, starting this year, to collect tuition, ranging from P180 per year for first year high to P240 for fourth year.

Before the ordinance could be implemented, the First Lady suspended it, and asked mayors to consult with barangay captains on the issue.

Pasay City and Makati, which have always provided free education, decided to continue operating their high schools free.

Manila, the pioneer of free high schools, asked for deferment of the ordinance's implementation to next year.

The First Lady stressed the youth can avail of free secondary education and the opportunity to develop their talents, and acquire basic skills that will enable them to participate actively in our quest for economic and social development and national stability.

PRESIDENT MARCOS received yesterday the Vietnam government's reaffirmation of its aim to restore peace in Southeast Asia and to settle dispute in the region consistent with the principles of co-existence and mutual understanding.

This assurance was contained in a message from Vietnam's Prime Minister Pham Van Dong handcarried by Vietnamese Foreign Minister Gnuyen Co Thach, who paid a courtesy call on the President at Malacañang yesterday morning.

The Vietnamese premier's message also reaffirmed his country's respect for the independence of all countries and its desire to promote cooperation between Vietnam and all other Asian countries.

Noting the great strides made in agricultural research, Foreign Minister Co Thach requested that he be allowed to take home some agricultural seeds such as coconuts and rice.

The President recalled that when Prime Minister Pham Van Dong visited the Philippines, he brought homo tons of high-yielding rice varieties from Los Baños.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered Minister of Public Works Jesus Hipolito to sit down and resolve the financial problems of contractors involved in pipe-laying work for the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System (MWSS).

The contractors had asked for payment of over P163 million withheld by the MWSS and an average cost adjustment of 27.9 per cent on their contracts, threatening to stop work if the adjustment would not be granted.

They pointed out that the MWSS had earlier given the Construction and Development Corp. of the Philippines (CDCP) a 100 per cent cost adjustment. The CDCP is among other pipe-laying contractors.

The PCC1 and the Employers Confederation of the Philippines had told the President that if the P3.5-billion waterworks expansion project was delayed, it would hurt the economy.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on the nation today to unite behind the national struggle for economic freedom to liberate our people from poverty and want.

The President proclaimed June 12, 1983 as economic independence day for the Filipino people in a speech marking the anniversary of the declaration of Philippine Independence.

He asked every man and woman to address their talents, time, and labors to the task of nation-building even as he scored factionalism which divides the people.

At the same time, the President said factionalism seems to start with some intellectuals who have the tendency to be misled by foreign ideology and who seem to have no respect for the Filipino culture the Filipino individual, and the Filipino tradition.

Earlier the President, assisted by the First Lady and Ilocos Norte Gov. Ferdinand Marcos, Jr., raised the Philippine flag at the Rizal park fronting the Ilocos Norte provincial capitol.

During the 18th Congress of the Medical Women's International Association, the President stressed that modern societies especially the developing nations, which are modernizing their health care programs should be more sensitive and knowledgeable in investing their programs with a greater degree of humanity.

The President said they can take a leaf from the practice of ancient physicians of treating the whole man, soul as well as body, to relieve or cure an ailment.

The President cited the history of Oriental medicine and how medicine rooted in tradition developed the art of healing such as Hindu surgery and Chinese acupuncture.

In the Philippines, he said, a long tradition of folk medicine endures to this day. The significant part of this tradition was the babaylan, which referred to the role of women in healing.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the reorganization of the management boards of all Philippine Centers in the United States to expand trade between the Philippines and the United States.

Philippine Centers had been established in San Francisco, California, Los Angeles and New York in 1973 to enable the American people to have a glimpse of the Philippines, specially its export products, people and culture.

Samples of the country's main products, which other countries may buy any time, are displayed at the centers.

In an executive order signed yesterday, the President appointed Philippine envoy to Washington, Benjamin T. Romualdez, head of the Philippine Center's management boards.

Romualdez is currently the chairman of the Philippine-United States Business Development Council.

The council was created last September to expand further the Philippine presence in the US market.

The Presidential order centralizes the responsibility for the promotion of RP-US trade in the chairman, of the management board of the Philippine Center.

November 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the government would do everything to punish people involved in drug trafficking.

He issued the statement during the call of the participants to the ninth meeting of the heads of national narcotics law enforcement agencies in Malacañang.

The President assured them the Philippine government is exerting all efforts to stop the illicit drug trade which, he said, has become a grave domestic problem.

He recalled how Lim Seng, a heroin manufacturer and head of a drug syndicate, was executed by musketry to prove that the government meant business in stopping the menace.

He also disclosed that Virginia Espeleta de la Pena, tagged as the “queen of drug pushers,” is now being held incommunicado in the PC stockade in Camp Crame after being found to have continued to run her syndicate from her jail in Angeles City Pampanga.

November 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has urged sports leaders to propagate athletics in the barangay level and harness the youth’s participation to draw them away from the influence of dangerous drugs.

The President has expressed alarm over the continuing drug menace which, he said, has involved even some sons and daughters of well-known personalities.

He made the pronouncement during the courtesy call of the officials of the Little League Baseball Association in Malacañang.

The President told the sports leaders that the challenge of athletics is an alternative to combat drug addiction among the youth.

“Sports should give our children a good alternative and your work (Little League baseball) is God-sent,” the President said.

The President stressed that the problems of the modern world tend to be met by the use of drugs and one of the ways to fight it is through participation in sports.

November 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has banned the use of asbestos as lining for air-conditioning ducts.

The President cited medical and scientific studies, which, he said, indicated some relation between cancer and sustained contact with asbestos.

“The evidence that has become available so far shows, for instance, that asbestos fiber inhaled and deposited in the lungs is definitely carcinogenic,” the President said.

The President also directed that all buildings where airconditioners have been installed immediately and thoroughly inspected to find out if asbestos fiber has been used.

He ordered the removal and replacement of asbestos pipes and fibers with other materials to be determined by the Ministry of Health and the director general of the National Science and Technology Authority.

November 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has approved the purchase of 400 new trucks to boost garbage collection and disposal facilities in Metro Manila.

To cope with the mounting garbage problem in the area, the President also ordered the Metro Manila Commission to increase the number of garbage dumpsites and strengthen the administrative and technical capabilities of the Environmental Sanitation Center.

The Environmental Sanitation Center is responsible for providing an integrated garbage collection and sanitation system in Metro Manila.

The purchase of the new trucks partly implements a long-standing plan to modernize garbage collection and sanitation services in Metro Manila.

Malacañang said that the purchase of the trucks and other equipment will be financed by the Export-Import Bank of Japan under a five-year refinancing scheme.

November 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that he will use the “visitorial powers” of his office to safeguard the funds of the Philippine Veterans Bank.

The President sounded this warning during the eight regular meeting of the Supreme Council of the Veterans Federation of the Philippines at the Veterans Bank building on Bonifacio Drive.

The President expressed his disappointment over the failure of the bank which, under the past administration, had granted over P500-million on uncollectible debts.

The President said he had asked the former president of the bank as well as its board of directors to explain in writing how this happened.

He pointed out that a special group will be organized for the purpose of making a periodic reports of the bank’s performance.

The President recalled that the bank was organized with the $25-million, which was given by the United States government to Filipino veterans.

“From now on let us not allow money to be used by the few. Now we will have to watch over the shoulders of the bank’s president and the treasurer, and every resolution they approve,” the President said.

November 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Executive Order 849 which raised from 70 to 80 percent the loan value of grains and other agricultural products.

The President said that the higher loan value should encourage grains businessmen “to procure more of the farmer’s produce at higher prices.”

The move was prompted by the clamor from the private sector for better access to government funds under the quedan financing program.

The immediate beneficiaries will be the grains businessmen who can now get higher loans from banks against their quedans or food stocks pledged under the Food Quedan Financing Program.

Official Month in Review: December 1983

December 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has underscored the need for a reorientation of Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran projects to boost the country's foreign exchange earnings.

Citing a worldwide shortage, the President said the KKK should emphasize marketable products.

This new approach, the President said, should guide the KKK towards the possible shifting of its concentration to the production of high quality foods such as shrimps, lobsters, oysters, tuna and others rather than products that may not be suitable for export.

The President earlier said that the important thing now is how to save our economy. He appealed to everybody to shift concentration to the economic crisis plaguing the nation.

December 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the government will trim expenditures, including personnel services, and increase revenue collections to reduce an expected P14-billion deficit to P9.4 billion.

At a four-hour caucus of the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan in Malacañang, with President Marcos presiding, Budget Minister Manuel Alba said that the obligation level originally set by the Batasan at P65 billion has to be lowered because of the general economic slump.

After hearing the report of Alba, the caucus agreed to reduce capital outlays program by 28 percent, the infrastructure program by 25 percent, personnel services by 7 percent and equity infusion and subsidies to government corporations by 50 percent.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the implication of this reduction in expenditures is that every government office will have a cut of at least 18 percent.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT MARCOS has denied yesterday a demand by Western Samar priests for the release of a Fr. Kangleon and two lay workers who had been picked up on subversion charges. The priests had threatened to go on pastoral leave if this and five other demands were not met by the government.

In a statement to the press, the President said that in the past he had authorized the release of several priests and nuns arrested for subversive activities to their superiors only to find later that these members of the clergy went underground and resumed their subversive activities.

December 3—

THE GOVERNMENT will not lay off employees to save money and reduce the expected P13.4 billion deficit.

This assurance was given yesterday by President Marcos in a brief talk with newsmen after playing 18 holes in a special flight of the President Marcos Golf Invitational Tournament which reeled off in Ternate, Cavite.

The President stressed that the hiring of new personnel will be stopped, except in the delivery of health services, food production, emergencies, calamities and peace and order.

* * * * *

President Marcos has ordered the suspension of all negotiations for foreign-assisted projects as part of the government's belt-tightening measures to forestall a deficit.

The President ordered Highways Minister Jesus Hipolito to freeze negotiations except those for foreign-assisted projects which are in progress for at least six months.

He told Hipolito to use the foreign exchange portion of the unnegotiated projects and save the local costs.

One of the projects in progress is the Light Rail Transit (LRT) system being built in Metro Manila by the Construction and Development Corporation of the Philippines.

December 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS banned the importation, manufacture, sale, and distribution of toy weapons in the interest of public welfare and safety.

The ban was imposed by Letter of Instruction (LOI) No. 1264, signed by the President on recommendation of Lt. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief.

The President's action was prompted by reports that the weapons could easily mislead the public because of their almost genuine appearance.

The ban on the weapons was recommended by PC-Metrocom authorities, following complaints that holdup gangs used these replicas.

The recommendation was endorsed by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Gen. Fabian C. Ver, AFP chief of staff.

The LOI noted the proliferation of imported toy firearms and explosives which, except for their weight, are exact replicas of genuine weapons in appearance, measurement, color, and parts.

December 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said today that all the funds raised by the Marcos Sports Foundation will be used to offer the younger generation a fair and honest alternative to the kind of life a permissive society has offered them.

In a speech highlighting the awards ceremonies at the close of the Third President Marcos Invitational Golf Tournament, the President cited the role of sports in nation-building and in enriching the life of the younger generation by promoting high ideals.

Carlos Palanca, Jr., chairman and president of Lepanto Consolidated Mining Corporation, handed the President a P2-million check for the non-stock, non-profit entity representing the proceeds from the three-day tournament.

The President said:

“We must enrich these alternatives with all the options that are available. We must make it so enticing that the younger generation will not only be seduced but convinced that it is the only kind of life acceptable to the young.”

December 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has given assurances yesterday that the prices of consumer items would not be seriously affected by the projected increases in the prices of petroleum products.

The President said he will manage any increase in the price of petroleum products in such a way that anticipated increases in the prices of essential consumer goods, especially food, can be minimized.

He said he was considering several steps that will ease the effects of this price increase on consumers.

He said these mainly include making certain allowances for the poor on certain essential consumer items.

In particular, the requirements of marginal fishermen, who depend on kerosene and diesel, will surely be met, he added.

Increase in the price of diesel and kerosene are due to be announced soon.

December 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed that the government, in stepping up its policy of attraction for foreign investors, may consider granting permanent resident status and even citizenship to such investors.

Earlier, in a move to attract Hong Kong businessmen uncertain about the status of the Crown Colony after 1997, the President issued Decree 1351 authorizing special investigators resident visas for aliens investing at least $200,000 in the Philippines.

These visas will continue as long as the alien keeps his investment. The President told newsmen that alien investors may also buy shares in real estate companies.

The President said there are many Chinese nationals who have been seeking citizenship and want to own land. They want to sink roots in the country, he said, and the way to do this is through citizenship.

He said the granting may be done under an earlier decree on naturalization issued some years ago which enabled a number of long-time alien residents to become Filipinos after passing certain requirements.

December 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS paid tribute to the soldier, saying that the nation owes much to him, who in donning the uniform, has chosen the path of duty, discipline, and sacrifice.

The President spoke at the “Gathering of Eagles” dinner marking the silver anniversary of the Philippine Air Force Flying School, class of 1957, at the Manila Hotel.

The President said that in their youth, the men in uniform could have taken the path to fame and riches, but they instead heeded the call for men-at-arms.

The President also received from Farolan a citation as an honorary member of the class. He was cited as an “architect of the modernization of the armed forces, including the air force.”

December 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has announced that he would soon fill vacancies in the Court of Appeals and lower courts to ease further the backlog of cases in the judiciary.

The new appointees will fall under the old judiciary setup, the President said.

He said that apart from the appellate tribunal, there are vacancies in courts of first instance and lower courts and many lawyers are complaining over the delay in the trial of their cases because of lack of judges.

The President revealed he has fielded a team that would make a factual, fair and honest assessment of the performance and budgetary requirements of the reorganization of the judiciary.

In line with this policy, the President reiterated his pledge to appoint only the most qualified men to the bench. In the screening of the new appointees, the President said he would demand the highest degree of honesty and integrity.

December 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has authorized yesterday the release of former newspaper publisher Joaquin P. (Chino) Roces on his own personal recognizance after he was ordered arrested on subversion charges for involvement in a conspiracy to overthrow the government through a widespread black propaganda.

In his directive, the President told the authorities concerned to permit Roces to remain under house arrest without any guard.

Charges against Jose Burgos Jr., We Forum publisher-editor, and his 14 co-accused have been filed in court by Quezon City Fiscal Sergio Apostol. Burgos and the other co-accused, through their counsel, asked the Supreme Court to order the Quezon City CFI to set their case for immediate trial. They are now detained at Fort Bonifacio.

The President has denied a request filed by government prosecutor for sequestration of the We Forum newspaper and its printing presses.

* * * * *

December 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has approved yesterday the increase in the salaries of public school superintendents starting Jan. 1, 1983.

The President announced the approval during the call in Malacañang of the officers and members of the Philippine Association of School Superintendents.

Public school superintendents are receiving an average of P27,000 annually and the increase will put them in the same wage level as department heads in the local government.

The President ordered Education Minister Onofre D. Corpuz and Education Deputy Minister Hermenigildo Dumlao to work out a schedule of salary increases for the superintendent.

* * * * *

December 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has directed authorizing yesterday to proceed with a speech trial of We Forum newspaper publisher-editor Jose Burgos Jr. and his co-accused in the subversion case involving an alleged conspiracy to overthrow the government through black propaganda and violence.

During a review of the case with Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, Gen. Fabian C. Ver, AFP chief of staff; and Brig. Gen. Hamilton Dimaya, Judge advocate general, the President was informed that the state had strong case against the accused.

The Chief Executive was told the evidence included sworn statements by two eyewitness who said they were invited by Burgos to join in the subversive conspiracy to destabilize the government and discredit the awards and decorations won in combat by Filipino fighting men in World War II, including President Marcos who was the most bemedalled among them.

* * * * *

December 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed yesterday that excess personnel whose work in government offices may be affected by the projected budgetary cuts would be given field work.

The President has ordered all ministries and government agencies to send them on information campaigns, extension work and help in ongoing Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran projects.

He told newsmen the government would try to keep everybody employed despite the belt-tightening measures announced recently.

Among the measures is the reduction by 18 percent of all ministry budgets to meet the level of budgetary deficit.

The President said earlier that the decision to trim expenses was also necessary due to the current economic crunch but he had given assurances that there would be no mass layoffs of government personnel.

The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, arrived last night from a 28-day mission to the Soviet Union and the United States.

President Marcos headed a group of officials, ambassadors, Metro Manila officials and friends of the First Couple and her party.

Mrs. Marcos, who is also Metro Manila governor and human settlements minister, flew to Moscow Nov. 13 to represent President Marcos and the Filipino people at the funeral of the Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

She also hand-carried President Marcos' letter of condolence and a letter of congratulations to the new Soviet leader, Yuri Andropov.

December 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered an inventory of all government equipment range from road machines and computers to typewriters.

The President stressed the inventory will be part of government measures to reduce expenditures.

Auditors of ministries and other agencies revealed that idle equipment or those in need of repair would amount to billions of pesos. These equipment range from road machines and computers to typewriters.

The President singled out road equipment stored in depots of the Ministry of Public Works and Highways which have been laying idle for lack of spare parts.

He noted that the equipment can no longer be used because they had been cannibalized and their parts stolen while in storage.

December 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has ordered the release under house arrest of We Forum publisher-editor Jose Burgos Jr. and his other co-accused.

The President issued the order in view of the evidence in the subversion case against Burgos and his co-accused which would require them to prepare for trial with their counsel.

The release order also took into account the spirit of the Christmas and New Year holiday season Malacañang said.

The Presidential order was issued to Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile through Gen. Fabian C. Ver, AFP chief of staff.

The temporary release under house arrest of the accused required that they report to a security officer at least every Monday of each week and that they appear during the scheduled trial or hearing of their case.

Burgos and his companions were also warned against "engaging in any act in which they are charged"—the criminal complaint of subversion—otherwise they would be placed once more under detention.

December 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has approved yesterday a yearend bonus to all national government employees, subject to availability of funds.

The Christmas bonanza will be equivalent to a week's pay, but not lower than P250 and not higher than P500.

To be benefitted are some 900,000 employees whether temporary, emergency, casual or contractual, full or part-time basis including whose salaries are fixed by the Constitution.

Computation of the bonus shall be based on the contractual rate of the employee as of Nov. 30, 1982, and shall not be subjected to deductions like Medicare and GSIS premium.

The same bonus will be given to a minister or his equivalent, members of the judiciary, uniformed and civilian employees of the armed forces and the Integrated National Police, and those employed by state colleges and universities.

Not entitled to this bonus are employees who already have a year-end bonus or incentive pay or its equivalent beyond their basic salaries and duly-authorized monthly allowance.

December 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has formed a committee to review the credit operations of government financing institutions as he anticipated a 15 per cent expansion of credit facilities in 1983.

The President said the review will seek to strengthen the share of the private sector in the credit allocations of the government financing institutions.

The institutions will undergo the review are the Development Bank of the Philippines, the Veterans Bank of the Philippines, and the Amanah Bank.

During the last Cabinet meeting, the President said he expected the committee to report to him immediately after the Christmas and New Year holidays.

The committee was headed by Prime Minister Cesar Virata, who is concurrently minister of finance.

December 18—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos brought Christmas cheers, as well as entertainment, at the Maligayang Pasko '82 Children's festival at the Folk Arts theatre yesterday.

Assisted by the wives of Cabinet members and close friends, the First Lady distributed foods bags and gifts to thousands of children from various institutions during the FAT ceremonies.

A program called "Tanghalang Munti" was held for the entertainment of children. This included the participation of the "Sesame Street" characters, as well as the Cathedral Boy's choir, the Pangkat Kawayan, and the FAT Junior Performing Group.

The gifts were collected by the Maligayang Pasko '82 committee from some 160 companies.

The children came from 28 institutions and children's community centers and other depressed areas.

Mrs. Marcos and her committee were also assisted by some foreign guests, including Mrs. Anne Hamilton, mother of actor George Hamilton, a friend of the First Couple.

December 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, assessing the performance of the New Republic during the year, has declared that the Philippines is faring better than most countries in coping with the global economic slowdown.

He said that in a year of deepening recession and unemployment, the country has proved to be more stable, fundamentally sound in economy, and essentially ready to move into the next era of modernization.

He added that this assessment is shared by neutral observers, international experts, and incisive and thoughtful intellectuals.

The President said he is privileged to be a leader of the Filipino people in these critical times.

Assessing the country's overall situation, the President pointed out that policies pursued over the years have kept intact a "basic and fundamental system for a strong people-based society."

* * * * *

December 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has expressed satisfaction with the performance of the Cabinet and the productive work of the entire government during the year.

Asking each of the 26 Cabinet ministers to carry on their good work, the President said the Cabinet has every reason to be proud of its performance in the last 12 months, having led the country through another economic crisis and threats to national security.

The President stressed that the individual work all the members of the Cabinet has also been successful. Everything that he has worked on turned to be productive of achievement.

The President also said he was particularly pleased with the performance of the country in a year of worsening economic conditions.

December 21—

HUMAN SETTLEMENTS Minister Imelda R. Marcos has announced measures to add more flexibility and efficiency in the implementation of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran program through local officials.

Approved by the KKK Pambansang Lupon, these measures will:

1) Increase on a selective basis the amount of KKK loans being farmed out through the governors and mayors under Executive Order No. 781 creating a special fund for local governments.

2) Treat this special fund as revolving fund to allow local officials to retain the loan collections and loan them out to new applicants.

3) Consider interest earnings from KKK loans as additional contributions to the revolving fund of local governments and be used to pay for overhead expenses of provinces and towns in processing and collecting KKK loans.

December 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has declared the government's adherence to human rights was beyond question and accused Amnesty International of deceit for exaggerating the number of alleged tortures and assassinations by military personnel.

Addressing the 47 anniversary of the Armed Forces of the Philippines at Camp Aguinaldo, the President said many of the reports compiled by Amnesty International had been answered, but that this organization added 60 or 70 of the original complaints, which had already been answered, to make it more voluminous.

At the same time, the President warned the media of "this casual manner with which libel is being committed nowadays."

He particularly singled out a letter to the editor of Bulletin Today which has published recently. The letter claimed that prisoners in the Bicutan detention center were being psychologically and physically tortured.

"I would like to deny this now openly and I would like the Bulletin to print this particular denial," he declared. "Otherwise, we will be compelled to take action."

The President said "probably the lawyer of the Bulletin thinks that publication of a letter of a third party does not involve them in scurrilous libel. They better get a better lawyer."

December 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has called on all Filipino doctors in the country to emulate the example of Filipino medical practitioners in America who have come here to render free medical services to the poor.

Addressing about 200 Filipino medical practitioners in America, who made a courtesy call, the President said that when members of a society begin to care for each other and feel a sense of community and belonging to one nation, that unity is capable of achieving any goal.

The President said that if doctors living in affluent America come to offer their services and expertise to the impoverished," it is time those sitting on fenses up to now and not exerting enough effort and energy not to help Marcos or anybody, but the impoverished, the ignorant, and the deprived, should go out and work in their chosen fields of activity."

President Marcos has announced yesterday he would appoint 40 justices to the Court of Appeals, plus 680 regional trial judges before Christmas Day.

They will come from a list of 1,000 candidates who have taken the required seminars and tests under the auspices of the Supreme Court and the Ministry of Justice.

Before making the appointments, the President said, he would approve the staffing pattern under the guidelines of the judicial reorganization law passed last year by the legislature.

The law called for reorganizing the judiciary from the appellate court to the municipal courts.

The reorganized setup would mean more institutional reforms, making the judiciary more effective, efficient, and stable.

Under the new law, there are 50 seats in the Court of Appeals and 720 regional trial courts, which used to be known as courts of first instance.

The President had promised to choose only the most qualified men to get the reorganized judiciary off to a good start. Not only must they be known for honesty but also competence and experience, he said.

December 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS predicted yesterday improving economic prospects for the new year, stating that while nationwide there are indications of continued economic problems, there are also signs of recovery.

The President cited new and favorable textile agreements with the United States and the European Economic Community which would increase garment exports to the $1-billion mark next year.

In an interview with newsmen before flying off to Ilocos Norte for Christmas holidays, he said the Philippines is “usually lucky that certain developments favor our commodities and our economy.”

He said that garment exports under the new agreements would increase 22 per cent with America and 20 per cent with the EEC.

The President urged the garments industry to do its best to fill up the new quotas.

December 25—

THE FIRST LADY and Human Settlement Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos has assured that the government program of creating independent entrepreneurship will provide more job opportunities in Metro Manila during the coming year.

The First Lady, who is also Metro Manila governor, said this program, under the Ministry of Human Settlements, the Metro Manila Commission and the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran will see to it that livelihood opportunities are made available to all in the national capital region.

The First Lady said that whatever displacements may arise among distressed industries affected by the world recession will be absorbed by the strong entrepreneurship program of the New Republic.

The First Lady said the prospects are brighter for the coming year on the basis of economic indications pointing to a recovery trend particularly in the export trade.

December 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said in Laoag City that he expected more foreign investments in the hundreds of millions of dollars to pour into the country in the coming year.

Big investors are looking towards the Philippines, particularly with the scheduled termination of the British lease on Hongkong in 1997, he said.

When this happens, he added, Ilocos Norte and the rest of Ilocos region will benefit from the increased investments. He said investors from Macao prefer to invest in Ilocos Norte because of its proximity.

The President also stressed that Ilocos Norte will be developed into one of the most prosperous provinces in the country.

December 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos unveiled a marker that records a historic event on Nov. 21, 1944, that helped paved the way for the eventual liberation of the country.

Aside from the large crowd from the small coastal town of San Esteban, the unveiling ceremony at noon was witnessed by four of the principal participants in the event 38 years ago.

The marker identifies the site in Apalot, San Esteban, Ilocos Sur, where a commando unit from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's First Reconnaissance company, composed of 10 Philippine-born and six American officers and enlisted men, landed with 35 tons of guns, ammunitions radio equipment, and medical supplies.

These were for Col. Russell W. Voickmann's USAFIL-NL, composed of five guerilla regiments, including the 14th Infantry of then Maj. Ferdinand E. Marcos.

President Marcos has ordered a crackdown on syndicates responsible for technical smuggling in the bureau of customs.

He directed the Central Bank to form a team to go after the syndicates.

The CB prove team reviewed and checked the value and volume of all exports processed in the bureau. This procedure, according to the President, is being followed in the case of sugar and will be applied to other items, starting with logs.

The President also stressed that some log exporters have not been declaring the true value of their exports, thus depriving the government of billions of pesos in customs duties and taxes.

In his estimate, the President said customs duties and taxes which the bureau has not collected amount to P10 billion.

December 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS has granted amnesty to 45 detainees charged with illegal possession of firearms, ammunition, and explosives.

The President approved the recommendations of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 1745.

Under PD 1745, grant of amnesty with illegal possession of firearms, ammunition, or explosives is allowable, provided no other crime was committed by them with the use of such firearm, ammunition, or explosives.

Defense Deputy Minister Carmelo Z. Barbero, concurrent chief of the office of detainee affairs (ODA), said that the cases of the 45 individuals were evaluated and they were found to be qualified for the grant of amnesty.

December 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS helped direct firefighting operations when a light bulb on a Christmas tree exploded near a window in Malacañang's Heroes Hall yesterday afternoon setting fire to the drapes.

The fire spread quickly, but fast work by Metro Manila firefighters brought it under control in 10 minutes.

No one was injured, except for a television technician who was overcome by smoke.

The damage was minimal that was due mainly to water. The fire was confined to Heroes Hall, site of many ceremonial affairs. It is a low-ceiling hall on the ground floor located near the Pasig river.

Soldiers of the Presidential Security command fired into the air when they noticed smoke coming out of Heroes Hall. This was normal warning procedure.

The First Lady, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez Marcos, commended the firemen and police officers who responded to the fire alarm.

President Marcos said that the government will spend up action on subversion cases after the holidays.

He had earlier ordered authorities to notify all those accused of subversion of the post-holiday hearings so that they can prepare their defense.

However, trial for foreign-based residents implicated in subversion activities will be suspended for the time being, he said.

The President told newsmen that military intelligence officers have their possession documents implicating persons here and in the United States. Those in America, he said, will be tried in absentia.

For those absent, "the trial may have to be suspended unless the civil aspect can be allowed to continue," he said.

Facing subversion charges before the Quezon City court of first instance are "WE Forum" editor Joseph Burgos Jr., some of his staffers, and some opposition men in the United States.

December 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS paid tribute to the martyrdom to Dr. Jose Rizal as an enduring legacy of pride in being a Filipino and of faith in the Filipino race.

In a message setting the tone for today's commemoration of Rizal's 86th death anniversary, the President said the country has reserved a special place of honor for Rizal as the greatest Filipino hero.

The President said Rizal's martyrdom "did not only intensify the revolutionary fervor of our forebears and inspired succeeding generations of our national heroes to lay down their lives for our country but also, because by his life and works, he has shown us the possibilities within us as individuals and as a nation."

The President said that Rizal taught Filipinos to look at themselves as the equal of any race, capable of managing their own affairs.

The President and Mrs. Marcos led the nation in today's commemoration of this year's death anniversary of Dr. Jose Rizal.

President Marcos met Minister-President Franz Josef Strauss of Bavaria for an hour, exchanging views on world problems such as economic recession, inflation, unemployment, and international credit.

Strauss, declaring himself excited over his first visit to Manila, was accompanied on his flight from Frankfurt by his wife and Secretary Langl of the Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation.

Strauss said that like other countries, West Germany is saddled with serious problems, including unemployment.

He said the economic recession has brought down prices for raw materials while raising prices in machinery.

The President told his visitor that the Philippines brought down inflation from 24 per cent to below 10. He said the government is now strengthening the local market and concentrating on high-quality production of prawns, shrimps, oysters, and lobsters.

President Marcos has announced yesterday the imposition of administrative penalties against five assistant provincial fiscals and the dismissal of a register of deeds, under his continuing program to kick out undesirables from the public service while disciplining violators of rules.

The men were guilty of violations ranging from misconduct to ignorance of the law.

Penalized were Fiscals Salvador of Cajot of Camarines Sur, Jose Manulat of Cebu, David Tubongbanua of Iloilo, and Horacio Rañola and Ricardo Sumaway of Rizal.

The President warned that the government will continue to "discipline those who have violated the constitutional mandate that a public office is a public trust."

December 31—

THE FIRST LADY, Minister of Human Settlements Imelda R. Marcos, interceded yesterday for 17 first-time offenders in the Manila city jail and personally saw to their release.

The 17, who were awaiting trial, were first offenders whose period of detention had already exceeded any sentence the court could impose on them for their crimes.

Mrs. Marcos drove down to the city jail to deliver a pep talk to the detainee, urging them to start a new life for themselves and their families.

She gave each P500 to keep him going until he finds a job. She shook hands with each of them to seek government assistance if they can not cope with their problems.

The First Lady stressed that the government was established for the people: it could justify its existence only by helping the people.
